Don't Fight Japs, Gandhi's Party Urges India

RESIST INVADER WITHOUT USE OF VIOLENCE: PLEA

Rap British Failure to Stir War Spirit.

ALLAHABAD, India, May 2 (AP).—The All-India Congress party's working committee decided today to urge the masses of India not to fight if their country is invaded by Japan. The dominant Congress leaders threw their great influence with the people of India on the side of resistance only by "nonviolent noncoöperation."

The Congress thus returned to the ideas of Mohandas K. Gandhi, the man best known to all of India's millions, despite the views of Jawaharlal Nehru and other party leaders who have declared India must fight. Gandhi in recent utterances has advanced his policy of nonviolence to the point of opposing the scorched earth policy in case India is invaded.

Blame British Government.

The resolution follows:

"In case invasion takes place it must be resisted. Such resistance can only take the form of nonviolent noncoöperation, as the British government prevented organization of national defenses by the people in any other way.

"We may not bend the knee to an aggressor, nor obey any of his orders. We may not look to him for favors, nor fall to his bribes. If he wishes to take possession of our homes and our fields we must refuse to give them up, even if we have to die in an effort to resist him.

Indian Manpower Untapped.

"It is significant and extraordinary that India's inexhaustible manpower should remain untapped while India develops into a battleground between foreign armies fighting on her soil or frontiers and her defense is not supposed to be a subject fit for popular control."

This last referred to the mission of Sir Stafford Cripps, who came from London to offer India a dominion government after the war, but whose proposals fell flat over Indian demands for full sovereignty now.

India's leaders, among them Nehru, have contended that only self-government now could light the spark of resistance among the Indian people.

Moslems Furnish Fighters.

The Congress party's action, however, does not mean that all Indians will refuse to fight. The 77,000,000 Moslem minority has furnished Britain with some of its best warriors, and Dr. B. S. Moonje, veteran leader of the influential Hindu Mahasabha, has organized a school for guerrillas.

The Congress party also rejected by a vote of 120 to 15 a resolution to acknowledge the Moslem league's claim to autonomy. A counterproposal opposing any splitting of India was adopted, 97 to 17.

HIGH JAPANESE DIPLOMATS OPEN PARLEY IN VICHY

VICHY, France, May 2 (AP).—The highest ranking Japanese diplomats in Europe started a series of conferences here today. Vice Adm. Naokuni Nomura, head of the Japanese delegation to Berlin, and Rear Adm. Ade, chief of the Japanese diplomats in Rome, arrived by planes during the morning. They conferred during the entire day with Takonobu Mitani, Japanese ambassador to Vichy, France. Later they were expected to confer with French political leaders.

Gravity of War in Britain: Isaac Newton Loses Fence

LONDON, May 2.—First to come under the hammer in Lincolnshire this week in connection with the country's drive for metal were the ancient railings surrounding the statue of Sir Isaac Newton in the center of Grantham.

Puerto Rico to Set Clocks Ahead an Hour as Oil Saver

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, May 2 (AP).—Puerto Rico clocks were ordered advanced one hour at midnight Sunday to reduce oil consumption in electric plants.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF DEVELOPMENTS ON WAR FRONTS

Latest war developments:

Chinese forces have repulsed Japanese troops driving up the Burma road from captured Lashio at a point 45 miles from the border of China, a communique announced. Other Chinese defenders were reported battling the Japs south and southeast of Mandalay. A Tokio communique claimed the capture of Mandalay. The British said their troops on the Mandalay front were being withdrawn "from a position north of the Irrawaddy" river. They reported fighting going on 50 miles west of Mandalay.

Red Tanks Pound Nazis

Russian tanks were reported driving deep new wedges into Bryansk, and Kursk, which protect the flank of the Nazi army in the Ukraine. Several strong points were claimed recaptured. The Russians also were said to have struck heavy blows southwest of Kharkov to forestall a Nazi drive on the Caucasus.

Allied headquarters in Australia reported three Japanese ships had been hit by allied planes raiding the enemy's invasion base at Rabaul, New Britain, and said six planes had been destroyed and six others damaged in attacks on New Britain and New Guinea. Townsville, Australia, prepared for a possible attack by Japanese.

Taft Lambasts Press Agents' War by Words

New York, May 2 (AP).—Sen. Robert A. Taft [R., O.], criticizing what he called huge government expenditures for propaganda, declared today that "We can't defeat Hitler with words."

"There is only one way to win this war," Taft asserted in an address before the American Irish Historical society, "—by successful military and naval action, the brains and determination of our soldiers and sailors, the courage of our men."

Taft quoted Archibald MacLeish, head of the Office of Facts and Figures, as having told the American Society of Newspaper Editors two weeks ago that "the real battleground of this war is the field of American opinion."

"Natural" Mistake.

"In my opinion Mr. MacLeish is completely mistaken—a natural mistake perhaps for a federal official in charge of a propaganda bureau," Taft continued.

"The sooner we forget the theory that we can win the war by winning the battle of propaganda, the more likely we are to achieve complete military success. Our people are not discouraged."

"We seem to have drifted into a form of government by press release," Taft said. "Sometimes I think that officials are more interested in telling the public what they are doing or are going to do than they are in getting the results."

Charges Criticism Avoided.

The Ohioan said 5,000 people are spending more than $30,000,000 a year handing out publicity—"propaganda pure and unadulterated"—in Washington. Everything that might result in criticism, he declared, is carefully suppressed.

"The whole country in recent years has become publicity minded to a point where it regards the announcement of a program as a job already done," he said.

He cautioned his audience to be on guard against suppression of freedom within the United States during the course of the war. Acknowledging that many rights and privileges necessarily must be suspended to gain victory, Taft declared the present administration "is utterly unscrupulous in its demands for more power."

HEAR NAZIS GET GIRAUD; RETURN HIM TO FRENCH

Row Over Escaped Hero Reported.

New York, May 2 (AP).—Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, the elusive French officer whom Germany captured but could not hold in two wars, was reported tonight to have been handed back to the Germans and then back to the French.

According to reliable European informants, he still was in detention near Vichy while French and German officials argued over his custody. The general had made a spectacular escape from the Nazis' Koenigstein fortress late last month.

Nazis Seek His Return.

The Germans, who offered a 100,000 mark [$40,000] reward for the 63 year old general before he made his way to unoccupied France by way of Switzerland, late last month, were said to be exerting considerable pressure in discussions under way at Vichy to regain their former captive.

The general was said to have left Vichy tonight with two custodians reliably identified as Germans. It was said that he was being taken back to Paris. However, after several hours he was returned to a place of detention just outside Vichy.

Well posted European sources said they believed Giraud had met important military and political personages at a point outside of Vichy, that discussions regarding his return to German custody had struck a snag, and that he was brought back immediately to the point outside Vichy.

Talks Reported Continuing.

The discussions were declared continuing and reliable informants said the Germans were exerting strong pressure in efforts to regain their former captive.

In the first World war Giraud made six breaks from German prison camps, was recaptured five times but made good his sixth try.

His latest escape was made after one other attempt in this war, reports reaching London said, but details were lacking.

He had been in German custody since mid-May, 1940, when he was captured on his way to take over his new headquarters as commander in chief of the first French army on the northern front.

Rides with German Colonel.

On his recent flight thru Germany the general, who speaks fluent German, made his way to the Swiss border by regular train, talking during the trip with a German colonel who sat next to him.

After crossing the Swiss border Gen. Giraud identified himself and after expressing a wish to continue to unoccupied France was permitted to proceed.

Since reaching France he had been staying at a village outside Vichy. He had hoped to see his old comrade in arms, Chief of State Petain.

Danish Prime Minister Near Death from Fall

LONDON, May 2 (AP).—The condition of Prime Minister Thovald Stauning of Denmark, gravely ill following a recent fall, became worse during the night and his death is expected shortly, the Swedish radio said today. Stauning is 68 years old.

Chicago Boys Wait for Japs on Panama Hill

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AN ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUN POSITION IN THE CANAL ZONE, May 2.—High on a hill overlooking the lush, steaming jungles of the Canal Zone is "The Chicago Club."

There are no oaken beams, no ornate carved wood panels. The club is a long, narrow cave burrowed in the red clay of the hill. It is beamed with pitch soaked old railroad ties, and paneled with gleaming brass anti-aircraft shells, waiting to be hurled up against invading planes.

For 96 hours out of every week the club is the residence of eight young soldiers, among whom are three Chicago draftees. The Chicagoans, who named the cave with the approval of their fellow soldiers, are Privates Harry F. Garvey, 3544 South California avenue; Roy Waltz, 4105 West Wellington avenue, and Robert Hood, 4532 North Clifton street.

Crew of Big Gun.

The eight men form the crew of one of the three big anti-aircraft guns emplaced in camouflaged, concrete floored pits on top of the hill, which commands a section of the Panama canal. The crews of the other weapons, and of the fire director apparatus also emplaced on the hilltop, use similar caves during their tours of duty every other day.

The caves are the idea of Capt. Hilary Wentz, reserve officer from Concordia, Kas., who commands the battery. In the present period of waiting, they furnish cool hideouts for the gunners. If action comes, they will be ideal protection.

This correspondent found the three Chicagoans pursuing the soldier's typical pastime—thumbing over and over again thru dog-eared magazines.

Rest Beside Shells.

It takes a certain amount of fatalism to be at home here. Waltz lay in a makeshift bunk constructed of bamboo and gunny-sacking. Eighteen inches from his right ear stood a shell, its smooth steel snout glittering menacingly in the gloom. It was one of a long row of shells, extending from one end to the other along one wall of the 75 foot cave.

To me, it seemed as tho a careless stumble or a matchstub tossed in the wrong direction would blow the hilltop to kingdom come. But it didn't bother Waltz.

"You see this baby?" he asked, sticking out a hand to pat the nearest shell. "She's Mary, after a girl I knew back home. See, I got her name scratched on the nose. I'm going to kind of hate to see her go when the time comes to ram her into the gun.

"For a long time we were worried for fear the planes would come. Now we've gotten so that we're going to be real disappointed if they don't."

Crews Keep on Alert.

During the 24 hour periods in the caves, the gun crews are on instant alert. In other words, they must be ready at once, night and day, to pour fire into the skies if it is called for.

During off duty periods the men live in camouflaged, grass thatched barracks halfway down the side of the hill. Here they have a billiard table, bought by the battery and laboriously toted in on an army truck. A volleyball court, built by the men and camouflaged with green paint, gives them a chance to get a little exercise.

KEEPS MARY SECRET.

Roy Waltz may have a girl named Mary after whom to name a shell, but if so his parents don't know her, they said last night. "O, my, he had lots of girls, and she might be one he forgot to tell us about," said his mother. Waltz is 23 and was a shoe cutter before being drafted less than a year ago.

Robert Hood is 25 and was employed in the stockyards before he was drafted last June. He attended Lane Technical High school.

CAPITAL WILL GREET VISITING NOTABLES AT OLD BLAIR HOUSE

Washington, D. C., May 2 [Special].—The government soon will have a house in which to entertain "distinguished visitors" despite the fact that every proposal for such a house has been killed by congress on the ground that the plan was undemocratic.

Blair house, one of the oldest homes in Washington, has been "loaned" to the government for the entertainment of visiting dignitaries, who heretofore have been put up at the White House or at their respective embassies.

President Manuel Prado of Peru, scheduled to arrive next week, is expected to be the first occupant. A scheduled fall visitor is young King Peter of Jugo-Slavia.

The Blair home is a three story brick building on Pennsylvania avenue opposite the state department building.

Tuesday First Lilac Day for City's Shut-Ins

Tuesday and Wednesday, May 5 and 6, will be Lilac days.

From backyards, gardens, estates, and wild bushes thruout Chicagoland will come a flood of fragrant lilacs to bring a breath of spring and a message of courage to the sick and shutins of the city's hospitals and institutions.

On these two days, flower lovers will share their lilacs in the 14th annual lilac campaign sponsored jointly by the Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit guild, and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Many to Aid in Gathering.

In the suburban areas, lilacs will be gathered by voluntary workers consisting of garden club members affiliated with the guild and numbering more than 2,000; Boy and Girl Scouts; school children, and hundreds of others anxious to share the beauty of the spring flowers with the less fortunate in the city. Special lilac trains will speed the blooms to terminals in the city where they will be picked up by Tribune trucks and distributed at hospitals, orphanages, old people's homes, and other institutions.

Last year, more than 100,000 bouquets were distributed among 25,000 patients in 158 institutions. This year, guild officials are urging every one to take part in the "Share Your Lilacs" campaign so more shutins will be able to enjoy the spring season.

All Work Is Voluntary.

Lilac day was started in 1929 and has grown to be one of the largest community enterprises in the country. All of the work in getting the blooms from the bushes to the bedsides of shutins is voluntary. The work has been well planned and organized and people in communities from as far away as Crown Point, Ind., and communities in Illinois from as far south as Chicago Heights and Joliet, westward to the Fox river valley and into McHenry and Lake counties, on the north as far as Woodstock and Waukegan, share their flowers in the lilac drive.

This year, eight railroads will transport the lilacs freight free to city terminals.

Luxury Trains to Be Banned by U. S. Order

Washington, D. C., May 2 (AP).—Reduction or elimination of "luxury equipment" on railroads—such as club, lounge, parlor, and sleeping cars—is "imminent," Joseph B. Eastman, defense transportation director, said today.

Declaring that essential military and civilian travel must not be impeded, Eastman said the Office of Defense Transportation is planning restrictions on passenger travel, elimination of duplicating services on competing railroads, lengthening of limited schedules to include more stops, and diversion to more important runs of such branch line equipment as can be made available.

The gasoline and rubber shortage, he explained, has caused a 50 per cent increase in passenger travel on buses and railroads since the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

Buses May Replace Trains.

Eastman said it might be necessary to discontinue train service to some communities and substitute use of motor coaches.

"The major problem confronting the railroads," Eastman explained, "is drastic redistribution of passenger services thru elimination of duplications in service on competing lines, both rail and bus.

"Equipment unsuitable for heavy, high speed trains will have to be used where possible in local shuttle service to transport war workers to and from industrial zones.

"Since essential military and civilian travel must not be impeded, it will be necessary to readjust schedules. This undoubtedly will call for fewer trains in some territories and districts, and perhaps the complete elimination of trains used for pleasure and other nonessential travel. Lengthened fast run schedules with more stops will make it possible to take care of points formerly served by motor bus or by local trains.

Close Coördination Needed.

"Where train service is discontinued, the affected communities must be served by bus. Thus the general rearrangement of passenger transportation, which must be undertaken at once, necessarily involves close coordination of railroad and motor bus facilities in order to make the buses available for effective local service."

Eastman noted that the vacation season is approaching and that further restrictions on gasoline consumption are imminent in some sections. Saying this could be expected to increase traffic demands on public carriers, Eastman added:

"In view of the extensive military movements and the increase in war freight traffic, much of this demand cannot be met by the public carriers."

ASSERTS SPAIN MAY GIVE NAZIS 1,000,000 TROOPS

New York, May 2 [Special].—Spain is on the verge of sending 1,000,000 men to Russia to help Adolf Hitler's hard pressed forces, it was asserted here today by Don Manuel de Agustin, marques de Aguiar, representative in this country for the Spanish royalist [democratic] and Catholic parties.

He declared that Hitler and Generalissimo Francisco Franco had a secret treaty providing that Spain would help Germany whenever that help was needed. Now, he said, that time has come.

The marques said the real power in Spain is Gen. Franco's brother-in-law, Ramon Serrano Suner, the pro-Nazi foreign minister. He declared that Serrano Suner is seeking an immediate declaration of war on Russia. Franco is afraid that if he goes to war with Russia the Spanish people will rebel, the marques said, but he emphasized that Serrano Suner's power had become so great that he probably would bring about a declaration of war soon.

CHANGE IN LAW WOULD AFFECT 2,500,000 BOYS

Call Youths 20 to 21 for June Quotas.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—Developments today on the selective service front were:

1. Increasing indications were seen on Capitol Hill that the war department soon will revive its proposal for lowering the minimum draft age for military service to include youths between 18 and 20, making approximately 2,500,000 young men eligible for conscription.

2. Louis B. Hershey, national selective service director, gave instructions to state draft directors to include men of the 20 to 21 and 36 to 44 age groups in the June calls.

3. A proposal to exempt family men and those with dependents from combat service by drafting them for war factory jobs to replace single men who would be released for service with the armed forces was made by Sen. Edwin C. Johnson [D., Colo.], member of the senate military affairs committee and sponsor of the war department bill for allowances to soldiers' dependents.

Lobby for Lower Draft.

Army officials have been approaching members of congress of both parties, seeking advance support for the plan to draft 18 and 19 year olds, it was learned. The law now permits registration of men of 18 and 19 but bars them from induction into the army until their 20th birthday.

Little if any encouragement has been offered the war department representatives, a survey disclosed. Most members have indicated a firm belief that men under 20 are too young to be dispatched to battlefields to endure the hardships of modern warfare. Proximity of the November elections, when the entire house and one-third of the senate must stand for re-election, is an added factor mitigating against the change.

Tap First and Second Groups.

Induction next month for some of the men who registered Feb. 16 became a certainty when Gen. Hershey, acting at the request of the war department, directed local boards to fill June quotas by drawing on first and second age groups in proportion to the number of class 1A men in each. Men in the first age group are those who registered in October, 1940, and in July, 1941. Those in the second age group registered Feb. 16.

Relatively few of the 9 million men who registered Feb. 16 will be called into service at the outset, officials predicted. Not more than 5 per cent of those 40 to 45 years of age are believed physically fit and otherwise eligible for duty, and not more than 10 per cent of those 36 to 40.

Sen. Johnson said his plan for drafting family men for work in factories is a result of studies made of problems incident to the care of dependents of men drafted for combat duty.

Subcommittee to Decide.

The senator said the subcommittee which he heads will be called upon to decide whether dependency of relatives should continue to be considered a cause for deferment from army service. As now drawn, the bill would provide federal payments to dependents, supplemented by amounts withheld from the soldier's pay.

Passage of this bill, Johnson said, would tend to eliminate dependency as a cause for deferment altogether, leaving employment in an essential war job as the only basis for deferment of men physically fit.

"We then would have serious social maladjustments," Johnson declared. "Married men with families would be in the army, while single men would be earning $10 a day in factories."

The senator admitted some dislocation would be caused in training married men from other occupations to replace single men in war plants, but said this would not be serious if the change were a gradual one.

Report 40 Nazis Killed in Train Wreck in France

New York, May 2 (AP).—More than 40 Germans have been killed in another train wreck in occupied France, according to reports reaching here tonight. German authorities immediately arrested a number of hostages, these reports said. The wreck was said to have occurred near Rouen, scene of a wreck a week ago.

W-G-N COMBINES WAR SONGS AND STUDY OF BATTLE

Col. M'Cormick Discusses Wilderness Conflict.

The text of Col. McCormick's critical study of the battle of the battle of the Wilderness, in somewhat extended form and accompanied by three maps, is in the Graphic section of today's Sunday Tribune.

Marion Claire and Attilio Baggiore, soloists, the W-G-N chorus and orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, presented interludes of the music of the Civil war, the Spanish-American war, and World War I. in W-G-N's broadcast of the Battle of the Wilderness last night.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, presented his own critical study of that engagement on the 78th anniversary of the initial movements by Gen. U. S. Grant's Union armies preceding the conflict. Musical numbers preceded and followed each of the three parts of Col. McCormick's talk.

Three Solos by Miss Claire.

Miss Claire, with the chorus and orchestra, sang "The Same Silver Moon," from "My Maryland"; "Lorena," and "The Vacant Chair." Baggiore's solos were "Your Flag and My Flag," from "My Maryland"; "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," and "Rose of No Man's Land." There were other martial numbers by the orchestra, and the finale was "The Star Spangled Banner" by the chorus and orchestra.

An audience of more than 600 persons, representing 81 Chicagoland garden clubs which are affiliated with the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild, listened to the broadcast in W-G-N's theater studio. The guild and these clubs, in coöperation with THE TRIBUNE, will sponsor the collection of lilacs and their distribution to shut-ins next Tuesday and Wednesday. The guests at the broadcast included Mrs. Warner R. Nelson of Glencoe, general Lilac days chairman, and Theodore V. Purcell, president of the guild.

Hour of Broadcast Changed.

The program constituted the "America Loves a Melody" hour, which was broadcast not only by W-G-N but by W59C and the Mutual Broadcasting system. It was announced that, beginning next Saturday, the hour of the "America Loves a Melody" broadcast will be changed to 8 p. m., Chicago war time.

CEILING ON COAL IMPOSED EARLY IN CHICAGO AREA

The price ceiling for solid fuels, issued Friday by the Office of Price administration to take effect May 18, is not expected to affect materially the local coal market, Fred J. Holdsworth, president of the Chicago Coal Merchants association, said yesterday.

"Since Feb. 15 we have been coöperating with Leon Henderson, the price administrator, who requested the coal industry to use the prices of the Dec. 15-31 period as a ceiling," Holdsworth said. "Now the request is an order.

"Under the arrangement, which probably will continue, the coal merchants reflect in their prices to the public any discounts or increases passed on by the operators, under the maximum ceiling accordingly on April 1 we passed on the discount allowed us. Right now the industry is experiencing about the minimum prices that can be expected this year."

Holdsworth also urged the public to buy as much coal as possible now in order to distribute the production load more adequately over the year.

4 DIE IN FLAMES AS 2-MOTORED BOMBER FALLS

Brownsville, Tex., May 2 (AP).—Four men perished today in the flaming wreckage of a twin-motored army bomber which crashed and exploded shortly after taking off from the Brownsville airport.

The army said names of the victims will be disclosed tomorrow or Monday after next of kin had been notified. The home field of the plane was not announced.

N. U. Alumni Rite

Northwestern university's annual Candle Light ceremony next Wednesday at 8 p. m. will be featured in Evanston by the induction of the second unit of the "Flying Wildcats" into naval aviation. About 25 men will be sworn in. President Franklyn Bliss Snyder will light the 5 foot candle in Scott hall which is the university's part in the ceremony symbolizing alumni fidelity to the university and its ideals. Dr. Snyder said 50,000 alumni will meet thruout the country and light candles at the same time. Members of Mortar Board, senior women's honorary society, will usher at the Evanston ceremony, including Mary Ann Whitley, vice president of the group, of Evanston; and Marijane Hurja of Oak Park.

OPA TO EXPLAIN PRICE ORDER TO BUSINESS MEN

Meet Tomorrow Night in City Hall.

The federal government's new price ceiling order will be explained to Chicago business men tomorrow night in the city council chambers of the city hall, Michael J. Mulcahy, rationing administrator for the metropolitan area, announced yesterday.

Leverett S. Lyon, executive secretary of the Chicago Association of commerce, will preside. The speakers will be Bruce MacLeish, vice president and secretary of Carson Pirie Scott & Co., and a member of the National OPA Retailers' Advisory committee, and J. P. Davis, chief of procedures, retail division, OPA. A question and answer period will follow the addresses.

O.K.'d by Retail Council.

After studying the federal retail price fixing order and conferring with government officials, the Cook County Retail council has found no fault with the order which it considers extremely beneficial to the nation in combatting inflation, M. C. Penticoff, district manager of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and president of the council, said yesterday.

"The order which makes the basic period for manufacturers and retailers the same contains certain inequities," Penticoff asserted. "But, it is flexible enough for the Office of Price administration to act in cases of hardship.

"Ceiling prices thus established are expected to be permanent, and, under the federal order, there will be comparatively few price reductions at retail. We feel that it is not necessary or advisable at this time to freeze all wages, but that every effort should first be made to handle matters of this kind according to the policy outlined by President Roosevelt. In the long run the effect of the order probably will be to stabilize wages."

Ad Men Told of Plans.

C. L. Christensian, chief price executive of OPA, said the OPA is definitely committed to a policy of keeping retail prices at the levels governed by present regulations. He spoke before advertising men and salesmen from the middle west at a two day conference organized by the Chicago Federated Advertising club in the Hotel Sherman. The conference closed yesterday.

Christensian indicated that if it is necessary to raise prices, the increase will be applied to manufacturers and wholesalers rather than retail levels. He said that the government would subsidize manufacturers and wholesalers if necessary to help them meet the difference between the prices at their levels and frozen retail prices.

The OPA official warned that altho prices are controled, the nation's standard of living is certain to be lowered by the demands of the war effort. He implied that widespread rationing is in prospect.

NEGRO ROBS PUPIL OF $22.

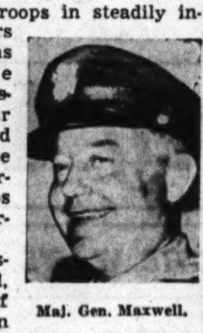
SERVICE TROOPS FROM U. S. BACK BRITISH IN LIBYA

Maj. Elliott Roosevelt on Duty with Mechanics.

CAIRO, Egypt, May 2 (AP).—United States service troops in steadily increasing numbers are in positions supporting the main British desert army and air forces ranged against the threatening German Afrika korps of Marshal Erwin Rommel.



Maj. Gen. Maxwell.

Maj. Gen. Russel L. Maxwell, commander of the North African mission, permitted disclosure of their presence here for the first time today, altho American uniforms and huge trucks bearing the "U. S. A." letters have been seen in growing strength for several weeks.

One officer of the United States mission is Maj. Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, who started his military career as a captain in Ohio less than two years ago.

All Service Personnel.

Gen. Maxwell emphasized that the soldiers stationed in this torrid area, barring the axis from conquest of Egypt and the Suez canal, were entirely service personnel—mechanics, technical experts, supply specialists, and trainers.

Their job is to support combat troops of the British, Indians, South Africans, "Free French," and New Zealanders poised on the desert front 80 miles west of Tobruk in Mussolini's colony of Libya.

Swarms of American made fighter planes and bombers are fighting daily in the battle of Libya and most of the British pilots have been trained in a technical school in Egypt.

Gen. Maxwell said the school was turned over to the RAF this week and added that American technicians had been necessary so their allies would "get the most out of our equipment."

U. S. Builds Arsenal.

Construction of the great United States built arsenal in Eritrea on the Red sea is "well under way," Gen. Maxwell said.

[The first definite disclosure of the presence of United States troops in the Mediterranean basin was made by President Roosevelt in his world-wide fireside chat Tuesday. He said American warships were in the Mediterranean and United States troops were in the "near east, the middle east and the far east." The Germans claimed earlier this week that United States planes were stiffening the defense of much bombed Malta, 80 miles below Italian Sicily.]

RED CROSS PUT ON ELIGIBLE LIST FOR NEW AUTOS

Washington, D. C., May 2 (AP).—The American Red Cross will be added to the list of persons eligible to buy new passenger cars under rationing regulations, Price Administrator Leon Henderson said today. OPA also announced two other decisions relating to automobiles.

It said that employers will be permitted to buy automobiles for use of employés who are eligible under the rationing plan.

The other announcement said that dealers would be permitted to "trade" steel topped automobiles for convertible models now held in the government's reserve automobile pool. This move was held advisable, Henderson said, since dealers can dispose of convertibles more easily now than later, while, for government purposes, steel topped automobiles are more suitable.

LADY CHURCHILL INJURED WORKING IN WAR FACTORY

LONDON, May 2.—Lady Spencer Churchill, a distant cousin of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, suffered minor injury today when her right hand became caught in the machine she was attending as a mechanic in a war production factory.

While bending over the machine in the Morris motor factory her hand was caught in a spinning shaft. Lady Spencer stopped the machine but could not extricate her hand. She was taken to the factory's first aid station where it was found that a small bone was broken.

ALL SINGLE MEN ABLE TO WORK TO LOSE RELIEF

Other Aid Slashes Are Hinted.

All single men who are able to work will be removed from the state aid relief rolls, it was learned yesterday. This is the most drastic step to reduce relief taken in the 10 year history of the Illinois Public Aid commission and its predecessor agency, the Illinois Emergency Relief commission.

A final 30 day relief grant will be given to these men to tide them over until they get jobs. There was a hint that other reliefers soon may get summary treatment.

The action was voted at a closed session of the IPAC following a careful study of the situation by Russell L. Peters, executive secretary.

Peters said that not only is the time ripe for the move, but that never again may such an opportunity be found. He declared that the IPAC case audit staff is of the opinion that no suffering will result.

Few Taken Off Rolls.

He pointed out that the smallest drop in relief rolls during the last three year armament boom has been among the single person cases—"those requiring less for self-support and those in general who should be less concerned about the difficulties in moving from one place to another where work might be found." Of the 333,030 persons removed from the rolls during this period only 7.7 per cent have been single person cases.

Single person cases today represent 57.3 per cent of all the cases receiving relief in Chicago and 46.6 per cent of all the cases in Illinois. Peters said that it is perplexing to see that the majority of those who got off relief rolls are families of four or more.

"The American people, of course, insist that relief be given to persons actually in need," Peters said, "but they will not justify the issuance of relief to a person who might thru his own efforts become self-supporting, and who is in a position to contribute an essential service in the present war effort.

Want Corrective Action.

"If present policies and procedures are discouraging beneficiaries of relief to exert their full efforts, consideration should be given to corrective action.

"Drastic action in the removal of employable single person cases and others may be necessary to arouse some from the lethargy that has followed a protracted period of inactivity."

Evidence was offered to show that the step was not taken hastily, but was the result of state-wide research. Peters, who became head of the IPAC one year ago, quoted from letters received from downstate county reëmployment committee chairmen.

Up to the Individual.

These officials agreed with Peters' strongly worded letter seeking their opinions. In his letter, Peters said in part:

"The primary responsibility for self-support rests with the individual, and it is also his duty to diligently seek and accept employment in meeting that responsibility.

"Many have been on relief for a long period. The granting of relief during all these years has undoubtedly lessened substantially the urge and desire of individuals to move from one location to another to seek work.

"Is it possible that certain persons are willing to continue to live on a low standard in preference to an improved standard based on self-support?"

Salary Boosts Approved.

Peters last night refused to confirm or deny the reported action. In the same closed session, it was learned that the IPAC approved salary inreases totaling $5,395 a month for 376 administrative and project employés. The raises, averaging about 8 per cent, were requested by Peters on grounds that living costs have gone up and the IPAC is having difficulty in keeping its employés.

Yesterday the Illinois Work Projects administration announced that within a month its recreation program will be solely for the benefit of the armed services and war plant workers.

Charles P. Casey, state WPA administrator, said that about 600 of the 1,800 project workers will be eliminated.

SUGAR RATIONING REGISTRATION TO OPEN TOMORROW

Seek More Volunteers for 4-Day Job.

WHERE TO REGISTER.
Names and addresses of elementary schools where sugar registrations will be taken for four days beginning tomorrow, are listed in the Metropolitan section of today's Chicago Sunday Tribune.

"Wanted—Thousands of additional volunteers to help register 3,500,000 persons for sugar ration books beginning tomorrow and continuing thru Thursday. Full time or part time. Apply at your nearest school. No pay, except in patriotic satisfaction of aiding the war effort."

The above is a free translation of a last minute appeal yesterday by Michael F. Mulcahy, rationing chief, for more volunteer registrars. Thousands already have signed up, he said, but many more are needed.

"It's a big job and to do it smoothly and swiftly we need all the help we can get," he declared. "Persons who can't serve full time are asked to volunteer on a part time basis."

Register in Schools.

Residents of the Chicago area, divided alphabetically into groups, will register at elementary schools at specified morning and afternoon periods during the four days. Chicagoans will register at schools in their own wards. Residents of other communities in the area, which includes most of Cook county and parts of Lake and Du Page counties, will register at elementary schools in their local rationing districts.

Those whose surnames begin with the letters A or B will register tomorrow morning. Those whose names begin with the letters, C, D or E will register tomorrow afternoon.

Other registration periods follow:
Tuesday morning—F, G, and H.
Tuesday afternoon—I, J, K, and L.
Wednesday morning—M and N.
Wednesday afternoon—O, P, Q, and R.
Thursday morning—S.
Thursday afternoon—T, U, V, W, X, Y, and Z.

The registration places will open at 8 a. m. and close at 8 p. m.

Ration Books to be Issued.

Those registering will receive ration books containing 28 stamps—the first four designated especially for the purchase of sugar at the rate of one pound every two weeks, or one-half pound per week. Officials indicated that the same books might be used in handling other items rationed later, hence it is important for every person to get one this week.

A special office will be set up on the third floor of the city hall for visitors and residents of loop hotels.

About 25,000 registrars, including more than 7,000 schoolteachers who have volunteered their time, will handle the registrations.

Answers to questions about the rationing program were broadcast yesterday by John C. Weigel, regional director of the Office of Price administration. Some of the questions and answers were:

Q.—How many people in the United States will get ration books? A.—About 130 million consumers of sugar.

Q.—Does every one have to register in person? A.—No. One person can register for an entire family. A family is defined as two or more persons related by blood or marriage who are living under one roof.

Q.—What about persons who do not live in a family—for instance, those who live in boarding houses? A.—They have to register in person, and then turn their ration books over to their landlady so that she can buy sugar.

Q.—Are maids, butlers, and other household servants considered part of the family. A.—No servants who live with families employing them must register for their own books. They are not considered part of the family. They may, however, turn their ration books over to the head of the family, as in the case of boarders.

WIFE DIFFERS WITH PRESIDENT ON FLAG WAVING

New York, May 2 [Special].—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt expressed doubt today that the country needed any more flag waving or martial music at this time to bolster the morale of men going into the armed forces or to fire the civilian population with a determination to do their best to win the war.

"I think the best think is if some songs could come from the people and if they were sung by the people," Mrs. Roosevelt told 500 high school and college students at a meeting of the New York Society of Ethical Culture.

A movement for more parades and flag waving has gone forward in many communities since President Roosevelt urged it at a press conference March 17.

Expressing the hope that many of her listeners would enter public life, Mrs. Roosevelt added the warning: "Never care so much about public office that you're not willing to relinquish it."

MATING INSTINCT SEEMS STRONGER THAN GRATITUDE

A young robin, anxious to practice nest building, became entangled in a kite string yesterday in the top of a 30 foot cottonwood tree near Mrs. Emily Lanyon's home at 1518 Lucia avenue, Waukegan. She summoned the fire department. A hook and ladder truck was sent and Firemen Heimo Lehtinen, Robert True, and Norman Litz climbed to the rescue.

They found the robin had drawn his left leg up over his head in pulling at the string. The firemen brought him down and gave him to Mrs. Lanyon, who bound the injured leg with gauze.

He perched on her hand, pretending to agree, while she showed him to the neighbors. Then two other robins came along. Without a word of thanks for her hospitality he flew away to join them.

Kill 1,350 and Destroy 6 Tanks in Battle.

CHUNGKING, May 2 (AP).—Japanese forces striking up the Burma road toward the Yunan frontier have been repulsed with heavy casualties after penetrating north of Hsenwi, barely 45 miles from the border, the Chinese high command said tonight.

Hsenwi is 22 miles northeast of Lashio, where the Japanese battled their way to control of the junction of the mountain supply road and the rail line to Mandalay.

The communique reported that up to Wednesday night units of Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's Chinese army were known to be holding out at Kyaukse, 30 miles due south of Mandalay.

Slash at Jap Flanks.

Still farther southeast, where the Chinese won back Taunggyi more than a week ago, Chinese troops were said to be slashing repeatedly at the flanks of Japanese columns which by-passed their position.

In that sector the Chinese said they had killed 1,350 Japanese in desperate fighting, destroyed six 14 ton tanks, captured 21 trucks, and quantities of rifles and machine guns.

The communique said the Chinese also had attacked a column thrust north past Lollem, 50 miles east of Taungyyi.

British Admit Withdrawal.

LONDON, May 2 (AP).—Mandalay was claimed today by the invading Japanese army, which apparently was driving ever wider wedges between the British and Chinese defenders of the fragment of Burma which remains in allied hands.

Tokio communique claimed that Mandalay was taken from the British yesterday and that the occupying forces had destroyed all the city's vital military establishments.

While the allies did not acknowledge the loss, a British communique from New Delhi, India, made the plight of the allies gloomily evident. It said all British troops on the Mandalay front were being withdrawn "from a position north of the Irrawaddy." Mandalay is on the south bank of the river, which flows west at that point.

The British also announced defensive destruction of road and rail bridges across the tributary Myitnge river and that two spans of the famous Ava bridge had been demolished.

Believed Aiming at China.

Fighting was in progress in and around Monywa, across the Irrawaddy 50 miles west of Mandalay, indicating that the British withdrawal may have progressed that far.

The British said nothing of their forces east of Mandalay, and it was not known whether they had been cut off.

Typifying the allied predicament was the British announcement that no report had been received from the Chinese on the east flank in the Lashio area. The Japanese drive northward from there was regarded by some observers as an indication that the invaders were aiming at China rather than at India.

The Japanese announced that navy planes had bombed Akyab, the last useful allied port in Burma and situated close to the border of India.

PRESBYTERIANS' MISSIONARIES IN CHINA ARE SAFE

Nashville, Tenn., May 2 (AP).—Dr. C. Darby Fulton, executive secretary of the Presbyterian Foreign Mission board of the United States, said he received a cablegram today that the board's 36 missionaries in Japanese-occupied China were safe.

The cablegram sent by Dr. Frank Price from Chengtu, Szechwan, said most Presbyterian churches in the occupied zones were still functioning.

Dr. Fulton said Maxey Smith, missionary from Reidville, S. C., was in a critical condition following a major operation and that Robert McMullen, another missionary from Winona, Miss., had taken over Smith's duties as church treasurer in China.

NEW ZEALAND TO PAY $32,500,000 LOAN IN SUPPLIES

Will Balance Account with the U. S.

[By wireless to the New York Times and the Chicago Tribune.]

WELLINGTON, N. Z., May 2.—A program of war sacrifice unequaled by any other British dominion will be instituted in New Zealand with the passage and application of the new war budget, introduced by Prime Minister Peter Fraser in the house of representatives this week.

The budget calls for war expenditures of £133,000,000 [about $432,000,000] for the coming year by a country with a population of only a little more than 1,500,000 and a national income last year of only £220,000,000] about $715,000,000.]

The public and political reaction to the budgets has been generally favorable and its passage seems assured. The drastic nature of the budget is indicative of the earnestness with which the dominion is going about the task of challenging the Japanese.

To Repay Lend-Lease.

A notable feature of the new budget is an item of £10,000,000 [about $32,500,000] expenditure to be financed under the lend-lease arrangement with the United States. The item gives an indication of the amount of American lease-lend aid New Zealand expects to receive soon.

New Zealand plans to lend-lease services and supplies to the United States and it is probable that New Zealand's account with the United States will nearly balance the men, materials, airdrome construction, buildings, and other installations in the southern Pacific which will be provided for the United State forces.

Will Send U. S. Food.

In addition New Zealand is in a position to supply large quantities of food, shoes, clothing, hemp, timber and labor services to the United States.

With the inauguration of the new scale of war expenditures New Zealand will be spending 60 per cent of her national income on war, £80 [about $260] a year per person. It is estimated that Australia is spending 50 per cent of her national income on war and Canada 40 per cent.

CHINESE TRAP JAPS INVADERS IN HONAN PROVINCE

San Francisco, May 2 (AP).—The main body of a Japanese invading force in south Honan province has been encircled by Chinese troops, the Chungking radio reported today. The broadcast said:

"According to field dispatches, the main body of the Japanese force engaged in a northwestward drive from Hsinyang, strategic railway town in south Honan, has been encircled by the Chinese north of Shenyangtai.

"Other Japanese units cut off by Chinese frontal attacks at Ningkang, and by a flanking attack at Hsiangchi have been forced to retreat in two columns in a southerly direction. The Chinese have expressly destroyed the highways and bridges near Hsinyang, thus cutting off the invaders' way of retreat."

SOVIET TANKS RIP DEEP INTO NAZIS' UKRAINE DEFENSE

Take Strong Points Near Kursk; Hit at Kharkov.

LONDON, May 2 (AP).—Red army tanks, smashing forward on firming ground, are driving deeper wedges between the German "hedgehog" positions of Bryansk, Orel, and Kursk, dispatches from Stockholm said today.

Bryansk, 210 miles southwest of Moscow, and Orel and Kursk, 200 and 280 miles south of the capital, respectively, form a triangle guarding the flank of the Germans' Ukraine front, and the dispatches said the fighting in there had been particularly fierce in the last few days.

Strike Nazis Near Kharkov.

The Russians also struck heavy blows at the Germans southwest of Kharkov in an effort to forestall any German offensive toward the Caucasus. Fighting was said to be progressing along a line from Poltava to Dneperpetrovsk, and in their present positions the Russians were in an ideal spot from which to flank any German attempt to use Kharkov for a springboard for a southern drive.

Guerrillas were reported in a Moscow broadcast to have killed 5,000 Germans and recaptured 345 villages northwest of Orel in an unspecified time.

The soviet information bureau said Russian forces on the Leningrad front were killing Germans at a rate of 1,000 a day, and had pulverized 20 enemy firing positions.

The Russian communique tonight said 47 German aircraft were destroyed today with only 12 soviet losses. The communique raised from 38 to 53 the number of Nazi planes destroyed yesterday. Russian planes today were said to have blown up two ammunition dumps and smashed two trucks, 30 ammunition carts, and 15 field and anti-aircraft guns also were reported destroyed or damaged.

Armed Center Destroyed: Nazis.

BERLIN, May 2 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—German dive bombers destroyed a "center of armed resistance" on the northern front in Russia yesterday while north of Lake Ilmen 10 soviet tanks were severely damaged during land engagements, German warfront dispatches announced today.

The German communique said that "on the eastern front in the course of local attacks by our troops numerous prisoners were taken and 31 guns were captured."

ROB LIQUOR STORE OWNER.

While one man stood guard at the door and another sat waiting in a car, their companion entered the liquor store at 7040 South Western avenue on Friday and robbed the proprietor, M. L. Kalfen, of $107.

A Big Thanks

Beverley Van Overbeke thanking Natale Tognella for saving her from drowning in the Garfield park lagoon. The picture was taken at the inquest yesterday into the death of Beverley's companion, Sari Teresbesy.

Funeral services for Sari Teresbesy, 11 years old, 2673 Washington boulevard, who was drowned Friday evening in Garfield park lagoon, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow from the chapel at 4138 West Madison street, where an inquest was held yesterday. Burial will be in Irving Park cemetery.

The child was drowned when she and her pluaymate, Beverly Van Overbeke, also 11, of 3157 Warren avenue, took a dare and jumped into the lagoon, which was five feet deep at that point. Rescued by passers-by, Sari was worked over an hour and a half by a fire rescue squad, but failed to revive. Beverly, pulled from the lagoon by Natale Tognella, 16, of 753 South St. Louis avenue, received treatment and was sent home.

Surviving Sari are her father, Louis, a sculptor; her mother, Margaret, and two brothers, Lester and Louis. Mr. Teresbesy was the artist who executed the finer stone carvings on the W-G-N studio building in 1935.

HURL BIG ARMY ACROSS CHANNEL NOW, SAYS GOUGH

Demands Second Front to Aid Russia.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 2.—Gen. Sir Hubert Gough, commander of the British 5th army in France and Flanders during the last war, in an article in Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard entitled "Second Front and No Half Measures," joins the chorus of popular demand for establishment of a second front to relieve German pressure on Russia.

"Our ally, Russia, is on the eve of entering the most decisive battles," he says. "If we don't put out every effort and throw in all we've got, and if we stand by and see Russia fighting this immense decision while we still keep back something we could throw into the scale, then whatever the outcome, the political consequences for the British will be almost fatal."

"No Half Measures."

Gough believes that one great principle should be strictly adhered to, and that is if a second front is to be created it must not partake of any half measures.

"We must not have another experience such as Norway or Greece. It must be every available man—a wholehearted and determined effort."

He maintains the shipping difficulty could be overcome by selecting the narrowest part of the English channel for invasion of the continent, and cites Japanese invasions from the sea from which, he says, some useful lessons may be learned.

RAF Support Assured.

As for an adequate protective air cover for such an operation, he points to an article by Maj. Oliver Stewart, one of Britain's leading air experts, showing that the RAF could give ample support to troops landing between Abbeville, France, and Ostend, Belgium, from home based airfields.

Emanuel Shinwell, Labor member of parliament, told a Thornley county, Durham, audience this afternoon that the time is ripe for dealing a heavy blow at the enemy on the continent. "That's what the country wants and that's what the situation demands," he said. The conduct of the war has been marked by muddle and lack of aggression as the result of which we have been driven from the far east."

SUBMARINE OF ALLIES SINKS RUSSIAN, JAP VESSELS, SAYS TOKIO

TOKIO, May 2—[from Japanese broadcasts]—(AP).—The activity of "a submarine belonging to the United States or one of the allied powers" in waters just off Kyushi, southernmost of the Japanese islands, has resulted in the sinking of a Russian merchantship and a Japanese ship, Domei news agency said today.

The report said the 4,761 ton Soviet steamer Angarstroi was torpedoed Friday night and that a passing Japanese steamer rescued 50 survivors. "Japanese authorities announced that on the same day the Japanese steamer Calcutta Maru [2,539 tons] was lost thru enemy action in the adjacent waters," a Domei broadcast added.

There was no confirmation from allied or neutral sources of the enemy report of the sinking of the Soviet ship, which might well have been calculated to stir up friction between the United States and Russia, still a nonbelligerent so far as Japan is concerned.

DON'T ABANDON TROOPS, HITLER TELLS WORKERS

BERLIN, May 2 [from German boadcasts] — (AP). — Adolf Hitler told workers in all parts of greater Germany today: "I am sure you would never abandon your comrades at the front."

The May day message, sent to Labor Front Leader Robert Ley, also said:

"Altho far from you I have this opportunity of thanking you for being so true to our ideals. You have proved yourselves worthy of combatants at the front. In days past May day celebrations were held as a sign of our faith in peace and constructive work. Today we are fighting for existence of the nation and for establishment of our strength after the war."

[Germany observed May day Saturday.]

ALLIES SMASH 3 JAP VESSELS OFF NEW BRITAIN ISLE

12 Enemy Planes Hit by MacArthur Airmen.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 3 [Sunday] (AP).—Allied planes scored a direct hit on a Japanese transport, damaged another, capsized a tender, destroyed six Japanese planes and damaged six more in fierce new action over New Britain and New Guinea yesterday, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

It was announced further that three Japanese flying boats were destroyed at Salamaua, on the northeast New Guinea coast, last Thursday.

A communique covering the operations said:

"NEW BRITAIN: Rabaul—Our bombers attacked shipping at Rabaul, scoring a direct hit on one transport, damaging another and capsizing a tender. Eight Japanese fighters intercepted and we destroyed two and damaged four.

Intercept Foe at Port Moresby.

"NEW GUINEA: Port Moresby—Fifteen Zero type fighters attacked the airdrome yesterday. Our fighters intercepted successfully, destroying four enemy planes and damaging two others.

"SALAMAUA: Detailed reports of the allied raid April 30 reveal that our attacking planes burned and destroyed three enemy flying boats on the water.

"SOLOMONS: Tulagi—Enemy air raids continue.

Townsville on Guard.

The entire region of Townsville, far north on Australia's east coast, was put on guard against a surprise invasion or air assault today as the result of the first appearance of scouting planes over that strategic area.

The flight of two suspect planes over Townsville at 30,000 feet altitude in good observation weather Friday was reported by Gen. MacArthur's headquarters. Allied anti-aircraft batteries opened fire and interceptor planes took to the air.

Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, the Australian chief of allied land forces in Australia, warned yesterday that "increased enemy activity means he has some further plan." A Japanese naval force is reported concentrated around Jaluit in the Marshall Islands.

Townsville, 700 miles below the northern tip of Cape York, might well be the first objective.

Port Moresby Asks Help.

Indications that the recent Japanese reënforcement in the New Guinea-New Britain area may have been large was seen today in the warning of the Port Moresby correspondent of the Melbourne Herald that American and Australian airmen at that base faced heavy odds.

More planes, bombs, and men are urgently needed if Port Moresby is to be held, he said.

Von Brauchitsch at Spa in Bohemia, Swiss Hear

BERNE, Switzerland, May 2.—Field Marshal Walther von Brauchitsch today was reported by the Swiss Telegraphic agency to have arrived incognito at a well known Bohemian spa, where he will resume a cure.

War Comes to Aussie Town

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, May 2.—The problem of getting up in time for work is worrying thousands of employés of Australia's ever growing arms industries. Not that they're too tired or too lazy—they just can't buy alarm clocks.

Supplies on hand have long since diminished and no more are being shipped from the United States and Canada. This fact plus the huge increase in the number of industrial employés in recent months has cleared out stocks of alarm clocks.

This is only one of the many ways preparations for total war are being brought home to the people of this country, many of whom still can't bring themselves to believe they are in any danger.

Butchers in this sleepy little Australian town today informed their customers they have been compelled to discontinue deliveries of meat to private dwellings. Meat will still be on sale for housewives who can come to get it. Restrictions on fuel and assignment of Australian man power to more important tasks are responsible for a shortage of delivery boys.

On Monday 11 married men and two single men are going to get new jobs, altho they don't know it yet. The town's labor bureaus are going to hold a roll call at 9 a. m. to select from the man power lists 13 men needed for important defense work. They will have to take the jobs immediately. Lots of wives are wondering today whether their men will be called, and are hoping they won't be sent out of town if their number comes up.

Two warehouse firms today served notice on persons who have goods stored with them that henceforth they will take no responsibility for damage to goods "arising out of the present war or by cyclone." Most local folks would prefer a cyclone, but cracker barrel strategists hereabouts say war is more likely.

The local photographer publishes an advertisment urging business houses to get important documents microphotographed in case the originals are destroyed by bombs. He says he has the only equipment of this type within hundreds of miles and there is no time to lose.

Announcement that authorities are considering restoring a full tobacco quota in this area was good news. Cigarets and matches are scarce. The matches available have an abrasive on only one side of the box and it sometimes wears out before all the matches are used.

The Tribune correspondent went into a tobacco store and in his best American accent said, "Gimme a packa cigarets, please."

"I don't have any cigarets," the proprietor replied. "And I don't have any cigars or tobacco."

"Gimme a boxa matches, please," the Tribune correspondent said.

"I don't have any matches either," the proprietor asserted.

At this point the correspondent of a New York paper demanded in a loud voice: "Well, whatta yuh keep open for?" To which the proprietor replied that he is a bookmaker as well as a tobacconist.

They tell the story in Sydney of the managing director of a large firm whose wife gave him an errand to run at lunchtime. He tried stroe after store but didn't have any luck, and returned to his office and dumped the problem in his secretary's lap.

She sent 12 messenger boys out to 12 stores, and each returned with a box of matches, thus meeting the wife's order.

"This war is becoming a damned nuisance," the managing director is quoted as growling.

Even if the enemy never puts in an appearance in these parts the townspeople have been put to a lot of trouble. Most of them have boarded up their windows or protected them some way, and the police section of the ARP [air raid precautions] is going to call on those who haven't, it was announced today.

LEARN MACNIDER IS ARMY SUPPLY AID IN AUSTRALIA

Among the officers handling supply problems for the American forces in Australia is Col. Hanford MacNider, former assistant secretary of war and an outspoken opponent of the trend toward war in the United States prior to last Dec. 7, it was revealed in a recent Mutual Broadcasting system program from Australia.

Hanford MacNider.

Col. MacNider was introduced to the radio audience by Frank Cuhel, Mutual commentator in Australia, who described the activities of American experts "down under" who are directing the complicated job of keeping United States troops supplied.

Need Continuous Stream.

After praising American and Australian troops, Col. MacNider said, "What every army needs is the continuous stream of supplies, ships, planes, cannon, bombs. If you will keep handing us what it takes, we will hand it along where it counts."

Col. MacNider fought in France in World War I. as a second lieutenant, was wounded at Saint Mihiel, and received the distinguished service cross and the croix de guerre. He served during Republican administrations as assistant secretary of war and as United States minister to Canada. He is a former national commander of the American Legion, and in the months before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor made many anti-war speeches under the auspices of the America First committee.

Experts Tackle Job.

When war came, MacNider was president of the Northwestern Portland Cement company in Mason City, Ia. Last January he was called to duty.

Cuhel said Col. Lester J. Whitlock is in charge of American supply problems in Australia, aided by a large group of specially selected experts, many of whom are Americans. Among them are former American oil men from the Netherlands East Indies.

Other men came from Singapore, China, the Philippines, and India to tackle supply problems in their respective fields.

HAWAII ELECTION WON'T BE CURBED BY MARTIAL LAW

HONOLULU, T. H., May 2.—Lieut. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, commanding general of the Hawaiian department and military governor of the territory, said today that martial law would not interfere with elections in Hawaii this fall or "the right of every one to exercise his franchise."

Gen. Emmons said he has instructed Col. Thomas H. Green, his executive officer, to issue a public announcement to that effect soon. Hawaii's colorful campaign in which music and hula girls play a prominent part is expected to be curtailed by the 8 p. m. blackout.

CALLS U. S. ARMY THE BACKBONE OF HAWAII'S DEFENSE

Declares It More Able to Repel Invasion.

BY STANLEY JOHNSTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Shafter, T. H. [by Mail]. — While Japan holds naval superiority in the Pacific the defense of the Hawaiian Islands rests with the United States army garrisoned here. The presupposed rôle of the two services has been reversed. Instead of a small garrison backing up the navy the army has become the prime defense, supported by available naval forces.

The change over is regarded as an improvement. A naval defense ties up a powerful fleet in this area "just in case" the enemy attempts an invasion. Once the army garrison has been sufficiently strengthened to assure security this fleet can be used elsewhere in the Pacific.

Previous Action Recalled.

Furthermore, land based planes are superior to naval vessels in waters adjacent to shore. This has been pointed out by THE TRIBUNE and has been proven in military action. The combined British and French fleets were driven from the coasts of Norway, the North sea, and English channel by Nazi shore based planes. Recently London admitted that the British navy no longer controls the Mediterranean between Sicily and North Africa—the German air force made the cost too high.

By substituting aircraft for battleships and cruisers the United States can give the Hawaiian garrison greater fire power, flexibility, and versatility than the defenders ever possessed.

Furthermore, an army defense compels the enemy to fight at a disadvantage. Instead of fighting a naval battle he would have to cross more than 2,000 miles of ocean from the nearest Japanese outpost and fight his way to shore against a powerful air fleet.

Land Planes Have an Edge.

Shore based aircraft are superior to ship borne planes. Land bombers are bigger, faster, carry greater loads, and have more flying range. Fighting planes operating from airfields are faster and have greater firepower.

In addition, air bases scattered thruout the Hawaiian Islands would be better concealed. This would afford wider distribution of machines and give the defense superior numbers. Then, too, aircraft carriers can be destroyed while air fields can only be damaged.

The types of aircraft needed for such a defense are long range patrol planes to scout the seas far from shore; big bombers to attack an enemy invasion fleet while still far out, and medium bombers and torpedo planes to break up the attackers as they approach land.

Such an air fleet should have fighters capable of extended flight to provide protection against enemy ship borne fighters, interceptor fighters to prevent enemy bombers from attacking flying fields, and ground defenses.

Need Good Sized Army.

Because neither a big navy nor planes could prevent at least some of the enemy from getting ashore, either by ruse or thru sheer concentration of power, a good sized army must be maintained.

Planes have changed the defense of Pearl Harbor from the old theory of holding the Island of Oahu to the broader one of holding at least the eight main islands. This is considered necessary because enemy aircraft based on these islands could render the naval base untenable by night bombing.

The eight islands, Hawaii, Kahoolawe, Maui, Lanai, Oahu, Kauai, and Niihau, stretch across more than 450 miles at sea. Oahu, on which Pearl Harbor stands, is in the middle. This base is within easy bomber range from any point in the group.

Strengthen Defenses.

Since Dec. 7 there have been plenty of signs to show that the army garrison has been increased and is busy strengthening Hawaiian defenses.

Everywhere one sees barbed wire shore barricades, cannon, and machine gun emplacements, and new army camps.

The several forts which surround the Island of Oahu have been brought up to full strength and anti-aircraft batteries have been mounted at widely dispersed positions.

The air fields present a picture radically different from that of four months ago. Instead of hangars filled with planes and the fields covered with close grouped machines, the only aircraft one now sees on the fields are those about to take off or which have just come in.

Planes are widely dispersed. Each one is sheltered in an earthwork embankment which limits to a single plane the possible damage from a bomb. Many others are well hidden. New air fields have been built and others are under construction.

Camouflage Protects Planes.

Because grass grows thruout the year and trees keep their leaves, camouflage can be used to give real protection all the time—instead of being seasonable as in Europe.

The men who man coastal guns, anti-aircraft batteries, and field pieces can be seen and heard practicing almost every day. They have ample opportunity to improve their shooting and their accuracy should be good.

Coastal batteries shoot at buoys anchored off shore. Anti-aircraft gunners are provided with targets when planes fly past towing white cloth sleeves 2,000 feet astern. The field artillery has a firing range in the hills where it can blaze away all day long. The clatter of machine guns is heard so frequently that civilians no longer look to see what is happening.

Oahu has strategic military roads, and the army has been motorized. It can be concentrated at any point along the coast within 45 minutes.

Several Air Raid Alarms.

There have been several air raid alarms following the army's discovery of "unknown elements" off shore. These "elements" were treated as hostile until their identity was established.

On March 4 an enemy plane [suspected of having come from a Japanese aircraft carrying submarine] came over early in the morning and dropped four small bombs among the hills. This plane was detected long before it reached the island. Its arrival was no "surprise" to the army.

When asked what they think of the possibility of invasion army men cited the importance of the Hawaiian Islands to both the United States and the Japanese. From here, American naval forces make forays against enemy shipping and island bases. The Hawaiian Islands lie athwart the sea lanes to Australia and thrust out 2,400 miles toward Japan and the chain of islands occupied by the united nations in the south Pacific. Their loss would push American forces back 2,400 miles.

Army forces declare Japanese occupation of the Hawaiian Islands would be a tremendous gain to the enemy. They say the Japanese could afford to suffer heavy losses to win this area. Therefore, the officers maintain, an attack should be anticipated.

More Troops Needed.

Undoubtedly army and navy chiefs realize the need for a strong defense. A summary of the feelings expressed indicates that more men, planes, and modern equipment still are needed to make these islands impregnable. The numbers of each needed to accomplish this are comparatively small and withholding them from Europe will not swing the scales of battle on Europe's battlefields.

One military expert put it this way: "If the United States can afford to send troops, planes, and weapons to aid a British army of 'several millions' to defend Iceland and Ireland against a remotely possible Nazi invasion, then she cannot afford not to send sufficient forces here to assure the defense of this vital Pacific outpost."

He said the best means of preventing the Japanese from attempting to capture the Hawaiian Islands would be the maintenance of a sufficient defense to make invasion impossible.

DR. WASSELL, CITED BY F. D. R. AS JAVA HERO, GETS HIS NAVY CROSS

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 2 (AP). — Lieut. Comm. Corydon McAlmont Wassell, a former mission doctor in China who was cited for bravery in Java by President Roosevelt in his fireside chat Tuesday night, received the navy cross today from a high United States naval officer.

Wassell cared for wounded officers and men from the cruisers Houston and Marblehead during action in the Java sea. When the Japanese invaded Java, the doctor remained to attend dangerously wounded men while other casualties were removed to Australia. He transported the wounded men to the coast, where he kept them alive despite their severe suffering. Finally they managed to get aboard a Dutch ship.

8,621 BIG BOXES IN N. Y. BECOME A HOSPITAL IN OAHU

Doctors Build It in Time for Pearl Harbor.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

HONOLULU, May 2. — One day a ship left New York harbor with 8,621 huge boxes, a group of navy technical men and a few navy doctors aboard. The doctors, distinguished surgeons and specialists who had only recently donned uniforms, didn't know where they were going with those boxes, but they knew what they were to do with them.

Later they found themselves standing in red mud on a rainy, windswept slope in the mountains of Oahu, the 8,621 boxes piled around them in what had been pineapple and sweet potato fields. They were supposed to uncrate those 908 tons of material and equipment and build a hospital here—and build it fast.

The doctors rolled up their sleeves. The chief surgeon became head plumber. The psychiatrist took charge of laying foundations. The ear, nose, and throat specialist was assigned to string light poles. Others became carpenters, masons, and mechanics.

Then Came the Japs.

With their men, key workers all, the medicos labored without a day off for two weeks. They lived in sheds and ate potatoes and beans cooked in ten gallon tins.

On the fifteenth day, which was Dec. 7, 1941, they became doctors again and played an heroic and unsung part in the drama of Pearl Harbor.

They were interrupted at breakfast by the sound of bombs and the whine of shrapnel. A flying splinter killed a sailor. The war was on.

The entire staff ripped open the crates that held the beds. They piled two by four timbers across the boxes and in a few minutes had a hospital going in buildings that still were only partly roofed. Before the day was over 110 casualties had been brought up from Pearl Harbor.

150 Operations Performed.

When not treating victims of the Japanese attack the doctors continued their construction chores. Today one of the best equipped hospitals in the islands is in full operation on that remote mountainside.

The surgeons show their two big operating rooms with pride. Since their unscheduled opening on Dec. 7 they have performed more than 150 major operations here.

The hospital is a self-sufficient base. Water is taken from the regular city supply, but large canvas tanks hold a reserve, and a chlorination plant has been set up so that water from the hillside gullies and ditches can be purified and used.

There are several hundred beds in the hospital now, of which approximately 50 per cent are occupied. The whole layout cost a little more than $300,000.

Can Be Moved Again.

Capt. Frank Ryan, former chief surgeon at Pearl Harbor and now commanding officer of the new hospital, explained that the prefabricated building can be taken apart and crated up again and moved somewhere else. If this had to be done the wooden flooring would be used to build the crating.

Capt. Ryan's chief surgeon is Dr. T. McKean Downs, who had instructed him years before at the University of Pennsylvania school of medicine. Dr. Downs, a commander now, was in charge of installing the plumbing.

"I might make a living at it when the war is over if I can't get back my practice," he said.

The hospital now has a total working personnel of 283 officers and men including 97 nonmedical ratings, 30 of whom are seamen.

BRITISH RAIDERS BOMB DESTROYER, HIT AIRDROMES

LONDON, May 2 (AP).—British bombers crippled a Nazi destroyer off the Norwegian coast and chopped away at enemy airdromes in northern France overnight, but the weather intervened again to keep the great swarms of RAF and German planes tied to the ground.

Photographic evidence released tonight disclosed that the daylight bombing of the great T. A. N. Diesel engine works at Augsburg, near Munich, had left vast destruction two weeks ago. Great bomb holes appeared in the roof of the plant, and, the air ministery commented, "there is no doubt that the interior of the building and its machinery were most severely damaged if not entirely wrecked."

13 Planes Downed, Nazis Claim.

BERLIN, May 2 [from German broadcasts] — (AP). — Thirteen British fighter planes were shot down yesterday over occupied western territory, the German high command said today.

Coronation Day

NANCY NICOLL.

Urbana, Ill., May 2 [Special].—The May day procession this afternoon featuring the coronation of Miss Nancy Nicoll, 114 South East street, Oak Park, as May Queen climaxed the second day of Mother's day week-end on the University of Illinois campus. Several thousand mothers of students are here attending the annual festivities, which are held one week before national Mother's day.

Attendants to the queen were Bess Yost, Bloomington; Adele Kaplan, Chenoa; Eleanor Miller, Cairo, and Marjorie North, El Paso.

A Mother's day reception was held in the main lounge of the new Illini Union building in the evening.

TELL CHAPLAINS' HEROIC SERVICES IN BATAAN FIGHT

Led Worship in Hospitals and Front Lines.

Washington, D. C., May 2 (AP).—Reports of a score or more army chaplains that the Japanese invasion produced a revival of religious interest in the Philippines have been published by the war department.

In January 26,000 soldiers and civilians, a tabulation showed, attended hundreds of religious services held under wartime difficulties.

Chaplain Ralph W. D. Brown of Seattle, Wash., who was awarded the distinguished service cross for heroism, reported, the war department said, that "every day here is Sunday when the chaplain arrives. Days and dates have lost significance."

Services in Front Lines.

Because assembling of large groups was dangerous, in many instances religious services were informal. They were held in front line positions, in hospitals and at messes. The chaplains combined religious duties with personal functions of many kinds for the soldiers.

The war department said the reports covered activities for December and January and were incomplete because exact records could not be kept. Several chaplains were believed to have been captured with the fall of Bataan.

Other reports made public by the war department from chaplains in the field:

Chaplain Frederick B. Howden, Roswell, N. M.: "Scarcity of transportation makes visits to field positions difficult, but by walking and hitch-hiking all positions have been visited one or more times during the month."

HUTCHINS AND EASTERN EDUCATOR DEBATE TWO-YEAR B. A. DEGREE

Whether they want it or not, American educators will be compelled because of the war to inaugurate some plan for conferring bachelor of arts degrees on students who study for two years instead of four at institutions of higher learning, Robert Maynard Hutchins said yesterday before the American Council of Education, meeting in the Stevens hotel.

The University of Chicago president debated in defense of the program of liberal education which he announced last January and which goes into effect at Chicago this summer. Based on six years of elementary education, four years of junior high school and four years of college [presuming that to start at what is now the junior year in high school], the plan calls for a bachelor's degree at the end of the present sophomore year in college.

Opposing President Hutchins in the debate was Dr. William F. Tolley, president of Allegheny college, Meadville, Pa., who declared his views represented those of six of the great organizations of advanced education in the United States, which, he said, "treat the new offspring with scant respect."

Hutchins' Exposition

"From the beginning the University of Chicago determined to try to give a liberal education by the end of the sophomore year," said President Hutchins. "This would mean that the student would get the kind of education every citizen ought to have by the age of 20, as compared with 19 in England and Germany and 18 in France. This ambition did not seem excessive and has not proved to be.

"Of course, to achieve it, the institution must resolutely face the question what is important and what is not. It cannot teach everything that any student thinks he would like to hear about or that any teacher thinks he would like to talk about. It cannot pile course on course in the naive belief that it is thereby 'raising standards.' It must set up clear and comprehensive goals for its students to reach. More than all, a university that wishes to solve the problem how to develop and administer a liberal education must have a faculty devoted to this task. All these conditions the University of Chicago has endeavored to meet.

Advise Against Bachelor Degree.

"For many years the division of the humanities, the division of the social sciences, and the school of business of the University of Chicago have been advising students not to take the bachelor's degree, but to proceed from the beginning of the junior year to the master's [degree]. The bachelor's degree has been a handicap to the development of a coherent and intelligent plan of advanced study.

"More and more the professional schools have been admitting students at the beginning of the junior year. The graduate library school has adopted a curriculum starting at that point and leading to the degree of bachelor of library science. The law school has a curriculum beginning at that point and leading to the J. D. [juris doctor]. In such professional schools as these the B. A. is granted for purely professional study and is conferred, in fact, only because it is the insignia which every young American who has ever graduated from anything is supposed to have.

No Place for B. A. in University.

"A university that wants to be a university must drop the B. A. A university that wants to develop liberal education must mark its completion by that degree. In the last three months many educational associations have adopted an identical resolution, which, they have all told me, does not refer to the University of Chicago. It merely warns everybody else not to follow its example.

"With one phrase in the resolution I agree. It is the phrase which speaks feelingly of the universally recognized and time-honored bachelor's degree. The degree is universally recognized as something everybody ought to have if he can scrape up time and money to get it. It is time honored in the sense that people have wanted it for a long time. It is not universally recognized as meaning anything except graduation from some kind of college. It is time honored in the sense that it is honored today for the same reasons as at an earlier time. But that it is recognized and honored there can be no doubt.

B. A. Pops Up in Middle.

"This is just the trouble with it. Since it is conferred at the wrong point for the wrong reasons, the recognition and honor it commands serve to thwart the rational reorganization of American education. It has proved impossible to develop a terminal program of liberal education without the bachelor's degree at the end of it. It has proved impossible to operate an intelligent scheme of advanced study when the bachelor's degree pops up in the middle of it.

"To these considerations, which make this action necessary, we must now add the war, which makes it imperative. Young men are going to have to leave us at the age of 20. It is our duty to give them before they go the education every citizen should have. The two additional years which the standardizing agencies yearn to give them they cannot get. They will spend those years in the army.

Programs of Acceleration.

"So obvious is this that programs of acceleration, many of the ill-conceived and ill-considered, are sweeping the country. We first dilute the curriculum with so-called war courses—the last one I saw was wild turkey hunting—and then crowd it, unchanged except for the dilution into a shorter period of time. Acceleration is a mean of preserving the status quo and evading the obligation which rests upon us to reorganize and revitalize education.

"If an institution is ready to offer a liberal education which may be completed by the end of the sophomore year, and if it decides that it must relocate the bachelor's degree in order to achieve its aims in liberal education and university work, it must act. If other institutions act too, so much the better. If they do not, then the one which is prepared to act must go its way alone."

Tolley's Defense

"Evidently Mr. Hutchins no longer sees any difference in function between the colleges of liberal arts and the trade schools, service stations and elaborate kindergartens that flourish at the college level," Dr. Tolley said. "For him there is no important difference between high schools and colleges, no significant difference between junior and four year colleges, no appreciable difference between terminal courses signifying the completion of vocational training and a program of studies designed to widen horizons, provide for the crtical examination of ends and means, sharpen appreciation and taste, and form habits of independent inquiry and reflection.

"According to Mr. Hutchins, all the courses in all the schools aim at two things. Either they are concerned with general education, which belongs to the secondary school, or with advanced and specialized training which belongs exclusively to the university.

Leaves No Place for College.

"With the first two years of college given back to the high school and the last two surrendered to the university, the four year college is to be stripped of its possessions like a millionaire in wartime.

"The mountain of the University of Chicago, having been long in labor, has now produced a mouse. If the new offspring has been treated with scant respect by the Association of American Colleges, the National Association of State Universities, the National Conference of Church Related Colleges, the Association of Colleges and Universities of the Pacific Southwest, the commission on institutions of higher education of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, and the American Association of University of Women, all of whom have taken adverse action, it is not because of their fear of something new, but their knowledge that they have seen this particular mouse before.

12th Eruption Since 1852.

"There is nothing novel or earth shaking in the proposal to kill off the four year college and cheapen the bachelor's degree. As President W. H. Cowley of Hamilton college has observed, this is a 90 year old conflict erupting again for the 12th time since 1852. And this time, as before, it is the expression of an inferiority complex of Americans dazzled by the educational systems of the old world.

"If we would solve the educational problem of America, Mr. Hutchins bids us turn our eyes toward Europe. Mr. Hutchins feels that if our educational system were more like that of Europe, it would be an enormous step forward.

"It is perfectly true that the four year college of liberal arts has no exact counterpart in Europe. It is as American as cornbread or baseball. Countless critics have found fault with it, many a university president has predicted its demise, but, like the bay tree, it still flourishes, and now more vigorously than ever.

Proposes Less Schooling.

"Altho Mr. Hutchins complains that the American college boy lags two years behind the English, French, and German boy of the same age, it is interesting to note that to overcome this lag, he proposes two years less of schooling.

"Prior to this fifth column attack on the bachelor's degree, Mr. Hutchins has appeared to be as dissatisfied with the American public school as he is with the college. He would be glad, I am sure, if students began their college work with better skill in reading and writing and better preparation in such basic subjects as English, mathematics, history, and foreign languages. He must be aware of the difficulty of educating students en masse in the swollen classes of our large city schools.

"Each year the demands for what Mr. Hutchins calls general education grow harder to meet within the limitation of present school and college schedules. Nor is the world of specialized knowledge standing still.

Increasing Demands of Science.

"The frontiers of science continue to move forward, and in any one of 100 areas the specialist must know more than was expected before. In such a day it is unlikely that we will agree to train chemists, physicists, or even social workers in any shorter time.

"When there is so much more to learn, the time for learning should not be reduced. Each of the criticisms Mr. Hutchins has made could have been made with greater force 15 or 20 years ago. They sound more like a description of the past than of the present. If, however, Mr. Hutchins feels that general education has no place in a real university, perhaps the sensible plan in Chicago's case would be to discontinue the granting of the bachelor's degree and concentrate on what Mr. Hutchins calls work of university grade.

"In view of the experience, however, that Chicago has had with achievement tests and comprehensive examinations, I am surprised that Chicago finds it either necessary or desirable to offer a counterfeit bachelor's degree."

FLEEING GERMANS LOSE TANK GUNS; SECRETS BARED

British Learn How Nazis Get High Fire Power.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAIRO, Egypt [by air mail].—Germany's efficient anti-tank weapons have been as impressive as their tanks in desert fighting and were much more of a surprise to the British fighters in Libya.

They gave up their secrets to the British in the November campaign, when both guns and ammunition were left behind undamaged as the British drove the enemy westward. They have now been taken down and studied and I have seen their ammunition with its ingenious means of piercing armor plate.

Penetrating Power Great.

German anti-tank weapons have phenomenal penetrating power. The Germans tackled the problem of punching holes in armor with that methodical thoroness that is their chief strength and often their chief weakness. They went at this scientifically, working on the well known physical principle that velocity helps penetration.

The Germans have gone in for fancy projectiles. They have worked toward increasing the hardness and on developing more efficient shapes. But, above all, they have concentrated on velocity, and they have gotten results.

Have Dual Purpose Gun.

They have several armor piercing weapons all dependent on that same basic principle. The most potent is the 88 millimeter [3.46 inch] dual purpose anti-tank and anti-aircraft gun. Its principal weakness is that it is big and heavy. It is also slow and costly to make and its shells are expensive. Then, too, there is a serious difference in the supply problem between feeding 18 pound shells to such a gun or 4½ pound shells to the 50 millimeter gun. It looks like a long naval gun and will punch holes thru three inches of armor like so much cheese. The lighter 50 millimeter is the type most frequently used, however.

The 50 millimeter gun, besides its high velocity, has an ingenious projectile that eases the problem of getting thru the shell of armored fighting vehicles. An American artillery officer aptly described it the other day as similar to the old trick of driving a needle thru a penny by encasing the needle in a cork so that it will not bend or break.

Gun Bore Is Two Inches.

The bore of the gun is roughly two inches in diameter and the projectile weighs about four and a half pounds—but the part that actually penetrates the tank is not much bigger than a man's thumb. Our 37 millimeter gun fires a projectile that weighs about two pounds.

The brass casing of the German shell stands more than a foot high and has about six or eight times the charge that propels the 37 mm. Its muzzle velocity is not known precisely, but it is thought to be about four times than of our gun.

Instead of the long steel projectile one usually sees sticking out of a shell, there is only a long, thin, sharp point, like a church steeple, sticking up from the middle of the casing, with a square shoulder around the base.

The mouth of the casing is filled by a cylinder of soft metal which holds the long, slender nose sticking up from it. In the middle of the plug, and behind the point, there is the small hard steel projectile that does the final damage.

Three Parts to Penetration.

There are three steps in the process of penetration:

First: The needle point catches the surface of the armor, concentrating the full force of the impact on that spot and probably cracking the hardened surface.

Second: The cylinder of soft metal surrounding the bullet squashes down around that point. It helps to prevent the shot skidding off and adds to the weight of impact.

Third: The penetrating shot plunges thru the soft metal and strikes the armor plate behind the sharp point at the moment when the plate is under the greatest strain from the impact . . . and in it goes.

Destructive Powers Great.

Once inside, the solid shot bounces madly around, ricocheting from the inside surfaces. I have seen the astonishing amount of death and destruction a comparatively small shot can cause when it is hurtling around inside a tank, and it is not pleasant to look at afterward.

FIRST U. S. SOLDIER MARRIES MEMBER OF BRITISH WOMEN'S UNIT

LONDON, May 2 (AP).—The first marriage between members of the United States and British armed services took place today when Pvt. Ernest P. Johnson of Arcadia, Wis., and Dorothy Dempster of the British women's auxiliary air force took their vows.

Johnson, 23 years old, will continue to live in army billets, since he did not have his commander's permission to marry.

Next Saturday, Pvt. Raymond Longton of River Rouge, Mich., will be married in style at Westminster Cathedral to Miss Irene May Heffernan of London.

NAVY GUN CREW ABOARD U. S. SHIP SUNK BY U-BOAT

45 on Vessel Are Rescued After Torpedoing.

Norfolk, Va., May 2.—An eight man navy gun crew was aboard an American cargo ship which was torpedoed and sunk recently off the Atlantic coast, the fifth naval district disclosed today in announcing that all except two of the ship's complement of 47 had been saved.

This was one of the few times mention has been permitted of the operations of navy gun crews aboard merchant ships since the siege of sinkings began off the Atlantic coast early this year.

Since Pearl Harbor 149 vessels have been sunk in American waters, with 886 known dead, 1,211 missing, and 4,414 rescued.

27 Reach Port.

Bronzed and weary after nearly 10 days at sea in a lifeboat, 27 of the survivors of the merchant ship were landed Thursday at Morehead City, N. C. They had covered 300 miles by rowing and sailing before they were picked up by a rescue vessel 15 miles off the coast.

Eighteen other survivors from the same ship were brought into Norfolk April 22.

[Among those landed at Morehead City was John J. Grzech, 35 years old, of 1473 West Huron street, Chicago, a cook, whose sister, Mrs. Mary Kucma, said he joined the merchant marine in 1935, because "he wanted to see the world." He had been at home on leave just prior to Easter. Mrs. Kucma received an official telegram last Saturday saying her brother was "lost" and another on Thursday saying he had been saved. Among those taken ashore at Norfolk was Alexander Andrews of 850 Broadway, Gary, Ind.]

Sub Officer Quizzes Crew.

Crewmen told Ensign M. Hamilton Whitman of the fifth district public relations office that the submarine fired two torpedoes. One struck on the starboard side, breaking the propeller shaft, and the other missed.

The crew took to two lifeboats, and the ship disappeared soon afterward.

The submarine then came to the surface and approached within 100 yards of the lifeboats. One of the submarine's officers asked the name, tonnage, armament, and destination of the ship.

"I am sorry to sink you, but this is war," the officer said. "Thanks for the name of the ship."

700 Is May Quota of Coast Guard Recruiters in City

A goal of 700 men during May was set yesterday for the Chicago recruiting area of the United States coast guard, an increase of 100 over the April quota. Since the attack on Pearl Harbor the Chicago area has contributed 2,300 coast guardsmen, officials said.

NAVY'S WAR DEAD REACH 2,991; LIST 2,495 AS MISSING

907 Wounded in First 4 Months of Fighting.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—The navy today announced that 6,393 sailors, marines, and coast guardsmen from every state in the union are dead, wounded, or missing in the first four months of the war. The total does not include army casualties, or men known to be prisoners of war.

The tabulation of American naval casualties, the first made public since the war started, covered the period from Dec. 7 to April 15, inclusive. The summary said 2,991 were dead, 2,495 were missing, and 907 were wounded.

The war department has not made public an official tabulation of its losses, altho it has announced the death of 283 officers and men. It has, however, acknowledged losses of approximately 35,000 killed, wounded, or captured in the Philippines.

Totals Expected to Increase.

Most of the navy casualties were suffered in direct action with the enemy, altho men lost in accidents at sea and in the air also were included in the tabulation. The totals are expected to increase when later reports are received.

The names of the dead will be announced to newspapers for publication Tuesday morning. The papers will not be permitted to publish the complete list, as they could during the World war, but may publish names of nationally prominent persons and those whose next of kin live in the newspaper's circulation area.

The casualty list for the four month period was larger than the total casualties suffered during the 19 months of the World war, when 3,500 officers and men were killed in action or reported missing.

Pearl Harbor Toll Highest.

The greater part of the navy's casualties were suffered in the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. First reports of the losses there were 2,729 dead and 656 wounded, but these figures later were scaled down to 2,144 dead.

Observers believed that the large number of missing reflected American naval losses in the battle of Java, where the United States lost the cruiser Houston and the destroyers Pope, Edsall, and Pillsbury. Also included are 1,200 men lost in the sinking of the aircraft tender Langley and the naval tanker Pecos.

It was believed the missing also included the 400 marines who made history at Wake Island by holding that atoll two weeks against overwhelmingly superior Japanese forces.

Covers Both Oceans.

The navy's list did not divide the losses into those suffered in the various theaters of war. The list, however, embraced fighting in the Atlantic against axis submarines as well as Japanese naval forces in the Pacific.

"The classification 'missing' covered those who cannot be accounted for, some of whom may be prisoners, and some of whom may have been rescued at sea and landed at isolated spots and have had no opportunity to communicate with naval authorities," the navy department said.

It was recalled in connection with the difficulties attending compilation of casualty lists that most of the crew of the Langley were picked up by the Pecos and that later that vessel was sunk.

ROB ICE CREAM SALESMAN.

George Pigg, 30 years old, street ice cream salesman, was forced into an automobile at 3545 South Honore street last night by two armed men who robbed him of $30 and [illegible] him at 14th and Laflin streets.

1,302 INTERNED SO FAR IN U. S. ALIEN ROUNDUPS

Washington, D. C., May 2 (AP).—Attorney General Francis Biddle announced today that 1,302 aliens have been ordered interned for the duration of the war.

This represents more than half of the 2,548 who have been arrested as possibly dangerous and given hearings. Of the remainder, 875 have been paroled and 371 have been released outright.

Aliens ordered interned are turned over to the war department, while those paroled or released remain responsible to the justice department.

By nationalities, the Japanese showed the highest percentage of internment—633 or about 47 per cent of the 1,302 individuals interned. Biddle ordered internment for 556 Germans and 113 Italians. He released 70 Japanese and paroled 293; released 228 Germans and paroled 491, and released 73 Italians and paroled 91.

Since Dec. 7 the federal bureau of investigation has arrested 8,332 axis aliens, leaving 5,784 cases still to be acted upon.

BRITISH CHURCH, PEERS TO GIVE UP HUGE COAL FEES

State to Take Royalties After July 1.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 2.—Several of England's land-wealthy peers and the ecclesiastical commission of the Anglican church will be the big losers July 1 when the government takes over ownership of all coal royalties [mining rights] in England, it was reported tonight.

Under a 1937 act of parliament, between 4,000 and 5,000 landed proprietors will no longer receive payments for each ton of coal dug from beneath their lands. Some of these rights are hundreds of years old and change hands with the land. Others are sold like securities. Ownership of the royalty rights is, in effect, ownership of the coal.

The Duke of Hamilton, it was revealed tonight, will forfeit an annual income estimated at about $456,000 when the state takes over. The duke of Northumberland will give up about $276,000 yearly.

The earls of Dunraven, Durham and Ellesmere in the past received more than $480,000 yearly altogether. The marquess of Bute will lose about $436,000, while Lord Tredegar will be forced to forego a yearly income of $296,000 from his royalties.

The ecclesiastical commission will no longer receive some $1,480,000 annually from coal mining leases.

Owners Paid for Rights.

The royalty owners, however, will not go without compensation, it was learned. The central valuation board, which has been working out the claims of the various parties for several years, presented its estimates and parliament a few weeks ago appropriated $256,000,000 to buy out the private owners.

This was just a little more than half the amount claimed by the landlords.

After July 1, all royalties levied upon coal will go to the state. It was estimated the action will reduce the cost of coal production in England about $18,000,000 yearly.

LISBON, Portugal, May 2 (AP).—Six members of the crew of a German bomber which made a forced landing on a beach at Apulia, near Espozende on the northwest coast of Portugal, set their plane afire and surrendered last night to authorities in a nearby town. One of the flyers was injured.

POLES DISTURBED BY REPORTS OF RED PEACE PLANS

Hear Soviet Wants Chunk of Poland After War.

Persistent reports that Russia is demanding substantial postwar expansion, involving many new frontiers, are disturbing informed Poles thruout the country.

Information to this effect has been reported with insistent regularity from embassies in Washington, D. C., and consulates in many cities, including Chicago.

Credence has been given to these reports by the attitude of Sir Stafford Cripps, recent British ambassador to Russia, and his policy of friendship and concessions to Russia. This policy of the former envoy has become known as the "Cripps' Line."

Russia, according to the reports, insists she must have expansion of both territory and rule for "protective and strategic reasons." Recent cables from Moscow and London have contained brief references to statements and conferences on the subject and there have been reports that the Russian demands have been reduced to the form of agreements covering the territory to go to Russia after the war.

May Hay Speech Stirs Fears.

Further cause for alarm was seen by Chicago Polish leaders in the May day speech of Russian Premier Josef Stalin. While he disclaimed any territorial ambitions and said "we want to liberate our brothers, the Ukrainians, Moldavians, White Russians, Lithuanians, Latvians, Estonians, and Karelians from the shame and humiliation inflicted upon them by the German Fascist blackguards," he made no mention of the Poles. It was pointed out by Polish leaders that the wording of his speech did not preclude his attempting to retake the section of Poland given to Russia under the 1939 Russo-German partition.

As early as Jan. 22 a cable from Stockholm, Sweden, stated that negotiations were under way in Washington seeking American approval of nine points made by Moscow in connection with a possible postwar settlement of world affairs. Among the points were these:

"The future soviet-Rumanian frontier will leave Bessarabia and Bukovina [formerly parts of Rumania] on the soviet side.

"Moscow desires a strong, reconstituted Poland. [There was no mention of frontiers.]

"The three Baltic states [Lithuania, Latvia, and Estonia] are to be reincorporated within the soviet union.

Free Finland Pledged.

"The soviet union agrees to a future free and independent Finland, whose frontiers will depend upon the extent of Finland's help to Germany.

"The soviet desires an arrangement whereby Iran [Persia] could not be used as a base for an attack against Russia."

This program was reported drawn up in December, when British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden held talks in Moscow with Premier Stalin and Foreign Commisar Vyache-slav Molotov.

References to the subject have now become so persistent that columnists have begun to predict an early visit to Moscow by Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

Naming of Cripps Stirs Rumors.

Cripps was named British ambassador to Russia in June, 1940, and the reports persisted during that statesman's tenure. Russia's insistence on a new alignment became a subject of diplomatic discussion almost as soon as Cripps arrived in Moscow. On July 17, an Associated Press dispatch from Moscow stated:

"Dictator Josef Stalin, who rarely receives foreign envoys, was reported reliably tonight to have had a long talk with Sir Stafford Cripps, the British ambassador. The conversation was understood to have been in general terms but it aroused the deepest interest in foreign quarters here."

Less than a year later, on June 27, 1941, Cripps, after a visit to England, returned to Moscow, leading members of a British military and economic mission to the soviets.

In less than a year after that Cripps had resigned his ambassadorship and on Jan. 22, 1942, a London story said that "Sir Stafford Cripps, former British ambassador to Moscow, returned to Britain tonight. After paving the way for the Anglo-soviet alliance, Cripps resigned."

Cripps Put Into Cabinet.

Cripps then was given a cabinet position. On Feb. 20 he was made lord privy seal and Churchill's deputy as leader of the house of commons.

Just previous to this appointment, however, the "Cripps line" had become the subject of talk in capitals of the allied nations. Between his return from Moscow and his entry into the cabinet Cripps had made speeches urging British and American help for the Russians.

On Jan. 24, in his first press interview after his return from Moscow, Cripps said that "the policy of the Russian government is not to spread communism over Europe, but to let the nations chose their own forms of government and see to it that none adopts the Nazi form."

Asks Outline of Peace Terms.

Two days later newspaper commentators said Cripps "may have been offered a place in the cabinet as minister without portfolio, so that he could continue his study of plans for postwar Europe."

This was seen in some quarters as an indication that Britain might be taking cognizance, altho unofficial, of the "Cripps' Line."

On Feb. 8 Cripps urged that allied nations tell their peace terms "now." He declared at Bristol: "Either we are in partnership with Russia in the reconstruction of Europe, or we again plunge the world into chaos."

Next day a cable from Bristol quoted him as saying that if the united nations are victorious the soviet union will be the strongest European power and "they are likely to end the war sitting in Berlin." He added:

"There is a great deal to admire in Communism, but much as I admire many of the policies of the soviet union, I think we shall make a better job of reconstruction in Europe, if we share in it as well."

Hint Big Partition of Poland.

Recent reports of the Russian demands are to the effect that they unquestionably include the partition of Poland, with a considerable portion, if not one-half, going to Russia or under Russian dominion. They include also demands for larger holdings on the Baltic sea and in the Balkans.

That Chicago and other informed Poles have been watching developments with keen interest is indicated by Dr. Joseph Junosza, special representative here of the Polish ministry of information whose branch in the western hemisphere is the Polish Information center with headquarters in New York. Dr. Junosza discussed the report as follows:

"I have heard of these reports and have, of course, been reading the published reports of statements by Sir Stafford Cripps.

No Partition Pledged by Soviet.

"We [the Polish government] stand on the basis of our agreement with Russia as of August, 1941, signed during the visit of our premier to Moscow on Dec. 4, 1941, that the frontiers of Poland after the war shall be as they were at the beginning of the war. That is, that there must be no partition of Poland.

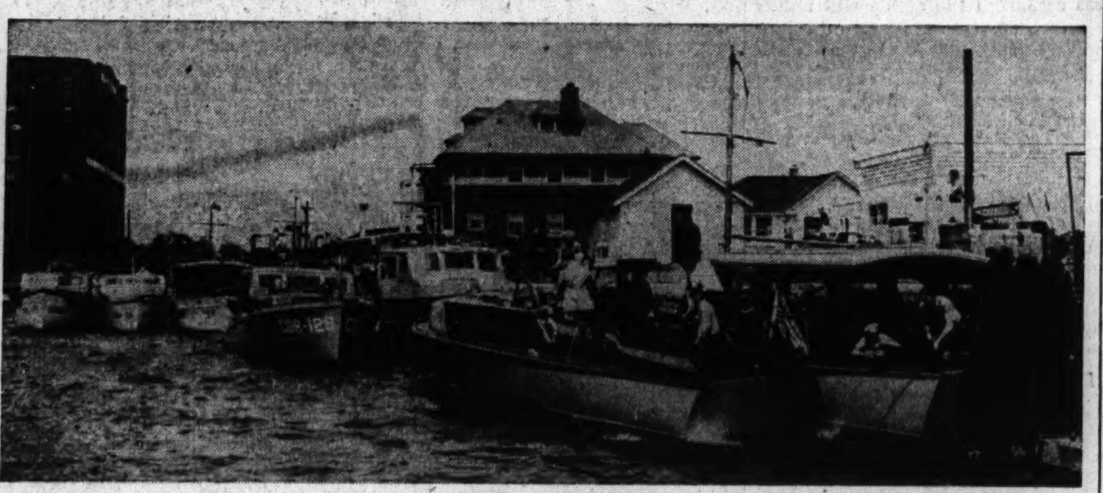
"We do not expect there to be any discussion or agreements, secret or otherwise, concerning this. Poland has the fifth largest army in the allied nations and expects to be treated as an ally.

"Poland certainly could not look with favor upon another Munich—by which I mean any attempt to begin partitioning Poland. We do not believe it possible for Britain or any allied nation to make such an alliance with Russia, our ally, without Russia conferring with us on it and that has not happened. I cannot believe there has been any pact of that nature.

"I believe that, altho Sir Stafford Cripps was made a member of the British cabinet and made some statements favorable to Russia both before and after his appointment, he was speaking not from any knowledge of an alliance but was simply stating his own opinions—in fact, that he was what may be called 'sending up a trial balloon.'"

Dr. Junosza several times mentioned reports to the effect that Russia was demanding half of Poland and other territories. He reiterated, however, that he does not believe there is any such agreement between Russia and one or more of her allies.

Patrol Boats Complete Trip Thru Inland Waterway



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

A fleet of coast guard patrol boats, formerly Chicago yachts, tied up at the coast guard anchorage near the Outer drive bridge yesterday after completing voyage thru inland waterway from the TVA dam in Tennessee.

Guard Chicago Points

Six former Chicago yachts, bearing the designation of coast guard patrol boats, arrived yesterday at the coast guard anchorage after a trip up the inland waterway system from winter quarters on the Tennessee river at the TVA dam. They soon will be reconditioned and painted battleship gray to take their place with other patrol boats guarding Chicago's water front and rivers.

The flotilla was commanded by Chief Boatswain's Mate A. M. La Roue. The 1,200 mile trip was made over the Tennessee, Ohio, Mississippi, and Illinois rivers. It took three weeks.

LEARNS MISSING SON WAS ONE OF BATAAN FIGHTERS

Five years ago Mike Depa, 2327 North Leavitt street, told his mother he was going downtown to look for work. He never came back and the mother, Mrs. Jennie Depa, has not seen him since.

Friends yesterday showed her a group picture of Company B, 192d tank battalion, which appeared April 10 in THE TRIBUNE. The company was among the last ditch fighters in Bataan. With the picture were printed names of the soldiers, including that of a Private Depa.

Mrs. Depa said she was positive that it was the picture of her son. "For five years I've hunted for him," she said. "Once we heard he was in the CCC, but I never saw him. Now I know where he is and I'm happy again."

Depa, who was listed in the picture caption as being alive after the Bataan battle, is 34 years old.

2 More Soldier Fugitives from Guardhouse Seized

Chicago police yesterday captured Robert A. Mueller, 23 years old, Hartford, Mich., and Salvatore Fanelli, 21, of Chicago, who with 11 other military prisoners escaped from the Fort Sheridan guardhouse Friday. Two of the prisoners were returned to army custody a few hours later by the father of one man and nine still are at large.

MUSSOLINI, BACK IN ROME, ACTS TO RAISE MONEY

Decrees Excess Profits Go Into Bonds.

BERNE, Switzerland, May 2 (AP).—Premier Mussolini, back in Rome from Salzburg, where he met Hitler in a conference which Il Duce termed a "vast exchange of views on military and political problems," ordered his council of ministers today to approve a decree compelling the investment of excess profits in special treasury bonds.

Italian dispatches said the bonds would not be transferrable during the war, and the use of the funds so raised will be determined after peace comes.

The council approved other decrees increasing pensions of survivors of war dead 40 to 50 per cent, and providing state payments to the ill and aged.

Press Hails Parley.

The Salzburg meeting of the axis chiefs, their foreign ministers and war lords was hailed by the Italian press as a curtain raiser for important actions.

The authoritative editor, Virginio Gayda, wrote in Il Giornale d'Italia that the decisions taken concerned not only military and economic matters, but also the political front, which he said was "pushed into the background a little by recent military events but was now in the foreground with the appearance of new problems associated with the war and building a new Europe."

France's status, since pro-axis Pierre Laval has returned to power, was surely discussed at Salzburg, political circles said.

Revoice Claims on France.

Italian claims against France were revoiced in the Italian press as well as at Garibaldi anniversary meetings yesterday.

Gayda said axis efforts would be directed against Russia and the Mediterranean—"two of the principal centers of war in Europe today."

The Basel [Switzerland National Zeitung said "there can be no doubt that the axis has now finished its preparations" for the summer battles.

POLES TO MARK 151ST BIRTHDAY OF REVOLUTION

Gov. Green Will Speak at Humboldt Park.

Poland's national holiday will be celebrated by people of Polish extraction thruout the nation today, the 151st anniversary of the bloodless revolution which marked the establishment of the Polish constitution.

The Chicago celebration will be featured by an address by Gov. Green, who will speak in Humboldt park near the monument to Kosciuszko, the Polish hero who fought on the side of the United States in the Revolutionary war. Dr. Karol Ripa, Polish consul general in Chicago, also will address the rally.

Pioneers in Democracy.

Dr. Ripa explained yesterday that altho May 3, 1791, is celebrated as Constitution day, Polish freedom goes back 300 years before that, when the most important state matters were decided in Poland by the parliament, not the king.

Two hundred years before the English habeas corpus act, he said, Poland had guaranteed the rights of her citizens by the neminem captivabimus act.

The 1791 constitution granted wide liberties to the third estate and assured the common people the protection of the government. It also abolished the veto privilege of the nobility, thus protecting the state against arbitrariness.

"Every Peasant Is Free."

It was four years later that Gen. Kosciuszko, chief of the nation, issued the Polaniecki declaration which declared in the first paragraph, "Every peasant is free and permitted to go wherever he pleases."

All of the arrangements for the celebration in Chicago were made by the Polish National alliance, 1514 Division street. Following morning church services, most of the day's activities will center in Humboldt park.

ASSERTS BRITISH HIT AXIS HARD IN MEDITERRANEAN

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, May 2 (AP).—A British naval spokesman declared tonight that the Mediterranean fleet's submarines and aircraft had intensified with "good results" their campaign against axis convoys bound for Libya. "The principal activity in the Mediterranean now is the offensive action of our submarines hammering convoys to which the Italian navy appears to be giving increasingly heavy protection," he declared.

He declined to disclose the percentage of enemy ships destroyed or damaged recently, but since Sunday eight axis ships have been reported sunk by British submarines. Most of them were heavily laden supply ships. "Enemy convoys now usually are protected by at least one battleship, in addition to cruisers and destroyers," he said.

G.O.P. Loser Charges Vote Clerks Cheated Him; Sues

John A. Nordstrand, defeated in the official canvass of the vote for the Republican nomination for state senator in the 25th legislative district, yesterday filed suit in Circuit court seeking a recount. Nordstrand received 16,306 votes while his regular organization opponent, Frederick B. Resag, got 17,540. The apparent loser charged that election judges and clerks cheated him out of about 2,000 votes.

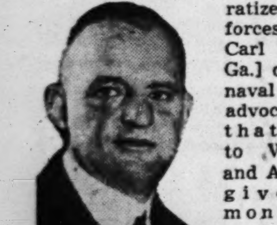
FIGHT ON 'QUICKIE' COMMISSIONS GROWS IN HOUSE

Vinson Would Ban Giving Civilians High Rank.



Rep. Carl Vinson.

Washington, D. C., May 2 (AP).—Amid congressional cries to "democratize" the armed forces, Chairman Carl Vinson [D., Ga.] of the house naval committee advocated today that appointees to West Point and Annapolis be given nine months or a year's service in the ranks before beginning their academic work. He also indorsed a committee-approved amendement to the army pay bill by Rep. Charles I. Faddis [D., Pa.] prohibiting the granting of "quickie" commissions to unqualified civilians.

Vinson declared his proposal "would give the army and navy opportunity to determine the fitness of their officer-candidates and the aptitude of the appointees for life aboard ship or at a military post.

"And," he added, "it would give them an insight and understanding into the problems of the men in the ranks which would prove of immense value in their later posts of command."

Hits "Quickie" Method.

As to granting "quickie" commissions to persons without military training, he said:

"There's no reason in the world why the army or navy should take some person from civilian life and give him a commission just because he has some influence, and then, for instance, stick him down in the press section to write publicity releases.

"Even if they do need men for the work, let 'em come up the hard way and earn their rank and they'll be better qualified for the jobs by having had the training."

Rep. Faddis said his move to block distribution of commissions to men without military training would be taken to the last ditch to write it into law.

Revolt Is Brewing.

Lending support to his plan was a brewing, privately-expressed revolt among many members of congress against numerous requests from back home that they use their influence to obtain commissions for sons of influential constituents.

"We want a democratic army," Faddis asserted. "With men being drafted from all walks of life, you can't tell me they can't find already in the army men qualified to do the work for which these commissions are being issued.

"What do you think a fellow who has been drafted as a private thinks when he sees his neighbor, who has had no more experience and has no more ability, come around in an officer's uniform the next day?"

IRAQ AND IRAN GET LEND-LEASE HELP FROM U. S.

Washington, D. C., May 2 [Special].—Defense of Iran and Iraq was proclaimed as vital to the defense of the United States by President Roosevelt today in an executive order providing for the release of lend-lease aid to those countries.

The order was issued as Maj. Gen. Russell L. Maxwell, who has been in charge of supplies and planes for the royal air force, announced American troops are now stationed in the middle east.

In the case of Iran [Persia], all formalities for lend-lease aid have been completed, the White House announced. In the case of Iraq, the President has yet to receive routine assurances that the materiels received will not be permitted to leave that country or to fall into other hands.

Simultaneously the War Production board added Free France, Turkey, Iceland, and Czecho-Slovakia to the list of nations whose government purchases here are defined as defense orders.

Seek Classified Laborers for U. S. Jobs in Hawaii

The United States government is offering free trips to Hawaii and jobs to classified laborers who have a common school education or can speak and read English. Another requirement is that applicants must have worked for six months at jobs above the grade of common labor. The pay is 62 cents an hour for a 40 hour week with time and a half for overtime. Housing at Pearl Harbor is under government control and living costs are nominal. Married men cannot take their families.

SEEK APPLICANTS FOR STATE JOBS IN CIVIL SERVICES

27 Exams Called; Pay Scales Listed.

Illinois state civil service examinations now offer an exceptional opportunity, especially for wives and sweethearts of soldiers and sailors, Robert L. Hunter, president of the state civil service commission, said yesterday.

For a variety of "starting jobs" the commission has dropped its former requirement of one year's experience. This opens the door to many who previously could not have qualified, including new graduates of high schools and business colleges. The minimum age is 18 years.

Twenty-seven examinations are being called, including those for junior clerks, junior stenographers, junior typists, junior accounting clerks, and junior file clerks. Pay ranges from $100 to $125 a month in these, and up to $400 a month in specialized classifications.

Lists Used by United States.

A double chance is available to those who make good grades because Illinois is one of ten states whose civil service lists also are used by the federal government in its employment.

Hunter expressed concern lest the state government, particularly its institutions and health services, suffer from a shortage of personnel. The burden of state hospitals has increased since many men in the armed services have been sent back for treatment of mental ailments, he said.

Lieut. Col. Chester L. Fordney, in charge of recruiting for the marines in this area, issued a statement indicating sympathy for the state's plight.

Important Civilian Jobs.

"In total war the distinction between those serving our country in uniform and those serving in raiment of civil life is small indeed," he declared.

"Many in civilian life may find the answer by seeking and obtaining employment thru state and federal agencies dedicated to the task of using efficiently our man power and woman power.

"It is just as important that typewriters and other implements associated with peaceful pursuits be operated as it is that the instruments of warfare be manned."

Advertise Show

Led by a military band, detachments of the army, navy and marines held a gala demonstration in the downtown district yesterday in tribute to the Hollywood Victory caravan, which brings its army-navy relief show to the Chicago Stadium Wednesday night.

The caravan, now touring the nation in a series of one night stands with a new musical show, is composed of Hollywood celebrities and starlets who are donating their services. The proceeds of the tour will go to the Navy Relief society and the Army Emergency Relief, organizations which give financial assistance to the needy families of all service men.

Tickets for the show will remain on sale at all movie theaters until midnight tonight. Tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday they may be obtained at the Stadium boxoffice and the Stadium's downtown office at 65 West Madison street.

Prices are $1, $1.50, $2, $5, and $10, plus tax. Boxes are $250. The committee in charge expects all the 19,000 seats to be sold by Wednesday noon.

NAZI FUGITIVE FROM CANADA CAUGHT BY FBI

Bought Gun in Chicago on Travels to Texas.

San Antonio, Tex., May 2 (AP).—A young Nazi bomber pilot who roamed 3,000 miles over the United States following his escape from a Canadian concentration camp, was held here today by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Lieut. Hans Krug.

Apparently headed for Mexico, the 22 year old flyer, Lieut. Hans Peter Krug, was caught in a small hotel last night, thanks to the observant manager.

The FBI had furnished the manager with pictures and information regarding persons wanted. Krug registered Friday afternoon under the name of Jean Etti, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Spotted by Picture.

The manager, whose name was withheld, detected a similarity between the guest and the FBI pictures, and noted that he spoke with a German accent. Late that night he called the FBI. Two agents and two city detectives went to Krug's room. At first the German refused to unfasten the latch chain but finally admitted the officers.

The aviator, who was shot down by British anti-aircraft fire Aug. 28, 1940, and later transferred to a concentration camp at Bowmanville, Ont., escaped April 16.

His experience in the United States heightened his Nazi-induced belief that Americans are "gullible," M. W. Acers, special FBI agent, said the youth told him.

Stopped Eight Times.

Krug said he had been stopped about eight times for investigation, but that he always was released when he produced his forged papers, which described him as a carpenter who had worked on the fire ruined liner Lafayette, formerly the Normandie.

In his traveling bags the Nazi lieutenant carried tinned foods, chocolate bars, a homemade knife and a pistol agents said was bought in Chicago. Also found was a map which detailed his route — from Detroit, where he was assisted by a naturalized American now under arrest, to Chicago, New York, Harrisburg, Pa., Lousiville, Nashville, Texarkana, Dallas and Brownwood, Tex.

Tried to Hide Note.

While he was being questioned, Krug apparently slipped a note into his mouth. On the way to FBI headquarters, an agent caught Krug trying to kick the note under the car seat. Contents of the note were not disclosed.

Krug said that he and the three other crew members of his plane all were wounded, but not seriously, when shot down. Krug was shot thru the right hand, and a metal splinter struck him near the right eye.

Companion Captured.

Detroit, Mich., May 2 (AP).—John S. Bugas, agent in charge of the Federal Bureau of Investigation here, said today that Lieut. Hans Krug, Nazi flyer who was captured yesterday at San Antonio, Tex., escaped from a prison camp at Bowmanville, Ont., on April 16 with Erich Bohle, another German flyer. Bohle was recaptured at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

FBI agents said the flyer went to the home of Mrs. Marguerita Bertelmann, who communicated with Max Stephan, operator of a restaurant on Detroit's east side. Stephan, German native who is a naturalized American citizen, was quoted by FBI agents as saying he fed Krug, gave him money, took him on a round of beer gardens and finally, on Sunday, April 19, put him on a bus for Chicago. Stephan is held under $25,000 bond on charges of harboring an enemy alien.

United States Attorney John C. Lehr has recommended that Stephan be charged with treason for harboring Krug here. Mrs. Bertelmann, whose name Stephan said Krug obtained from presents she sent to the Canadian prison camp, is detained by United States immigration authorities.

WHEELER BLASTS BIDDLE'S GAG ON THURMAN ARNOLD

Charges Infringement of Free Speech.

Washington, D. C., May 2 (AP).—Attorney General Francis Biddle's refusal to permit Thurman Arnold, head of the justice department antitrust division, to testify before a house committee on a bill involving questions of alleged labor racketeering was characterized by Sen. Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] today as an infringement on free speech.

In scathing tones Wheeler told reporters that never in a long career as chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee and head of numerous special investigating committees had he encountered such an attitude on the part of a cabinet officer as Biddle had taken in the present case.

View Stifled, Says Wheeler.

"I don't believe that any cabinet officer ought to stifle the personal views of any of his men," Wheeler said. "I do not think that freedom of speech should be denied to a government employé any more than it should be denied to any one else."

Biddle's ruling was made known yesterday by Rep. Sam Hobbs [D., Ala.], chairman of a house judiciary subcommittee before which the bill is pending. Hobbs made public a letter from Biddle in which the attorney general said he would prefer not to have Arnold appear before the subcommittee because the bill involved controversial issues and was not a departmental measure.

The bill would outlaw interference with interstate commerce by threats of violence or coercion and admittedly is aimed, among other things, at the practice by unions in some cities of demanding that truckers hire union men to unload cargoes.

Testimony Called "Unfortunate."

In recent testimony before the committee on another bill to require federal registration of labor unions Arnold charged that organized labor was guilty in some instances of coercive and restrictive practices damaging to other elements of the national economy.

Biddle later called this testimony "unfortunate" and stressed that Arnold was voicing personal, not departmental, views.

Wheeler said he did not believe a cabinet officer should object to an assistant giving pertinent testimony on any matter before congress, even if the department he represented was not directly involved.

He said he looked upon Biddle's ruling as a part of what he described as a growing trend to circumscribe the right of free speech.

"There seems to be a tendency on the part of government officials at the present time to suppress newspapers and to smear individuals who have not agreed with them," he said. "That smacks of dictatorship and will react against the department of justice."

In Cleveland, O., where Arnold addressed the City club, he denied he had been muzzled. "I have never been muzzled by the department of justice," Arnold asserted during a question and answer period. "I have always been allowed to express myself freely on labor issues, and if you don't believe it you can read the records."

NAB 31 WORKMEN IN HANDBOOK ON FAR SOUTH SIDE

Steel workers with their lunch pails dropped in at 13543 Brandon avenue yesterday to place a bet on the Kentucky Derby. Sergt. Thomas Lyons and a squad from Police Commissioner Allman's office dropped in, too.

The police arrested 31 of the racing fans and took them to the Central station, miles away, along with John Holleran, accused as the bookie.

Police made other raids during the day on suspected racing handbooks at a newsstand at Madison and La Salle street, where they arrested Morris Schienberg, the newspaper boy; 214 North Clark, where they arrested Sam Miller; 29 East Roosevelt road, where they arrested Sam Maffria, and 186 North Clark street, where they arrested Abe Cohen and Joseph Mausby.

LOS ANGELES AIR DEFENSE SLOWED; EQUIPMENT LAGS

Police Deputy Considers Shelters Unneeded.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., May 2 [Special].—Lack of experience and equipment are handicapping Los Angeles in its preparation of air raid defenses. The federal government has promised allotments of equipment, but delivery has been slow.

There is only one designated air raid shelter in all Los Angeles, an underground structure on Riverside drive built by Boy Scouts and capable of accommodating approximately 50 persons. Arrows marked "air raid shelter" have been placed in this area pointing toward the dugout, which is regarded as providing protection from anything except a direct bomb hit.

Ross R. McDonald, deputy police chief in charge of police defenses, does not believe air raid shelters are necessary in a city with so many buildings of steel and concrete.

Night Raids Likely.

Altho basements and some floors of downtown buildings made of steel and concrete are properly regarded as safe shelters, one flaw in the plan to use them as such is that bombing is likely to occur at night, when people are at home in residential districts and in the suburbs.

Another flaw is that the plan has not been publicized adequately. A policeman on the street was asked where the nearest air raid shelter was, and he replied he never had heard of any.

Authorities have made no provision for public protection from gas attacks. There are no masks known to be here except those of city firemen. Police officials have said federal authorities report they have some masks, but do not divulge how many they have or where they are placed.

Lack of experience on the part of those in charge of defense preparations also is evident in blackout tests. Marked success has been achieved in throwing the city into total darkness during these tests, but traffic has been forced to an abrupt and complete halt.

Fire Watchers Lacking.

There also is a shortage of volunteer fire watchers. Thus far authorities have received 6,470 applications for jobs as fire watchers and have issued 4,310 identification cards to watchers. Police and firemen say, however, they need 50,000 watchers. Coöperation by schools is being sought to make up for this deficiency.

Experienced volunteers are needed for the bomb squad, but men with technical knowledge of explosives are scarce.

Organization of most other protective measures has proceeded smoothly. The city has been divided into 12 police divisions, which in turn have been split into 89 communities comprising 487 zones. Appointments as special air raid wardens have been given to 37,600 persons.

3,019 Air Raid Wardens.

Air warden posts have been established similar to precincts. There are 3,019 of them, and the number may be increased if experience shows a need for more. Each post has its own first aid station, and those in charge have been told where to send casualties. Wardens have spent 737,000 man hours familiarizing themselves with their duties, according to police.

There are 9,600 persons enrolled as civilian voluntary auxiliary police. These men have spent 203,178 man hours in training, 49,409 in actual field service, according to the commissioner's office.

Women volunteers are being organized as day watchers.

Navy Trains 250 Chicago Workers for Foreign Duty

Two hundred fifty skilled Chicago craftsmen, recruited for the navy's new construction battalion, began a brief training period at the Great Lakes Naval Training station yesterday before leaving for new bases outside the continental limits of the United States. More than 1,200 construction workers will be recruited in the 9th naval district within the next few weeks.

Prepare for next
C. P. A. EXAMINATION
. . . . NEW CLASS PLAN

Thoroughly tested over 7 years, this new plan embodies strikingly different and efficient methods. The quizzer method (so effective in preparation for the bar examinations), an optional laboratory period of 3 hours each Saturday afternoon for practice in answering problems under examination room conditions, an intensive review of accounting, continuous coaching by successful C. P. A.'s, thorough study of A. I. A. examination problems, and consultation at any time with an experienced C. P. A.—these are some of the facilities and services.

Evidence of our success in coaching for the examinations is seen in the fact that over 10% of the C. P. A.'s in the U. S. are LaSalle members. Furthermore, if you fail in passing the examination, we will continue coaching you without further cost until you do pass.

These loop evening classes begin the week of May 25 and continue for 25 weeks. Classes meet once a week—one on Tuesday, one on Thursday and one on Friday—at 6:30 P. M. The cost is moderate and convenient payment terms can be arranged.

PROTEST ARMY'S ACCENT ON YOUTH IN LEADERSHIP

Seasoned Officers Being Shelved, Says Journal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—Army morale has been seriously disturbed by the fact that the emphasis on younger officers is being carried too far and is costing the army the services of many valuable, experienced officers, the semiofficial Army and Navy Journal asserted today.

The journal cited the cases of three 60 year old officers who have been shelved recently. They are Maj. Gen. Joseph M. Cummins, Maj. Gen. Irving J. Phillipson, and Maj. Gen. Jay L. Benedict, respectively commanders of the 6th, 2d, and 9th corps areas until recently.

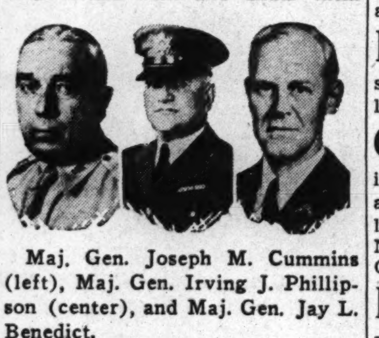
"Disturbing to army morale is the growing fear among experienced officers that the 'youth movement' is being carried to such an extreme that men of proven ability, no matter how vigorous physically and mentally, are being shelved," the service publication said.

Experience Is Essential.

"No one questions the necessity of military leaders being imbued with nerve, imagination, and dash, but training and experience are valuable ingredients and in today's vital war effort they are essential. Consequently it is disheartening to those having all these qualities, to be relegated to duty capable of being performed by men in civil life or by overage or retired officers."

Speaking of the three officers mentioned the Journal said that they are thoroly familiar with the military problems of the areas which they command and are seasoned soldiers.

"Officers and enlisted men who have served with and under them were expecting their assignment to command combat troops," the Journal continued. "Instead, Gen. Phillipson has been ordered to be executive director of the army emergency relief, a highly important, but not a military assignment; Gen. Cummins to command a quartermaster depot, which also is necessary, and Gen. Benedict to membership on a board in Washington."



Maj. Gen. Joseph M. Cummins (left), Maj. Gen. Irving J. Phillipson (center), and Maj. Gen. Jay L. Benedict.

Fellow Officers Puzzled.

"That these men will perform their new duties like the soldiers they are goes without saying, but their fellows are wondering why general officers with their experience and background are not kept in command posts of military responsibility and value to the country. Leaders like MacArthur, Wavell, and Rommel are the products of long experience and training. We should make the best use of men of these qualities."

Gen. Cummins, who was born in St. Louis, July 21, 1881, was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1903. He saw active service in the Philippines, on the Mexican border and in France. He is a graduate of the higher service schools and has commanded many army posts and held responsible war department posts.

Gen. Benedict was born at Hastings, Neb., April 14, 1882. He was graduated from West Point in 1904 and was superintendent of the academy from 1938 to 1940. He was a colonel of infantry during the World war.

Gen. Phillipson, who was born at Dowagiac, Mich., April 3, 1882, was a classmate of Gen. Benedict at West Point. He commanded a brigade of the 36th division in France and was awarded the croix de guerre for bravery. He also has held numerous high army posts.

YEAR 'ROUND USE OF HIGH SCHOOLS DEEMED CERTAIN

Chicago Board Ready for Order.

Board of education officials yesterday began preparing to carry out anticipated government orders to keep the high schools open this summer. No official request has been received, but the board is expecting a nation-wide extension of the school year, members said.

In preparation for such an order, three schools have gone on a 24 hour basis, according to Philip L. McNamee, assistant superintendent in charge of vocational training. The schools which have special wartime courses are the Chicago Vocational school, Tilden and Washburne Trades school.

The wartime commission of the United States Office of Education has urged that America's 25,467 high schools forego summer vacations and remain open all year around. The plan calls for the schools to render special community services as well as train students. Attendance at the summer sessions would not be compulsory.

This plan was greeted with enthusiasm in educational circles. Both Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent, and Kermit Eby, executive secretary of the Chicago Teachers' union indorsed it.

Dr. Johnson advocated the 12 month term as long ago as 1938. Anything less than a 12 month school is "wasteful," Eby asserted, and schools should remain open daily longer than the customary hours of 9 a. m. to 3 p. m.

JEWS TOLD U. S. ONLY LAND FREE OF PERSECUTION

Observe Centennial as Residents in City.

America is the only land that has never persecuted the Jews and they are "more at home spiritually" here than in any other country in the world. This was the theme of a speech made by Dr. Abraham A. Neuman, president of Dropsie College of Hebrew and Cognate Learning, last night at the opening of the centennial celebration of the Jews of Chicago. He addressed an audience of 1,000 in the Standard club.

Dr. Neuman, who is rabbi of the second oldest synagogue in the United States, Mikveh Israel of Philadelphia, said the present war was one of the Judeo-Christian concepts of living against a recrudescence of paganism. To win, he said, the latent powers of religion must be brought to full strength.

Prophets Studied by Pilgrims.

Discussing the influence of Jewish ideas on American history, Dr. Neuman said the prophets of the Old Testament were carefully read by the Pilgrims and that Hebrew was a required study at Harvard university until 1850.

The centennial is sponsored by the College of Jewish Studies. There will be a week of activities stressing the work and culture of the race in America.

History shows, it was disclosed at the meeting, that the first Jew to emigrate to Illinois was John Hayes, who was sheriff of St. Clair county. He arrived in 1793. The first Jew in Chicago was J. Gottlieb, a peddler, who arrived in 1838.

Four in 1841 Directory.

The Jewish community in the city was established by four men who were placed in the city directory of 1841—Benedict Shubart, Philip Newbergh, Isaac Ziegler, and Henry Horner. The community now numbers 300,000.

Among the guests at the celebration last night were Dr. Samuel M. Blumenfield, dean of the College of Jewish Studies and Dr. Leo J. Honor, executive director of the board of Jewish education. Sidney J. Jacobs presided. A guard led by Capt. Harry George Leon, Illinois commander of the Jewish War Veterans, presented the colors.

MOVE WEATHER BUREAU TO NEW BASE NEXT WEEK

The official weather forecasting station will be moved next week from the United States courthouse to Chicago airport, it was announced yesterday by Gordon E. Dunn, supervising forecaster. The first equipment will be transferred next Sunday night.

The new home will be the eighth since the great fire of 1871, when the station at 162 East Washington street was destroyed. The office in the courthouse was established in 1905. It will be continued for records and other services, notably telephone forecasts.

In the new station, official readings will be hotter in the summer and colder in the winter, according to A. G. Knarr, member of the forecaster's staff, because of the distance from Lake Michigan.

TORNADOES KILL 21 IN OKLAHOMA, KANSAS AREAS

Springfield, Ill., Sections Also Hit; 11 Hurt.

Pawhuska, Okla., May 2 (AP).—Savage spring tornadoes battered communities in many sections of northeast Oklahoma and eastern Kansas today, leaving 21 persons dead or missing, injuring scores of others and causing heavy property damage.

One twister swept a 12 square block area of the Lynn addition on the southeast edge of Pawhuska, leaving three known dead and from 50 to 75 injured. Killed were Tommy Dickinson, 14; Ray Waymago, 15, and Mrs. Charles Miller, 70.

Ten persons—nine of them Negroes—were killed and upwards of 40 injured by a tornado at Childsville.

Children Hurled in Creek.

Three children were missing and believed dead after a tornado cut a mile wide path across northern Tulsa county, mowing down rural homes and farm buildings.

Mrs. Othul Spence huddled in her four room home with her baby in her arms and her four other children gathered around her as the wind picked up the house, carried it 300 feet thru the air and dropped it into rain swollen Bird creek.

The baby, Othul Jr., and two of the other children, Lucille, 8, and Francile, 6, disappeared in the swirling current.

Saved by Boy Scout.

Mrs. Spence and two daughters, Noreta, 15, and Mary, 16, were rescued by Eugene Coleman, 14 year old Boy Scout, who took a raft into the stream.

"I held onto the baby as long as I could," Mrs. Spence sobbed as she was rushed to Turley for treatment of injuries.

Other Oklahoma dead: George Nichols, 58, farmer living north of Bartlesville; and Mrs. Anna Weese, 67, of Fisher.

Near Disaster Scene.

Pawhuska is abut 100 miles northwest of Pryor, eastern Oklahoma boom town where a tornado Monday caused 61 deaths and injuries to several hundred persons.

Tornadoes also struck at several other communities in the northeast section of the state. In the Dewey area north of Bartlesville at least 30 persons were injured.

11 Hurt Near Springfield.

Springfield, Ill., May 2 [Special].—At least 11 persons were injured, one of them probably fatally, and dozens of homes and farm buildings were demolished or damaged by a tornado which traveled in a semicircle thru Sangamon county between 7 and 7:30 p. m. tonight. Property damage was estimated in excess of $200,000.

The twister struck first at Franklin, about 35 miles southwest of here, then jumped 20 miles northeast to the village of Curran. Here it turned north and west to bypass Springfield by a few miles, striking Riddle Hill before it again headed northeast to the villages of Andrew and Elkhart, in Logan county.

5 Hurt in One Home.

Most of the injured were from Riddle Hill, 8 miles southwest of Springfield. James Dobson, a farmer whose house was blown down, was expected to die and his wife, Lena, was seriously injured. Less seriously hurt were his son, James Jr., a soldier home on furlough, and two girls from Springfield who were visiting him, Doris and Juanita Cortwright. All five were brought to St. John's hospital here.

Also treated at the hospital were five children of a family named MacDonald living on a farm near Riddle Hill. Two of the children, Jean and Joan, were kept at the hospital and the other three dismissed after first aid. John Burge, a farmer who was blown off the front porch of his home, was given treatment for a shoulder injury.

The Salem Methodist church, 75 year old structure near Riddle Hill, was blown down and a historic tree, reputed to have been split in a storm before the Civil war and to have been used by Gen. Grant as a seat while he wrote army orders, was uprooted.

8 Farms Damaged.

Eight farms near Elkhart were badly damaged by the tornado. A two story brick farmhouse belonging to Paul Miller was blown down and Miller and his wife were injured by falling bricks.

Heavy hail preceded the tornado in the Elkhart area, some of the hail stones being reported as large as hen's eggs. The road between Elkhart and Lincoln was declared unsafe for traffic due to fallen trees and flood waters resulting from the rain.

BEAUTIFUL GIRLS, DANCE BANDS TO AID IN BOND DRIVE

Open New Sales Booth in Loop Tomorrow.

An array of beautiful girls, dance bands, and entertainers from the fields of stage, screen, and radio tomorrow will start an intensified drive in Chicago to sell war savings bonds and stamps. The group's campaign will preced the opening of the official Minute Men drive, which begins May 11.

Headquarters for the group will be at "Treasury Corner," to be opened at 9 a. m. Monday at the southeast corner of State and Van Buren streets in the Sears, Roebuck & Co. store. Windows have been removed at the store corner to provide a setting for the stars and to provide easy access to bond and stamp booths.

Girls to Sell War Stamps.

Outstanding dance orchestras will appear frequently. Headliners are promised almost every day. In addition there will be special days sponsored by American Legion groups, service clubs, civic groups, and other associations.

War stamp girls will be plentiful in booths adjacent to the performers to sell war savings bonds and stamps.

Mrs. Hortense Odlum, honorary chairman of the "please take your change in stamps committee"; will be present at the ceremonies dedicating the corner. Others to attend will include Miss Dee Fischer, officially designated by the treasury department as the "I Sell War Stamps Girl"; Maj. Benjamin H. Namm, chairman of the national retailers advisory committee; G. Ray Schaeffer, chairman of the retail sales outlet committee for the Illinois war savings staff.

Canadians on Program.

Three Canadian members of the war savings staff of Canada are scheduled to be present. They include W. B. Tingle, vice president of the Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada; William Budden, secretary of the Canadian war savings committee, and J. Booths, an executive of a large Canadian merchandising company.

Later Monday more than 1,000 Chicago retailers will meet at the Hotel Sherman to outline plans to help boost the bond and stamp campaign.

Investment Firms to Aid.

Meantime about 200 Chicago investment houses are completing plans to help the United States treasury sell an unlimited amount of 2½ per cent bonds, maturing in about 20 or 25 years, to individual investors, insurance companies, labor unions, and other organizations.

A treasury department Minute Men flag was presented yesterday to 350 city office employés of the Inland Steel company for 100 per cent participation in a pay roll deduction plan for the purchase of war savings bonds.

A group of Illinois central brotherhood and union officials will leave Chicago tonight on a week's tour of the railroad to arouse interest in the sale of war bonds and stamps. It will visit Memphis, New Orleans, and other cities and towns on the system.

REMOVE BODIES FROM DEBRIS OF AIR LINER CRASH

CAB Orders Inquiry Into Cause of 17 Deaths.

Salt Lake City, Utah, May 2 [Special].—The bodies of 17 persons killed when a United Air Lines Mainliner plowed into Ensign peak while circling for a landing in a wind and sleet storm, shortly after midnight, were brought down the mountain in army trucks today as the Civil Aeronautics board began an inquiry into the cause of the crash.

Scars on the rocky slope indicated that the plane struck on the edge of a shallow gully near the summit of the ridge, approximately 4½ miles from the airport. Wreckage was scattered over a wide area.

Visibility at the time of the crash was good in spite of the rain and sleet, airport officials said. The clouds were high and the wing lights of the plane were visible as it circled above the city.

At a loss to account for the accident, United Air Lines officials said the last passenger fatality was on Dec. 4, 1940, and that since then the line has flown more than 400 million revenue passenger miles without accident, winning the 1941 safety award for major air lines.

Pilot a Line Veteran.

The pilot, Capt. Donn W. Brown of San Francisco, had flown 650,000 miles since joining United in 1933. For seven years he flew between Chicago and New York and between Chicago and Cheyenne, Wyo.

The co-pilot was Harold Miner, 36 years old, who went to work for the line as a mechanic in 1929.

Neva Cantwell, 24, of Burlingame, Cal., stewardess of the plane, joined the airline staff last October after taking nurses' training at St. Luke's hospital in Denver.

Two of the passengers were sales executives for the Sperry Gyroscope company of Brooklyn. They were M. Lynn Patterson of Bogota, N. J., general sales manager, and Fred B. Vose of Freeport N. Y., aeronautical sales manager. Vose was a bombsight expect who had made several trips to England during the war.

Naval Officers Are Victims.

Two others victims, Comm. John G. Burrow and Lieut. Claire Tucker, both of the navy, were returning to Washington after inspecting a possible site for a cadet training station at Reno, Nev.

Others killed were: Pvt. Marvin Shapiro, 432 Oakdale avenue, Chicago; Lieut. Herman J. Frankenburg, United States army, Wichita, Kan.; Julius Kershisnik, Seattle, Wash.; Mrs. J. A. Lloyd, Burlingame, Cal.; J. A. Lloyd Jr., Mrs. Lloyd's infant son; C. R. Drenk, Fruitvale, Cal.; Armond D. Herb, research assistant in electrical work at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston; Pvt. Robert P. Barrett, en route to St. Louis to be married; Mrs. J. Palermo, Cleveland, O., and C. M. Cole, San Francisco, Cal.

SOLDIER ON FURLOUGH.

Pvt. Marvin Shapiro, 24 years old, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Shapiro, 432 Oakdale avenue. His father is owner of the Morris Fisheries company, Inc., at 725 Fulton street, where young Shapiro worked before his induction into the army eight months ago.

His mother, Mrs. Sadie Shapiro, said her son had a three day furlough, and she made three telephone calls to airline officials in California on Friday in an effort to reserve him a seat on the plane so he could spend the maximum time at home. Pvt. Shapiro was a graduate of St. John's Military academy.

The festival has been trimmed to fit the war, so the floral parade will not be held this year. For visitors who wish to tour the fruit belt on Blossom Sunday, however, motor routes have been logged thru the most scenic country and southwestern Michigan is expecting thousands of visitors.

The blossom queen will be selected Tuesday night and crowned Wednesday.

On the following night the queen will crown the blossom princess, 5 year old Anne Blakeslee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Blakeslee of Benton Harbor.

Wind Whips Plasterer's Scaffold; 1 Killed, 1 Hurt

Logansport, Ind., May 2 [Special].—Charles L. Cotner, 46 years old, a plasterer, was killed today and Forrest Thatcher, 48, was hurt seriously when a gust of wind caught a scaffold, causing it to break and plunge the men 15 feet to the second floor of a building being remodeled. Cotner died a few hours later of a skull fracture. Thatcher is expected to recover.

WE'RE GOING BACK TO BATAAN!

RUSSIA IN THE PEACE.

We assume a victory and a peace dictated by the victors over Hitler's Germany, Mussolini's Italy, and the Son of Heaven. It will require some doing, but we could not comprehend that there should be a failure. As Americans we believe in the inevitable success of what we think is innately and indisputably the right side. We do not believe that systematized evil can perfect its title to the control over men.

As a morale builder the American idea is much better for the final results than the barking speeches in the Berlin Sportspalast, or noisy imperialism shouted from the balcony of the Palazzo Venezia, or worship of the consciously ungodlike Son in Tokio.

So we know that ultimately, whatever the travail along the road, we shall come to the time and place where representatives of many nations will sit down to determine the shape and substance of the world, possibly at several places and several tables. They will gather to plot the immediate future of this globe, with the peoples possibly thinking that therein lies the immutable determination of future human action and the final stamping out of national gangsterism. With these extreme ideas it would be useless to deal now. They may be only recurrences of speculative hope.

After the other war four men sat down to make peace and two made it. In the end Orlando of Italy and Mr. Wilson of the United States were left in the cloakroom with their hats, Orlando because he was too persistently realistic in demanding the goods in the invoice and Mr. Wilson because he was too persistently not realistic in his views of what the others intended to get or of what the United States ought to have. There would have been no Japanese stepping stones across the Pacific if Mr. Wilson had taken the German islands or if, wanting them, the other conferees would have given them to him. Half of this present war started when the wily Japanese held the British to their bargain on these spoils.

At the peace table at Versailles China was a nation of coolies which had furnished the labor battalions, and Japan, which had not furnished so much as that, had the eyes of a spoiler on its Asiatic companion in arms. Japan proposed a peace which would have taken as much from this companion in arms as the British and the French proposed to take from Germany. The China of 1918 has disappeared. In its place is a nation which is in its fifth year of fighting its mighty military neighbor. In the peace negotiations—granted the victory which we confidently assume—the Chinese will be dealing man to man with the others in the dictation of the peace. That much we know or can believe without exaggeration of the probabilities.

A more perplexing question concerns the European scene. What sort of Russia will sit at the conference? Will it be the old Communist totalitarian régime, which, despoiled by Germany in the other war and restored by the peace, undertook to spread revolution all over Europe, or will it be a Russia modified by the terrific sacrifices all its people have made in their struggle against Germany?

Russia had communism imposed upon it by a minority party. Even among the revolutionaries, the Lenin group was the smallest. The Communist party has been a closed corporation, seldom numbering four millions of all the land. Lenin could seize power because of his strategical position in the heart of the Petrograd industrial region. He could liquidate the larger Social-Democratic party because its strength was in the agricultural regions which for years afterward stubbornly, tragically, and hopelessly resisted the destruction of private property.

Force relentlessly applied prevailed and Russians of 30 or even 35 years have never been aware of any kind of government other than that derived from the will of men in the Kremlin. There already have been some changes. They were on their way before the outbreak of the war. There has been a change in the theory of profit. Some of the rewards offered in a free society are available in a modified form and with the change there has been a return to class distinctions expressed in varying standards of living.

The war with Germany is on a scale which involves nearly all the Russian people. They are making untold sacrifices for their country and must continue to do so. They may suffer more reverses. More of their land may be ravished. Their future is still in doubt. They have been thru trial by fire and steel and we can only speculate as to what effect it may have had upon them. Will these people, if they win, be content to continue under the dictatorship which has ruled them?

It may be overoptimistic to regard it as probable, but is there not a chance that men and women who have fought so hard would have a changed view of their rights in the land they protected? There may be economic features of their society in which they believe. They may believe that the state socialism in which the communistic ideology has been restricted works to their satisfaction. But may it not be true as to the people, distinguished from their government, that they will feel that they have earned the rights of freer men and women?

Revolutions, more often than not, are deflected from the lines of their initial movement. The American revolution was the only one which exceeded the hopes of some of its leaders and the expectation of some of its founders. The man who was declared free jumped more fences than some of his leaders thought he would or even thought it desirable that he should, and that progress has been steady.

Such is not the history of revolutions in general. Cromwell's reverted to the monarchy. The French revolution ended in the empire, and the Russian revolution may take a turn toward a freer society. All these floods which overrun a country leave some silt which is valuable, but their excesses tend to diminish, their frenzies subside, and there is a reversion to a more temperate and more tolerable society. It may be so with the Russians. If so there will be a better peace in Europe.

BATTLE OF THE RAILS.

Joseph B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, says that the nation's railroads, already under a severe strain, must anticipate a progressively diminishing amount of assistance from automobiles and trucks. Because of the tire shortage and the curtailment of motor vehicle production the railroads will be compelled to shoulder an increasing share of the burden.

Mr. Eastman suggests that curtailment of traffic and a more efficient use of existing equipment may help to meet the problem, but that it cannot be dealt with effectively without the addition of a large amount of new equipment. Authorization to build the necessary cars and locomotives is up to the War Production board, and Mr. Eastman was not hopeful that the board would relax its priorities regulations sufficiently to permit substantial relief.

If a transportation shortage is impending the WPB will have to bear a large measure of the responsibility. The WPB seems to have inherited its transportation policy from its predecessor, the Office of Production Management. Last summer the OPM estimated that it would be necessary to add 370,000 freight cars if peak requirements in the fall of this year were to be met. At the same time the OPM failed to provide materials for a car building program on anything like this scale, with the result that in the period from May to September of 1941 only half of the cars scheduled for construction were delivered to the railroads.

Under the 1942 railroad equipment plan, announced Jan. 2 by the former Supply Priorities and Allocation board, materials were pledged for construction of 36,000 freight cars in February, March, and April and for continuing work on 248 steam, 58 electric, and 620 Diesel locomotives. Material assigned to freight car construction for January was adequate for an additional 9,000 cars, so that total authorizations for the first four months were sufficient for 45,000 cars.

Only 27,263 new cars, however, were delivered during the first three months. The program for new equipment, planned on an insufficiently large scale in the first place, lagged further because of the shortage of materials. On April 8 the WPB announced that, instead of expanding car building to catch up, materials were to be allocated during the remainder of 1942 for only 18,000 freight cars in addition to the 45,000 already authorized. For the last eight months of the year this would be at the rate of only 2,250 a month—less than the rate at which necessary retirements of old freight cars have been occurring.

Mr. Eastman on April 9 criticized the WPB program as falling "far short" of what he considered necessary. The WPB has authorized the construction of 63,000 new cars during the year, while the roads themselves had placed their minimum requirements at 31,500 cars in excess of that figure. The WPB's tight fisted policy is risking the effectiveness of the war transportation program and that is a poor gamble. The railroads may squeeze by, and the board may save some hundreds of thousands of tons of steel shapes and plates, steel castings, and forgings, but it would seem advisable to adopt a more lenient attitude on priorities and play safe.

THE COUNCIL NEGLECTS ITS DUTY.

The city council is under a statutory duty to redistrict the wards of the city every 10 years, drawing new boundary lines to include approximately the same population within each ward. The council did this in 1921, when the number of wards was increased from 35 to 50, and complied with the law again by the passage of a redistricting ordinance in July, 1931.

It should have redistricted the city again last year, as soon as the data of the 1940 census became available. It neglected this duty. It is still neglecting it.

The result is that the people in 26 of the city's 50 wards are now partially disfranchised, to a greater or lesser degree, by the failure to give them the representation to which their number entitles them. The disparity between ward populations, while not so glaring as that in Illinois senatorial and congressional districts, is startling enough.

The 1940 census showed 92,123 people in the 5th ward. This is more than three times the population of the 1st ward, but the two wards have equal representation in the council. The 7th ward had a 1940 population of 89,372 and the 2d had 87,530, while the census listed only 48,351 residents in the 23d ward, 48,602 in the 22d, and 49,018 in the 25th. The population under a fair redistricting would be a little less than 68,000 in each ward.

Redistricting is always an unpleasant task for politicians. It disrupts the political patronage system, giving the ward heelers new bosses and the bosses new heelers. It jeopardizes election chances, depriving aldermen of blocks of votes on which they can rely and forcing them to make their appeal for votes to new and possibly indifferent groups. It may even deprive some of them of their seats. An honest redistricting would result in the transfer of one or more west side seats to new wards on the north or south sides.

The longer this painful task is postponed the greater become the dislocations that result, and thus the greater becomes the disinclination to do the job. The legislature, itself a product of decades of refusal to reapportion, was aware of all this. In the redistricting statute that it passed for Chicago it provided a remedy.

If the council does not pass a redistricting ordinance by December of the year following a federal census, any 10 aldermen may draw up their own plan and file it as a petition with the city clerk. It then goes to the voters for approval at the next general election.

Such action became possible when the council failed to pass a redistricting ordinance by last December. It is curious that the aldermen from the more populous wards of the city, those that are being cheated by the failure of the council to act, have not taken advantage of the opportunity given them in the law.

THAT REPUBLICAN RESOLUTION

The article which follows is reprinted from the Wheeling Intelligencer of Wheeling, W. Va.

The best that can be said for the resolution adopted by the Republican national committee at Chicago is that it was a political mistake. It can contribute nothing to the war effort, so is meaningless from the standpoint of public welfare. But it does imply a confession of past error and an acceptance of New Deal foreign policy and hence is a display of lamentable party weakness.

The resolution calls for relentless prosecution of the war, takes a stand against any peace save peace with victory, and makes this declaration of postwar policy:

> We realize that after this war the responsibility of the nation will not be circumscribed within the territorial limits of the United States; that our nation has an obligation to assist in the bringing about of understandings, comity, and coöperation among the nations of the world in order that our own liberty may be preserved and that the blighting and destructive processes of war may not again be forced upon us and upon the free and peace-loving peoples of the earth.

It would be interesting to know how the authors of this declaration expect to convince any sane person to vote for a Republican congressional or senatorial candidate instead of a New Dealer because of it. For that matter, why was any statement at all deemed necessary? Who the devil isn't for vigorous and relentless prosecution of the war? On the theory that "methinks the lady doth too much protest her innocence," isn't the average voter apt to conclude now that there is some legitimate grounds for doubt of Republican support of the war, some justification for suspicion that the party leans toward appeasement? Our point is that this phase of the declaration raises a question where no question existed, and will have an exactly opposite effect from that intended. We don't believe a real doubt existed anywhere of the loyalty of the Republican party in this war. No such doubt could have existed. It was one of those things properly taken for granted. Now, the Republican national committee itself implants the doubt by defending the party against a charge that hadn't been made.

With respect to the foreign policy declaration, several observations seem pertinent. The language itself is harmless enough, tho for our part we think it is wholly unrealistic to talk now about postwar coöperation when we don't know how the war will end and have no idea what sort of a world we will be asked to coöperate in.

Here again, however, is that implied confession of past error. There is the inescapable inference that the Republican party has failed in the past to support a proper policy of international coöperation and will mend its ways. That, we submit, is not in accordance with the record. It all depends upon what you consider proper international coöperation. We deny that the Republican party has been remiss in this respect. The national committee's resolution strongly implies that it has been.

But there is more to it than this. The implications are broader and inescapable. Reporters and news commentators with virtual unanimity have described this resolution as abandonment of the "isolationist" policy of the Republican party. Wendell Willkie, the Republican Presidential candidate in 1940, has been particularly vehement and jubilant and vocal in describing adoption of the resolution as just that. And Mr. Willkie's backers on the national committee have hailed it as a victory for Mr. Willkie.

Again that tacit admission of pursuit of a policy which never was Republican doctrine. But this time it is coupled with implied acceptance of a policy which is precisely that of the party we hope to unseat.

The Republican party is not and never has been "isolationist." We know of no official party declaration that can be interpreted as a determination to build a figurative Chinese wall about this country and let the rest of the world go hang. We know of no prominent figure in the Republican party who has advocated such a course. The Republican party always has stood for and always has promoted coöperation among nations and friendly intercourse, commercial and otherwise, between this and all other countries. But the Republican party has been "nationalist" rather than "internationalist." It has felt that the first duty of an American government is to the American people. It has not felt that this country is called upon to solve the problems of the world at large; to assume the financial burdens of other peoples; to sacrifice material interests of the American people for the benefit of other peoples; to make the quarrels of our friends our quarrels; to rush to the aid of one nation or one group of nations in difficulties with another nation or group of nations.

Mr. Roosevelt and those who belong to his international school of thought have pursued a diametrically opposed policy. To them, the United States is only a cog in the world machine, and useful only as it can contribute to the smooth functioning of the international mechanism. To them the national welfare of the United States must always yield to the international need—as they see that need. Mr. Willkie, as is well known, is an ardent disciple of this school of international thought. There is no particle of difference between his and Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policy. And it is pretty hard to escape the conclusion that Mr. Willkie's thinking dominated the deliberations of the Republican national committee at Chicago. At least the affair is being so advertised and will be so accepted by the rank and file of American voters.

The differences in foreign policy above outlined have marked, up until now, the difference between the Republican and the New Deal parties in the field of international relations. If the Chicago resolution means that the Republican party is to embrace the New Deal's foreign policy, then much of the reason for existence of the Republican party has disappeared.

Reluctantly we are forced to the conclusion that the Chicago meeting has lessened immeasurably the prospect of a substantial Republican gain in this year's congressional elections.

Editorial of the Day

THE ART OF WAR.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

In Philadelphia there is now an exhibition called "The Art of War." It is a display by a collector of books and manuscripts from 1400 to the present day. It shows the development of warfare from the invention of gunpowder down to war in the air.

Up to the time gunpowder was used the armies of Alexander the Great or of Julius Caesar would still have been formidable. But cannon and the musket made the shield, the sword, and the javelin of no value. The knight in armor, swinging his battle ax, was at once made obsolete. Gunpowder made a greater revolution in warfare than the airplane has made; indeed, the airplane is simply another and a more terrific weapon for the discharge of bullets and of bombs. And by gunpowder, of course, we mean all the modern high explosives which have followed in its train.

This second World war so far has shown that control of the air is vital to success on either land or sea. That is why we are turning our vast industrial plants to the production of airplanes so that within a reasonably short time we shall be able to darken the skies with our aerial navies. It is certain that when peace comes and another exhibition of "The Art of War" is given, it will be so vastly different from that now in Philadelphia, the two will hardly be recognizable as the same thing.

GARDENING FOR HEALTH.

ALTHO the home garden is not as yet a necessity from the point of view of national food needs, it may even now play a vital rôle in nutrition.

In these hectic days and the more strenuous ones to come we will be obliged to do everything possible to enhance the well-being of the family. As we know, edibles are essential and those from bottles or cans, altho valuable, are rarely as appetizing as when gathered from one's own back yard.

Despite higher wages, thousands of families may encounter difficulty in making both ends meet. A bit of ground with reasonable care can be made to yield from one-fourth to one-half of the total vegetable requirements of an average family.

There is the further advantage that the labor involved will be health building. In addition, the youngsters will learn much about nature and the things that grow. There is something about grubbing in the earth, tending diminutive crops which will preserve the suppleness of muscles, strengthen the back, and bring color to the cheeks. Office workers particularly need to get closer to the soil and many a housewife will find in this form of activity not only recreation, but a royal road to the preservation of her sylphlike figure. An opportunity to potter around in a cabbage patch will save our oldsters many an hour of boredom.

If for no other reason, we can advocate the home garden as an important source of vitamins. With a little attention to selection, enough can be raised to fully maintain the A and C requirements.

The people of the British Isles have rallied valiantly to the cry for increased production. More than 6 million additional acres are now under cultivation, of which a goodly fraction will produce potatoes. To a considerable extent, home makers and children have made this possible.

Quite apart from the utility of the venture is the fun of the thing. We will all be doing something—helping out economically—and enhancing the general morale and the physique. Even in summertime we get out of doors sporadically. We try to compensate for our daily shortcomings by strenuous activity over the weekend. Much to be preferred are daily exposures to sunlight and fresh air which will mean much for millions of Americans.

Some of us can remember the visit to grandmother out on the farm. Her garden lacked nothing. As youngsters we were particularly intrigued with anise, caraway, coriander, and thyme. What she raised kept the table supplied with green things all summer long with plenty left over for canning.

But the job, if tackled, must be garnished with sustained interest. Once well started few will give up the task. An hour a day, preferably in the early morning will do the trick, altho a modest session of toil before twilight will insure just enough fatigue to vanquish insomnia.

Those who do not choose to raise vegetables can cultivate flowers, but the two may be combined with added enjoyment.

INFLAMED KNEECAP.

Mrs. L. writes: For several months my right knee has been painful and swollen. I cannot get down to scrub the floors. What is the cause?

REPLY.

Housemaid's knee—tangible proof that your home is spic and span. The bursa [protecting sac] has become irritated and enlarged. Heat and rest will permit the inflammation to subside.

UNBALANCED THYROID.

G. H. writes: Is an overactive thyroid gland and a toxic goiter the same?

REPLY.

In general, yes. Up to a certain point the output of the gland is essential to normal existence. In excess of that level the secretion becomes poisonous.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE PRESS.

New York, April 27.—Much is being written nowadays about the foreign language press and the position it occupies in our political and social scheme. There is no doubt that the foreign language press still acts as a most important liaison between the government and our institutions and those residents, both citizens and aliens, who do not speak English well or at all. That press and the foreign language programs over the radio are the only means possessed by much of the foreign born element in our country to keep them in touch with what is transpiring in this country and the world at large.

I do not believe that any one wants to prevent these good foreign born people from being deprived of news and information merely because this country is at war. But we do want to prevent the use of the foreign language press by persons or interests who are hostile to the United States.

To that end, I believe that the foreign language press and radio should be regulated and among the means that ought to be considered for that regulation are:

1. All writers and editors on the staff should be citizens of undoubted loyalty to the United States.

2. No initials or pseudonyms should be signed to articles excepting when the real names of the writers are registered with the newspaper and available to governmental authorities.

3. Such newspapers or radio stations shall be absolutely owned by American citizens, who shall be the real principals in each case.

4. The editors shall file with the director of censorship a translation of each article written in a foreign language unless the newspaper shall be a large daily and shall have on its staff a person who is an authorized agent of the United States government who shall censor all articles in accordance with regulations issued by the director of censorship.

Under such conditions there is no doubt that the interests of the government and the public would be safeguarded in time of war and in time of peace.

CARS SKIP PASSENGERS.

Chicago, April 27.—I am a defense worker. Last Saturday at 2:25 a. m. I was a passenger on a west bound 47th street car approaching Halsted street. As I neared the intersection of Halsted street, I saw a south bound Halsted street car just going across 47th street. The car on which I was a passenger was clearly in sight. The Halsted street car went south without stopping to take passengers [about five] who were to transfer.

After a 15 minute wait, another south bound Halsted street car, run No. 645, driven by an elderly man, the car which I boarded, also passed up another 47th street car which was also approaching Halsted street.

Is this the service which the traction company refers to in its claim for the advance in fare to 8 cents? M. McD.

A MODEST REBUKE.

Searcy, Ark., April 25.—In an editorial published in THE TRIBUNE yesterday you state that the individual teacher should be held responsible for the success or failure of his or her pupils. I want to take issue with you on the statement. Most generalizations made without a careful analysis of a situation are false, and it follows that newspapers are wrong most of the time.

At one time I taught in the Chicago schools. One reason I resigned from my position was that I could not conscientiously teach and put clerking and police duty ahead of instruction. For this the school board, supervisors, and to a lesser extent the parents, were responsible. That such was the case is indicated by the fact that I have taught successfully elsewhere before and since that time, and have received wide recognition for my contributions to educational effort. Furthermore my statements will be corroborated by any honest teacher in any public school system of the larger cities.

In the past many a youngster has become a better citizen, husband, and father by studying Latin and geometry than pupils today are by studying sociology and family relations. That difference is not the result of any special virtue inherent in academic subjects, but simply that in the past teachers were allowed to teach and pupils were expected to learn. The virtues of persistence and thoroness so learned were applied to practical situations. To take one example: One of the most successful apple growers in Oregon was a retired teacher of Greek. Maybe learning skills are not transferred from one subject to another, but the habits of application and responsibility are.

The Tribune staff knows nothing whatever about education, and betrays this fact every time it puts down an opinion about teaching. CYRIL E. ABBOTT.

A FAMILY OF DOVES.

Chicago, April 27.—In reply to Francis Burron's statement that mourning doves are a rarity within 20 miles of Chicago. The plaintive notes of these birds can be heard almost any time of the day in Edgebrook. Occasionally we see them around the house. Their description checks perfectly with the Audubon book.

At present a bird belonging to the dove family has babies in last year's nest in one of our trees. It is small, grayish, with a long pointed tail.

MRS. STUART BOHRER.

HOME USE OF FATS.

Chicago, April 25.—I'm a housewife, with a family of four, and my husband earns a little better than average salary. Economy in running my kitchen has, thru the years, become second nature to me. Saving and using grease has long been a habit of mine. And I'm not alone in this. Most of the "discoveries" of the so-called economists have long been common practice among the depression ridden mothers of this and most other communities.

Fat is a very essential part of good meat and we must pay the same price for it as for the lean part. Lamb, mutton, and beef fat are splendid for frying, imparting a better taste than the usual cooking fats. Bacon and all pork fats are good in making pies, and I've even used them for certain kinds of cake, notably ginger bread and many kinds of cookies. One just uses less salt in the case of bacon fat.

We must pay from 50 to 60 cents a pound for bacon, and not under 25 to 30 cents for other meats. Sometimes more. Where is the economy in selling that fat—good food, mind you—for 4 or 5 cents a pound, with all the handling it entails? I don't know whether it's becoming rancid makes any difference in the making of glycerin or not, but I can't see how it would help any. Every one handles his drippings differently, and there's the delay in taking it to the collection point, and the delay in collecting it from the collector.

I think, that, if every one would use every bit of grease that comes into the home, even to chilling the soup and skimming it, it would release more grease for war purposes than any amount of collecting of grease can. D. C. W.

DOGS IN THE PARK.

Chicago, April 29.—Now that the summer season is about here and the people will make extensive use of the public parks, the rules concerning dogs in them should be strictly enforced. Where dogs are not allowed they should be kept out. Where they are only allowed led on a short leash that rule should be enforced. The extensive freedom of dogs in our parks will make them more or less unfit for the people. Let's keep the parks clean and for the use of the people only.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 9, part 2.

1. Christ's age at the time of his crucifixion on Calvary was how many years? 24 29 33 38
2. The "Land of the Midnight Sun" would be which of these? Norway Madagascar Afghanistan Borneo
3. The "Little Brown Jug" is a trophy awarded in which of these sports? Track Basketball Tennis Football
4. Which of these words is inappropriate in this general classification? Hereford Berkshire Poland china Duroc
5. Which of the following Biblical wives does Hannah's marital situation most nearly duplicate? Ruth Rachel Zipporah Bath-Sheba
6. There are two variables involved in this problem today, so think carefully before you make your choices. The number of miles of telephone wire in use in the various countries below is based on both their size as well as their degree of modern industrial advancement or standard of living. You are entitled to one point for each correct matching of these countries with their telephone mileage.

[b] Switzerland	[w] 1,630 miles
[c] United States	[x] 2,000 miles
[d] Germany	[y] 18,045 miles
[e] China	[z] 95,150 miles

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

ESTATE SETTLEMENT.

Chicago, April 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father died nine years ago. He had a house. After a year we hired a lawyer. The flat was vacant and [1] the lawyer said he was a trustee to some folks and he would let them have the flat.

They lived there five years but [2] we never received any money from him.

3. Two years ago the board of education bought the property. They tore the house down and still there is no settlement. We called the lawyer so many times and he keeps saying he will take care of it and that is the end of it. There are eight children and we are all of age.

4. Kindly tell me how we could make the lawyer settle it up. W. I.

1. It is not clear whether you mean a conservator. The lawyer might have been a trustee of certain assets but not a trustee of persons.

2. Have you talked with him and, if so, what answer does he make?

3. Did you sign the papers?

4. We cannot advise to advantage without having the facts more clearly. If you do not trust your present lawyer one course would be to have a personal interview with another lawyer.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ABSENCE OF WILL.

Chicago, April 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If a will was reported lost and administration papers were filed in city hall stating one heir, and then a will was found perhaps stating other heirs [2] would it also have to be recorded and all participants notified?

3. If not how would one start to investigate? M. A.

1. You do not make clear whether there is an attempt to probate the lost will or the estate is being treated as intestate.

2. If the estate has been started as intestate and a will is subsequently found, then presumably the will should be proved.

3. We cannot advise to advantage without having the facts on which your questions arise. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ADMINISTRATION FEES.

Chicago, April 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What is the public administration fee?

2. Is there a fee connected with Probate court? Case is in the hands of public administrator and [3] will it be necessary for me to engage a lawyer?

X. L.

1. The present administration act does not name a specific percentage.

2. Yes, in the sense that the administrator is allowed a reasonable fee depending on the size of the estate and the extent and quality of his services.

3. Depends on whether he has showed you his final account and on whether you are satisfied with it.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CO-SIGNATURE ON LOAN.

Chicago, April 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—About four years ago I was forced to pay a bill of $77 which I co-signed for a friend of mine. I tried to collect but could not. Now this man got a good job with a good pay but still refuses to pay at least one dollar a week. I don't know where he works but I could find out thru his friends if I could collect. Is there any way I could collect my money without paying some kind of agency to collect it for me. Y. R.

We see no way to force matters without some expense. The ordinary course is to place such a claim in the hands of an attorney for collection.

CHICAGO'S QUOTA OF 3,000 UNITS NEARLY USED UP

Construction Group Urges Prompt Action.

BY AL CHASE.

[Real Estate Editor.]

With Chicago's quota of 3,000 homes for war workers for the six months ending Sept. 1 already exhausted [except in the lowest cost brackets] this city will face a serious housing situation in the near future unless the War Production board takes prompt steps to permit more home building. This assertion was made yesterday by Joseph E. Merrion, slated as new president of the Metropolitan Chicago Home Builders' association. He heads the only ticket in the field for reëlection of that group of residential builders.

Merrion declared that Chicago home builders are anxious to do all they can to meet the growing demand for war workers' homes but warned that quotas of residences entitled to priorities in critical materials must at once be enlarged by WPB or home building will be blocked and the present house shortage accentuated.

Ask Federal Coöperation.

"All that the building industry asks is the coöperation of the various governmental agencies that function in the housing field" Merrion said. "Quotas for new homes must be ample to meet both the actual need and to prevent a future bottleneck.

"The Chicago quota of homes to which priorities in critical materials will be granted by WPA provides for only 3,000 new units during the six months from March 1 to Sept. 1 [Gael Sullivan, Illinois director of Federal Housing administration, recently said that Chicago will need 30,000 new homes during the next 18 months to care for workers in 150,000 new jobs in the metropolitan area]. Designed solely for war workers, half of them must be sold and half rented.

"Of the 1,500 to be sold, 750 must sell for not more than $6,000 and this entire quota already has been allotted to builders. The remaining 750 must sell for not more than $4,800. Any other new homes needed in Chicago during the remainder of this six months period will have to be built for $4,800 or less—a difficult thing to do because of cost factors peculiar to this community.

Saving Is Doubtful.

"It's rather doubtful if there's any saving of critical war materials in the cheaper houses, as each unit requires a heating plant, plumbing, and wiring.

"The other 1,500 of the 3,000 allotted to Chicago are for renting; with 750 to rent at $50 per month and 750 at $40. Here, too, the quota for all but the smaller units already has been exhausted.

"It's evident from the many independent surveys made here in the last few months that unless these quotas are extended, Chicago war workers will be faced with a serious housing situation in the future."

Merrion observed that thousands of war workers are coming into Chicago from other urban centers and from rural areas, and additional thousands of government employés are coming here as a result of moving federal bureaus from Washington to Chicago. But only 3,000 homes can be built prior to Sept. 1 according to the recent WPB ruling.

Officers Nominated.

In addition to Merrion slated for the presidency of MCHBA, to succeed George F. Nixon, the following were nominated: John R. Lewis, vice president; Thomas Buckley, vice president; Fred J. Walsh, treasurer; Owen McCabe, secretary. Directors named were: Martin Braun, Charles E. Joern, Irvin Blietz, John Lindop, and George Nixon.

"These officers unanimously have pledged to the government, on behalf of the association, their fullest effort and coöperation in meeting the war housing need and hope for similar coöperation from the governmental housing agencies" Merrion said.

Greatest Moving Day May Turn Out to Be Ordinary Scramble

Chicago's May moving season which received an advance build-up that it was to be "the greatest in the city's history," may turn out to be just an ordinary scramble after all. So say real estate men and gas and electric company officials who yesterday hauled out incomplete figures to prove the point.

The Commonwealth Edison company, one fairly accurate gauge of moving activities, announced that in April it received only 44,289 orders to turn on electricity in flats and houses. In April a year ago the turn-on figure was 47,609. The May 1 turn-on requests numbered 17,494, against 19,737 on moving day last year.

Supported by Utility Figures.

The same trend was shown in statistics offered by the People's Gas Light and Coke company. April gas requests amounted to 45,000, compared with 50,000 last year. The May 1 turn-ons dropped from 14,000 in 1941 to 13,000 this year.

These statistics may not be a true indicator of the moving load, the utility spokesmen said.

"This year may be different," they explained. "Many families have been broken up and people may be doubling up in many cases because the draft has taken many of the men."

Another authority who believes no moving records will be broken this year is Tighe Woods, secretary of the renting and managing division of the Chicago Real Estate board.

"It's more concentrated this time, that's all," he said. "Last year's moving figures are higher than this year's."

But Van Owners Differ.

On the other hand, moving van owners and storage house executives declared moving heavy. Daniel Healy, executive secretary of the Movers' Association of Chicago, said moving was largest in 20 years. He said he had no figures to show how many people had moved, but he expected the movement to continue several days.

Members of the Oak Park Real Estate board yesterday voted to recommend to owners of apartments and residential not to collect the increased rentals that were to be effective May 1, but that they push back the rental prices to the March 1 level.

Lee Krafft, board president, declared that this action is the first of its kind to be taken by an organized group of realtors in the Chicago area. The organization wishes to support the rent policy of the Office of Price administration and to aid the war effort, he asserted.

Henderson Warns Landlords.

Washington, D. C., May 2 (AP).—Price Administrator Leon Henderson said today that landlords who evict tenants in the hope of evading maximum rent regulations were engaging "in a futile and unpatriotic act."

"We will not permit the war production program to be sabotaged by a few landlords who have the mistaken notion that they can somehow wiggle outside the essential wartime program," Henderson asserted.

OPA officials said his statement was occasioned by reports that in some of the 302 defense-rental areas designated earlier this week landlords were attempting to oust present tenants and bring in new ones at increased rents.

Way to Reduce Rents

The only way to bring down rents is to reduce costs, including those of the government, and give the public more and better housing, privately operated, at lower rentals, Ronald J. Chinnock, new president of the Chicago Real Estate board, said in an address at the board's 58th annual banquet in the Palmer House. He said that altho rents have been frozen by the government, no ceiling has been placed on operating costs, wages, and taxes, which have been steadily rising year by year.

This country must have a "freedom," he said, that will recognize these principles:

"1. That private initiative shall be encouraged, not destroyed.

"2. That the evils of governmental competition in the real estate business, as illustrated by the so-called public housing projects, must be eradicated from national economy.

"3. That the right to private ownership of real property must be preserved as the very foundation of our American way of life.

"4. That the power to tax shall not be a free license to plunder, and that both the power and the officials who administer that power be restrained.

"5. That the home and the family shall be recognized as the basic unit in the strength of our society, and the forces that would destroy that unit must themselves face destruction."

Checker Taxi Firm Rents Garage at 4068 Broadway

The one story garage at 4068-74 Broadway, containing 27,000 square feet, has been leased by the Checker Taxi company from the Metropolitan Trust. M. M. Sokoll, president of Checker, said the property was leased in connection with the company's program for conserving tires and materials. J. J. Harrington & Co. was broker for both parties.

FHA WILL CHECK ON SHORTAGES OF MATERIALS

An investigation into existing or impending shortages of critical building materials is being made by the Federal Housing administration for the War Production board, Gael Sullivan, FHA director for Illinois, yesterday announced. An inquiry also will be made as to the extent or need for such materials in home building, he said.

"FHA thus will be in a better position to assist in the flow of needed critical materials in the Chicago area and other vitally important war production points in Illinois," Sullivan asserted. "The result should be more defense homes for the rapidly expanding war industries.

With FHA reports in hand the WPB can act promptly to relieve any congestion, Sullivan said. FHA also is planning to make periodic contacts with builders and property owners operating under preference ratings in order to compile construction progress and occupancy data. This information will be sent to the WPB.

STATE AND ELM CORNER SOLD FOR $84,900 IN CASH

The northeast corner of State and Elm streets, 119 by 95 feet, was bought yesterday for $84,900 cash by John R., Frank A., and Ralph M. Brown. The sellers were Leroy F. Pape, Elmer A. Degen, and James F. Vanek, trustees. E. R. Cook of Cook & Jackson was broker. The property is improved with two buildings, one of three stories, containing 5 stores and 24 apartments, and one of five stories, containing one store and four flats.

Business Machine Concern Gives Up Building Plans

International Business Machines Inc., has abandoned plans for a new office building in Chicago for the duration of the war it was disclosed yesterday. C. H. Cook, Chicago manager, said the company has renewed its lease for the entire building at 233 West Madison street where minimum alterations and decorating will be done. It also leased the 16th floor at 173 West Madison street for a service bureau. Baird & Warner Inc., represented the lessee.

NORTH WELLS STREET SALE.

The store and flat building, at 838-42 North Wells street was sold by F. H. Sharlarman to Clarence A. Olsen, thru William H. Suchier & Co. for $22,000.

REALTY BOARD MOVES TO NEW LOOP QUARTERS

4th Change in 58 Years of Existence.

For the fourth time in its 58 years of existence the Chicago Real Estate board, the largest organization of its kind in the country, has moved its headquarters. It now occupies all of the third and fourth floors of the Loop Center building, at the southwest corner of Madison and Clark, which has been renamed the Chicago Real Estate board building.

The space has been modernized and redecorated at a cost of approximately $40,000 into what realtors say is one of the most attractive realty board headquarters in the country. Rapp & Rapp, Chicago architects, supervised the modernization program.

All Rooms Air Conditioned.

The 10,000 square feet of floor area has been divided into an auditorium lounge, dining room, directors' dining space, special committee rooms, officers' quarters, library, and general office facilities. All the rooms are air conditioned. Woodwork thruout the board rooms is of white oak.

Ronald J. Chinnock, recently elected president of the board, was chairman of the special house committee last year and in charge of the lease negotiations with Hugh Michels, then treasurer of the board and manager of the building. Thomas Fleming was president of the board when it was decided to move to Madison and Clark.

Fifty-eight Years in Loop.

The real estate board was first located at the northeast corner of Dearborn and Randolph. It then moved to the old Chicago Press club building, 26 North Dearborn, and from there to 57 West Monroe street. In 1932 it moved to 32 West Randolph street.

An open house in the new Madison and Clark location was held last Thursday afternoon prior to the board's 58th annual banquet at the Palmer House. The dining room, which will continue to be operated by the board, was informally opened on Friday and will be formally opened to members tomorrow, according to Leonard Downie, business manager.

SHOW PRESENTS WARTIME HINTS ON HOMEMAKING

Suggests Ways to Use Available Materials.

Hints on keeping homes cheerful and comfortable despite wartime problems abound at the seventh annual Home show which opened at the Coliseum yesterday and will continue thru next Sunday. "Modernization and Maintenance" is the theme of the show.

All exhibits emphasize new ways of using available materials. New uses for wood are shown in furniture displays; a cooking school stresses "skillet strategy" in nutritious, wartime meals; instruction is given on maintenance of kitchen appliances, and new vegetable gardens flourish in tiny plots.

Portable House Displayed.

A portable six room house which can be set up ready for occupancy in three hours is one of the features of the show. The house weighs 15,000 pounds and is transported on a trailer. Only a small percentage of the materials used are on the critical list.

Plumbing, wiring, and lighting fixtures are built in, and oil heating equipment is ready for use. The outside of the house is of white wood. There are bright green shutters decorated with the V for victory and dash and three dots symbols for the windows.

Across from the house girls from the Office of Civilian Defense demonstrate air raid precautions in a model room. Coupled with the blackout room is an OCD victory garden.

Tiny Greenhouse Exhibited.

Another interesting garden is the basement window greenhouse, a tiny glass affair built out from a basement window in such a way that the plants receive sunshine and heat from the house.

In one corner of the exhibition hall craftsmen are turning out furniture parts, showing machine techniques and hand details. An upholsterer demonstrates his craft from the preliminary webbing to the finished product.

Mayor Kelly has proclaimed this Home week. John A. Servas is director of the show, which is open from 1 p. m. to 11 p. m. daily.

HENRY MORGEN BUYS A FARM OF 54 ACRES NEAR LIBERTYVILLE

Henry Morgen, 5000 Marine drive, yesterday bought the 54.55 acre farm estate on the east side of state route 63, a mile north of Libertyville, extending to the Des Plaines river, for an undisclosed price. Title was taken by Anna Gordon Morgen. The seller was Harry Meyer, retired founder of Harry's Shoe stores, who has lived on the property for 16 years. Elmer E. Stults, who represented all parties, said the new owners will occupy the farm house about June 1 after extensive alterations. Morgen is head of Morgen, Inc., beverage distributor.

URBAN FORECLOSURES

There were fewer urban foreclosures during February than in any month in the last 15 years, Federal Home Loan Bank administration economists reported yesterday. The 3,630 cases in February were 9 per cent less than the 4,000 in January

OPEN 'MELLETT'S MADHOUSE' AMID ORAL FIREWORKS

Senator Blasts $600,000 'Information Booth.'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—With heated words and insults bursting in air, the $600,000 information booth de luxe, known thruout the nation as "Mellett's madhouse," was dedicated today, as it was conceived, in a first class controversy.

Exhibiting satisfaction in his hour of triumph, Lowell Mellett, head of the Office of Government Reports, consecrated his building to public service by accusing Sen. Harry Flood Byrd [D., Va.] of "willful disregard of the truth." In turn he was assailed by the senator as "an arrogant and proud burocrat" and "hairsplitter."

Speaking from behind the rubbed mahogany desk in the 70,000 square foot information building, which resembles a glorified hamburger stand, Mellett said that honest criticism of the government is helpful but "the Byrd type of criticism is not honest."

Denies Huge Expenditure.

Mellett, a gray haired administration propagandist who envisioned the plan of wartime censorship several years ago, said the senator made an untrue statement in declaring that government agencies had spent $19,463,470 for publicity in the last year and that $1,800,000 of this had been spent by the Office of Government Reports.

Mellett's eyes glowed. For him, the dedication of the building was a great personal triumph.

Congress had refused to authorize $285,000 for the building. Some time later congressmen were amazed to see a low, squat structure being erected on Pennsylvania avenue near the White House.

During an investigation Mellett blandly said President Roosevelt overruled congress and had given him $600,000 out of blank check funds to build and furnish the building.

Byrd Issues a Blast.

Mellett did not enjoy his hour of triumph long, for scarcely had he issued his statement against Sen. Byrd when the senator hurled a counterblast which virtually shook the window panes in Mellett's office.

"I am not disposed to be too harsh with Mr. Mellett for the extravagance of his language when he dedicated his new building today," Byrd said. "The exhilaration of an arrogant and proud burocrat on the date of his triumph over congress in opening the monstrosity commonly known as the Mellett madhouse may be understood. The house, constructed in defiance of the expressed will of congress, is one of the most needless and extravagant expenditures of government funds.

"It was built at a cost extending past $500,000, exclusive of furniture or equipment, from funds transferred without congressional approval. This building will occasion a greatly increased cost in personnel for publicity or information, which is today the most overworked and incredibly costly activity of our government.

Resentment Understood.

"Mr. Mellett's resentment against any senator who had a part, as I did, in greatly reducing the appropriation for his agency in the senate last Thursday, also may be understood.

The senator said he was not concerned with Mellett's hairsplitting on "information," "publicity" and "propaganda," but with the reduction of "outrageous spending" for publicity by any name.

"Mr. Mellett employs a chief and an assistant chief of a press intelligence division," Byrd went on. "He employs an editor and an assistant editor. Of course, not one agency of the government admits that it indulges in publicity. In fact, a law prohibits the employment of government publicity agents, but the same thing is accomplished in other ways and under other names."

2 DROWN, THIRD MISSING AFTER BOAT CAPSIZES

Two young men were drowned and a third is believed to have lost his life when a rented boat in which they went fishing Friday evening in Channel lake near Antioch capsized yesterday afternoon.

The two whose bodies were recovered were identified as Eric Fergien, 27 years old, of 3918 Cortland street, and George H. Hart, 40, 1738 North Narragansett avenue. The third body was being sought.

There were no witnesses to the accident. Fergien's body was found under the boat with the anchor rope twisted about the neck, which led the Lake county authorities to believe the three men might have been engaged in horseplay when they were thrown into the water.

SHERIFF'S MEN FACE A MEAL OF DANCE TICKETS

Sell 5,000 or Eat 'Em, Force Is Told.

Five hundred of Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien's employés had their tickets yesterday. Theye were nevertheless in danger of losing their shirts.

They had, they discovered, invited their boss to be guest of honor at the Sheriff O'Brien Benevolent Ball in the Morrison hotel on May 29. And if they can't put the arm on their friends to buy the tickets, they'll have to eat them.

O'Brien potatoes are tasty. But O'Brien tickets are $1, and you get rather tired of eating them if you're stuck with 25.

It's One-to-Five Shot.

The smiling ticket peddlers said they were stuck all right because the sheriff had given them a one-to-five shot. That is, there are 5,000 tickets to be sold, and there is space for only 1,000 persons to rumba in the hotel's Mural room, where they are to honor him.

If they tell prospective customers that everybody's going to be there, their prospects drop the O'Brien tickets as if they were hot potatoes. And nobody wants to go if nobody wants to go.

Those who got hooked and those they credit with hooking them agreed that the ball is a spontaneous tribute to Sheriff O'Brien. Bailiffs, elevator operators, and others who work for the sheriff in his job as custodian of the county building said they were surprised indeed when they were ordered to peddle from 10 to 25 tickets.

Nobody Claims the Credit.

The sheriff expressed equal surprise as well as delight that the workers had chosen to honor him.

Nobody would take the credit for planning the $5,000 celebration.

Because it was Derby day, and some people like to play the ponies, and Sheriff [What have you got in the third race?] O'Brien disapproves that sort of thing, he said he was busy and referred further inquiries to James Denvir, assistant sheriff.

"There'll probably be a few thousand dollars' profit," the assistant sheriff said. "It'll go into the employés benefit fund."

"Shouldn't the fund buy some war bonds?" he was asked.

"Say, we've got some—$100 worth."

Denvir had a helpful hint about the O'Brien tickets, in case you have to go to the county building.

Scrubwomen don't have them.

SCHENK BEGINS PRISON TERM IN PERJURY CASE

New York, May 2 (AP).—Joseph M. Schenk, former chairman of the board of the Twentieth Century-Fox Film corporation, surrendered to a United States marshal today and was taken to the federal correctional institution at Danbury, Conn., where he will serve a year and a day on a perjury charge. Federal Judge Grover M. Moscowitz imposed the sentence yesterday. Today Schenck drove up to the marshal's office in an automobile and was driven to Connecticut in a marshal's car.

Schenck originally was sentenced to a three year term for income tax evasion. This penalty was suspended when he pleaded guilty to a perjury indictment. The court acted after United States Attorney Mathias F. Correa said that Schenck had aided the government's case against William Bioff, one time west coast labor leader, and George E. Browne, former president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employés [AFL].

Bioff and Browne were convicted of extorting hundreds of thousands of dollars from major movie producers as the price of labor peace in the industry.

TWO PUBLISHERS INDICTED ON U. S. SEDITION CHARGE

Kansas City, Kas., May 2 (AP).—Elmer J. Garner, 70 years old, and his son, James, 45, publishers of a Wichita, Kas., weekly newspaper, were indicted here today by a federal grand jury on a charge of sedition.

The indictment accuses them of acts "tending to discourage recruiting for the enlisted service of the United States and to cause insubordination, disloyalty, and mutiny in the armed forces of the United States."

S. S. Alexander, United States attorney for Kansas, said the indictment grew out of articles published in the newspaper Publicity since the declaration of war by this country.

MURRAY WEEPS AS HE AIRS UNION RIFT WITH LEWIS

Cheered by Miners of His Old Home Camp Local.

Cokeburg, Pa., May 2 (AP).—Overcome by emotion as he addressed his home local, United Mine Workers of America, CIO President Philip Murray today broke down and wept as he brought into the open for the first time the rift developing between him and John L. Lewis, his predecessor as head of the Congress of Industrial organizations.

The gray haired, usually reserved Murray made an unheralded, impassioned speech before 200 members of local No. 1197 in this mining town 20 miles south of Pittsburgh, reporting on his stewardship in the 35 years since he left the mines here to fight the battles of the coal miner around the collective bargaing table and on the picket line.

"Anything I got out of life," he said, his voice trembling, "I attribute to you—all of you. The miners made me, the miners raised me and I hope I am given a chance to live, to die . . ."

Tears Stream Down Face.

Then his voice broke and tears streamed down the cheeks of the 55 year old leader of 5,000,000 American working men and women.

The CIO chief gulped at a glass of water and continued:

"I hope I am given the chance to live and die and fight for, and with, the miners. I never have drifted away from the miners and so help me God, I never will."

Murray's hope to remain with the miners apparently referred to reports that Lewis, president of the U. M. W. A., is planning to oust him from the vice presidency of the miners' union, his only salaried union job.

"If anyone starts a mess in the miners' union or any other union, I hope he is driven out of office!" Murray declared. "I am president of the CIO and I'm going to be president as long as I'm elected."

Charges Internal Sabotage.

He charged "An attempt is being made to sabotage from within and destroy the CIO" and in the same breath deplored the UMWA's refusal to pay its $60,000 dues to the CIO while "a modern Shylock" is trying to collect the $1,665,000 which the UMWA turned over to the parent CIO during its developing years.

"The United Mine Workers donated this money to help organize the CIO," he said. "This was a gift to help the cause of the miners and it never was intended that it should be returned. I hope you see this the way I do and that you will stick behind me."

The miners, rising, cheered him until they were hoarse.

"I don't give a tinker's dam who fights me in this country if my own people here support me," Murray went on.

The rift between Murray and Lewis began in 1940 when Murray endorsed President Roosevelt for a third term and Lewis switched his support to Wendell Willkie, the Republican candidate.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.

Fourteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Money Back Guarantee

Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. GIFT OF HORNER STARTS LINCOLN TREASURE HUNT

It's an Older '1st Edition' of Gettysburg Talk.

A heretofore generally unknown first edition of Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg address recently has come to light, thereby, according to Charles Honce, Wide World writer, completely revising bibliographical knowledge concerning perhaps the greatest speech in the English language.

The speech, included in a 16 page pamphlet printed only a few days after delivery, was a part of the great Lincoln collection of the late Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois, now in the Illinois State Historical library at Springfield.

A description of this apparently unique document is given by Paul M. Angle, librarian of the Springfield institution, in "The Papers of the Bibliographical Society of America."

For some time collectors had agreed that the first appearance of the Gettysburg speech between covers was in a 48 page booklet called "An Oration Delivered on the Battlefield at Gettysburg . . ." by Edward Everett, published by Baker & Godwin in New York late in 1863.

Fresh Item to Hunt.

The Horner collection pamphlet has the following cover title [maybe there is another copy in your attic]:

The Gettysburg Solemnities,
Dedication of
The National Cemetery
at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania,
November 19, 1863,
with the Oration of Hon. Edward Everett,
Speech of President Lincoln.
Published at the Washington Chronicle office.

"This pamphlet," says Mr. Angle, "contains a description of the Gettysburg battlefield, an account of the activities at Gettysburg on Nov. 18 and 19, the text of the short speech which Lincoln delivered there on the evening of the 18th, Edward Everett's address, and Lincoln's speech of dedication.

Real Jewel Overlooked.

"Except for a few column inches, the pamphlet was printed from type lifted from the issues of the Washington Chronicle for Nov. 18, 19, 20, and 26. Included in the newly set material was the text of Lincoln's speech.

"[Curiously, the Washington Chronicle failed to publish Lincoln's speech in its daily issues. Everett's oration was printed in the issue for Nov. 20; in that of the following day appeared dispatches describing the ceremonies and concluding: 'The President then delivered his address; which, tho short, glittered with gems, evincing the gentleness and goodness of heart peculiar to him, and will receive the attention and command the admiration of all the tens of thousands who will read it.']"

Mr. Angle opines that when newspaper type is used for separate publication, "one may safely assume that the separate publication was issued with little delay," and so he figures the pamphlet came out on Nov. 22, or, at the latest, a day or two later, "certainly long before the carefully printed 48 page booklet which has heretofore been credited with first publication."

Altho feeling that he has definitely identified the first printing of the address, the Springfield librarian laments that the text is faulty—in fact there are many versions of the speech, and once there was considerable doubt as to which received Mr. Lincoln's final O. K.

Here's First Pamphlet Version.

"Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are equal. Now we are engaged in a great Civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are now on a great battlefield of that war. We are met to dedicate a portion of that field as the final resting place of those who have given their last lifeblood that that nation might live. But in a larger sense we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men living and dead who struggled here have consecrated it far above our poor power to add to or detract. [Applause.] The world will little know nor long remember what we say; but it can never forget what they did here. [Applause.] And it is for us living to be dedicated here to the unfinished work that they have thus far so nobly carried forward. [Applause.] It is rather for us here to be dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from this honored day we take increased devotion to that cause for which they here gave the last full measure of devotion. That we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that the nation shall, under God, have a new birth of freedom. [Applause.] And that government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth. [Applause.]"

Differences Readily Apparent.

Many differences between this and the accepted version are apparent; and omitted is the sentence: "It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this."

Mr. Angle says that so far as is known, Lincoln's final revision of his speech is that which he prepared for a book, "Autograph Leaves of Our Country's Authors," published by Cushings & Bailey in Baltimore in 1864. It reproduced a facsimile of his manuscript.

"In type," Angle adds, however, "a wholly accurate text is not to be found in any of the standard compilations of Lincoln's writings."

COUNTY'S UNPAID BILLS PILE UP AS DEBTS ARE CUT

43 Million Reduction Made in Year by 6 Agencies.

The six major governments in Cook county reduced their total debts by more than 43 million dollars in the year ended March 31, but less than 1 million dollars of this cut was in the form of unpaid bills, the quarterly financial statements showed yesterday. The governments are the city, school board, park district, sanitary district, county and forest preserve district.

Total debt of the six governments on March 31, 1942, was $462,853,116, compared with $505,937,919 a year earlier.

The debt slash was largely accounted for by the retirement of 23 million dollars of bonds, which are paid off automatically as tax collections come in, and by a 19 million dollar reduction in tax warrants outstanding. Several governments which sold 1941 warrants in the first three months of last year did not sell 1942 warrants until after March 31 this year.

Current Debts Exceed 25 Million.

Current debts of the governments, including unpaid bills, judgments, and salaries, amounted to $25,411,918, compared with $26,216,133 a year ago.

The only government showing a substantial boost in current debts was the county, whose unpaid obligations jumped to $7,936,914 on March 31, up $2,221,000 for the year. Reductions in current, or floating, debts were made by the city, school board, park district, and forest preserve, and the sanitary district's liabilities increased only $165,000.

The jump in the county's unpaid bills reflected the county board's practice in recent years of appropriating more for expenditures than it receives in revenues. The 1942 county budget of 21½ million dollars is 4½ millions in excess of prospective income as estimated by the county controler.

Comparison of Debts.

The following table compares the total debt of each of the six governments in the county on March 31, 1942, with their debts a year earlier:

DUCKING ERASES ADDRESS FROM JOE'S MEMORY

Joe Colwell knew the address of his new home perfectly well when he came downtown for a stroll yesterday. But by the time he'd fallen off the Randolph street bridge, been rescued by Bridgetender Dennis Laughlin, and dried out at the Central police station, he couldn't remember where he'd moved. But Joe, who's 9 years old, was certain he lived in the neighborhood of 15th and Laflin streets. Police drove him to the neighborhood but he still couldn't remember. They drove around with him and presently he recognized his house at 1544 West 15th street.

SHOOTS DOUBLE KILLER TO DEATH; SAVES 3D VICTIM

Police Hero Awarded $100 by Tribune.

BY EDWARD WILSON.

Howard F. Anderson.

A pistol bullet pierced the plate glass window as Patrolman Howard F. Anderson, of Stanton avenue station, 13 years a Chicago policeman, burst into the restaurant at 3515 South State street, in response to a colored man's cry, "There's a stickup going on here!" It was March 3 and night. Anderson's hurried glance showed two things. On the floor in front of him lay a colored woman bleeding from two bullet wounds and apparently dead.

In back of a counter he saw two colored men struggling for possession of a German Luger pistol.

The unarmed man screamed at Anderson, "I'm the manager—he killed my wife—help me."

Anderson rushed at the two men.

"I had to separate them," he explained, "I didn't dare risk a shot. They were too close."

Disarms "Mad Gunman."

He grabbed the armed man's wrist and wrenched away the German gun. Then he jumped back to the center of the room.

"Throw up your hands," the policeman yelled at the robber.

The unarmed man gave an inarticulate yell and leaped at Anderson.

Again the robber came on and this time Anderson shot. He fired one bullet from his own service revolver and hit the man in the chest. The robber collapsed to the floor.

"I had to shoot straight at him," Anderson said later. "I had my gun in my right hand and his gun in my left. He wanted to get his gun. Lugers carry 10 shots and this one still had seven left. He had the face of a madman."

Pistol Proves He's a Killer.

The robber was immediately taken to the Bridewell hospital where he died an hour later. He was identified as Thomas Woods, 40 years old of 3133 Indiana avenue. An investigation by police ballistics experts showed that earlier in the evening Woods shot and killed Booker T. Washington, a colored cab driver.

Because of his bravery, efficiency and attention to duty displayed in killing a murderer Patrolman Anderson, who lives at 7051 Green street, has been awarded The Tribune $100 monthly police and fire hero award. Each month the award is given for a brave act committed by a member of one of the departments.

WINCHELL SUIT OF MRS. DILLING TO BE PUSHED

Settlement of the turbulent Dilling divorce case, which was disclosed Friday, will in no way deter Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling, author-crusader, from proceeding with her million dollar libel suit against Walter Winchell, New York gossip columnist, her attorney, Theodore W. Miller, announced yesterday.

Named with Winchell as co-defendants in the libel action are Mrs. Dilling's husband, Albert W., lawyer-engineer, and his attorney, Maurice T. Weinshenk. This phase of the case came after Winchell broadcast charges of drug and liquor addiction originally made against Mrs. Dilling in Dilling's divorce suit but later deleted.

Under the terms of the agreement Mrs. Dilling will be allowed to get an uncontested divorce, and there will be a property settlement. Still pending, however, in addition to the libel action, are three contempt citations against Mrs. Dilling and a $50 fine also levied for contempt of court.

X-RAY
twice a year

Good looking teeth are not always sound teeth—and unsound teeth are a menace to health. That's why the modern physician considers a full mouth X-ray of the teeth and gums an important medical procedure.

X-rays Disclose Hidden Infections
An X-ray examination can disclose tooth decay before it spreads to surrounding teeth and gum tissue. When this occurs, dangerous poisons may enter the blood stream and cause serious ailments in other parts of the body, such as arthritis, stomach trouble, kidney disorders, or heart trouble.

Here you can obtain a full mouth X-ray of all your teeth, including a report, for..........$1.50

HUSBAND KILLER OF 1912 ADMITS SECOND SLAYING

Thirty years ago Mrs. Harriet Burnham shot and killed her husband. Self defense was her plea and the jury believed her. She was acquitted on the murder charge.

Yesterday, Mrs. Burnham—now 70 years old and known as Mrs. Tracy—calmly related to the Englewood police how she shot and killed Morris DeYoung, 66, the man with whom she was living, last Thursday night.

Victim Shot in Back.

At first it was believed he died of natural causes but a coroner's physician subsequently found a wound made by a .22 caliber bullet in his back.

Police searched the apartment at 6714 South Aberdeen street and found a .22 caliber rifle hidden behind a chair. They also found evidence that blood stains on the floor had been wiped up.

Despite this, Mrs. Tracy insisted she did not know how the shooting occurred and she held stubbornly to this position until Capt. Patrick Collins, of the Englewood station, questioned her again.

Quarreled Over Bill.

Then she admitted she had quarreled with DeYoung—they were both living on old age pensions—over who was to pay a bill. DeYoung, she said, seized the rifle. Fearful of what he would do with the weapon she attempted to seize it and it was discharged in the struggle, she related.

Police records show that in 1912 Mrs. Tracy, then Mrs. Burnham, shot her husband with a revolver during what she testified was a struggle for its possession. The jury deliberated 19 hours before voting acquittal.

Shortly after the trial, she attempted to commit suicide by taking poison. Police said she will be watched closely to prevent a repetition of that phase of the case.

POLICE FOLLOW GIRLS' TRAIL; NAB FIVE EX-CONVICTS

Capture Is Expected to Solve 50 Robberies.

Two policemen who dressed in overalls and for 10 days followed two 20 year old girls, were rewarded last night when the girls led them to five ex-convict gunmen and the prospective cleanup of 50 or more north and northwest side holdups.

The policemen are James Biever and Anthony Comiskey who acted under instructions of Sergt. John Coughlin. The girls are Leona Hull, 718 South Oakley boulevard, and Margaret Adams, 1632 Jackson boulevard, sweethearts of two of the captured bandits.

The gunmen, seized when four squad cars of police hemmed in their automobile at Monroe street and Ogden avenue, are Medio Mancione, 26 years old, who police say lived with the Hull girl at the Oakley boulevard address; Neil McCauley, 28, of 209 South Damen avenue; Sam Perry, 29, of 1632 Jackson boulevard, where the Adams girl lives; Sam Pallachi, 27, of 3549 North avenue, and Thomas Lowe, 27, of 24 South Leavitt street.

Sixth Member in Custody.

William Heimus, 29, of 1642 Warren boulevard, a sixth member of the gang, had been under arrest since April 22, when he, Mancione, McCauley, and Perry fought a revolver battle with Policeman Comiskey at Van Buren street and Laramie avenue.

Comiskey had followed the four men to the spot when they sped past him. In the battle during which several shots were fired after the bandit car was wrecked against a light post, Comiskey was wounded in the knee. Heimos was dazed by one of Comiskey's bullets which grazed his left temple, and Mancione got another of Comiskey's bullets in his leg.

McCauley, Perry and Mancione got away while Comiskey was reloading his pistol that night while shielding himself behind a steel mail box, but Comiskey seized Heimos, still sitting in the wrecked car.

One Seized Later.

Mancione was arrested several days later, attempting to treat his own wound in a house at 1101 Mozart street. From him and Heimos police then obtained the addresses of the girls and Comiskey and Biever at once started following them.

The girls led the two policemen to beauty parlors, on shopping tours, and in and out of taverns. For days there were no results but early last evening they followed the girls to a restaurant near Madison and Laflin streets, where they met Pallachi and the others. The policemen sent for additional squads to make certain of their capture and these with Comiskey and Heimos, followed the bandit car to the scene of the capture.

500 WILL SING IN MUSIC FETE; MARINES TO HELP

A chorus of 500 children will sing in the Civic Music association's 29th annual festival program at 3:30 p. m. today in Orchestra hall. Others on the program include a group of 30 marines from the Marine Aviation detachment at Navy pier and the Civic orchestra under the direction of Hans Lange. The children were selected from more than 1,000 trained during the year in field houses, settlement houses, and orphanages by visiting music teachers of the association. They are under the direction of Marx E. Oberndorfer, director of the Civic Music association. The children rehearsed with the orchestra yesterday morning in Orchestra hall. This week has been proclaimed Music week.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs, who 24 hours before had soared to giddy heights with a vast batch of 13 runs, traveled the opposite direction yesterday. Cliff Melton, the lengthy lefthander with better than average pitching attainments, paved the road for the Cubs with a six hitter and finally led them to their maiden shutout of the season. Meanwhile, Melton's fellow workers, the New York Giants, did just enough to sophomore Paul Erickson to squeeze out a 1 to 0 decision for an even break in the two game series in Wrigley field.

Because of Melton the Cubs again presented a right handed lineup and the old theory that left handed swingers can't gauge pitching from that same side was jolted. The one southpaw swinger for the Cubs against Melton was Bill Nicholson. Well, three of the six blows off the Giant expert were made by Nicholson, who got two singles and a double. But Melton accepted this annoyance gracefully until the ninth when he disposed of Bill with strikes.

Erickson Has Trouble.

Erickson's performance, also a six hitter, wasn't quite as polished as the score might indicate. He was in distress in the third when five Giants reached base, three before an out was recorded. The enemy gleaned from this opportunity the lone run that proved decisive. Erickson escaped embarrassment in the sixth because of a spectacular one handed catch by Nicholson. However, he did manage his chronic ailment, wildness, after the hectic third. He walked only one thereafter.

Due to unforeseen difficulties, Johnny Mize, the slugger transferred from the Cardinals to the Giants last winter, performed only in a limited way. The muscle man took a turn at bat in the second inning and it proved his last. When Umpire in Chief Bill Stewart called a third strike, Mize spoke about the matter and was thumbed to the bathhouse. Babe Young filled in for Johnny, and altho he singled once, he popped out twice with men on the bases.

A Lot of Action—One Run.

The Giants' third inning began with Harry Danning's single to right and Dickie Bartell's double to left. Erickson slipped a pass to Melton, filling the bases with none out, and then promptly proved that a wild pitch can be helpful. He heaved one against the stand, but Catcher Clyde McCullough scooted back and rifled the ball to Erickson, who tagged Danning at the plate. So the wild pitch didn't count. The bases were reloaded on a

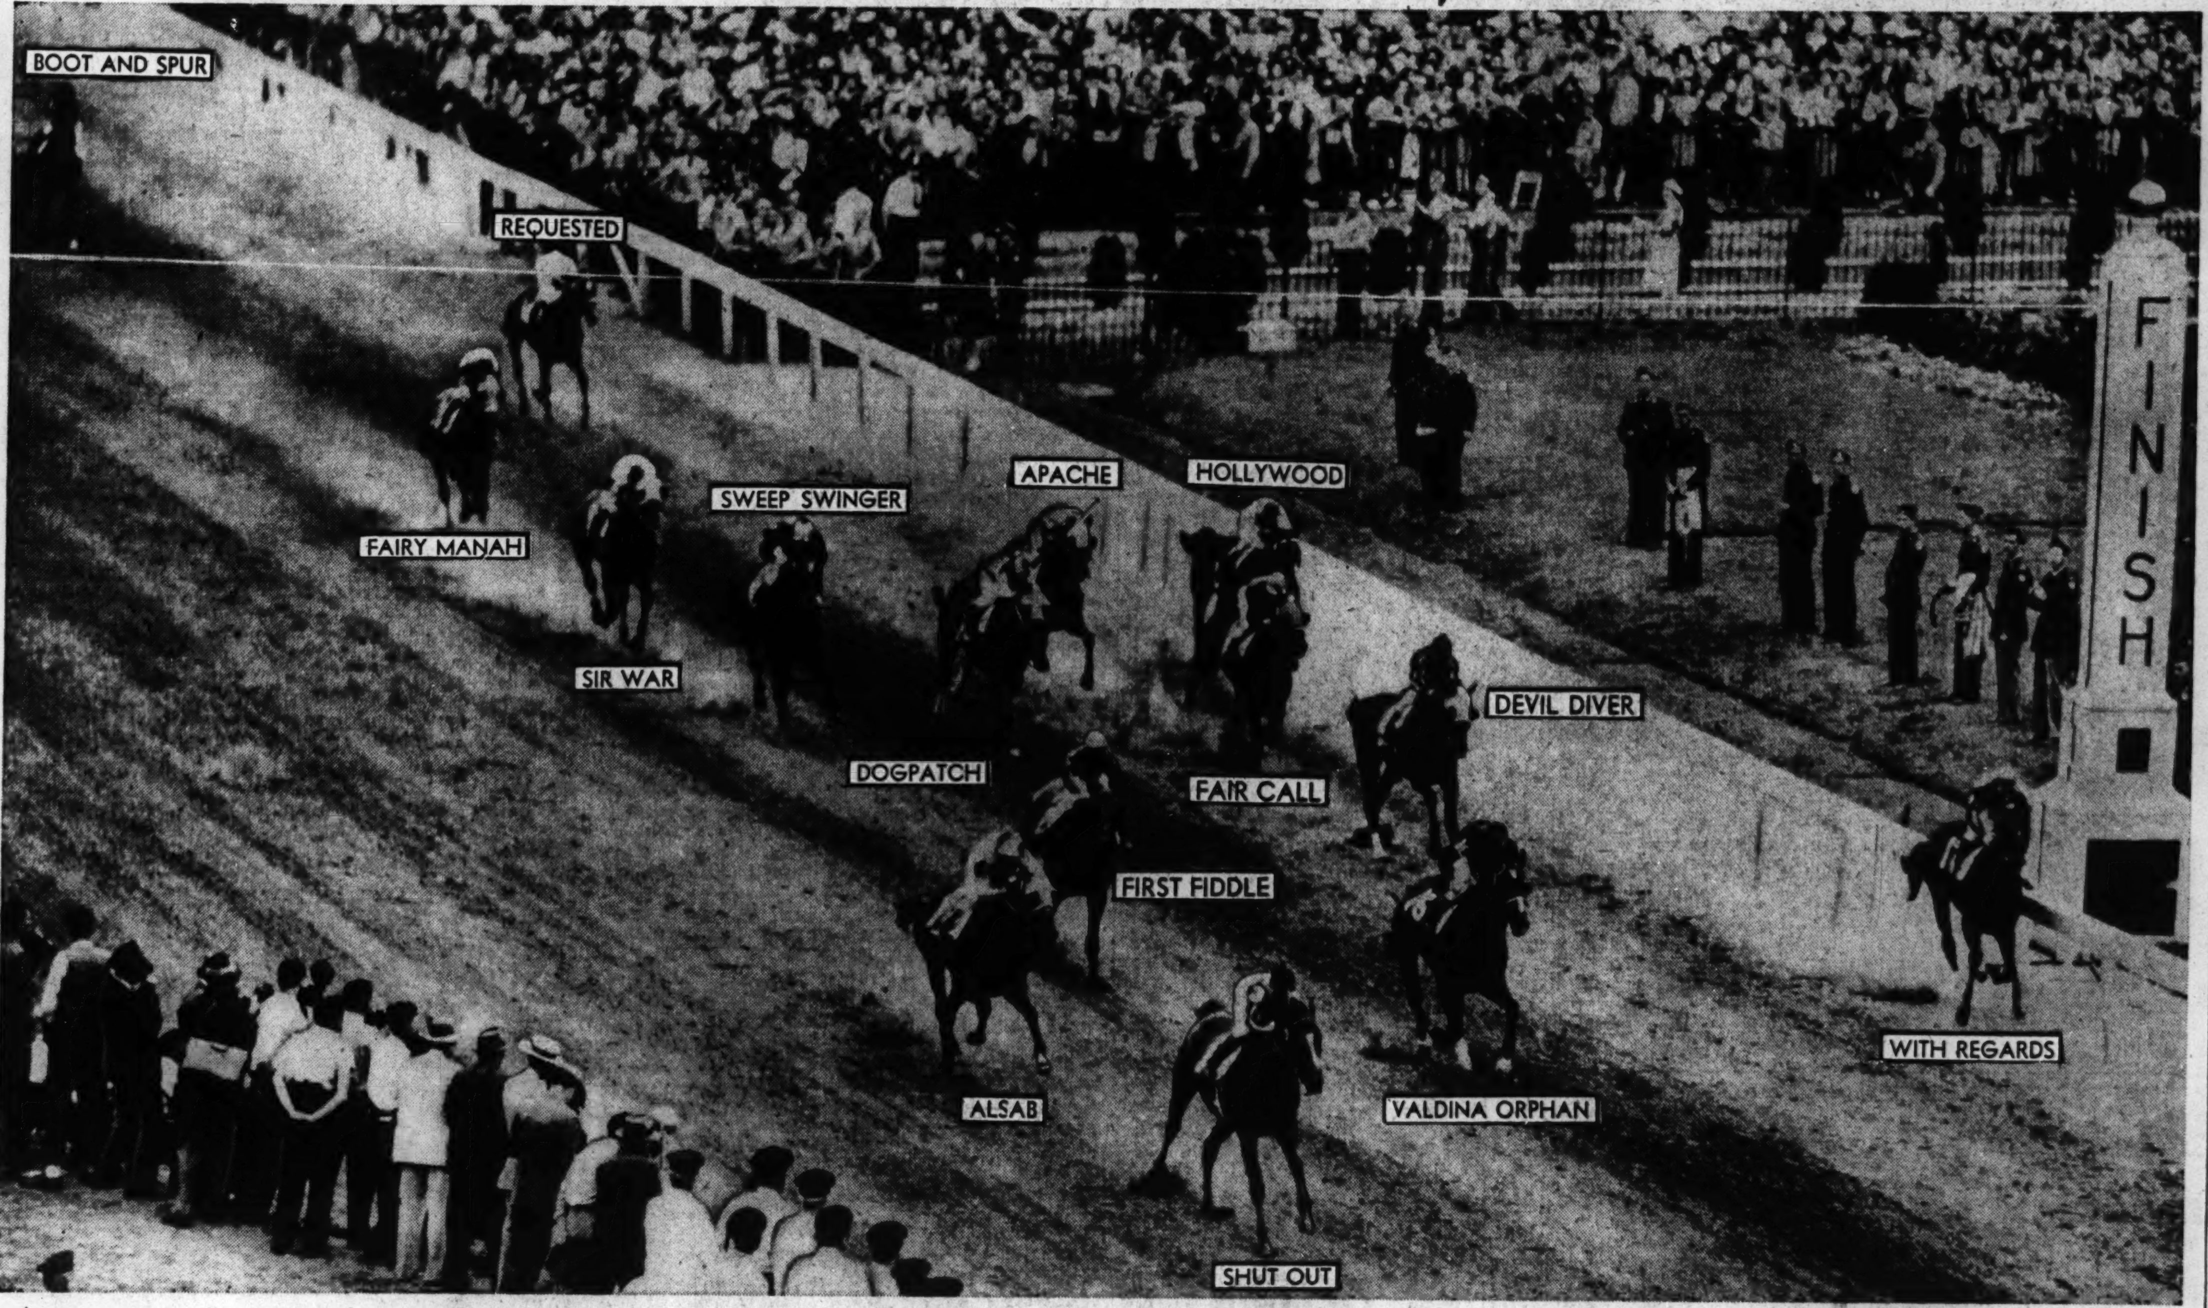
SHUT OUT HOLDS ALSAB SAFE AND WINGS TO DERBY VICTORY



Shut Out, a son of Equipoise, drives across the finish line to victory by two and one-quarter lengths in yesterday's 68th running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs. Under strong handling by Jockey Wayne Wright, the colt, owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney, conquered his rivals in the final furlong of the drive thru the stretch. Alsab, Chicago hope owned by Al Sabath, closed powerfully to finish second over Valdina Orphan. Shut Out's victory gave Mrs. Whitney her second Derby victor, Twenty Grand winning for her in 1931. The entry of Shut Out and Devil Diver was made the favorite by the crowd of 80,000 at just under 2 to 1. The mutuel payoff across the board was $5.80, $3.40, and $3. Shut Out's time for the mile and a quarter was 2:04 2-5.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2.—Mrs. Payne Whitney, first lady of the turf, today was denied the thrill of sitting in on her second Kentucky Derby victory. . . . While Shut Out, which ran with Devil Diver as the Greentree stable entry, outlegging Alsab to the wire in America's most famous horse race, Mrs. Whitney was confined to her New York home by illness. . . . She was here, however, when her Twenty Grand set the track record of 2:01 4-5 seconds in winning the 1931 Derby, a mark that stood until Whirlaway toured the mile and a quarter two-fifth of a second faster a year ago. . . . Shut Out made his disparagers eat their word once he moved into the lead as he reached the last eighth of a mile. . . . Even his handlers had rated his stablemate the better bet as they showed when they decided to put Jockey Eddie Arcaro astride Devil Diver. . . . But at the payoff line Devil Diver was in sixth place.

The biggest disappointment of the 68th Kentucky Derby was Requested, winner of the Wood Memorial a week ago. . . . Ben Whitaker's colt was 12th away from the barrier in the field of 15 and was 14th at the finish. . . . He never was better than eighth. . . . Sharing Mrs. Whitney's thrill over the victory of Shut Out were the horse liniment manufacturers of America. . . . They scored a brilliant triumph when With Regards, which has been suffering all spring from rheumatism, came home in fourth place.

Three hours before the running of the 68th Kentucky Derby today it was apparent that the crowd would approach the record breaking throng of 100,000 that saw Whirlaway make a show of the field in last year's race. . . . Every box and grandstand seat had been sold weeks in advance of the big day. . . .At 2 o'clock there was an overflow of several thousand on the infield. . . . If attendance reached last year's figure, as Matt Minn predicted it would, there must have been heavier patronage than ever before from the Louisville area. . . . Fewer came from remote parts of the country. . . . The Derby has become America's most popular racing event, due mainly to the accessibility of Louisville to motorists. . . . Not many automobile owners wanted to put the added mileage of a trip to Churchill Downs on the tires of the family bus this year. . . . The Derby, as usual, brought out the loveliest in feminine pulchritude. . . . Churchill Downs on Derby day not only is the place to see the nation's best 3 year olds. . . . It's the scene of the year's grandest beauty parade and style show. . . . Girls from New York, Baltimore, and Boston, attired in multicolored dresses and headgear, strolled thru the clubhouse rolling their "R's," but those from Georgia and Tennessee were rolling their eyes, which made everything even. . . . The scores of reporters, jokingly referred to as experts, were perched in a press box 50 feet above the stands as the crow flies or 50 grunts and a groan as your correspondent climbs . . .

A hasty poll of the scriveners and photographers brought the consensus that this is the most poorly handled major sporting event in the United States as far as they are concerned. . . . A reporter or photographer obliged to move from one section of the stands to another to give posterity a picture of the day's developments had to have five or six special tickets, each of which required a uniformed escort to get him by the gatemen. . . . One press box wag, exhausted and utterly confused, remarked that if he had to cover the Preakness next week it would have to be run in a sanitarium. . . . Fortunately, big racing events at other tracks are handled with much greater efficiency. . . . While attendance was near the all-time high, there were fewer celebrities on hand today. . . . SOX STRATEGY FAILS IN NINTH WITH 2 A'S OUT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., May 2.—Ninth inning trouble again caught up with the suffering White Sox this afternoon. Worse still, two were out when the Athletics rose up and spoiled a fine relief pitching performance by young Orval Grove, winning 7 to 6, to achieve a split in the two game series.

It appeared as if there would be extra innings when Grove retired the first two Athletics in the ninth. Then Bob Johnson doubled. Earl Siebert, a left-hand batter, was walked intentionally, the Sox preferring to pitch to Catcher Hal Wagner, a right-hand swinger who already had driven in two runs. Wagner knew just what to do again. He whacked a single into right, the game was over, and the Sox had lost a chance to escape the American league cellar.

Ross Lasts One Inning.

Young Grove came into the game in the second inning after Lee [Bucky] Ross, the Sox starter, had pitched to the entire Philadelphia lineup in the first. Of these nine, three hit safely and three walked. Orval held the A's in the second, and got the Sox started in the third by hitting a home run off Roger Wolff, the A's 27 year old rookie knuckle ball pitcher.

The A's had picked up another run when the Chicagoans came up in the sixth inning. Two infield errors gave

Berkeley, Cal., May 2 (AP).—Cornelius Warmerdam soared to a world outdoor record today. The Piedmont professor polevaulted over the crossbar at 15 feet 6⅞ inches.

Altho Warmerdam has a higher jump, 15 feet 7¼ inches, it was made indoors in Boston, Feb. 15. When and if the international federation meets to compare records, it is probable the indoor mark will not be given the same consideration as the standardized outdoor mark. Warmerdam himself considers this his world record. It cracked the mark he set last June 6 at Compton of 15 feet 5¾ inches.

Former Wesleyan Pitcher Signs Yankee Contract

Bloomington, Ill., May 2 [Special].—Harry Grubb of Waggoner, probably the best southpaw ever to hurl for Illinois Wesleyan university, has signed a contract with the New York Yankees. Grubb dropped out of college last winter. He will be assigned to the Yanks' Class B farm at Norfolk, Va., in the Piedmont league. He won 24 of 26 starts for Wesleyan.

Went to post at 5:31. At post 2 minutes. Winner trained by Greentree stable. Ch. c., 3, Equipoise-Goose Egg.

SHUT OUT, taken in hand after being hustled along for the first three-eighths, went along to the pace under smooth rating, responded when called upon, and wearing down the leaders, continued strongly while drawing out thru the last eighth. ALSAB, taken to the outside after a half mile, started up after three-quarters, and closing resolutely headed VALDINA ORPHAN in the final stride. Latter forced a fast pace under clever rating, rallied when placed to strong pressure entering the stretch, and held on gamely to the last sixteenth where he faltered. WITH REGARDS took command gradually, crossed to the inside approaching the backstretch, was under a snug hold to the last three-eighths, and placed to pressure continued well to the closing furlong where he weakened. FIRST FIDDLE, well back early, worked his way up steadily thru the last five-eighths, and was racing well at the end. DEVIL DIVER, a factor from the start, saved much ground, was kept in hand to the last three-eighths, but did not respond to pressure. FAIR CALL raced evenly. DOGPATCH did not keep up on the final turn and was not dangerous thereafter. HOLLYWOOD was outrun. SWEEP SWINGER began very slowly. APACHE, held safely from the start, was under vigorous riding before going seven-eighths. REQUESTED dropped out of the contention after a half mile, and hopelessly outdistanced, was eased after a mile.

Valdina Orphan 3d in Kentucky Classic.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 2.—Shut Out, a son of the mighty Equipoise, drew on the courage of his famous sire to win the 68th Kentucky Derby before more than 80,000 spectators this afternoon at Churchill Downs. After following the pace close to the front runners during the earlier stages of this mile and a quarter race, Shut Out flung his challenge at the leaders as the drive thru the stretch began.

Under Wayne Wright's strong handling, Shut Out wore down his rivals steadily and conquered them in the last furlong. Then he held on brilliantly to hold the powerfully closing Alsab in the last few yards. His victory, by a margin of a little more than two lengths, gave Mrs. Payne Whitney her second success in the Derby. Twenty Grand won for her in 1931.

Alsab Makes Late Bid.

Alsab, far back in the early stages, started going up from 10th position as they approached the turn out of the backstretch. Moving swiftly on the curve, he swept past one after another until he was fourth at the head of the stretch. Going to the outside for a clear path, he overtook the tiring early pace setter, With Regards. He went after Valdina Orphan and Shut Out. He caught the Orphan by the margin of a head in the last few strides—but meanwhile Shut Out was winging on, going clear and easily as he went over the line.

A purse of $86,250, the largest in all Derby history, was at stake. A first prize of $64,223 went to Mrs. Whitney.

Shut Out Proves Who's Best.

The Greentree entry of Shut Out and his stablemate, Devil Diver, was the favorite at slightly less than 2 to 1 odds. In the earlier stages of the season Shut Out had been considered the better of Mrs. Whitney's horses, but in the last couple of weeks opinion shifted to Devil Diver.

Apparently even the trainer, John Gaver, and Jockey Eddie Arcaro were a bit uncertain about the matter. For a long time Arcaro couldn't make up his mind which one he wanted to ride, and when Gaver put him on Devil Diver it was assumed that the stable considered this was the one they thought could win. Devil Diver ran well in the earlier stages, but even Arcaro couldn't make him get up there in the stretch and he wound up in sixth position.

Alsab shared second choice in the betting with Requested at a little better than 5 to 1. Requested never was a factor, dropping back after a half mile and being eased after he was hopelessly out of it. He finished in 14th place.

With Regards Backed Heavily.

Valdina Orphan and his stablemate, Hollywood, closed at nearly 10 to 1 odds. The prices across the board for Shut Out were $5.80, $3.40, and $3 for win, place, and show. Alsab's backers collected $6.20 and $4.80 for place and show. Valdina Orphan returned $5.20.

The time for the race was an undistinguished 2:04 2-5. The first quarter was run in :23 3-5, the half in :47 2-5, and the mile in 1:39. The record for the Derby and the track is the 2:01 2-5 set by Whirlaway last year.

A peculiar feature of the betting was a plunge on With Regards. This horse was known to have good early speed but few conceded him much chance of carrying it for a mile and a quarter. As a result most morning lines listed him at odds in the neighborhood of 15 to 1. But the fans began betting him heavily shortly before post time and he closed at about 5½ to 1. As had been expected he went out to make the pace but weakened in the stretch and finished fourth. Going out of the starting gate he incurred a leg cut which bled

RED SOX RALLY IN NINTH TO DEFEAT BROWNS, 11 TO 10

Williams' Homer with One On Is Deciding Blow.

Boston, Mass., May 2 (AP).—Coming from behind twice and aided by Ted Williams' fifth home run of the season in the ninth inning, the Boston Red Sox slugged their way to an 11 to 10 victory over the St. Louis Browns today.

Williams' homer scored Johnny Pesky and pulled the Sox back on even terms with the Browns, who had counted twice in their half of the inning to break an 8 to 8 deadlock. Paul Campbell, who ran for Jimmy Foxx, scored the winning run on a double by Bobby Doerr. The Browns scored five runs in the third inning, during which Chet Laabs hit a home run with the bases filled. Score:

New York, May 2 (AP).—A two run homer by Rudy York, his second of the game, broke up a pitching duel between Tommy Bridges and Marius Russo in the ninth inning today and gave the Detroit Tigers a 3 to 1 victory over the New York Yankees for a sweep of the two game series.

Russo, making his first appearance of the year, yielded only four hits in the first eight innings, but one was York's second inning homer with the bases empty. Score:

Eight Pirates Get 2 Hits Each in Beating Dodgers Again, 10-5

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 2 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates landed on three Brooklyn pitchers for 17 hits today and whipped the Dodgers, 10-5, for a sweep of the two game series. Southpaw Aldon Wilkie went all the way for the Pirates, who pulled to within two games of the league-leading Dodgers. Eight Pirates made two hits each.

Curt Davis who started the game with a record of three victories and no defeats, was knocked out before the end of the first inning and Schoolboy Rowe made his first appearance as a Dodger. He kept things in hand until the fourth. Score:

HARVARD CREWS ROW AWAY WITH REGATTA HONORS

Princeton, N. J., May 2 (AP).—Harvard's oarsmen won everything they went after in the 10th annual Compton Cup regatta on Lake Carnegie today. The Crimson varsity won the cup for the sixth successive year, defeating Princeton by a length and three quarters in the feature race after Harvard shells had taken the freshman and junior varsity events. The 150 pound race, which Harvard did not enter, went to Princeton.

Stroked by Darcy Curwen of Exeter, N. H., Harvard covered the mile and three quarters varsity course in 9:19.2. Harvard let Syracuse set the pace for the first three quarters of a mile but assumed a half deck lead at the mile. Princeton then overtook Syracuse, and it was a two boat race the rest of the way. Syracuse finished two lengths behind Princeton, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology was another three lengths back.

pass to Bill Werber who was forced by Nick Witek, Bartell scoring. Manager Mel Ott also walked, but Young popped to Rip Russell.

The Cubs broke into the base running class in the second inning when Nicholson led off with a single. Melton then set down the next three batters. The next base running job by the Cubs also was by Nicholson. He slashed his two bagger into right in the fourth, but there were two out and the third one came on Lou Novikoff's pop to Witek. The third Cub hit, a single by Lou Stringer, opened the fifth and Melton again refused to budge.

Nicholson Makes a Sparkler.

Erickson's woes in the sixth came when Young and Willard Marshall led off with singles and Herb Barna smacked a wicked liner to deep right. Nicholson, sprinting along in front of the vines, perpetrated a gloved hand robbery. Danning then fouled to Babe Dahlgren and McCullough rendered additional first aid by picking Rookie Marshall off first.

The Cubs wasted their biggest chance in the seventh. Nicholson singled for his third hit and Novikoff beat out a bunt. Stringer tried to sacrifice, failed, and then drove a liner into Ott's hands, Nicholson taking third after the catch. Dahlgren poked the ball to Melton, who ignored Nicholson tearing toward the plate and calmly threw to Bartell, who relayed to Young for a double play. The next and last Cub hit was McCullough's single which launched the eighth, but nothing followed except three outs.

The Cubs will play their first double header today in Wrigley field with the Phillies, those eternal defenders of eighth place. The Cubs will rely on Bill Lee and Hiram Bithorn for their pitching, and the Phils on Tom Hughes and Rube Melton.

J. Wellington Quinn, better known as Wimpy, was returned to the Madison, Wis., club yesterday under option. The release of the slat shaped pitcher cut the Cub squad to 29, leaving four more to go before the May 15 deadline.

Vern [Lefty] Olsen, who hasn't pitched since a White Sox drive cracked two fingers on his work hand during a spring game, thinks he may be back on the job very shortly. He has been undergoing a new course of treatment for loosening up the two injured digits, and the results have aroused the young man's optimism.

SOX SHOULD FIT IN WITH NEW YORK'S DISMAL DIM-OUTS

Dykes Team May at Least Profit at Gate Today.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 2.—Dimout is the big word here. Blackout is an obsolescent term in New Yorkese. We mention this because the White Sox, who open a four game series in Yankee stadium tomorrow, may prove well synchronized to the dimout consciousness here, and thereby profit at the gate, if not otherwise.

We hope it does not seem frivolous to compare the Sox's fadeout thus far this season to the dimouts that have so justifiably excited greater New York. If anything ever was thrown into a haze, without actually being blacked out, it is Mr. Dykes' current outfit.

There's a Difference.

The consoling feature of a dim-out, as contrasted with a blackout, is that in a dim-out things seem pretty dismal, but you can see your way out. In a blackout you are supposed to stay right where you are, scarcely moving a muscle. The White Sox can't afford to do that any longer, and we hope they realize it when they arrive in New York tonight from Philadelphia, where both major league teams frequently find themselves in a blackout in broad daylight.

The Sox's four game stay opens with a synthetic double header tomorrow. Not in recent memory has there been a Chicago-New York synthetic double header in Yankee stadium in May. For two reasons: Until this year there was a rule against manufactured double headers on the first intersectional jaunt and, besides, President Ed Barrow of the Yanks long has been opposed to Sunday double headers effected by moving up a game scheduled for the future—as in this case, in which the engagement scheduled for Aug. 27 was moved up.

A Turnstile Stimulant.

One might imagine the Yanks themselves were eager to feast on the Sox while they are in a fainting condition, but the double header idea is purely a turnstile stimulant. As a matter of fact, some of the Yank players are leary of a team that has been the surprising flop the Sox have been. It is a matter of painful recent memory, for instance, that the St. Louis Browns halted a nine game losing streak and thumped the Yanks twice this week.

While it was just one afternoon, of course, the Yankees really didn't look so vicious against Dizzy Trout in the game we saw yesterday. They made only four hits off Trout and the Sox have four pitchers generally rated as skilful.

One of the features of the series may be the breaking of the lifetime victory deadlock between Ted Lyons and Red Ruffing.

The records of the two old timers, with each having worked three complete games this year, follow: Lyons, 20th year, 572 games, won 246, lost 222. Ruffing, 18th year, 575 games, won 246, lost 210.

Lyons, who lost a four hitter to the Washington Senators last Thursday, 1 to 0, won't be ready to go before Tuesday's final.

Soon after the fracas the White Sox were on their way to New York. Edgar Smith and Bill Dietrich of the A's alumni will oppose Red Ruffing and Atley Donald, both right handers.

Giants Recall Outfielder from Jersey City Farm

The New York Giants announced the recall of Outfielder Buster Maynard yesterday from their Jersey City farm of the International league. Maynard, a right hand hitter, will join the Giants tomorrow in Cincinnati. With Hank Leiber nursing a leg injury and Rookie Howard Moss going hitless in 14 trips to the plate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 2.—"There's absolutely nobody here," the press photographers and society reporters are complaining as they push their way thru the aisles of the clubhouse at Churchill Downs where the 68th annual Kentucky Derby will be run shortly. "I can't see a soul," whispers a Louisville newspaper woman in my ear as she passes, elbowing her way between men and women milling in both directions.

There's no one more snobbish than reporters and photographers who are covering an event where society and celebrities are supposed to be present en massé. In private life these same men and women are the most democratic people in the world, but in business they scorn any one whose name isn't widely known. Their idea of heaven would be a place where every other person there was easily recognizable from the pictures of him or her which had appeared in the newspapers and magazines. This being true, historic Churchill Downs on Derby day of this war year isn't a happy hunting ground for lion hunters, but it's a gala, jolly occasion just the same, with about 80,000 enjoying the atmosphere of informity and good fellowship that fills the stands from the cheapest to the most expensive seats.

Comfortable in Wash Cottons.

Topcoats and fur scarves were discarded long ago and the women who look the most comfortable are those who have on wash cottons and white hats and shoes. Many are hatless now, altho few entered that way. Army and navy uniforms and every sort of Red Cross uniform are enough in evidence to remind one that we are a nation at war even tho so many thousands are playing here this afternoon. The Red Cross is to receive fifty thousand dollars as a result of the afternoon's program, however.

Mint juleps are being sold by girls who are wending their way thru the crowd, for juleps and the Derby have become almost synonymous. But it's a well-behaved crowd and a colorful one. Most of the women are in bright colored frocks, or if they have on dark suits or gowns, they have gay accessories. Red, white, and blue pennants and Red Cross and American flags are waving above the infield, which was a restful and a beautiful sight when we entered just before the first race at high noon with a wide expanse of green grass and numerous flower beds glowing with dark red and chartreuse yellow blossoms.

Don Ameche of Movies Present.

Hollywood, Washington, New York, and Chicago have not sent as many representatives as usual to this most famous of all American races. Don Ameche is the only movie star we've seen. "The Vice President's here," some one confides, but he must mean the vice president of some company or institution other than the United States of America for we can find no one who looks like Mr. Wallace. Jim Farley is here with his daughter, Betty, and Mrs. Mitchell Palmer and Mrs. Lawrence [Chip] Robert, among others. Mrs. Palmer is one of the most stunning women at the track. She is all in black except for a shoulder bouquet of pink roses and valley lilies. Mrs. Robert is simply dressed in a powder blue gabardine suit and a white tailored blouse. Her gardenia shows the fatigue and heat of the afternoon, but she looks cool and charming.

Mrs. McNutt in Chartreuse Green.

Mrs. Paul V. McNutt is another stunning woman who has come from Washington for the event. She is a guest of Tom Taggart and his sister, Miss Lucy. Mr. McNutt is not here this afternoon, having stayed in French Lick Springs, where he and his wife are visiting Mr. Taggart, to work. Mrs. McNutt's chartreuse green suit is accented by accessories of navy blue and Miss Taggart is in navy and white.

Nearby sit three Chicago women, Mrs. Warren Wright, Mrs. Otto W. Lehmann, and Mrs. Harry Lobdell. Their husbands are in the box and so are Mr. and Mrs. John S. Knight of Akron, O., and Miami, Fla. Mrs. Wright is wearing a beige wool suit with a shocking pink silk blouse and a high knitted turban in the same bright pink, green, gold, purple, and blue. Her earrings are inch square amethysts. Pretty Mrs. Lehmann has on a navy blue suit, a white blouse and a white hat trimmed with small red flowers and a red veil. Mrs. Lobdell looks trim and smart in a pale beige silk shirtwaist dress and a little green hat ornamented with little vegetables: turnips, radishes, carrots, tomatoes, etc. Mrs. Knight, who has prematurely gray hair, is lovely in a navy blue suit and a small blue hat trimmed with white porcupine quills.

Enjoy Picnic Luncheon.

A few boxes away are the John D. Hertzes, and the Leonard Florsheims, just finishing a picnic luncheon. That's really the way to enjoy a Derby, and there are dozens of box parties doing it that way this year. The Hertzes brought their fried chicken, deviled eggs, sandwiches, and drinks from their farm near Paris, Ky. Mrs. Hertz is wearing a stunning black suit and a shiny black straw hat trimmed with a bow of black and white checked taffeta and one little red rose. Mrs. Florsheim's ceil blue and white printed frock is comfortable looking and her hat is one of the prettiest here. It is a small, high crowned natural color baku straw with several pink roses clustered at the front and a narrow sapphire blue velvet band encircling the crown where it joins the brim.

James A. Farley, former postmaster general, who hasn't missed a Derby in many years, has as his box guest his charming daughter Betty.

The governor of Illinois, Dwight Green, and his pretty wife were expected to drive over from French Lick Springs where they have been enjoying a brief holiday, but a girl scout meeting in Springfield and a meeting in Chicago made it necessary for them to leave this morning. Needless to say, it is the Springfield meeting Mrs. Green is attending this afternoon.

Just as we are thinking how few Chicagoans there are here we see attractive young Mrs. Robert F. Carr Jr., and her brother, Samuel A. Culbertson II., and his wife. Mrs. Carr has on a sleek, dark blue gabardine suit with pumps of the same material. Her blouse is white and so is the facing of her blue hat which has an off-the-face wide brim. Her sister-in-law also is wearing a navy blue suit and a white blouse. Her hat is a cunning one, of white eyelet embroidery, stiffened so that it is crisp and fresh. It has a narrow brim on a low crown and the only trimming is a bow of the same material.

Norman Gerlachs Appear.

Here come another Chicago couple, the Norman Gerlachs, who also are enjoying a short vacation at French Lick. Mrs. Gerlach's dark curls are topped by a bunch of yellow daisies and her blous is of soft beige. The skirt has the same neutral background, but it is printed in large flowers in yellow, red, and green. Prints, as seen here today, are large and bold in design and color. Mrs. Albert Sabbath, who owns Alsab, would always have a winner if her charm bracelet worked, for she has dozens of golden charms hanging on her right wrist. Her large hat and gown are both of emerald green.

One of the most colorful costumes in the boxes is the one Robert J. Dunham's bride is wearing. It is of bright royal blue printed in a border design of red and green. Her narrow brimmed sailor is of the printed silk. She is carrying a white bag and her white sandals are studded with brass nail heads. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wirtz, Stuyvesant Peabody, the junior A. D. Plamondon, Judge and Mrs. Michael Igoe, and Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Eben are the only other Chicagoans we've been able to find in this mammoth crowd.

Cherry Trifle Wins Feature at Sportsman's

Cherry Trifle ran the fastest seven-eighths mile of the meeting to capture the Sportsman's Park handicap yesterday before 17,000 at the Cicero track.

Cherry Trifle covered the seven furlongs in 1:29 1-5 to beat Three Clovers by a nose.

The 5 year old gelding by Questionnaire-Cherry Tart was far back in the early stages and moved up swiftly on the outside rounding the second turn to wear down the leaders. Three Clovers, also slow in settling into stride, closed strongly for second, a length and one-half in front of Equistar, the early pace setter, and Vinum, which shared third with Equistar.

Don MacAndrew rode the winner, which was overlooked in the betting and paid $15.80 to win.

Bellcoda Wins Opener.

Bellcoda won the opening race. After taking a three length lead rounding the clubhouse turn, Bellcoda stayed in front all the way around in the 5 furlong dash.

Millfang, the favorite, broke down on the backstretch, causing Jockey Marion Haycock on Wahlune to fall headlong onto the turf. Haycock suffered bruises which made it necessary for him to cancel a mount on Midluck in the third race.

Bellcoda finished two lengths in front of Arched with a long shot, Gray Ethel, third. Willie Gillespie rode the winner, which paid $9.60.

Hasty Star won the second race at 5 furlongs to form a $64.80 daily double combination with Bellcoda.

Hasty Star, which paid $12.60 to win, finished three-quarters of a length in front of Roidef, a 33 to 1 shot, which beat C. C. Curtiss, the favorite, for second money. Jockey Michael Meckler rode the winner.

Long shot players were rewarded with a winner in the third race when Deep End, racing at 11 to 1 odds, took a seven furlong sprint over a field of nine others. Deep End finished five lengths in front of Axelson, also quoted at 11 to 1, with Conscript, the favorite, out of the money. Midluck was third.

Deep End paid $25.20 for $2 and was ridden by Jesse Higley.

PURDUE BLACK ELEVEN BEATS GOLDS, 39 TO 0

Lafayette, Ind., May 2 [Special].—Displaying a deceptive attack that made frequent use of laterals, Coach Elmer Burnham's Black eleven defeated the Golds, 39 to 0, in a football game here this afternoon that brought Purdue's spring drill session to a close.

Burnham's short punt offense broke backs loose for long runs with frequency, Bob Hajzyk, veteran quarter back, turning in the longest scoring dash of the day when he ran 60 yards.

Among the freshmen backs who made an appearance during the day, the performances of Andy Berkley, Dayton, Ky., and Henry Stram of Gary, Ind., were outstanding. Berkley scored a touchdown on a lateral from John Andretich, while Stram broke loose inside tackle for another. The Black scoring was started by Bill Shimer on an end run and shortly after Ed Cycenas went over from the 1 yard line.

SHUT OUT WINS KENTUCKY DERBY; ALSAB RUNS 2D

Valdina Orphan Is Third; Time Is 2:04⅖.

quite a bit as he was brought back to be unsaddled.

Report Jockeys Clash.

Following the race it was reported that Basil James, Alsab's rider, and Leon Haas, who was aboard Requested, engaged in an altercation in the jockey room. Their horses were in very close quarters going into the clubhouse turn and it was generally assumed that the trouble, if any, was because James blamed Haas for forcing Alsab to the rail. The stewards, however, seemed to be of a different opinion because there was no investigation of interference in the race.

In the course of the afternoon, Matt J. Winn, president of Churchill Downs, presented a $50,000 check to the American Red Cross as one of the contributions which his racing enterprises are making toward the war effort. Winn, who has built up the Derby from an event of local significance to a national institution, was well pleased with the size of the crowd which gathered despite unsettled transportation difficulties and other developments brought on by the war.

Alsab Forced to Rail.

The Derby started with a helter skelter dash for position as Starter Ruby White sent the field away in good alignment. With Regards and Dogpatch were in front on the first dash past the stands, with Valdina Orphan and Shut Out close up. James whipped Alsab to get him going fast in the opening rush but he was crowded over steadily, was jammed to the rail going into the clubhouse turn, and was settled into 10th position before they had completed the swing around the curve.

As the field settled into definite form to begin the run down the back stretch, With Regards was still setting the pace. Valdina Orphan, Dogpatch, and Shut Out were head and head, two lengths further back. In the next flight came Devil Diver, Fair Call, and Apache. Requested, Sir War, and Alsab were striding along behind these, but Requested already was beginning to show signs of a dull effort.

They went into the far turn and the struggle for the lead tightened up. On the curve, With Regards held his position but they were pressing him harder now—with Valdina Orphan and Shut Out pounding at his heels and Alsab moving with a sweeping rush, swinging around the curve on the outside picking up his opponents one by one.

The Pace Grows Hotter.

Into the stretch they came and settled down for the hard straight drive of a quarter mile to the finish. It was With Regards in front by half a length over Valdina Orphan with Shut Out and Alsab close behind.

With Regards began to give away. Shut Out and Valdina Orphan went on head and head as they reached midstretch. Alsab still was fourth. In the last furlong Shut Out drew clear of Valdina Orphan. Meanwhile Alsab came up to conquer With Regards and to catch the Orphan in the closing strides.

The mutuel betting handle on the Derby alone was $631,198 as compared with $654,353 last year. The total handle for the day was $1,983,011. In 1941 is was $1,935,651.

Vagrancy Wins $10,000 Oaks, Filly Fixture

Baltimore, Md., May 2 (AP).—Vagrancy, royally bred 3 year old filly owned by William Woodward, won the $10,000 added Pimlico Oaks today before a crowd of approximately 22,000. Vagrancy, daughter of Sir Galahad III. and Valkyr, by Man-o-War, won by half a length over C. S. Howard's Chiquita Mia, while A. A. Baroni's Bonnet Ann was another seven lengths back in third place in the field of seven 3 year old fillies.

Mally Outrides Roberts.

Tommy Mally outrode Porter Roberts in the homestretch, bringing Vagrancy up on the rail to overtake the Howard filly about 50 yards from the wire. The dark bay filly, favored in the wagering, covered the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:45 3-5 and picked up a purse of $9,375 in winning her second victory in four starts this year. Vagrancy paid $5.90 for $2.

Copperette Shows Way.

Foxcatcher farms' Copperette showed the way for the first three-quarters, with Chiquita Mia and Vagrancy close on her heels. Chiquita Mia took command rounding the far turn, while Vagrancy moved up to second place and Copperette dropped back to third.

Swinging into the homestretch, Chiquita Mia appeared to have a safe lead, but Roberts left a space on the rail and Mally brought Vagrancy thru in a tight squeeze to overhaul Chiquita Mia in the final strides.

YALE CREW WINS BY 5½ LENGTHS; PENNSYLVANIA 2D

Derby, Conn., May 2 (AP).—Yale's varsity crew, rowing with a rhythm that belied its lack of experience, sped to a 5½ length victory over the University of Pennsylvania today to win the 20th renewal of the Blackwell cup regatta. Columbia, the favorite, was last.

Yale, with only two veterans in the shell, stroked a heady race under the guidance of Sophomore Jeff Walker of Greenwich to finish in 11 minutes 5 seconds. Penn was 22 4/5 seconds off the pace.

TRIBUNE'S GOLF SCHOOL FACULTY USES PRIMER

Instructors to Concentrate on ABC's.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

THE TRIBUNE'S tenth annual free golf school, opening Tuesday night on the four courses of the Chicago park district, boasts a faculty whose program does not include courses in geometry or other fancy studies. These men, members of the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' Association of America, will concentrate on the A B C's of the game—the grip, the stance, and the swing.

All teachers in the school realize how easy it is to bewilder the raw beginner with a barrage of intricate, technical terms. In the preceding nine years of the school they have conducted the classes on the theory that a sound golf game is founded on the simple fundamentals, and not on any complicated groundwork.

The members of the Illinois PGA are professional men in the same sense as doctors and lawyers. They have devoted their lives to the teaching and advancement of the game, gaining their positions only after an intensive five years' apprenticeship. They are donating their services to the school for the tenth consecutive year.

Mikes on Special Platform.

Each teacher occupies the same rank in the school, but four men will be detailed to handle the microphone at each course, during the regular lessons of the school which are set for Tuesday and Thursday of this week, and for Tuesday, May 12, and Thursday, May 14. The men detailed to the mikes will handle these from especially erected platforms equipped with public address systems.

Alex Cunningham of North Shore, president of the section, will concentrate most of his teaching work at Diversey. The foursome in charge of the mikes will be Matt Matteson of Ridge, secretary and treasurer, at Jackson park; Bill Gordon of Tam o' Shanter, the section's tournament chairman, at Columbus park; Harry Kinnell of Edgewood Valley, at Marquette park, and Jock Anderson of Techny Fields at Diversey.

Others on Faculty Listed.

Among others on the faculty, men who have braved wet weather and raw in order to conduct the classes, and at great expense to themselves are Jerry Glynn of Knollwood; Dick Dickerson of Mill Road Farm; Harry Adams and Charley Penna of Medinah; Bob Ledger of Deerfield; Eddie Gayer of Twin Orchard; Packy Walsh of Marquette; Joe Roseman of Pickwick; Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley, past national PGA president, who was one of the inventors of the school idea; By Chamberlain of Glen Oak; Herb Johnson of Butterfield; Maurie White of La Grange; Jack White of the Green Diamond Range; Alex Pirie of Old Elm; Walley Apel of Ravisloe; Bruce Herd of Flossmoor; Chuck Tanis of Olympia Fields; Johnny Gibson of Westmoreland; Jim Noonan of Burnham Woods; Bill Brown of Aurora; Walter Keller of Keller's Fairways; Tommy Meehan of Illinois; Jimmy Meehan of Riverside, and John Bird of South Shore.

Athletics Beat White Sox in Ninth, 7 to 6

the Sox a start and they scored four runs for a 5 to 5 tie. The Sox picked up another one in the seventh when Dick Fowler was summoned to relieve Wolff. This lead lasted only until the A's could bat, Grove wild-pitching a run home for the 6 to 6 tie which Wagner shattered in the ninth.

Appling Gets Three Hits.

In the first inning, Luke Appling made the first of his three hits, which represented his biggest afternoon of the season. Luke even got to second base after being trapped, but Myril Hoag grounded out.

Ross started out by walking Mike Kreevich. Elmer Valo drove a triple against the right field wall and the parade was on. Valo scored on Lou Blair's infield out. Johnson's walk was followed by Siebert's triple and Wagner's single for two runs. There were more items, such as a wild pitch and a base on balls, but the unhappy inning ended when Ross fanned Wolff.

Grove hit his homer into the left field bleachers in the third with one out. The A's got the run back in their half on Siebert's double and Wagner's single.

Sox Get 4—with A's Aid.

The Sox's tying sixth started when Wally Moses was safe on Blair's fumble. Appling reached first when Siebert juggled his grounder. After Don Kolloway popped up, Hoag singled to short center, filling the bases. A walk to Joe Kuhel, who twice previously had singled, fetched Moses home. Sam West's single to right center scored Appling and Hoag. Kuhel came in while Blair was tossing out Bob Kennedy.

Moses' walk, Appling's single, and Kolloway's infield hit made it 6 to 5 for the Sox in the seventh. Then Fowler came in and got Hoag and Kuhel on popups to Wagner.

Valo opened the Philadelphia seventh by walking and Blair bunted safely down the third base line. After Johnson sacrificed, Siebert was purposely passed, filling the bases. Wagner finally was stopped by a strike out, but Grove threw the ball past Catcher Tom Turner while pitching to Jack Wallaesa and Valo counted.

Both teams went out in order in the eighth. Appling singled in the ninth with one out, but was nailed trying to reach second.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Part of crowd attending one of last year's Tribune free golf school sessions presided over by Bill Gordon of Tam O'Shanter at the microphone. Gordon again is a member of the faculty which will instruct pupils when classes open Tuesday on the four courses of the Chicago park district—Jackson park, Columbus park, Marquette park, and Diversey in Lincoln park. Gordon will handle the mike at Columbus park. The sessions of the school last season attracted 72,000 men, women, and children in the Chicago area.

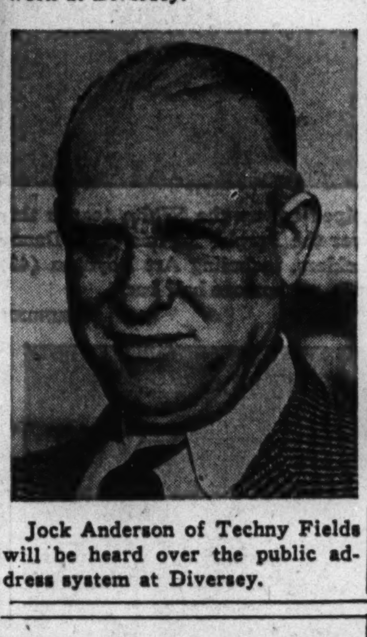
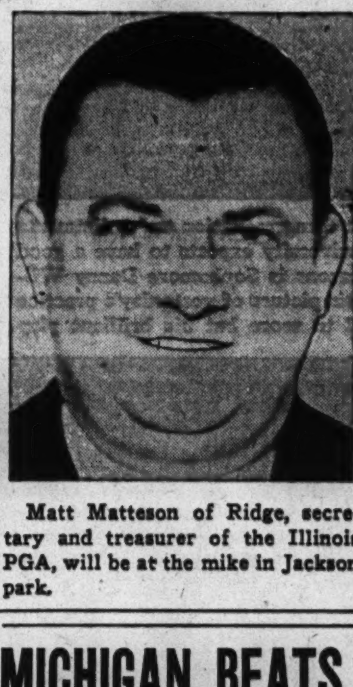
In charge of the microphone at Marquette park will be Harry Kinnell of Edgewood Valley.



Jock Anderson of Techny Fields will be heard over the public address system at Diversey.



Matt Matteson of Ridge, secretary and treasurer of the Illinois PGA, will be at the mike in Jackson park.

SPARTA BATTLES GALLATINS FOR WESTERN TITLE

BY OFFSIDE.

The Sparta soccer team of Chicago makes a final attempt today to take the national western open championship when it meets the Gallatin Sport club of Gallatin, Pa., in the second match of a two game series on Sparta field, 21st street and Kostner avenue. The Gallatins won the first game of the total goal series, 2 to 0.

The loss by Sparta proved costly in the team's lineup as well as the score, for Tony Posejpal, Jerry Rezak, and Laddie Mrnka all suffered injuries. Posejpal, who was released from a hospital only last Thursday, will be out for the rest of the season. Manager Raymond Schwarzkopf hopes, however, to play Rezak and Mrnka. Tom Scott, full back, who played only a few minutes last week because of illness, is expected to be in the lineup today. Sparta, however, has obtained Henry Kuhn, a former Center Sports club star, who will be paired with Jimmy Wolf on the left wing.

Gallatins Have Strong Team.

North Country Trout Fishing Season Opens

BY BOB BECKER.

It's trout fishin' time in the north country. The sport that claims thousands of anglers again is under way. Just as spring marks the birth of a new season replete with the songs of migrating birds and the fragrance of wild flowers, so trout fishing in the north symbolizes the beginning of a new cycle of angling enjoyment to millions of fishermen.

Down south anglers turn to the black bass as the fish to give them fun in many states when the month of May comes around. For example, down in Mississippi the spring bass season opened on the first of the month. But up in the pine forest country anglers at this time of the year crown the trout as the aristocrats of clear streams.

They're Hardy Anglers.

Years ago it dawned on us that apparently the trout fisherman is a slightly balmy sports enthusiast who thinks less of his health and comfort than possibly any other group of anglers. For example, we recall one opening on May 1 when Jack Mylrea hustled us into a forested country, now a part of a national forest, parked us in his comfortable woods car on a narrow gauge logging railroad that ran next to a beautiful trout stream, and left us to go after our fish. We fished the first morning in a snowstorm and we wished our red underwear was electrically wired for heat. It was the finest pneumonia weather we ever saw on a trout stream. But the brook trout hit like fools.

If a beginner wants to start fly fishing for trout [and other species of fresh water fish from bluegills to bass] he should be careful about picking his outfit. An assembly of rod, reel, and line that casts easily doesn't cost a lot of money but it should have balance.

Must Use Proper Rod.

Not all fly lines can be cast by any rods. One must get a line [and reel] that fits a rod of certain resiliency, weight, and length. That's balance. It makes for quick mastery of fly fishing, to say nothing of comfort on a stream. To force a trout rod to cast a line too heavy for the rod is plain work.

Manufacturers have made great strides in producing complete balanced units for fly fishing, so complete that everything needed for tossing a lure at a fish is included in them. [You can find them in most any tackle store.] Beginners will find many tips on trout and other forms of fishing in the Tribune's lure book entitled "Which Lures and Where."

N. U. WHITES WIN FROM PURPLE IN SPRING CLIMAX

Williams Paces Eleven to 20 to 0 Victory.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Northwestern university's version of the widely publicized T formation was placed on display yesterday afternoon in Dyche stadium in the annual game ending spring football practice. Superior personnel revolving principally around Danny Williams, left half back, gave the White eleven a 20 to 0 victory over the Purple squad.

In general, Northwestern's spring drills have concentrated on development of a quarter back and a center, altho graduation of two sets of backs from the 1941 varsity probably points to an overall problem this fall for Coach Lynn Waldorf and his assistants. Nineteen letter men of 1941 will be absent when the Wildcats start their 10 game schedule which opens in Dyche stadium against the naval cadets from Iowa City, who will be coached by Maj. Bernie Bierman. Bernie left Minnesota for military service with a record of 17 consecutive victories.

Graham Doesn't Play.

Otto Graham, outstanding left half back, and three sophomore backs of last year, Ed Hirsch, Don Buffmire, and Dud Kean, as well as a pair of varsity ends, Bob Motl and Bud Hasse, did not participate in spring football practice drill.

The Northwestern version of the T formation, which admittedly is an experiment, offered only a few fundamental plays yesterday. Whether these will be used to supplement Waldorf's power attack from an unbalanced line, or whether they largely will place that offense is not known.

Yesterday the Wildcat teams handled the ball by direct pass from center, used an unbalanced line to right exclusively, and then shifted the right half from the three backs in a row alignment to right or left wing back before the ball was snapped. The quarter back was stationed before the guard next to the center and he was used as a backer.

Variations Are Discussed.

The variations of the T formation attack were discussed at a clinic of coaches yesterday morning by Ralph Jones of Lake Forest college, who served three years as coach of the Chicago Bears and introduced many of the plays that the professionals used for two years to dominate the National league. Line play was the subject for a competent demonstration by Burt Ingwersen, Northwestern's line coach. One hundred and fifty coaches attended and remained for the game.

The shifty Williams, who was at safety for the victorious Whites, played brilliantly and his return of kicks repeatedly drew applause. Harry Franck, brother of Minnesota's All-American George Franck, demonstrated his forward passing skill and the entire White line had a decided advantage in blocking.

While the Purple was routed, intercepted passes twice checked advances deep in scoring territory. Moreover, Joe Scriba, left half of the Purples, undoubtedly will see varsity service this fall. Nick Vodick, right half, John Winter, full back, and Vince Di Francesca, right tackle, were other new men of ability on the losers' team.

55 Yards to Touchdown.

The Whites scored in the first period when Franck passed to Bob Wallis, right end. Wallis was cornered on the east side line but lateraled to Bill Ohland, his left end, who ran thirty yards to the goal. The play covered fifty-five yards. Wallis place kicked the point.

Scriba and Vodick then led a Purple drive that failed on the Whites' 11 yard line when Hal Hudson's pass was intercepted.

In the second period, after Williams' punt return of twenty-five yards had brought the ball to midfield, and another of ten yards had placed the ball on the Purple's 24 yard line, Adelman plunged for eight yards. On second down, Adelman faked a plunge, handed the ball to Wallis, who then lateraled to Williams. Danny circled the left end of the Purple line for a touchdown. Williams' kick for the point was low.

Wallis Scores Again.

Wallis scored the last White touchdown early in the third quarter. Winter plunged and was stopped at the line of scrimmage and then he tried to lateral to his right. The ball was batted high in the air by a White lineman and Wallis recovered and ran twenty yards to the goal. Wallis kicked the final point.

A SOPHOMORE WILDCAT SHOWS HIS CLAWS

'42 Notre Dame Varsity Tied by Old Timers

Notre Dame, Ind., May 2 [Special]. —The Notre Dame Old Timers showed a fine disdain for the mysteries of Coach Frank Leahy's newly installed T-formation by battling the 1942 Fighting Irish varsity to a 0 to 0 tie in the annual game which concluded spring drills this afternoon. Fumbles and poor blocking marred the varsity attack. Proceeds went to the Tommy Yarr fund for the education of the three children of the late Notre Dame captain and All-American center.

Angelo Bertelli, whose deadly passing of last fall was only a threat today, recovered a fumble on the Old Timer 30 yard line early in the first period, but the varsity had to punt after losing eight yards in three plays.

SPOTTING THE PINS

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

The Budweiser team captained by Joe Wilman won the city championship Windy City league crown, is leading the ABC tournament, and is probable champion in the Randolph league. Now another Budweiser five, captained by Mrs. Joe appears to be almost "in" the Congress Women's Major circuit. The team took a three game lead by winning three from the Riddell shoes Wednesday, and incidentally stretched its winning streak to 21 games. The second place Goransons dropped the odd game to the Logan Square Buicks thereby dropping into a second place tie with the Buicks. Betty Brugman shot 602 for the night's high total. . . . In the Playdium Major, the Logan Square kept their one game margin by winning a full set from the Mission Beverages behind Nina Van Camp's 657 series, including a 244 game.

At South Shore Agnes Pitelka had 642, with a middle game of 233. . . . Ethel Kelly was high in Ted Lyons' Major with 550, while Jean Butrim and Grace Cole each got 523 for high at Queen. And out at Red Crown in Evanston, Marie Culver, a 120 shooter, became the first woman to have her name placed on the house's 250 club honor roll. She got 250 on the nose. . . . More house's "400" captured the C. & N. W. 400 league title by nine games with 67 won and 38 lost. Challengers finished with a three victory to take runner-up honors by one game over Streamliners. . . . Tressa Wymer was the Beverly Tuesday major's star with 591, which included two 200 plus efforts.

Vince Musial Fires 802 Series on Gold Coast Alleys.

That 802 series fired by Vince Musial of De Luxe recreation at Gold Coast in Greater Chicago Traveling league competition gave Vince a bigger bounce than the 205 average with which he set the circuit's all time record average last year. It was the state's high and the nation's fourth high for the year. It was achieved on games of 248, 267, and, after 10 in a row to start the last game, 287. His team won three with a 3,194 count. George Frey of Meister Brau hit 702. . . . The Chicago Association of Commerce league, a 38 team circuit this season, anticipates a membership of 300—or 60 teams—next year. Illinois Bell Telephone and Chicago-Rock Island lead the Thursday section with 58 won and 26 lost, while A. R. Barnes & Co. paces the Friday section by four games. L. J. Ottomeyer is the driving force behind the league.

The Strachan Coals piled in a 3,153 total to win three from the Harry Harts in the Beverly Major on Friday night. Ad Plunge of the Eden Insurance team rolled the night's high series, 680. Other scores:

Ronnie Long piled in three big games for 738 in the South Shore major, followed by C. Scardine with 681. J. Caporale, shooting a double header at South Shore, had two 571 series. Bill Pope rolled 597 series on successive weeks and Herb Swanson 596 series the same two weeks. . . . Steve Owen, longtime member of the Burlington Zephyrs who was critically injured in an automobile accident last year, returned to the alleys for the first time since then in Randolph league competition Thursday. . . . Tournament standings:

Windy City handicap—Teams: Mineralites, 1,384; singles, Edward Early, 736; all events, H. Lavine, 1,969

Big 10 Fives Will Play 13 Games in 1943

Big Ten conference basketball teams will play a 13 game conference schedule in 1943, according to the announcement of schedule dates made yesterday by Maj. John L. Griffith, Western conference commissioner.

That change marks an abandonment of the 15 game schedule in effect for the 1942 season, and was accomplished by the University of Chicago's request for permission to play only nine conference games, one with each member school. The remaining nine schools will play four home and home series and single games with five opponents, including Chicago.

The 1943 Western conference basketball schedule follows:

Frisch, Lopez Draw $50 Fines After Argument

New York, May 2 (AP).—Ford Frick, president of the National league, today imposed fines of $50 each on Frank Frisch, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and Al Lopez, the Pirates' catcher, for their part in a ninth inning argument with Umpire Larry Goetz during yesterday's Pittsburgh-Brooklyn game.

The argument began when Goetz called Billy Herman of the Dodgers safe at home plate on a close play. The Pirate protests were so heated that Goetz chased Frisch, Lopez, and Coach Jake Flowers.

SIR ROMEO WINS GOLD CUP RACE; BLOCKADE DIES

Warrenton, Va., May 2 (AP).—Sir Romeo, owned by Mrs. A. S. Carhart of Warrenton, won the 21st running today of the Virginia gold cup race, four mile steeplechase classic over the Broadview course. Blockade, three times winner of the famous Maryland cup, fell and broke his neck in the early part of the race after closely contesting with Sir Romeo, the lead. After Blockade fell, the winner was never headed. Sir Romeo was ridden by Robert Utterback.

Second in the race was Houseman, owned by C. M. Greer Jr. of Middleburg, and ridden by J. Harrison. Third place went to Sun Alv, owned by F. A. O'Keefe Jr., of near Warrenton, and ridden by R. Ridgeway.

Goldun, gold cup winner last year, was scratched shortly before the race.

MORE FUEL OIL IS SOUGHT FOR EASTERN AREA

Ask Refiners to Cut Gasoline Ratio.

Washington, D. C., May 2 [Special]. —The petroleum industry in the east, middle west, and Texas was affected today by new moves to solve the gasoline and fuel oil problems of the Atlantic seaboard states. Among the developments were:

1. Eastern refineries were requested by Deputy Petroleum Coördinator Ralph K. Davies to produce as much fuel oil as possible [the navy needs are heavy] at the expense of other products, and those in the central states were urged to increase their percentage of heavy oils compared with the present oil-gasoline ratio.
2. Senators John Danaher [D., Conn.] and Henrik Shipstead [R., Minn.] announced their sponsorship of a bill calling on the maritime commission to spend 20 million dollars to construct tank barges to carry petroleum supplies thru interior waterways safe from enemy attack.
3. Coördinator Harold L. Ickes denied a request of Texas oil producers to raise the limit of crude production in May from 960,000 barrels to 1,500,000 barrels — on the ground of inadequate transportation.

Seek Fuel Oil in Midwest.

The Davies announcement made no mention of the possible effect on motorists of the new plans. An official said recently that readjustments to serve the seaboard might mean curtailment of gasoline supplies in all states east of the Mississippi.

Specifically, Davies asked the midwest refineries to reduce their gasoline output per barrel of crude to 80 per cent of the amount per barrel in 1941. This, it was assumed, would result in a larger production of the needed fuel oil.

Also, 112 refineries in the gulf coast area were asked to reduce their daily use of crude oil to 70.5 per cent of the amount processed per day in the last six months of 1941. Lack of transportation was blamed for this request. Ickes in his Texas ruling called attention to lack of storage space in the oil producing states.

The OPC disclosed that tank car movement of oil into the Atlantic coast area dropped 5.7 per cent during the week ended April 25. Shipments averaged 564,750 barrels daily compared with 599,500 barrels during the preceding week. Tank car shipments into the Pacific northwest during the week showed a 22 per cent increase from 23,980 to 29,314 barrels daily.

Eastern Savings Increased.

Ickes said more than 10,800,000 barrels of heavy fuel oil are being saved annually by east coast consumers who have voluntarily converted to coal and other fuels. This is an increase of almost 8,000,000 barrels since April 3 when consumers of heavy fuels had converted facilities burning 3,000,000 barrels a year. It was estimated that probably another 20,300,000 barrels a year can ultimately be saved by further conversions.

Meanwhile the Office of Price Administration issued warnings that hoarding gasoline in anticipation of rationing was "not only an unpatriotic act, but also an invitation to a serious fire." OPA said that keeping gasoline in cans or makeshift containers stored in the basement or garage was the same as handling a "dangerous explosive." The warning was issued at the suggestion of fire insurance and protection experts.

NEW SECURITIES OF 265 MILLION ISSUED IN APRIL

Flotations of new securities, exclusive of United States government obligations, aggregated $265,752,000 in April, comprising $261,352,000 in 26 bond issues and $4,400,000 in two stock offerings. March financing aggregated $109,749,000.

The April bond financing was the largest for any month since May, 1941, but, in contrast, flotations of new stock issues were in the smallest volume since January, 1941.

In the first four months of 1942, 104 bond issues with a face amount of $676,352,000 were marketed, compared with 193 issues aggregating $775,825,000 in the corresponding period last year. Stock offerings aggregated $54,220,000 for 13 issues, compared with $90,029,000 for 25 issues in the four months ended April 30, 1941.

Order 25,000 Firms to List Data for OPA

Washington, D. C., May 2 (AP).—Leon Henderson, price administrator, said today that approximately 25,000 business corporations would be required to make detailed financial reports to OPA in connection with studies of price control problems.

Reporting forms and an instruction book outlining the needed balance sheet and income account information will be distributed May 10 to the companies, each of which has assets of more than $250,000. The corporations covered are engaged in manufacturing, mining, construction, wholesale and retail trades, and related fields.

Report Required in 30 Days.

The first report must be filed with OPA within 30 days after the request is received.

Henderson said OPA decided on the program because of the lack of adequate financial information on large numbers of business enterprises affected by price action. He mentioned time lags in filing, difficulty of assembly, "and technical weaknesses for OPA needs" in financial reports filed with other government agencies such as the Federal Trade commission, the Securities and Exchange commission and the bureau of internal revenue.

War Agencies Can Get Data.

Henderson emphasized that the reports would be kept strictly confidential altho their contents would be made available—also on a confidential basis—to other emergency agencies such as the War Production board.

The reporting forms call for few details not usually included in most corporation reports to stockholders, banks, and creditors, Henderson said.

U. S. NO LONGER IN BUSINESS OF MAKING CHEESE

Schenectady, N. Y., May 2 (AP).—N. J. Cladakis, administrator of the New York metropolitan milk marketing area, announced today that the federal government no longer is in the cheese making business.

A month ago the cheese factory of the Netherland Dairy company of Syracuse, and later plants in Lafargeville and Canastota were placed under government contract.

As a result of government operation of the factories, Cladakis said, "distress milk right now is not a menace to the operating coöperatives of the New York milkshed. We have accomplished what we set out to do."

D'Alton C. Coleman, formerly vice president of the Canadian Pacific Railway company, has been elected president to succeed Sir Edward Beatty, who resigned because of ill health. Sir Edward remains chairman of the board.

WPB CARAVAN TO TOUR 42 MIDWEST CITIES TO FIND SUBCONTRACTORS

A WPB "caravan" will be sent on a 42 day tour of cities in Illinois, Iowa, and Kentucky, beginning May 11 in a search for subcontractors to manufacture small parts and articles of war equipment. Joseph L. Overlock, recently appointed WPB regional director, with headquarters in Chicago, said the tour would be conducted in coöperation with local chambers of commerce which will certify manufacturers to inspect the articles on exhibit.

The caravan will consist of two large trailer trucks and personnel automobiles. The trailers will carry hundreds of items needed by prime contractors to assist them in filling war orders.

Visitors will be advised how to get contracts and financial assistance, Overlock said, and small industrial firms employing fewer than 20 persons will receive particular attention.

The tour and exhibit were arranged by George E. Pfisterer, Chicago WPB educational supervisor, and will be directed by George E. Hale, acting manager of the Decatur, Ill., WPB office.

PLAN NEW UNIT FOR PROTECTING ARMS OUTPUT

Washington, D. C., May 2 (AP).—An emergency protection program to make secure the continued production of vital war materials by mines, quarries, mills, smelters, and allied facilities was announced today by Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes.

Based on plans outlined by Dr. R. R. Sayers, bureau of mines director, it called for the immediate setting up of a specially trained field force in all the mining and mineral producing areas of continental United States and Alaska.

"Emphasis will be placed upon the primary responsibility of owner-management," Sayers said, "and in all cases where possible the services of local enforcement officials will be utilized. The bureau of mines will integrate its activities with other government agencies under the facility security program of the Office of Civilian Defense and will coöperate with the army and navy and the federal bureau of investigation.

41 CHICAGO AREA FIRMS GET WAR ORDERS IN WEEK

Forty-one companies in the Chicago area were awarded 45 new government war orders last week, Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce, reported yesterday. Eight of the companies previously had not received war contracts.

Since the beginning of the armament program, Lyon said, 1,466 Chicago area firms have been awarded 6,786 government contracts with a value of $1,605,043,000. Of this total, $934,851,000 has been for manufactured products and $670,192,000 for construction of new facilities. In addition to these prime contracts, firms in the area have received $1,779,098,000 in subcontracts and other orders.

Illinois Personnel, Plant Facilities Best, Says Cross

Hugh W. Cross, Illinois lieutenant governor, asserted here yesterday that "nowhere in the world is there either personnel or plant equipment better than we have in Illinois." He spoke at a ceremony in which the navy's "E" award for outstanding work in military production was presented to the Automatic Transportation company, 101 West 87th street, a division of Yale & Towne Manufacturing company. Capt. J. C. Byrnes of the navy bureau of ordnance presented the award.

Plan to Seize Anti-Malaria Drug Patents

Washington, D. C., May 2 (AP).—Government officials, anticipating that much of the war will be fought in the tropics, are preparing to seize patents of the German I. G. Farbenindustrie on two anti-malaria drugs, an official disclosed today.

William La Varre.

The drugs are plasmochin and atabrine, both manufactured from benzine, and according to experts, more effective than quinine in combatting the fever. Imports of quinine from the southwest Pacific have been cut off by war.

Quick Action Urged.

Prime reason for the patent seizure move is to supply the drugs to United States troops that are serving and will be fighting in tropic areas. President Roosevelt has announced the government will take over enemy owned patents on war essentials.

"Unless something is done, and done quickly, more men will be killed by malaria than by bullets," William La Varre, head of the commerce department's American republics unit, said.

La Varre, a tropical explorer before joining the government, says plasmochin and atabrine are far more effective than quinine in combatting malaria.

Quinine Stocks Frozen.

The government has already taken three anti-malarial steps, La Varre said:

1. All cinchona [quinine] bark in the United States has been "frozen," so it can't be sold except to the government.
2. Quinine can no longer be used for anything except preparation of anti-malaria medicines.
3. Steps have been taken to increase Latin American production of cinchona bark.

The fourth, and final step, which will be taken soon, is to make the plasmochin and atabrine patents public domain and have the alien custodian release the formula to American drug firms. Since the drugs are produced from benzene there is no scarcity of the basic product, La Varre said.

Arms Maker Offers Army Profit Refund of 1½ Million

Alton, Ill., May 2 (AP).—Western Cartridge company disclosed today a voluntary offer had been made to refund to the government $1,500,000 in profit on an arms contract for items manufactured by the Winchester Repeating Arms plant at New Haven, Conn., a division of Western Cartridge. The company said production costs had proved to be lower than expected.

FARMERS VOTE 3 TO 1 TO KEEP WHEAT CONTROL

Illinois Ballot Favors Federal Program.

Washington, D. C., May 3 [Sunday] —(AP).—Farmers voted almost three-to-one for continuance of a federal marketing control program for wheat in a referendum yesterday on the basis of incomplete returns from 35 of the 40 wheat-growing states.

With about a third of the votes tabulated, the results were: 159,412 for marketing quotas, 53,495 against. This was a majority of about 73 per cent. A two-thirds margin was required.

Agricultural department officials expected the majority to be increased by returns yet to be tabulated. The bulk of the outstanding votes was in states where the control program rolled up top-heavy majorities a year ago.

Second Control Referendum.

This was the second time in two years that farmers had been asked to approve marketing quotas under which each farmer would be alloted a share in the market. Grain sold or used in excess of a quota would be subject to a penalty of 57 cents a bushel.

The quota program reflects the department's policy of encouraging farmers to divert some land and effort from wheat to other commodities needed for the war effort.

Under the control program the national wheat acreage had decreased from a peak of 80 million acres to slightly less than 55 million acres this year. Even so, the 1942 crop and the reserve from previous years are expected to provide a two year supply of the bread grain.

Big Majority in Illinois.

Decatur, Ill., May 2 (AP). — Illinois farmers, by a three to one majority, voted approval today of continued federal control over wheat production and marketing. The vote was 12,236 in favor and 3,970 against, with 1,214 ballots challenged.

Results in Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., May 2 (AP).—The Wisconsin Agricultural Adjustment administration office reported tonight that about 95 per cent of this state's eligible growers favored continuation of wheat marketing quotas.

Indiana Returns.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 2 (AP).—Indiana's wheat growers favored by 74.4 per cent, in today's referendum, marketing quotas on this season's wheat crop. The complete vote from the 92 counties: 13,735 for, 4,719 opposed.

BANK CLEARINGS HIGHER FOR WEEK AND LAST MONTH

Bank clearings in Chicago last week increased to $461,700,000 from $390,900,000 the preceding week and compared with $375,500,000 in the corresponding 1941 period, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. April clearings totaled $1,738,200,000, against $1,592,000,000 a year ago. The association's report follows:

Chicago Steel Output Rate to Start Week at Record

Production of steel ingots in the Chicago district will start tomorrow at the record level of 105.5 per cent of theoretical capacity, mill schedules disclosed yesterday. The rate last Monday was 104.8 and at the start of the corresponding week last year was 101.3 per cent.

Key Industries Mark Up Gains in Face of Government Edicts

American industry continued to move forward last week with a vigorous turnover in key businesses. Important government decrees, including price fixing, caused a commotion in industry as it concentrated on its war tasks.

Steel production, vital to the manufacture of ships, tanks, and guns, advanced sharply to 98.9 per cent of rated capacity from 97.6 per cent the preceding week. Last week's level was just 0.1 per cent under the all time record high.

The rising movement of ore raised railroad freight car loadings to the highest total since last November. Engineering construction awards were slightly below the week before, but were 53 per cent above the corresponding 1941 period. The nation's electric power production declined less than the usual seasonal amount.

Wholesale Trade Slows.

The blanket government price freezing order, applying to thousands of articles and services, had relatively little immediate effect on retail trade, but slowed down advance wholesale buying.

The Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity showed the higher trend as follows [1929-'30 levels equal 100]:

	Latest week.	Preceding week.	Year ago.
Steel mill activity....	143.0	141.1	129.9
Elect. power output..	156.3	155.6	141.0
Total car loadings....	91.7	91.1	76.9
Composite index.....	147.5	146.4	123.5

Industry and commerce were given a definite indication of 1942 federal taxes when the house ways and means committee voted a 94 per cent corporation excess profits tax. The present maximum normal tax of 24 per cent on income in excess of $25,000 was retained by the committee, which set the war surtax rate at 16 per cent. The War Production board brought passenger automobile batteries, heavy sole leather, and sewing machines within its curtailment program.

Steel Earnings Reduced.

United States Steel and Bethlehem Steel corporations, No. 1 and No. 2 in the industry, both reported capacity operations, but announced that March quarter profits were cut substantially by soaring taxes. Bethlehem expressed concern over future scrap supplies. Youngstown Sheet and Tube company also reported smaller profit because of larger tax provisions.

PEORIA RAILROAD SETS RECORD IN FREIGHT TRAFFIC

Peoria, Ill., May 2 (AP).—John W. Barriger, federal manager of the Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad, today notified Joseph B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, that yesterday's movements of freight on the road were the largest for a single day in history.

He said 631 loaded cars and 145 empties were moved, adding that the capacity of the line was at least 1,000 cars daily. A month ago, he said, loaded car movements were about 100 a day. The federal government took over operation of the road March 21.

Order Hearing Monday.

Washington, D. C., May 2 (AP).—Reaffirming its previous order, the War Labor board has directed Judge Benjamin C. Hilliard of the Colorado Supreme court to proceed on Monday with an investigation and arbitration of the dispute between the Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad and the railroad brotherhoods. George P. McNear Jr., the road's president, has informed WLB he would not accept arbitration.

TREND TO CLOSED SHOP CONTINUES, SURVEY REVEALS

New York, May 2 (AP).—The trend toward the closed shop continued under recent agreements between management and organized labor, the national industrial conference board said today.

In an anlysis of 163 contracts the board found 27 per cent of them provided that eligible company employés had to be union members to obtain employment or had to join the union upon completion of a probationary period in order to continue on the company's pay roll.

Other contracts recognized the union shop in principle, the board said, and contained membership-maintenance clauses requiring employés who joined the union to maintain their status for the agreement's duration.

SALES TAX RECEIPTS IN ILLINOIS REFLECT RETAIL TRADE GAINS

Springfield, Ill., May 2 (AP).—April sales tax collections disclosed that dollar volume of retail sales in Illinois during March was 15.2 per cent higher than in March, 1941, George B. McKibbin, state finance director, reported today.

McKibbin said that the 2 per cent sales tax collections in April, which reflect March sales, totaled $6,783,677, compared with $8,776,552 for April, 1941, when the tax was 3 per cent. The 15.2 per cent increase in sales was determined by adjusting the figures for the tax rate change.

The 3 per cent tax on gross receipts of public utility companies in April yielded $947,322, compared with $880,878 a year ago. State gasoline taxes fell to $3,372,505 from $3,756,298 last year.

April cigaret tax receipts totaled $1,034,105, compared with $986,291 for March; liquor taxes yielded $1,630,470, compared with $1,604,195 in the previous month, and oil production taxes totaled $397,289, compared with $384,207 for March.

URGE SEIZURE OF LAKE SHIPS IF NECESSARY

Suggested as Means of Providing Ore.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—Adm. Emory S. Land, head of the war shipping board, today was urged to requisition Great Lakes ships for ore carrying if such action is necessary to keep blast furnaces going to turn out iron and steel for the war effort.

The suggestion was advanced by Joseph B. Eastman, defense transportation coördinator, who said that it may be vital to provide cargo space for an "unprecedented seasonal movement of iron ore." If the action is taken all shipment of grain, coal, newsprint, and other commodities on the lakes might be drastically cut.

Preference Given to Ore.

The War Production board division of industry operations recently directed Eastman's unit to give preference to the transportation of 88 million tons of ore by rail and water this year. However, it is expected that the estimates will have to be revised upward. A shortage of steel is developing, particularly in the shipbuilding industry, and the vital need of the nation at present is more ships.

President Roosevelt told his press conference a week ago that a shortage of steel plate was putting the 18 million ton 1942 and 1943 shipbuilding program behind schedule.

Many Ships Are Needed.

Large numbers of ships are needed to maintain American expeditionary forces now abroad. The President has said there are a dozen expeditionary forces at various strategic centers around the world. In semimilitary circles it has been estimated that this country is maintaining 30 defense outposts. Unless shipbuilding is increased the nation will have its hands full keeping these outposts supplied and sending supplies to our allies.

To provide ships to carry American soldiers to the war fronts, orders have come direct from the White House for an increase in steel production. As the first step in carrying out these orders Eastman asked Adm. Land to look into the advisability of requisitioning lake craft for ore carrying.

Eastman said that grain movements by water from upper lake ports would have to be curtailed and that port to port movements of coal on Lake Erie might have to be eliminated in the interest of greater ore movement.

QUIET STRENGTH IN UTILITY LIST BOLSTERS STOCKS

Average Gain for Week Is Best Since January.

New York, May 2 (AP).—Further quiet strength in utilities and assorted specialties kept the stock market on the recovery path today and enabled the averages to make the best week's showing since early January.

Hesitancy was apparent at the start except for the power group which advanced on relatively minor turnovers. While favorites emerged from the brief proceedings with gains of 1 to 4 points, small declines were plentiful.

Average Up for Week.

The Associated Press composite of 60 stocks was up .3 of a point at 33.4 and on the week was ahead 1.1 points. It was the fourth successive day's rise for this barometer. Dealings totaling 155,910 shares compared with 156,400 last Saturday.

Popularity of the utilities and shares of other selected companies again was attributed to the belief the latest tax proposals voted by the house ways and means committee would aid nonwar producers, especially concerns with heavy invested capital structures. The power and light companies are in this class.

Utilities Widest Movers.

Senior issues of the utility division remained the widest movers. Among these were West Penn Electric, Public Service of New Jersey, Electric Power & Light, American Power & Light, and Commonwealth & Southern.

American Telephone was up 2⅛ after its recent dive to new lows since 1935.

Prices on the big board did little Monday and slipped to a new nine year low on Tuesday. The fact the market received the President's national economy program and the general price freezing edict calmly turned the tide Wednesday when short covering and new buying came in on the theory the lengthy decline had gone too far. From then on the rallying theme persisted, with the long lagging utilities taking the play Friday.

CHICAGO LIST MIXED.

Advances about equaled declines on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday in transactions of 10,000 shares. Of the more active stocks, Central & South West was unchanged, Hupp Motor Car declined ⅛, and Commonwealth Edison and Eversharp each advanced ⅛. In the half hour following the close in New York, Pennsylvania railroad, United Air Lines, and Zenith Radio declined ⅛ and Swift & Co. advanced ⅛.

TWO DIVIDENDS OF 25C VOTED BY ALLIED PRODUCTS

Directors of Allied Products corporation yesterday declared a special dividend of 25 cents on common stock in addition to the regular dividend of the same amount. Last year special dividends of 50 cents and 75 cents were paid on the issue.

Otis Steel company authorized a $2.75 dividend on convertible first preferred stock, covering payments due in March and June of last year.

Commodities

Cotton futures closed 20 cents a bale lower to 10 cents higher yesterday in quiet trading. Uncertainty regarding the new crop and anticipation of increased consumption contributed to the unsettled tone of the market, traders said. The closing prices were slightly below the levels of a week ago. Wool futures improved 0.2 to 0.3 cent a pound. There were no sales in grease wool. Other commodities were unchanged.

CONFUSION OVER PRICE PEG RULES IN MEAT MARKET

Cattle and Hogs Tumble to Near March Levels.

Confusion reigned in the live stock and wholesale meat markets at the Chicago stockyards last week as a result of the government's new action to control prices in the industry. Following President Roosevelt's radio talk large domestic orders for meat were temporarily withdrawn and prices of live stock collapsed.

Advances run up in live cattle and hogs during the preceding three week were completely wiped out in two days of severe declines. The downward swing was the sharpest of the year and the worst in hogs since the middle of last October. Some semblance of stability appeared near the close of the week, and some classes of meat animals recovered moderately as farmers tightened up on the supply.

Clarification Needed.

Because of the wide variation of quality of beef cuts and the big spread in prices charged, considerable clarification by the Office of Price administration will be necessary before the industry can work under the proposed ceilings, it was said. The OPA declared that starting May 11 packers must not charge more than the highest March levels for any class of beef they sell.

The pork industry continued to operate under the temporary ceilings based on the highest prices charged between Feb. 16 and 20. It has not been made clear if pork is included in the general order or if it will get special attention because it is already under a ceiling. Packers and OPA officials have had several meetings to determine a permanent price ceiling for pork.

Cattle Bids Reduced.

In an effort to base the approximate level for the various classes of live animals on the proposed beef ceilings, packers' bids were about in line with the best prices of March. They paid an average of $13 a hundred pounds for the week's supply of steers and yearlings, which equaled the highest weekly average for March. Top steers were quoted up to $16.75 at the weeks' close, against a peak of $16 in March. The highest weekly average for cows and heifers in March was $10.60, and for calves $13.50. Top hogs in March reached $13.95, against $14.15 yesterday. The highest weekly March hog average was $13.45 against $14.10 last week.

Cattle grading good or better and lightweight hogs suffered the sharpest break. Cattle finished the week off 15 to 75 cents and hogs were down 25 to 75 cents.

Lambs, unaffected by the new price order, soared 50 cents to $1, selling at the highest spring prices since 1929.

SPRING MARKETS ON FURNISHINGS SET NEW MARKS

Many Buyers in Chicago for First Time.

The spring home furnishings markets in progress last week at the Merchandise Mart and the American Furniture Mart were the busiest in their history, Mart officials reported yesterday.

Dollar volume of sales at the Merchandise Mart, altho held down by shortages on the metal goods floors, was slightly larger than a year ago, Percy Wilson, managing director, announced.

Attendance Up 9 Per Cent.

Wilson said more than 2,300 buyers, a gain of 9 per cent over a year ago, registered. This number was swelled by hundreds of retailers on their first buying trips to a Chicago market, he said, and 45 states were represented, compared with 41 last year.

The record attendance was significant, Wilson said, because it was the "first test of Chicago's pulling power in a full war economy" and because it came during a week when new price fixing orders on thousands of articles made buyers hesitant about placing long term commitments.

Whiting Reports Record.

Lawrence Whiting, president of the American Furniture Mart, said the market there attracted a record total of 4,888 buyers, compared with 4,259 a year ago, when the previous peak was established. He reported sales volume was ahead of last year.

The Merchandise Mart reported most buying interest was shown in upholstered pieces, with manufacturers of living room suites enjoying the heaviest sales. The Furniture Mart said the heaviest buying there was shared by bedroom, dining room, and living room furniture.

Whiting estimated business volume in the nation's home furnishings industry this year will aggregate 3 billion dollars, a gain of 500 million over 1941.

SAFEWAY STORES GAINS.

Safeway Stores, Inc., reported sales for the four weeks ended April 25 were $46,453,992, a gain of 28.4 per cent over the corresponding 1941 period. Volume in the 16 weeks ended that date was $181,978,469, or 31.3 higher.

PRICES OF BONDS MIXED; FEDERAL LIST IS STEADY

New York, May 2 (AP).—Bond prices were irregular today, with some shading toward lower levels in various speculative issues which led the recent upturn.

Steadiness in United States government loans indicated the market was well adjusted to the treasury's huge financing program. Several issues edged up 1-32d to 4-32d, and two or three dipped slightly.

In the corporate division gains ranging from fractions to around a point were posted by International Telephone 5s at 54, Columbia Gas and Electric 5s of '61 at 84⅝, and Southern Pacific 4½s of '69 at 54¾.

Some Australian bonds settled back after a recent rally. Changes in the foreign division were generally narrow and mixed.

REVISE PAYMENT RATES FOR SOIL CONSERVATION

Washington, D. C., May 2 (AP).—The department of agriculture said today the correct 1942 agricultural conservation payment rate for wheat was 9.9 cents a bushel. Such payments are made to farmers who comply with the department's crop control program. Other 1942 conservation rates included:

Cotton, 1.2 cents a pound; corn, 5.5 cents a bushel; rice, 2.4 cents per 100 pounds; commercial peanuts, $1.25 per ton, and potatoes, 1.8 cents per bushel.

These rates were revised from a schedule announced last November which was repeated, thru error, in an Associated Press story last Thursday as containing the new rates.

The original rates, which have been suspended, were: Cotton, 1.25 cents; wheat, 10.5 cents; corn, 8 cents; rice, 3 cents; commercial peanuts, $1.45, and potatoes, 2 cents.

EGGS WEAKENED BY SUPPLY GAIN, STEADY U. S. BIDS

Increased receipts, coupled with the announcement that the government paying price for powdered eggs would remain unchanged for the week ending Wednesday, forced October egg futures down 0.15 cent a dozen on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. September frozen eggs gained 0.12 cent a dozen to close at a 12 week peak of 26.85 cents.

November butter futures were unchanged in light trading. Continued small supplies boosted the 89 score grade ½ cent a dozen to 38.25 cents for less than carlot quantities.

PRICES OF GRAIN TURN UPWARD ON INDUSTRY BUYING

Wheat Climbs One Cent; Cash Oats Active.

A broader industrial demand sent grain prices upward yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Wheat prices advanced about 1½ cents a bushel and corn 1 cent before the upturn was checked by profit taking, but final sales were near the top. Wheat gained ⅞ to 1 cent net and corn ¾ to ⅞ cent. Oats finished unchanged to 1 cent higher and rye gained ¾ cent. Soy beans closed 1⅝ cents higher to ¼ cent lower.

It was estimated that about a million bushels of cash wheat and a like amount of corn were paid for by mills and industries when the grain was delivered on May contracts Friday and it was understood that orders had been given to ship out a substantial part of the 360,000 bushels that were tendered earlier in the week.

Cash Oats in Demand.

A brisk shipping demand developed for cash oats with sales of 110,000 bushels reported. Sales of corn were 50,000 bushels. The effect of the corn sales, however, was partly offset by purchases of about 100,000 bushels for deferred shipment from the country.

Cash grain prices have been gaining rapidly on the May future in the last few days. No. 1 yellow corn sold in the spot market 2½ cents above the price of the future contract, the biggest premium in many weeks. Industries, feed manufacturers, and elevator interests competed for the relatively small offering.

Mill buying of wheat futures here and at Kansas City helped along the upturn in that grain, as did reports that insect damage to the new winter wheat crop was spreading northward from Oklahoma and Texas.

Traders Watch Loan Situation.

With liquidation by holders of May grain contracts out of the way, grain traders are paying more attention to the probable loans on the 1942 wheat, corn, and other grain crops. The high parity price relative to the current market is said to have caused a change in sentiment. Farmers are regarded as assured of a loan of $1.32 a bushel on No. 2 red or hard winter wheat here, or about 10 cents more than the prevailing open market price.

A better demand for meal was an influence for strength in the old crop deliveries of soy beans, brokers said.

Cigar Company Employes Put 10% Pay in War Bonds

The 19 employés of the Scott De Luxe Cigar company, 2008 West Madison street, have voted to set aside 10 per cent of their wages for the purchase of war savings bonds and stamps for the duration of the war.

PUBLIC SERVICE OF N. ILLINOIS EARNINGS FALL

Increased Tax Provision Leaves $795,461 Net.

Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, a Commonwealth Edison company subsidiary serving many Chicago suburbs, announced yesterday its March quarter net earnings were $795,461 after provision of $1,906,000 for federal income and excess profits taxes. The federal tax estimate was computed by adding $450,000 to accruals under the 1941 revenue act.

In the first quarter last year the company had reported a net profit of $1,809,794, after provision of $608,400 for federal taxes. The tax provision in this period, however, later was increased by about $575,000 upon enactment of the 1941 revenue act, company officials said.

Oil Producer Earns More.

Tide Water Associated Oil company, New York, engaged in all phases of the oil business, announced a first quarter profit of $3,199,038, equal to 41 cents a share, compared with $2,859,950, or 36 cents a share, a year before. Provision for federal income taxes was $1,914,900, against $360,000 in the earlier period.

Quaker State Oil Refining corporation, Oil City, Pa., announced a profit of $429,093, equal to 46 cents a share, for the quarter ended March 31. In the corresponding 1941 period the company earned $218,055, or 24 cents a share.

MARKET INACTIVITY.

[Copyright: 1942: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The index of industrial production compiled by the federal reserve board is about 60 per cent above 1937, the year of greatest production during the 1930's. Stock averages, however, are nearly 50 per cent below the 1937 level. Many stocks are at their lowest level since 1933.

The disparity in trends in stock prices has been pronounced in recent months.

High existing corporate tax rates and the certainty of still higher rates explain the present market paradox. Shares of corporations whose operations are directly related to the war effort have not escaped the price slump.

Large backlogs of government orders and sharp rises in sales do not, under present conditions, necessarily forecast large profits. Federal income and excess profit taxes have virtually clamped a ceiling on profits.

Some industrial corporations have cut dividend payments. Other dividends will be reduced. But reduced dividends have not been to the investor the only discouraging factor. Future value of a corporation's securities may be impaired by inability to set aside sufficiently large reserves for contingencies. Some firms are unable to provide adequately for sharp reductions in inventory values and for replacement of equipment.

Companies not benefiting directly from the war program and whose profitable operations in the past have made their shares sound investments are sharing the tax burden with war industries. The result has been a sharp decline in earnings and returns on securities.

Public utility companies are steadily increasing output, but taxes are cutting deeply into earnings. Meanwhile, rates have remained substantially the same. Several large utilities already have reduced dividends, and more have indicated they would reduce payments.

What is the answer for the investor? It appears certain that all must accept lower returns. The speculative wartime profits envisioned by some must be forgotten. Sound securities that have depreciated in price should not be thrown overboard unless careful investigation shows that a profitable shift can be made. At the same time it is prudent to reappraise investments in the light of present conditions and prospects.

Salesmen.

A SALESMAN'S VIEWPOINT

My boss is probably like your boss, a great swivel chair salesman. For this reason he asks me to write this ad for him. Boy, will he squawk when he gets the bill for so many words saying nothing. As a matter of fact, why should I follow the usual procedure by quoting earnings of $100 to $200 weekly. Personally I am not so much interested in that as I am in the job itself, because every sale means a satisfied customer. I will give you the names of 250 people I sold personally last year and you'd be welcome to call and ask them. Incidentally I make $20 comm. on each sale, but my main satisfaction is the fact that we have the finest educational program ever offered and for this reason each customer becomes another friend and booster and it is with this thought in mind that I will be glad to show you by actual demonstration in the field how with a little training you should be able to do the same thing. If you are over 35, have a car and would like to know more about this proposition, please give full information regarding yourself in first letter. P. S.—My boss is a pretty good egg—otherwise I wouldn't do this for him. He is the guy who will read and analyze your reply, interview you and if he thinks you can measure up. I would enjoy your company for a few days while you sit, listen, and see it done.

YES, WE DO TAKE TRANSIENTS
A few units are set aside here for those who travel. And those who come once generally come again. Maybe they like the park view, maybe they like the homey rooms, maybe they like the club atmosphere, maybe they like the low rate — or maybe it's all of these things rolled together, with the famous Parkway service added. You'll like them, too.

REAL ESTATE—RANCHES.

A STOCK RANCH ON POWDER RIVER, 75 miles east of Sheridan, 15 miles north of Arvada, Wyo., and 12 miles from a through hiway. This ranch consists of over 8,800 acres deeded and one section leased from the State of Wyoming.

The ranch is well watered, well grassed, well fenced, well sheltered, and has adequate improvements for a stock ranch. There are six artesian wells on the place, 3 of which flow from 12 to 20 gallons per minute of water and each of them with a strong flow of gas.

This place is now stocked with 1,600 ewes and some cattle, and puts up 500 tons of hay per year. The ranch and the sheep are leased to honest and capable stockmen and the annual return is around 15% net on the investment.

The book "Powder River" by Struthers Burt does not exaggerate Powder River as a livestock country.

I have for sale 7,800 acres of deeded land in one body, about 3 miles northeast of Clearmont, Wyo.; about a half a mile from the Burlington R. R. and a through highway.

This land is well fenced, well grassed, well sheltered, and a good pasture proposition; adequately watered by Clear Creek, reservoirs and springs.

I also have a place on Tongue River, about two miles from the Big Horn mountains; a mile and a half from the town of Dayton, Sheridan county, Wyoming, consisting of 400 acres deeded and 240 acre state lease.

This place has an appropriation of water out of Tongue River under territorial dating, which will always provide ample water for irrigation. The appropriation is for 335 acres of land. We have water in the house from the Dayton water supply line and light and power line from the Sheridan system. It is on a good surfaced road, about 25 miles from Sheridan.

These ranches are leased at the present time to responsible tenants and the revenue received is an adequate return on the investment.

Write R. T. HELVEY, Box 890, Sheridan, Wyo.

ARIZONA Cattle Ranches and irrigated farms prove to be sound investments showing a high average net return either by owner operation or cash rental. Prices range from $20,000. We invite your correspondence.

Day by Day on the Farm by BOB BECKER

Spring Flowers in Bloom.

May 2, 1942.

IT is doubtful if any week of spring or summer will bring a greater variety of new flowers, blossoms, and buds than the present week has put on display. Wild flowers, flowering shrubs, garden flowers, tree buds, fruit tree blossoms—all have joined forces in the last few days to put on one of the most impressive displays of color and fragrance of the year.

Naturally the unseasonably warm weather of the past two weeks has advanced nature's flower show. Never before have we seen wild phlox sending their subdued blue flowers up thru the floor of the woodlots while the spring beauties and violets still were in full sway. But that has happened on the Wheaton farm this week. We hardly could believe our eyes when we hiked thru the east woods the other morning and found the first phlox in flower. We can't recall another April when this has happened.

Spring Beauties Reign.

The spring beauties, first of the farm's common wild flowers to thrive on the sunlight which pours down thru the unleafed oaks and hickories, still are the wild flower leaders despite the influx of phlox blossoms. Their dainty pink blossoms, making patchwork quilts of every farm woodlot, can't be ignored as the No. 1 attraction of early spring.

The common violets aren't making a very strong bid in the center of the woods, but on the edges of farm lanes and the banks of creeks where they can absorb the morning sunlight without the interference of tree shade their blue-purple petals provide a definite challenge to the more numerous spring beauties.

But these are not the only wild flowers which are absorbing sunlight and transforming it into gay hues for the farm hikers. We found that the array of miniature lilies commonly called dogtooth violets are coming along fast. The first purple trilliums are in flower with more to follow soon . . . yellow violets, common at the east edge of the east woodlot, are adding a brilliant note to the scene . . . the first tiny white blossoms of the wild strawberries are out.

Lilacs Permeate Air.

White and purple lilacs, especially those with southern exposures, are permeating the whole farm with a delightful aroma . . . pear, plum, and cherry trees in the farm orchards and dropping white petals of imitation snow . . . the delicate silvery red tint of newly opened oak leaves and the coppery hue of the maples . . . all these and other symbols of spring testify to the season's mastery of color.

SURPLUS OF AUTO GAS FORESEEN IN ILLINOIS, TEXAS

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—Some midwestern petroleum companies foresee a surplus of automobile fuel in Illinois and Texas and other producing areas. This information from sources within the industry conflicts with reports emanating from the Office of Petroleum Administrator Harold Ickes that the gasoline rationing in 17 Atlantic seaboard states and the District of Columbia might be extended to Chicagoland.

"The transportation shortage that has curbed supplies for the seaboard," said the informant from within the industry, "will tend to produce a surplus of gasoline in the production areas. A second factor, still unmeasured, is the synthetic rubber program.

By-Products in Large Quantities.

"Furthermore, the production of high octane gasoline for aviation also involves the production of lower octane gasoline for fuel oil. We can't convert all of a barrel of crude into high octane gasoline. There are unavoidable by-products in large quantities, mainly low octane gasoline and fuel oil. And you can't dope low octane into aviation gas because there's a limit to the quantity of dope that can be used effectively.

"So even without the forthcoming synthetic rubber production, the surplus of low octane gasoline suitable for automobiles is quite a problem. Storage facilities are taxed. We can't pour it back into oil wells or burn it without risk and expense. Obviously, because of the fire hazard and the contamination, we can't dump it into a river. As is well known, we can't ship it to the shortage areas on the seaboard because too many tankers have been sunk or transferred to war duties and the railroads and pipe lines are inadequate for the job.

Will Increase Low Octane Surplus.

"The synthetic rubber program will increase the surplus of low octane. In the formula that seems to be favored by the government, the extraction of a synthetic rubber ingredient from petroleum will leave less aviation gas and more automobile fuel and furnace fuel in the barrel. At the slow pace the synthetic program has been developed to date, it will probably be another year before this problem becomes appreciable.

The possibility of gas rationing in the central states was discussed at Ickes' office this week. Tank cars normally serving the interior are being transferred to the job of hauling to the seaboard. Some truck tanks also are being transferred. How much this will curtail supplies in the central states is not certain, and even more uncertain is how much requirements for motor fuel will shrink due to the tire shortage.

Defends Retail Price Increase.

The petroleum industrialist, who must remain anonymous due to his connections with the administration in an advisory capacity, defended a retail price increase authorized this week by Price Administrator Leon Henderson for even those areas where there is a gasoline surplus.

"The increase in transportation costs on the seaboard, where tank cars have replaced tankers, is obvious," he said. "But just as real is the increase in transportation costs in other sections of the country. The substitution of tank trucks for tank cars involves more handling costs. The requirement for prompt loading and unloading of tank cars involves additional expense."

NEWS AND VIEWS

[Advice is given in this department from time to time on how to make the family car last longer.]

The latest word from manufacturers of electrical wires and cables used in automobile electrical systems is that the supply of these essentials to car operation is going to be exceedingly limited. So take care of the wiring now in your car, because it will probably become increasingly difficult to get replacements.

The reason is, says H. W. Clough, vice president of the Belden Manufacturing company, Chicago, one of the largest producers of insulated copper wire in the country, that all manufacturers in the field are devoting practically their entire facilities to production for our armed forces.

The average car contains approximately 250 feet of exposed wire. Checked frequently for indications of deterioration or damage, the wiring systems probably will be able to give good service for the duration, always provided that corrections are made promptly.

Wires should be kept clean of oil or grease, which cause deterioration of rubber insulation. It is said that headlight wires are especially susceptible to oil deterioration because they frequently are splashed with oil. Certain of the synthetic rubbers are more or less immune from this trouble, but most of our wiring systems have used natural rubber in the past.

Be sure that no acid from the battery comes in contact with the battery cable while the battery is being tested and filled with distilled water. Sulphuric acid eats the cable insulation.

Battery cable connections should be checked frequently. If there is corrosion around a battery post you may be sure there is a poor connection and resistance. Resistance causes the voltage regulator to shut off the current. The result is the battery starves.

Wires attached to the spark plugs should be handled with care. Most spark plug wires become stiff and brittle after exposure to the great heat developed by the engine. Ageing likewise affects them adversely. However, they will remain in good condition if not moved. When checking the spark plugs and servicing the engine move them as little as possible. Try not to bend them so as to avoid cracking them. Expertly handled spark plug wires will last longer and will conserve gasoline.

Fastenings which secure wires to the inside of the automobile should be checked. If fastenings become loose the wires vibrate and the ensuing abrasion will rub off the insulation.

11 MEASURES FOR TRUCK STORAGE RECOMMENDED

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—The Office of Defense Transportation this week recommended eleven specific measures for proper storage of new or used trucks. They are as follows:

1. Trucks should be stored in weatherproof, well ventilated buildings having cement or wooden floors. The trucks should be thoroly cleaned and should be covered by paper or cloth to protect paint and keep out dust and dirt.

2. The entire cooling system should be drained and flushed. Vents should be left open to prevent rust.

Fuel System Should Be Emptied.

3. The fuel system also should be emptied. Empty the tank and run the motor until it stops. Be sure the carburetor is drained. Remove spark plugs and pour in an ounce of oil [SAE 40 or 50] into each cylinder head and rotate the motor slowly so that the oil covers cylinder and piston walls. Moving parts in valve-in-head motors should be coated with heavy oil.

4. Coat all engine parts which are not painted or rustproof with grease or heavy oil.

5. Leave oil and grease in engine, transmission, and differential.

6. Cover all bright work with light oil or thin grease.

Disengage the Clutch.

7. Disengage the clutch by holding the pedal down with a block of wood.

8. Release the hand brake.

9. Hydraulic brake systems should be filled with brake fluid to prevent rust.

10. Remove battery and check it every three weeks in hot weather, every six weeks in cold weather. Recharge battery every six weeks to a gravity of at least 1.280.

11. Block up truck and remove tires. Keep tires inflated to recommended operating pressure and store them horizontally in a cool, dark place.

ASKS DRIVERS TO USE ALTERNATE U. S. ROUTE 36

Springfield, Ill., May 2 [Special].—Wesley W. Polk, chief highway engineer, today urged motorists traveling between Springfield and Decatur to use alternate U. S. 36 to avoid congestion between Lanesville and Illiopolis where the Sangamon and Oak ordnance plants are under construction.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

NO LICENSE PLATES.

Chicago, April 29.—Will some one please enlighten us as to how the various rail subsidiary truck carriers are able to run over the streets of our city indiscriminately without plates on their trailers?

Being a representative of a legitimate trucking concern who does buy proper licenses and plates, I would appreciate a little publicity on this subject, if possible, in order to see if something cannot be done to rectify this flagrant violation of the law, and which carriers do practically all of the damage to our streets by hauling overloads. FRANK GLASS.

DEADLY PILLAR.

Chicago, April 17.—Noticed picture of automobile wreck in TRIBUNE. Auto struck abutment of the Illinois Central railroad on Roosevelt road just east of Mannheim. The Illinois Central or somebody saved about $100 in cost of steel when viaduct was built. Road could have been spared very easily as it is very narrow at that point.

That same pillar cost me about $800 about 16 years ago.

Why isn't this pillar removed? Safety commissioner, please take note. JOHN REWINGA.

ATTENTION MAYOR KELLY.

Chicago, April 29.—I am wondering if the people of Chicago have to put up with the noises created by the motorcycle policemen patroling traffic.

We live at 2410 Grace street and it seems the motorcycle police insist on hiding in front of our building to patrol on Western avenue.

If a private driver made as much noise as the police do when they start out after a passing car, the driver of the car would be sure to get a ticket for making unnecessary noises.

They do not seem to have any respect for the hour or day because on Sunday when a person is trying to rest after working all week, they are out as early as 8 o'clock in the morning and have been there as late as 12 o'clock at night. —

We have registered a couple of complaints with the police station at 3801 North Damen avenue, but evidently police pay no attention as they still continue to hide in front of our building.

We realize traffic must be patroled, but, is it necessary that they always have to hide under our windows and then start out with that terrible noise of racing their motors? HUGH S. AYERS.

THE CYCLISTS.

Chicago, April 30.—With the curtailment of automobile traffic and the increase in bicycle users the death and accident rate probably will increase. I have no definite figures to base my opinion on, but I imagine that most bicycle accidents involve children under 14 years old.

Has any one ever thought of a cooperative educational campaign between the youngster on the bicycle and the more sensible [we hope] automobile driver. Instead of swearing at him, why not stop and explain how his error could cause a serious accident with possible injury or death not including the material damage?

I had occasion recently when driving south on Ellis avenue to caution two boys who had stopped their bicycles almost in the middle of the street to have a chat. North bound cars had to swerve onto the southbound lane to avoid them. I explained to them what they were doing and they were young enough men to acknowledge their mistake. I am sure this error will not be repeated.

New Fixture to Speed Tank Work

Erstwhile workers in the automobile industry are building a fixture for a tank turret. The scene is in one of the Fisher Body plants. This fixture and hundreds like it will make it possible to turn out tanks in ever increasing numbers.

NEW HOLLYWOOD TRIANGLE—TWO GALS AND A GUY

By JOHN CHAPMAN

Hollywood.

ONE OF THE GREAT early-day picture outfits was Triangle—so called not because of sex geometry, but because there were three firms linked to it—Thomas Ince, Mack Sennett, D. W. Griffith. Any movie company could be called Triangle today, for the basis of most plots is two guys after the same girl. Any movie company could be called Triangle tomorrow, too; but the war is forcing a switch in he-and-she value. Henceforth it is much more likely that there will be two girls after the same guy, because men are getting scarce.

Every week leading men are deserting the screen for military service. Hollywood is altering its plots to suit the circumstances, and the new setup affords increased opportunity for stardom to all the town's beautiful young females. This opportunity will result in a stirring battle this year, for Hollywood has always been overloaded with women and there will be plenty of honeys in competition for the grand prize. Contemplate this, if you will: Metro has a picture coming up called "Tulip Time" in which there are seven beautiful young things and only one leading man. It's a perfect setup for Van Heflin, the leading man—but a scramble for the seven girls. In this case the normal screen triangle becomes an octagon. "Octagon with the Wind"—well, we'd better forget about that and get back to work.

Military service has taken directors like John Ford, cameramen like Gregg Toland, and also many actors. Bob Montgomery was one of the first to bid Hollywood good-by and assume active service—and not swivel chair service, either. Tyrone Power is figuring on going soon. Jimmy Stewart went long ago. Ronald Reagan, on the threshold of real stardom and all set to play the lead in a superspecial about Buffalo Bill, takes service instead.

MacDonald Carey makes a splendid impression in his first screen rôle in "Take a Letter, Darling" and is a sure bet for stardom—but the fans will have to wait until after the war. William Holden is going, or may have gone by now. Desi Arnaz goes in the Cuban army. Burgess Meredith is in the air corps. Bob Cummings is soon to go, and Jeffrey Lynn has been gone many weeks. The list increases from day to day, and remaining males capable of romantic leads must be rationed like sugar.

Every studio now has one or more films concerning women in which the door to increased popularity or stardom is wide open. Warners, for instance, are preparing a musical called "Sweethearts of 1942" in which six girls—Priscilla Lane, Brenda Marshall, Jane Wyman, Jean Ames, Nancy Coleman, and Beth Drake—are the leads. Another is being plotted which conforms to the new-fashioned triangle—two girls after George Raft. Something much more suitable to Raft would be Raft after 20 girls.

Twentieth-Fox has a comedy with music, "Orchestra Wife," in which George Montgomery has a fine time almost unopposed among such morsels as Linda Darnell, Lynn Bari, Carole Landis, Virginia Gilmore, and Mary Beth Hughes. When you consider that George is already engaged to Hedy Lamarr it seems almost too much.

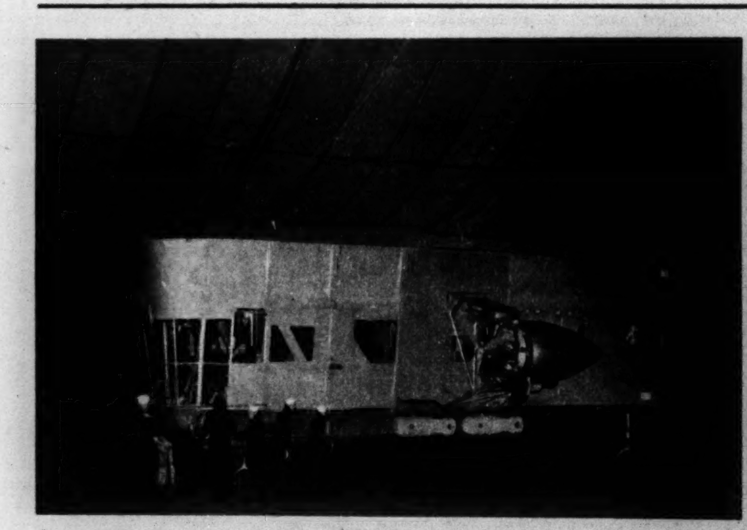
ON THE BLIMP PATROL



Last-minute inspection of navy blimp before dawn patrol. Notice bombs or depth charges under motor.

The crew scatters as it casts off the ground lines at the takeoff for an all-day flight.

By ENSIGN R. G. PEARSON, U. S. N. R.

THE CAPTAIN of the navy blimp was standing at one of the big windows in the control car, gazing at the eastern horizon over the misty turquoise water below. The sky glowed with the wan light of early dawn, and a cluster of tiny clouds hovered above the ocean's rim like a school of pink salmon. This hour before the sunrise, pondered the captain, and the corresponding hour at dusk, were the favorite times for the lurking axis submarines to strike. In the eerie half-light they could sneak up on their defenseless prey with the least chance of being glimpsed themselves. And right now, he knew, the blimp was just off Cape Hatteras, the favorite hunting ground for wolf packs of enemy subs.

In a step the captain was at his side, searching the waters with his glasses. There it was! A telltale plume of white cutting thru the waves, barely perceptible from this 1,000-foot height in the morning twilight, even with the aid of powerful binoculars. "Man the bombsights! Go down to 200 feet," barked the captain. The elevator man nosed the great bag downward and the eager bombardier sprang to his battle station.

"It's an enemy sub all right," called out the captain. "Stations!" In the rear of the gondola the men of the night watch, who had just climbed into their bunks, tumbled out. The crew member who had been tending the coffee at the tiny electric stove jumped to his post at a machine gun. The navigator, bending over his desk, hastily made note of the ship's exact latitude and longitude. "Cut your speed and stay over her," ordered the captain. The steady roar of the engines outside subsided to an idling sputter.

His eyes glued to the glasses, the captain was thinking swiftly yet coolly. No American undersea vessels were in these waters, and two merchant ships had been sunk off Cape Hatteras in the last week. Perhaps this was the very raider which had sent them to the bottom! Moving in the same direction as the blimp and a little in front of it, the sub commander was searching for a new victim, unaware of the airship above. The captain estimated the raider's underwater speed at four knots.

The shadowy cigar-shaped hull of the sub was clearly visible now, directly below, its periscope still cleaving the waves. The airship, deprived of the steadying influence of its forward speed, wavered and drifted with the wind. The crew stood tense at their stations. The captain barked directions to the helmsman. Finally, "Ready, port depth bombs!" he said; "release!" The ship shuddered twice in quick succession as its weight was lessened. Two splashes marked the spot where the "ash cans" struck. Seconds later a great geyser of water shot skyward, hung in midair almost under the belly of the gondola, and fell back into the turmoil of the water below. As the confusion quieted a huge slick of oil rose to the surface and spread. Wreckage, predominantly pieces of cork and miscellaneous gear, bobbed in the waves. The shadowy hulk beneath the surface was no longer there.

Above, the blimp crew cheered and slapped each other on the back. The captain turned to make the entry in his log: "Enemy sighted. Disposed of."

Whether this scene has actually taken place is a fact still veiled in censorship. But this is the purpose for which navy blimps are being built—to answer the axis challenge to the security of our coast lines.

There is little need to remind the American public, already shocked by reports of repeated sinkings almost within view of shore, of the gravity of the submarine danger. To American coastal shipping, submarines are more to be feared than either surface vessels or aircraft. Neither of the latter can approach our shores in appreciable numbers so long as the navy remains on guard. But the insidious undersea raiders can slip past patrol vessels and destroy shipping and take lives before they are run down and annihilated. The submarines which caused such damage in World War I. were primitive compared with those of today, and the enemy's total undersea fleet in those days never numbered more than 140 at one time. In the present war the submarines of our enemies probably total more than 500, each of them a more deadly weapon than its World War I. counterpart.

The blimp command pilot, left, and crew members study course and weather data before takeoff.

The recent epidemic of sinkings off the Atlantic coast heralds the first long-distance raids on this country by Nazi subs in this conflict. However, not only is it out of the question to divert any sizable portion of our fleet from its more essential tasks to patrol coastal waters, but the very length of the coast line important to "hemisphere defense" prohibits any real picketing by surface craft.

The obvious solution to the problem, then, is lighter-than-air craft, popularly known as blimps, operating in conjunction with other shore defenses, as we shall see in a moment. But the very mention of blimps brings up a storm of objection. "Outmoded!" shout critics of lighter-than-air craft. "Impractical!" "Outrageously expensive!" "Easily shot down!"

The lighter-than-air ship has had an unfortunate history by which the public is all too apt to judge it today. Man flew first by means of a balloon in Paris in 1783, well over a century before the Wright brothers soared from the Kittyhawk sand dunes in the first plane. Development of lighter-than-air craft continued in several countries during the 19th century, but eventually came to a standstill until the invention of the gasoline engine.

The gasoline engine, however, besides making the free balloon into a navigable airship, also made the heavier-than-air craft possible. The latter immediately seized the spotlight, which it has occupied ever since. Lighter-than-air flying enjoyed a brief flurry of popular interest following the construction and operation of several large rigid airships here and in Germany during the decade from 1924 to 1934, but a series of disasters permanently soured public opinion. Airplanes meanwhile grew ever speedier, more spectacular, and more popular.

But now, with the recent intimation by the President that considerable success has been attached to the efforts of navy lighter-than-air craft in both reconnaissance and anti-submarine defense, airships have again sprung dramatically into the spotlight. These bear little resemblance to the gigantic rigid ships which met such tragic fates a few years ago; they are smaller, nonrigid, more maneuverable.

If this war has taught us anything so far it is not the supremacy of any one weapon, but rather the importance of the coördination of all types of weapons, each one specializing on the task for which it was intended. No one will deny the tremendous advantages of the airplane over the airship with regard to speed and altitude. But the very lack of speed which would be fatal to a combat plane constitutes the greatest advantage of the blimp as a submarine patrol weapon. The submarine, moving slowly below the surface, is best spotted by an airship moving slowly above the surface rather than by a speeding plane which is forced to circle endlessly if it is to scan any small section of water thoroly. When spotted or attacked the submarine's only defense is to submerge and lie on the bottom of the ocean, with its engines silent so that it cannot be traced by listening apparatus. Obviously the blimp enjoys a tremendous advantage over the airplane in its ability to hover motionless over the hiding sub, patiently waiting with bombs held ready until the raider breaks the surface. It enjoys an advantage over the surface ship in its ability to hover in midair, out of danger of torpedoes.

If your gas bags are so good, argue the critics, why aren't the European nations using them? The answer is twofold. In the concentrated war area of Europe the air is so full of airplanes that even comparatively safe helium-filled blimps could be quickly shot down; also, Europe has no helium, which means that its balloons would have to be inflated with highly inflammable hydrogen. On the other hand, blimps are ideal for submarine patrol in America. Our coasts are for all practical purposes beyond the range of enemy planes. And helium is exclusively an American possession. America has a virtual monopoly on these highly effective submarine hunters, and she plans to make the most of it.

A recent appropriation for navy construction included funds for "48 useful nonrigid airships," to be constructed in addition to the squadron already operating out of the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J. Congress has also authorized the construction of two new blimp bases on the Atlantic coast at Elizabeth City, N. C., and South Weymouth, N. J., as well as the return of the airship station at Sunnyvale, Cal., which was turned over to the army in 1935. Now stationed at Lakehurst, in training or on active patrol duty, are about 350 officers, aviation cadets, and enlisted men who have chosen this special branch of naval aviation.

The blimps which sway at their mooring masts at Lakehurst today, or roam the sea lanes of the Atlantic, are a far cry from the crude models with which the navy first experimented in 1917. They have about 400,000 cubic feet of volume, as compared to the 123,000 cubic feet of the tiny commercial advertising dirigible and the 7,000,000 of the huge rigid airships formerly in trans-Atlantic service. Today's patrol blimp is about 250 long and 76 feet high, powered by two radial air-cooled aviation engines. It can hover motionless in the air, float with both engines off, go either forward or backward, and cruise with perfect safety just above the water. It can speed along at 80 miles an hour or cruise with a full military load for 1,500 miles at 50 miles an hour. If it wishes to stop it drops a sea anchor and rides there as securely as a boat. It can land on water and can rescue people or pick up loads from the surface of the water or from a moving surface vessel. It can fly safely at hedge-hopping altitudes, in fogs and icy weather, and at night. And it costs less to build than a torpedo boat or a large patrol plane.

Inside the airship's car a crew of eight men move about freely and enjoy as many conveniences as on the submarines for which they hunt. There is a grill for cooking, a washstand, toilet facilities, radio equipment, and a darkroom for developing photographs on the spot. Besides carrying bombs and depth charges to drop on submarines, the ship carries several machine guns or light cannon.

On patrol duty the blimp has three broad functions:

1. It maintains contact with surface vessels, scouring the waters in their vicinity and hurrying to their rescue as their radio distress signals are received.
2. It searches for mine fields laid by the enemy and radios their location to navy mine sweepers, which come and eliminate them.
3. It hunts for enemy submarines and either destroys them itself or radios for help from navy sub chasers or planes.

Fishing for submarines requires an experienced and ingenious angler. Their presence is usually revealed by only the meagerest of clews. It may be only a slight streak of oil. During World War I. a British blimp was about to disregard an oil spot which it had been studying when one officer detected a thin oily line leading away from the spot and then turning at right angles! They dropped a depth bomb and struck home.

The clew may be eddies of mud brought to the surface by movements of the sub under water. It may be air bubbles. It may be a faint phosphorescent glow at night, which requires the most experienced airship pilot to pick up. One British blimp in the last war saw an orange crate floating on the water—only it was found to conceal a periscope, which was immediately depth-bombed. On another occasion it was discovered that sea gulls, among the most curious of birds, are attracted to and follow periscopes. Their natural curiosity led to the destruction of at least one undersea raider.

Once the quarry is located, the blimp can either attempt to bomb it at once or can trail it until help arrives. If the submarine sees the airship and submerges, the airship simply lowers a listening device into the water and continues to trail it by the sound of its propellers.

The value of the patrol blimp is not just theoretical. In the last war the British and the French destroyed submarines by means of airships. One blimp single-handed located 368 mines! And today's patrol airships make the World War I. models seem eyeless, earless, and harmless. As you read this, navy blimps are ranging the sea lanes off our coasts, bringing gray hairs to the head of every enemy sub commander lurking in American waters. When the official scores are revealed it may well be seen that gray hairs are not all the damage caused!

THE TEMPEST

By JAMES THOMAS FIELDS

We were crowded in the cabin,
  Not a soul would dare to sleep,—
It was midnight on the waters,
  And a storm was on the deep.

'Tis a fearful thing in winter
  To be shattered by the blast,
And to hear the rattling trumpet
  Thunder, "Cut away the mast!"

So we shuddered there in silence,—
  For the stoutest held his breath
While the hungry sea was roaring
  And the breakers talked with Death.

And thus we sat in darkness,
  Each one busy in his prayers;
"We are lost!" the captain shouted
  As he staggered down the stairs.

But his little daughter whispered,
  As she took his icy hand,
"Isn't God upon the ocean
  Just the same as on the land?"

Then we kissed the little maiden,
  And we spoke in better cheer,
And we anchored safe in harbor
  When the morn was shining clear.

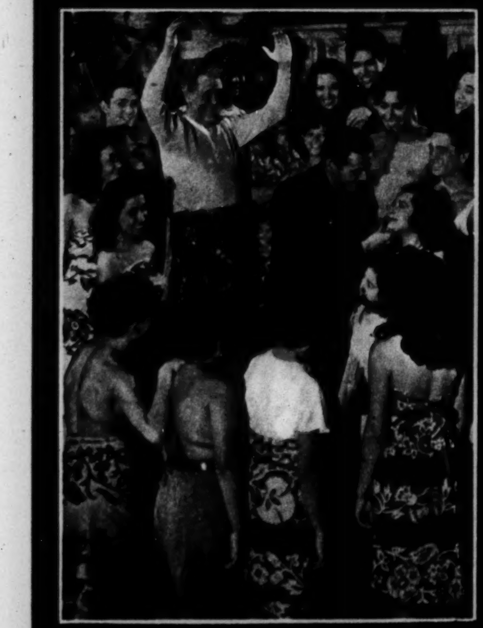
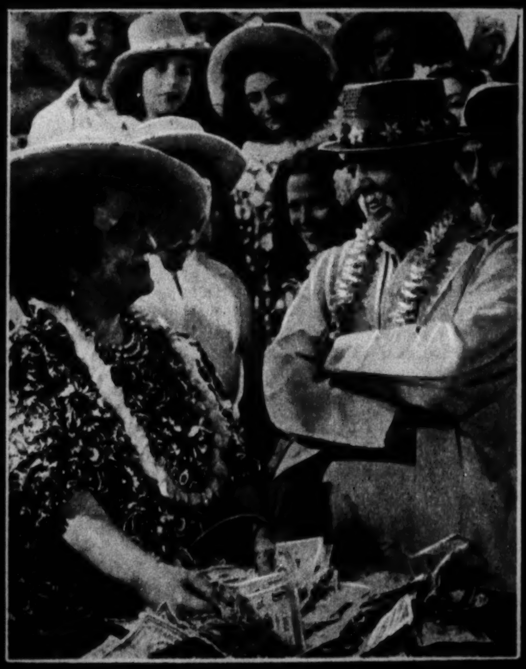
GRAPHIC LITTLE THEATER PRESENTS Charles Laughton IN "THE TUTTLES OF TAHITI"

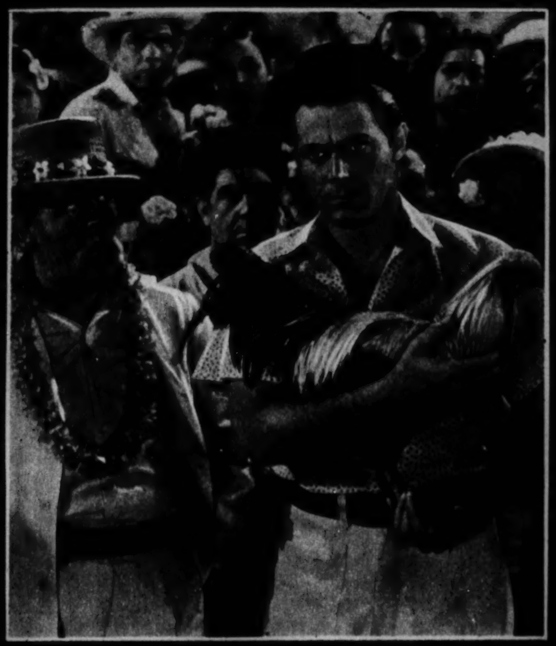


1 Great is the rejoicing of Jonas Tuttle (Charles Laughton), head of a happy-go lucky half-breed clan in Tahiti, as his prodigal son Chester (Jon Hall) returns after three years with a prize gamecock. The Tuttles relish a cockfight.

2 Chester's bird is matched against one owned by the wealthy mother of the girl Chester wants to marry, Tamara (Peggy Drake). All of which puts Tamara in a peculiar position.

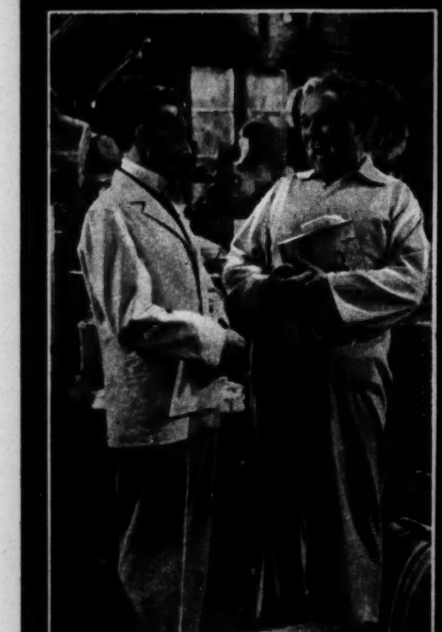


3 On the fateful day Jonas borrows, begs, and mortgages, putting everything he can on his bird. Tamara's mother, Emily (Florence Bates), matches his wager, and the fight is on.



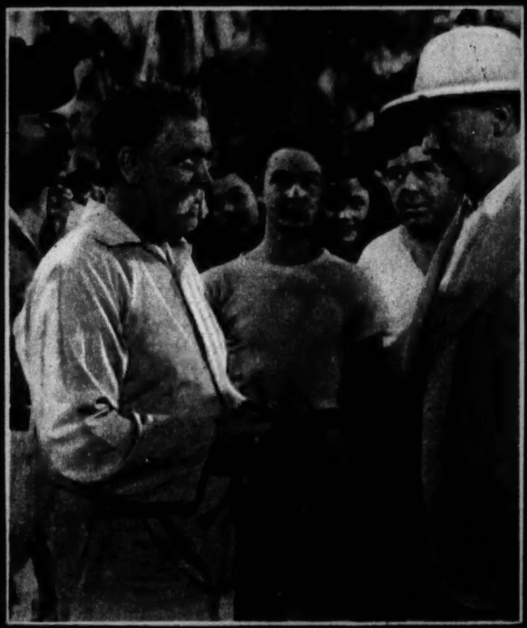
4 But the Tuttles' bird gives them the bird, losing the "fight" without so much as a chirp, and Jonas is broke. Worse than that, Dr. Blondin, who took a mortgage on the Tuttle land, needs money and threatens to foreclose!

5 Desperately Chester and his brother Nat go to sea, hoping to make a big enough catch to pay the mortgage. But a three-day storm nearly drowns them and they are given up for lost. However, they find a derelict ship and under marine laws of salvage bring her into port as their own.



6 The Tuttles are rich. Selling the vessel, they begin to squander the money. Grand pianos by the half dozen, furniture, doodads—they are having a wonderful splurge.

7 This stroke of fortune makes possible Chester's marriage to Tamara, and the happy couple dance gaily at their wedding fete, to which practically all of Papeete has been invited.



8 But the bubble bursts! Overdrawn on their accounts, the Tuttles find the furniture company taking away all their new possessions. And Dr. Blondin (Victor Francen) regretfully says he must foreclose. Jonas has the money for the mortgage hidden away, but where? He has forgotten!

9 The fighting cock comes thru at last. Fleeing from Jonas, who blames it for all their misfortunes, the bird runs under a bush and uncovers the cash box. Gleefully Jonas retrieves the money and shows his family.

10 Normally broke again, and happy in that state, the Tuttles settle down once more. As if nothing had happened, Jonas chugs off in his car to borrow some money from Dr. Blondin. (THE END.)

SOME LIKE THEM SMART

This is another in a series of stories dramatizing the problems of Young America.

"That's the kind of a girl I like—one who is pretty AND gets good grades in school."

"SURE, her face is pretty enough, but she's built like a bottle. What that girl doesn't know about hot fudge sundaes and chocolate caramels isn't worth knowing." Tom Woods knocked the ashes from his pipe out the car window and added dismally, "Is she stacked!"

Tom and two of the other fellows from East Township High school were parked in front of the drugstore, partly because it was one of the first days of spring and just being outside at all was fun, and partly because it was Dick Blackburn's car, and he knew that Lynn Taylor would be coming out at any moment. The conversation had turned into a regular bull session.

"It's too bad that some girls can't wise up—if they were all more like Lynn everything would be all right," Dick remarked.

Tom looked at Hank Tully in the back seat and winked, and together they broke into a harmony on "I Got It Bad, and That Ain't Good."

Dick grinned. "That's not what I mean. It's just that she's got a way about her that makes a fellow feel as if he's big stuff. One date with her makes me think I could take on Tyrone Power with one hand tied behind my back. And I like it."

"I'd never have paid much attention to Ginie Owen at all if I hadn't noticed how nice her hair was when she sat in front of me in second year English class. It's soft and fluffy instead of being all pinned and gooed up into curls like some girls'. She is the cleanest cookie I've even been out with," Tom said with enthusiasm.

"Quit talking like a soap salesman," Hank laughed. "You know you'd like her if she had blue hair and a crew cut. She's really on the beam."

The three fellows lapsed into silence, each turning over slow thoughts with school and pretty girls mixed up in them. Dick lit a cigaret and then held the match between his fingers, watching it burn. It flickered out before the flame had reached the end and he said half to himself: "She loves me not! Little old match, your dingey!" And he tossed the burnt end out the window.

Hank spoke up. "Talking about girls—and we were—do you fellows remember that little blonde that got me started last fall? She was one girl that really had me worried till I got her number and found out it was zero. I called her every night for almost six weeks, and almost every time she'd hand me a line about being busy and all dated up. I guess she only went out with me about seven times. She used to say that she had to ask her mother first or that she might have to go over to watch her married sister's baby, or something, and that I should call her back the next night. I found out later that she was stalling me off to hold out for something better. Did that burn me up!"

Dick and Tom nodded in sympathy.

"And I had thought she was a good kid," Hank said morosely. "She's the only girl that ever made me forget about homework and everything—and don't think it didn't hurt, 'cause it did. Even now songs like 'Delores' and 'I Don't Want to Set the World on Fire' can make me feel hollow inside, because I think of her again. I don't wish the girl any harm," he added, "but I can think of a good name for her, and it doesn't rhyme with 'lady,' either."

"I could have told you from the beginning that she was pretty much of a frayed frill, but I knew you had a glow on for her and thought I'd better leave you alone," Tom told him.

"Say, fellows, not that I'm thinking of changing brands myself," Dick spoke up suddenly, "but what do you think of that new girl, Dennie Harris, who just transferred to our school?"

"Yeah," said Hank, his voice warm with enthusiasm. "She's a honey, and on top of it all she can read and write, too! She beat me by two points in that chemistry exam we had the day before yesterday."

"Last night Ginie asked her and some of the other girls over to her house so they could all get acquainted, and she told me that Dennie was high girl on the honor roll in her class at Drake High school," Tom remarked. "She was literary editor of her school paper, too."

Hank was lounged across the back seat, one leg crossed over the other. "I changed my seat so I could sit next to her in study hall, and we had a long talk today—by note, of course," he said. "Gee, she's smart!"

But Dick was less credulous. "She may be cute to look at and sharp in school, too, but I'll bet she's a droop on a date. No girl can be that good. She probably doesn't even know who Harry James is, or objects to sitting eight in the back seat, or something. Lynn may not be a Miss Albert Einstein, but she knows what makes Ann Sheridan tick."

"I'll trouble you for a butt, bud," Hank said. "I'm fresh out of cigarets."

Dick rummaged in a pocket and pulled out a crumpled package, shaking it. "Just two left. We'll each have one, and then we'll both be fresh out. Lucky thing that Lynn always carries her own—another thing I like about her," he added triumphantly. "I could add them up all day."

"Another thing Ginie told me," Tom went on. "Dennie Harris was queen of the Drake High football rally this fall and led the junior prom last year."

"I don't believe it!" Dick exploded. "That's nothing but subversive propaganda to undermine my morale so that I ask Dennie out for Friday night when I really want to take Lynn to a movie. I suppose that girl has her wings, too, and pitched ball for the Cubs last summer! O, no—not me. I don't believe it."

"Can't see how she does it myself," Tom admitted ruefully, "but that's the kind of girl I like—one who is pretty and gets good grades in school."

"Yeah? Well, I can think of better things to date than an overgrown quiz kid," Dick grumbled.

Hank was chuckling to himself in the back seat. "You know you're only talking, Dick. Any fellow goes for a girl that's smooth and smart, too. When I talk about school Dennie knows what I'm talking about; when I talk about the war she knows what I'm talking about—try her on anything. I'd bet on that girl from here on in."

Just at that moment the drugstore door opened and three girls came out, laughing. "Give her the old one-two, Dick," Tom said. "There's Lynn—and Ginie and Dennie are with her." Dick honked the horn, and Lynn turned, smiling when she saw him.

"Just look at Dennie, now, in that pink sweater. Wouldn't you really like to ask her out, Dick?" Tom questioned.

"Now you're getting groovey, kid," Dick agreed. "Wonder what she's doing on Friday night."

"I got you both napping," Hank said happily from the back seat. "I asked her out for Friday night just as soon as I found out she was smart and talked my language. And of course she said yes," he added.

"She was talking your language right there," said Tom, and he got out of the car to let Lynn slide in beside Dick in the front seat.

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: Will you please tell me the name of the player that played the part of Chief Crazy Horse in "They Died with Their Boots On"?

ALMA PONCHONTA DAVIS.

Dear Miss Davis: Anthony Quinn played the rôle of Chief Crazy Horse in that picture.

Dear Miss Tinée: In 1939 I saw a picture in which Irene Dunne and Fred MacMurray were co-starred. Irene Dunne played the rôle of a rich girl who married a prize fighter (Fred MacMurray). They are separated by their son, who doesn't know his father well enough to like him. He goes to live with his father for six months, to get to know his father better. After six months he is to know whether he wants to live with his father or his mother. He chooses his father, but as usual his parents get back together again. Can you tell me the name of that picture?

Thank you ever so much, and I enjoy your column as much as the funnies. Sincerely,

LOIS ANN LONG.

Dear Miss Long: "Invitation to Happiness" is the title of the film you refer to. (Which funnies?)

Dear Mae Tinée: Just a few days ago I saw "Honky Tonk," and I especially enjoyed Frank Morgan in that picture. I have listened to him over the radio network several times, but he only had comedy parts. Only once did I hear him play a dramatic sketch, and believe me, he was good. It is really remarkable how one person can play so well both comedy and dramatic sketches. In "Honky Tonk" he played the rôle of a judge who desperately tried to save his daughter from Clark Gable. I think since I'm speaking of this picture I should give credit for wonderful performances that Lana Turner and Claire Trevor gave.

Thank you.

JOSEPH LABOKEY JR.

Dear Mr. Labokey: You are most kind to go to the trouble of writing a letter of such genuine appreciation. Wouldn't it be nice if the stars would acknowledge your boost in this column? It has been done, you know.

William Holden

Dear Miss Tinée: I wish to pay tribute to William Holden, the handsome, talented actor who became a success when he first appeared as Joe Bonaparte in "Golden Boy." Recently I saw him in "I Wanted Wings" and "Texas," and I can't remember ever becoming so obsessed with an actor before. There's something so natural and boyish about his acting, together with his being charming and attractive. Here's hoping he's headed for bigger and better fame.

I'd be ever so grateful if you'd squeeze a smiling picture of him in your column, and also his studio address so I could write and ask for his picture. Thanks loads.

HELEN DROZDIK.

Dear Miss Drozdik: Gladly we oblige! William Holden's address is Columbia studio, 1438 Gower street, Hollywood, Cal.

Three important phases of the Battle of the Wilderness are illustrated in the maps above. Colonel McCormick's critical study of this famous engagement, strategically the most decisive battle of the Civil war, is presented on the two pages that follow.

THE BATTLE OF THE WILDERNESS

A Critical Study

BY

Col. Robert R. McCormick

Author of "With the Russian Army," "The Army of 1918," "Ulysses S. Grant," and "The Campaign and Battle of Gettysburg"

(Copyright: 1942: By The Chicago Tribune)

RETURNING from the Gettysburg raid, which he had been compelled to undertake as a desperate diversion against Grant's success at Vicksburg, Gen. Robert E. Lee had imposed upon Meade the powerful defensive position of the Wilderness, behind the Rapidan river. With 100 miles of easily defended territory at his back, with the rich valley of Virginia on his flank to produce supplies and threaten the Union right flank and rear, he held Meade in this vicinity while Longstreet moved to Tennessee to participate in the defeat of Rosecrans and to fall before Grant's victory at Chattanooga.

On Oct. 7, orders transmitted by semaphore betrayed the fact that Lee was planning an important move. This turned out to be a march around Meade's right flank. Meade immediately retreated to Centerville. Lee then returned to his position south of the Rapidan and Meade reoccupied the north bank with his outposts.

On the 28th of November, after repeated urging by Lincoln, Meade crossed the Rapidan at Germanna ford. Lee conforming to his movement, the two armies confronted each other across Mine Run, whereupon Meade retreated across the Rapidan.

Meade now reorganized the infantry into three corps, the 2d, 5th, and 6th, under Major Generals Hancock, Warren, and Sedgwick. Of the three Hancock had risen by successful command of troops and was considered to be the best corps commander in the Army of the Potomac. Warren had spent most of the war as a staff officer, bore an excellent reputation, and was considered to have done a striking act in occupying Little Round Top at the Battle of Gettysburg. Sedgwick also enjoyed a good reputation, but I do not know why. He had done nothing useful at Chancellorsville—had failed to discover that Lee was moving away from his camps at Fredericksburg in the Gettysburg campaign, had not been engaged in the battle as a corps commander, and had done nothing to impede Lee's retreat when he was given charge of the pursuit. Gen. Sheridan was brought from the west to replace Gen. Pleasanton in command of the cavalry corps.

On March 9, Grant was created lieutenant general in command of all the armies. His first act was to visit Gen. Meade and leave him in command of the Army of the Potomac.

Grant now made his grand plan of campaign from the Atlantic to the Mississippi. Banks had been sent on a wild goose chase up the Arkansas river by Halleck and was out of the campaign. Sherman was to advance on the Confederate Army of Tennessee, covering Atlanta with the Union Armies of the Ohio, the Cumberland, and the Tennessee. Crook was to advance into and down the valley of Virginia, from Gauley in West Virginia; Sigel from Winchester. Butler was to advance by water against Richmond from Old Point Comfort. The Army of the Potomac would operate against Lee.

For his campaign in the east, Grant collected all the troops that could be spared from the garrisons on the Atlantic coast and added them to the Army of the James at Old Point Comfort.

He withdrew the 9th corps from Knoxville and placed it at Annapolis, from where it could be moved to any point on the coast or to reënforce the Army of the Potomac.

President Davis returned Longstreet's corps to Lee, and formed an army at Richmond under Beauregard. Grant learned of this army, but not of its location.

Lee was entrenched along the Rapidan on both sides of the Orange and Alexandria railroad from Barnett's ford to Palmyra ford, a distance of some 15 miles; the upper Rapidan curving south covered his left flank; and Mine Run, a tributary running into it from the south, behind which were entrenchments, covered his right flank. Ewell's corps held the right of the line, Hill's the left; with Longstreet's at Gordonsville, some 10 miles in the rear of the left flank of the army. It thus appears that four Federal efforts against him, east of Culpeper, having failed, Lee thought that Grant would try his fortunes to the west, and guarded it with Longstreet's corps. His cavalry corps, under Stuart, was south and east of Fredericksburg, 25 miles away.

Grant considered the western route and dismissed it, not because of the threat from the labyrinth of the Shenandoah valley, but because of the impossibility of supplying his army on that flank in any protracted campaign. Whatever the results of battles, he was determined to keep pushing forward, supplying his army from bases on Chesapeake bay.

On April 27, 1864, he brought Burnside to the Bull Run-Rappahannock line, leaving him there in the hope that Lee would not learn of this reënforcement.

Grant's first concern, faced as at Vicksburg by strong defenses and a mighty army, was to get his own army across the river and in order of battle before he was opposed or attacked. Secretive as on the previous occasion, he withheld until May 2 his orders to the corps commanders to march the following midnight.

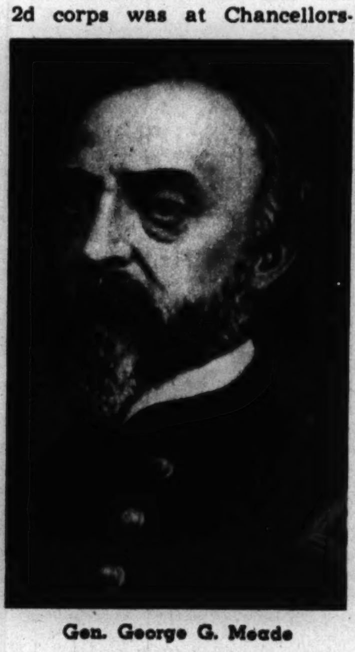
Gen. Ulysses S. Grant

Gen. Gouverneur K. Warren



Gen. George G. Meade

He then issued written orders to his corps commanders for the 2d corps, led by Sheridan and Gregg's cavalry division, to move to the left, behind the Rapidan, cross the river at Ely's ford, and march to Chancellorsville; the 5th corps, following Wilson's cavalry corps, to cross Germanna ford and march to Wilderness tavern; followed by the 6th corps, which would halt for the night half way between the ford and Wilderness tavern.

Ely's ford was some 10 miles from Lee's right flank; Germanna ford less than five miles; but the shape of the river at this point favored a crossing. The trains would cross at Ely's and Culpeper Mine fords, after the 2d corps, thus covered by the army corps in all directions. Torbert's cavalry division was to cover the rear of the army.

This formation "in echelon" put the 2d corps in front and to the left, where it could outflank any resistance to the advance of the main column and where its flank was protected by the advance of the latter. The Germanna road, being the better of the two, was to carry the bulk of the combined armies.

The order was drawn in such a way as to anticipate interference from Lee's forces in crossing the river. Such interference did not materialize, and on the night of the 4th the Army of the Potomac was across the Rapidan, in line facing Lee, and with its trains in its rear. The 2d corps was at Chancellorsville; the 5th corps at Wilderness tavern; the 6th corps behind it. Wilson's 3d cavalry division was well forward on the Orange Plank road, and the 9th corps marching to Germanna ford. The Union army was between the Confederate infantry and the Confederate cavalry.

Grant camped on the south bank of the river. Again approaching the enemy, he felt as he had felt at Bruinsberg. Of this situation, he says in his memoirs:

"This I regarded as a great success, and it removed from my mind the most serious apprehensions I had entertained, that of crossing the river in the face of an active, large, well appointed, and ably commanded army, and how so large a train was to be carried thru a hostile country and protected."

And he might well be gratified at the result, for it was a good day's work in such a country for so large an army with its artillery and fighting trains to march 20 miles, and cross a river on five bridges of its own building, without a single mishap, interruption, or delay.

But the situations were far from parallel. If at Bruinsberg the river behind him was larger, the army under his command, composed of confident soldiers well known to their commander, was small enough for him to direct every detail of supply and every movement. Now he was commanding a large army of strangers thru the intermediation of strange generals, both army and generals accustomed to expect sudden disaster.

There were now three courses open to Lee when he learned of Grant's maneuver; first, to occupy the Mine Run trenches, and Grant's signal corps had decoded a signal message from Lee giving this order; second, to attack Grant's army in the Wilderness; third, to fall back and form a junction with Beauregard. Information received by Grant in the evening that Beauregard had not joined Lee made this alternative a likely one.

Grant had sent for Burnside to come up as a surprise reënforcement and now issued orders for the second day which would enable him to outflank Mine Run, to race Lee to Richmond, or to ward off an attack during his march. The order follows:

Headquarters,
Army of the Potomac,
May 4, 1864, 6 p. m.

The following movements are ordered for the 5th May, 1864:

1. Maj. Gen. Sheridan, commanding cavalry corps, will move with Gregg's and Torbert's divisions against the enemy's cavalry in the direction of Hamilton's crossing. Gen. Wilson, with the 3d cavalry division, will move at 5 a. m. to Craig's meeting house on the Catharpin road. He will keep out parties on the Orange Turnpike and Orange Plank road, the Catharpin road, Pamunkey road (road to Orange Spring), and in the direction of Twyman's store and Andrew's tavern, or Good Hope church.

2. Maj. Gen. Hancock, commanding 2d corps, will move at 5 a. m. to Shady Grove church, and extend his right toward the 5th corps at Parker's store.

3. Maj. Gen. Warren, commanding 5th corps, will move at 5 a. m. to Parker's store, on the Orange Plank road, and extend his right toward the 6th corps, at the Old Wilderness tavern.

4. Maj. Gen. Sedgwick, commanding 6th corps, will move to Old Wilderness tavern on the Orange Turnpike as soon as the road is clear. He will leave a division to cover the bridge at Germanna ford until informed from these headquarters of the arrival of Gen. Burnside's troops there.

5. The reserve artillery will move to Corbin's bridge as soon as the road is clear.

6. The trains will be parked in the vicinity of Todd's tavern.

7. Headquarters will be on the Orange Plank road, near the 5th corps.

8. After reaching the points designated, the army will be held ready to move forward.

9. The commanders of the 5th and 6th corps will keep out detachments on the roads on their right flank. The commander of the 2d corps will do the same on the roads in his front. Their flankers and pickets will be thrown well out, and their troops be held ready to meet the enemy at any moment.

By command of
Maj. Gen. Meade.
S. Williams,
Asst. Adj. Gen.

P. 423-4 Humphrey-Virginia Campaign.

Gen. Philip Sheridan (Acme photo.)

The lower left map on page one shows the positions the corps would have occupied if the orders had been carried out.

Just as Gettysburg was a battle of ridges, for the possession of which the armies maneuvered and fought, and the retention of Missionary Ridge was decisive of the battle, so the Wilderness was a battle of roads for the possession of which the armies marched and fought, and the possession of the Brock road at the end was decisive of the battle. We must, therefore, take the trouble to envisage the roads and the places they crossed.

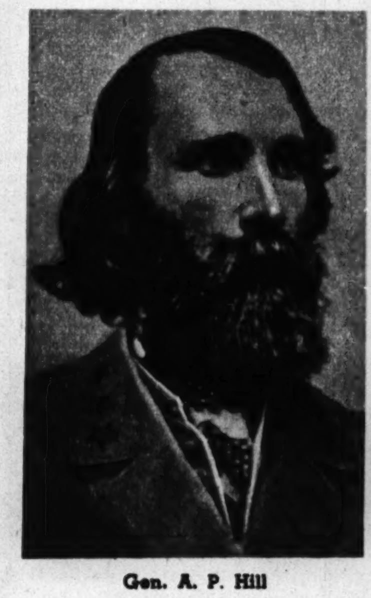
The road of the 2d corps to Chancellorsville and the roads taken by the trains we may dismiss, as they played no part in the battle. On the other hand, the Germanna Plank road, running south thru Wilderness tavern and its continuation by the Brock road, became the equivalent of the stone wall at Gettysburg.

Since Lee's attack came along the Orange Turnpike a few miles south of the Rapidan; the Orange Plank road some miles south of the pike; and the Catharpin road south of that; and the fighting was along these roads and an unfinished railroad south of the Plank, we must fix them in our minds.



Gen. A. P. Hill

Gen. James Longstreet

Now, turning to Lee—

Learning on the morning of May 4 that Grant was on the march around his right flank, Lee at noon ordered Ewell out of his trenches to advance along the Orange Turnpike, nearest the river, but not to bring on a general engagement; Hill to take the Orange Plank road farther to the south; Longstreet to take the Catharpin road still farther south.

Lee's written orders to Ewell from the Mine Run line on the evening of May 4, were as follows:

Rodes, near
New Verdiersville,
May 4, 1864, 8 p. m.

Lieut. Gen. Ewell:

General: Gen. Lee directs me to inform you that he will be found in the woods opposite this house tonight. He wishes you to be ready to move on early in the morning. If the enemy moves down the river, he wishes to push on after him. If he comes this way, we will take our old line. The general's desire is to bring him to battle as soon now as possible. Gen. Hill is on this road. Heth has passed this place. Wilcox near here. Longstreet is on our right, moving up. The cavalry in your front has been instructed to keep you informed of all movements of the enemy.

Respectfully,
W. H. Taylor,
Asst. Adj. Gen.

P. 948, War of Rebellion Records, Ser. 1, Vol. 36, Pt. 2.

And the next morning:

May 5, 1864.

Gen. Ewell:

Capt. Wilbourn reports everything moving to our right except cavalry. If so, better move the divisions to occupy lines at Mine Run, and be prepared for action.

Lee.

These orders do not mention that Anderson's division of Hill's corps was a day's march behind the other two divisions.

In spite of these orders, Ewell passed the Mine Run entrenchments and camped at Locust Grove, five miles west of Wilderness tavern; Hill was now at Verdiersville on Mine Run, separated from Ewell by seven miles of forest; Longstreet at Brock's bridge, another 12 miles away. Grant's army was between Ewell and the Confederate cavalry. The stage was set for a Confederate disaster.

From this predicament it was delivered by the Army of the Potomac. Gen. Meade had used the cavalry corps exclusively in the service of security, picketing and guarding the trains. He had done this so thoroly that the infantry had become accustomed to neglecting its own security.

This use of cavalry the dynamic Sheridan was determined to change, and did change. He indoctrinated Wilson with the idea that the cavalry should be held in a body to fight. His ideas were to meet complete triumph in winning the war, but the immediate consequence was that Wilson only made a superficial reconnaissance of the pike. He did not find Ewell's corps, which was marching carelessly along that road. On the morning of the 5th he left a regiment on the Plank road and, disobeying his orders to keep parties out on the roads Lee was expected to advance on, moved south to the Catharpin road with the rest of his division, looking for a fight.

In camping for the night, Gen. Warren had ordered Gen. Griffin's division out on the pike as a flank guard. Griffin camped within two miles of Ewell's corps, but neither side sent out patrols; either would have been at the mercy of an alert opponent.

If the Union forces had been informed of Ewell's isolation, it would have been a simple matter to crush him, but they did not know of it; Ewell, in turn, did not know anything of the Union dispositions.

Gen. Lee's orders to Ewell for the 5th were to regulate his march by Hill's, not to get ahead of Hill, and not to bring on a general engagement. Instead, Ewell marched carelessly forward until he ran into Griffin's division. It was 6 in the morning. Both sides were surprised; both without cavalry.

We have little record of the conversations between Grant and Meade prior to May 4, or on that evening, as the two generals sat by the campfire, but we know that Grant had expressed disapproval of the elaborate maneuvers that the Army of the Potomac had attempted unsuccessfully for three years. He must have stressed the eventuality of Lee's attacking during the 5th of May, and the importance of immediate counterattack, because Meade, having left Grant and started for the center of his army and learning of the presence of Confederate troops on the pike, changed the orders—approved by Grant the night before—and ordered Warren to attack the Confederate troops on his flank as soon as he could get ready. He ordered Hancock to halt his column at Todd's tavern, the juncture of the Catharpin and Brock roads.

When Grant, waiting at the ford for Burnside, heard from Meade about 8:30 that the Confederates were in force on the pike, he replied:

"If any opportunity presents itself for pitching into a part of Lee's army, do so without giving time for disposition."

This is the first time Grant used the phrase he was to repeat so often. We have seen how little attention he had paid to Hardee's Tactics. His western woodsmen had moved easily in any direction ordered. But in the east, drill-ground formations had been insisted upon to the detriment of efficiency and success.

It may have occurred to him then that again he was away from the battle, waiting for Burnside, as before Shiloh he had been away waiting for Buell and at Donelson talking with Foote, for without waiting for Burnside he left word for him to follow and joined Meade near Wilderness tavern.

By the time he reached there three hours had elapsed since the enemy had been seen and Warren was still engaged in carrying out the military ritual which was the Army of the Potomac's substitute for warfare.

The drill regulations to which the Army of the Potomac rigidly adhered provided three ranks when in line, one of which was always the front rank, a hang-over of the Greek phalanx, which put the bravest men in front. The 5th corps was marched into the Wilderness with its "front line" toward the west. A simple right face would have put Warren's men in order of battle. Instead of turning and attacking, Gen. Warren first ordered his trains to the rear, then sent for Gen. Crawford to return from his advance position and form on the left of the corps. He personally formed the troops in "lines of battle." Altho the opposing troops had come into contact at 6:30 in the morning, it was 12 o'clock before the attack was launched.

Griffin's division, moving on both sides of the pike and guiding on that road, met with initial success, but the divisions on either side not keeping pace with it, it became isolated and was finally driven back with severe loss. Gen. Wadsworth's division, coming up later on the left, was also driven back. Gen. Wright's division of the 6th corps, which had been ordered to advance on the right of the 5th corps and assist in the attack along the pike, did not reach its assigned position until the fighting was over.

In pulling his corps into dense masses, Gen. Warren had uncovered the juncture of the Plank and Brock roads, and Hancock's corps had not been ordered to cover it.

Grant immediately ordered that Gen. Getty's division of the 6th corps pass the rear of the 5th corps by the Germanna road and occupy the crossroads; that the 2d corps form a juncture with this division and then advance westward.

The head of Hill's column came up to the junction of the Plank and the Brock roads shortly after Getty's arrival, felt out the position, and finding it firmly held, deployed and entrenched with Heth's division across the road and Wilcox's on the left, in touch with Ewell.

At 11:40 Hancock received orders to move up the Brock road to the Orange Plank road, and attack westward in the direction of Parker's store.

His corps had started the morning so aligned that when it reached its place of deployment the front line would be facing the enemy. The change in orders resulted in some of the regiments coming into position with their rear rank toward the enemy, and necessitated a difficult maneuver to change the front, which contributed to the delay in forming his divisions in their regular order. It was 2 o'clock before the head of Hancock's corps joined on the left of Getty. He then wasted several hours erecting breastworks.

In order to hurry Hancock, Getty was ordered to attack without him. Thus spurred, Getty's, Burney's, and Mott's divisions charged, and Barlow's followed shortly after.

Outflanked, Lee moved Wilcox's division to the right of Heth's. He was able to do this because Gen. Warren did not carry out his orders to attack Wilcox.

After Wilcox's departure left a hole in the Confederate line, Grant ordered Gen. Wadsworth to pass thru it and attack Hill's left, but Wadsworth was unable to find his way in the jungle, and failed to reach the enemy. Even so, Hill barely maintained himself until nightfall. His troops at nightfall were in no condition to resist on the morrow.

Lee's orders to Ewell on the evening of the 5th disclose his frame of mind and his plans:

May 5, 1864—(6 p. m.)

Lieut. Gen. Ewell:

General: The general commanding directs me to say that the enemy have made no headway in their attack on Gen. Heth, who is near the intersection of the Brock and Plank roads. He hopes to have Gen. Anderson tomorrow morning, and Gen. Longstreet also, and he wants you to get Gen. Ramseur and be ready to act early in the morning. The enemy appear to be on the Wilderness Tavern ridge, and if you see no chance to operate on their right, the general proposes to endeavor to crush their left. He wishes you to send back and care for all your wounded, fill up your ammunition, and be ready to act early in the morning. Gen. Wilcox has just reported that the enemy, who was drawn up on Wilderness Tavern ridge, is all moving up to our right. Should that be the case the general suggests to you the practicability of moving over and taking that ridge, thus severing the enemy from his base, but if this cannot be done without too great a sacrifice, you must be prepared to reënforce our right and make your arrangements accordingly. Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

C. Marshall,
Aide-de-Camp.

P. 952 War of Rebellion Records, Ser. 1, Vol. 36, Pt. 2.

But an hour later matters had changed for the worse and he ordered:

May 5, 1864—(7 p. m.)

Lieut. Gen. Ewell, Commanding, etc.

General: The commanding general directs me to repeat a message sent you at 6 p. m. The enemy persist in their attack on Gen. Hill's right. Several efforts have been repulsed, and we hold our own as yet. The general wishes you to hurry up Ramseur, send back and care for your wounded, fill up your ammunition, and be ready to act by light in the morning. Gen. Longstreet and Gen. Anderson are expected up early, and unless you see some means of operating against their right, the general wishes you to be ready to support our right. It is reported that the enemy is massing against Gen. Hill, and if an opportunity presents itself and you can get Wilderness Tavern ridge and cut the enemy off from the river, the general wishes it done. The attack on Gen. Hill is still raging. Be ready to act as early as possible in the morning. Yours, most respectfully,

C. Marshall,
Lieut. Col. and Aide-de-Camp.

P. 953 War of Rebellion Records, Ser. 1, Vol. 36, Pt. 2.

Lee hoped that a threat to cut Grant off from Germanna Ford would take the pressure off Hill. Failing that, he expected to take troops from his left to reënforce his right.

Hill's corps was now in such confusion that Lee changed Longstreet's previous orders to come up the Catharpin road on Hill's right, to come to the Plank road and relieve Hill.

Grant had put three army corps into action; Lee only one corps and two divisions of a second corps. Burnside was no farther away than Longstreet and was a strategic reserve equal to Longstreet's corps and Anderson's division. The stage was still set for victory, but the generals of Seven Pines, Manassas, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, and Gettysburg could not overcome their apprehensions and boldly advance.

When night fell, Grant knew that Ewell's corps was across the pike, and Hill's almost beaten divisions athwart the Plank road, with a wide gap between them and Ewell, and that Longstreet was still some distance away. Grant therefore ordered Hancock to push out a flank guard on the Brock road to hold Longstreet if he should come that way, and to attack Hill at 4:30 the next morning; and Burnside to start at 2 to pierce the hole in Lee's center and roll up Hill's left flank.

The corps commanders, meeting with Meade and Burnside, asked that the attack be postponed until 6 (this would allow Longstreet an hour and a half more to reach the scene) and were refused. To show his new subordinates some consideration, Grant unwillingly put off the attack until 5.

At 4:30, Ewell attacked and failed to reach Wilderness ridge. Grant considered this to be a device of Lee's to gain time for his right flank, and ordered Hancock forward. The attack was made in overwhelming numbers and was eminently successful. Pressed home, it might have won a complete victory. But Hancock could not shake off the apprenhensions of another Chancellorsville. He shrank when he should have driven; was confused by contradictory orders from Humphreys, mistook a small column of soldiers returning from leave to be an attack on his left flank, thought a cavalry battle on his left was an outflanking movement, and let the golden moment pass. Even so Hill's corps was in disorderly retreat, and Gen. Lee was greatly distressed when Longstreet arrived.

Gen. Longstreet had provided himself with a guide familiar with the terrain, and so was able to come by footpaths from the Catharpin road to Hill's rescue.

Anderson's division was deployed on his left and the rest of the 2d corps, after they were rallied, filled the hole in the line before Burnside came up two hours late, to pass thru it.

This general found time during the vital moments to eat a hearty lunch from a champagne basket; but even Comstock, the most remorseless of Grant's aides, was unable to get him to move against the broken troops of Hill.

Gen. Longstreet had the military genius to deploy his corps in line of skirmishers instead of formal line of battle. He was thus able to hold Hancock in front and have troops enough to follow, and, finding an unfinished railroad cut that led beyond the left flank of Hancock's attack and roll it up. During this attack Gen. Longstreet was severely wounded.

The successful flanking force became mixed with the troops making the direct attack. Before they could be put in order, the 2d Union corps was rallied. Barlow's flanking force on the Brock road was in position to strike Longstreet's disordered troops in flank, but Hancock did not have the genius to use it.

At night, Hancock, who had under his command almost half the Army of the Potomac, was back in his entrenchments, repulsed—almost defeated. However, his troops retained the Germanna and Brock roads, which was decisive of the battle.

Satisfied that he could do no more on his right flank, Gen. Lee rode to the left to see if he could find victory there.

Gen. Gordon reported that he had personally reconnoitered and found the right end of the Union 6th corps. Gen. Lee assented to his suggestion that he march around it and roll it up. He did so, capturing two generals and several hundred men, but he did not have sufficient force to get far.

The story of the cavalry in the battle is easily told. Sheridan was unable to carry out the orders to attack Stuart at Hamilton's Crossing on the 5th because Stuart had left that place and marched via Spotsylvania to join the Confederate army before Torbert's division came up. Sheridan therefore held Torbert at Chancellorsville to guard the trains and rest his horses, and ordered Gregg to scout along the different roads. At noon, learning that Wilson was cut off from the infantry, he sent Gregg to Two Taverns to look for him.

Wilson, for his part, had encountered Confederate cavalry on the Catharpin road. He drove it some distance, when the Confederates, receiving reënforcements, drove Wilson back to Todd's tavern, where, Gregg's division being encountered, the Union forces again regained the ascendency and drove the Confederate forces several miles. As they did not communicate their success to Gen. Hancock, he held his left flank troops in their entrenchments, with which he could have turned Hill's right flank.

Gen. Robert E. Lee

On the evening of May 5, Sheridan received an extraordinary letter from Meade, intimating that the latter expected his left flank to be defeated, and directed that Sheridan be prepared to act on the defensive on the following day.

Therefore on the 6th, when Gregg's and Wilson's divisions were attacked at Todd's tavern and handsomely drove the enemy back, they were, under their instructions, unable to develop the success. In the afternoon Sheridan was informed by Meade that Hancock's left had again been turned and that he would have to withdraw his cavalry to protect the trains.

Grant had found the Army of the Potomac and its generals difficult to control.

Morris Schaff, a graduate of West Point serving with the forces, thus describes the army:

> . . . the Army of the Potomac's one weakness — the lack of springy formation and audacious, self-reliant initiative. This organic weakness was entirely due to not having had in its youth skillfully aggressive leadership. Its early commanders had dissipated war's best elixir by training it into a life of caution, and the evil of that schooling it had shown on more than one occasion, and unmistakably that day.

After joining Meade on the morning of the first day's fight, Grant had remained almost constantly at his headquarters near the battle line where he was in the best possible contact with his whole army, a point from which report of his calm, confident demeanor could be carried to his overwrought subordinates, as when Birney's aide came to Grant and reported that the enemy had broken the lines. He and Meade were sitting together at the foot of a tree, and Grant, after hearing the story, did not stir but, looking up said in his usual low, softly vibrating voice: "I don't believe it."

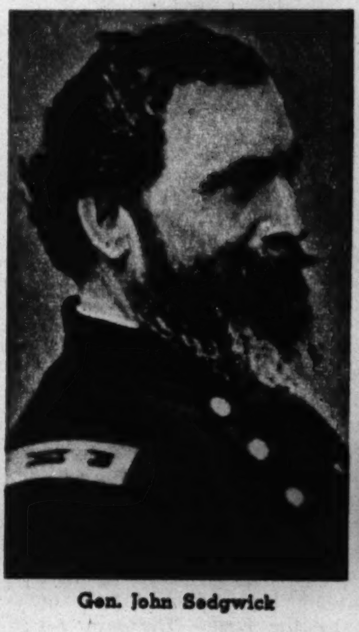
Then during one of Warren's repulses the firing line fell back almost to headquarters, and the suggestion was made that it be withdrawn, Grant replied: "It strikes me it would be better to order up some artillery and defend the present location."

It was at the end of the second day's fighting when Sedgwick was outflanked that Grant once more tore victory from the teeth of panic. Frightened men and officers fled thru the army crying that the day was lost. A general, according to Horace Porter's "Campaigning with Grant," rushed up to Grant and said:

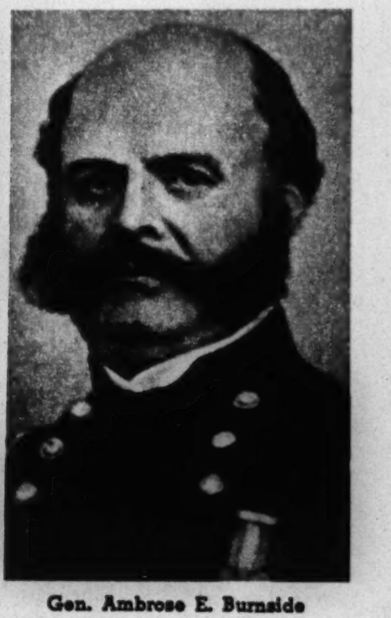
"Gen. Grant, this is a crisis that cannot be looked upon too seriously. I know Lee's methods well by past experience; he will throw his whole army between us and the Rapidan, and cut us off completely from our communications."

The general rose to his feet, took his cigar out of his mouth, turned to the officer, and replied, with a degree of animation which he seldom manifested:

"O, I am heartily tired of hearing about what Lee is going to do. Some of you always seem to think he is suddenly going to turn a double somersault and land in our rear and on both of our flanks at the same time. Go back to your command, and try to think what we are going to do ourselves, instead of what Lee is going to do."



Gen. John Sedgwick



Gen. Ambrose E. Burnside

Says Schaff:

"The record seems to show that Meade, Hancock, as well as Gibbon and presumably Humphreys in a measure, all harbored a fear that Longstreet, on the left, would suddenly appear a portentous specter, forever casting its image on their minds.

"Warren always, when Lee's movements were uncertain and a matter of discussion, referred to him as 'Bobbie' Lee, with an air and tone that said he is not a man to be fooled with.

"There is no evidence, however, that any such notion had stolen into Grant's mind, for neither at that time, nor ever after, was there magic in the name of Longstreet, Lee, or any other Confederate, for him."

On the morning of the 7th, Warren urged the construction of a defensive line in front of Germanna Ford, and said:

"You know how much more important our right is to our army just now than the left."

On the night of May 6, Hancock, Burnside, Warren, and Sedgwick, and Meade were beaten men. But Grant was neither beaten nor tired.

Gen. Wilson records:

"I was full of anxiety as to the effect upon Grant of the exciting incidents of the two days previous and especially of the night before. . . . I reached the headquarters on a little wooded knoll in the Wilderness at, or shortly after, 7 o'clock on the morning of April 7, and dismounting at the proper distance, I had started up the hillside when Grant caught sight of me, and before receiving my report, called out cheerily: 'It's all right, Wilson; the army is moving toward Richmond!'"

He had already issued orders to Meade for the advance. Lee for his part offered Grant golden bridges to retreat over the Rapidan. He spent the day reorganizing his army and reconnoitering Grant's position. He looked especially to see if Grant was retreating by the Germanna ford. Finding that, on the contrary, Grant had abandoned that ford and that his trains were moving east, he reported to President Davis that he thought Grant was retreating on Fredericksburg. He said to Gen. Gordon that if he could check Grant, such a crisis would arise in the north as might lead to an armistice.

Thus altho the battle had left the armies relatively about as they were at the beginning, altho the concluding phases were favorable to Lee, tho inconclusive, yet his effort to stop Grant had failed. In that, the battle of the Wilderness was the decisive battle of the Civil war.

So ended the great battle of the Wilderness, the bloodiest battle of the Civil war. It was brought on by Gen. Ewell's disobedience and blundering into Warren's corps. Grant attacked him immediately to infuse the spirit of the offensive into the Army of the Potomac. As soon as he learned of the dispersion of Lee's army he maneuvered to destroy it and nearly succeeded on the evening of the 5th and the morning of the 6th, but could not get positive action out of his negative corps and army commanders.

The battle was saved for the Confederates and almost won by Longstreet, and after the exhaustion of this effort the flank attack by Gordon thoroly frightened the generals of the Army of the Potomac, but not the commander in chief.

Tactically the battle was a stalemate, but strategically it was the decisive victory of the war, because for the first time the Union army maintained itself on the south bank of the Rapidan and had begun the bloody campaign that was to end at Appomattox.

AMERICA'S UNDERSEAS WARSHIPS

Subs That Are Beating Axis at Its Own Grim Game

By WALTER TROHAN

The U. S. S. Shad as it was launched last month.

Washington, D. C.

WITHIN the last few weeks three submarines of the United States have challenged the undersea records formerly held undisputedly by the axis powers, principally Germany.

One out of every four Jap ships sent to the bottom or damaged in the four months after Pearl Harbor fell victims to lurking American subs. Out of a total of 198 Jap ships sunk or damaged to April 7, submarines accounted for 51. And only one American submarine has been sunk by the enemy.

This batting average is better than the axis submarine can show in four months of battling in two oceans. Since Pearl Harbor the enemy has sunk more than 100 united nations vessels by submarine activity. The Jap subs accounted for about a dozen ships and have lost 8 subs. The German, and possibly some Italian subs, have accounted for more than 90 merchantmen in the western Atlantic and have lost 21 subs, according to the navy department's official compilation.

Altho most of the vessels sunk by American subs have been warships or transports, the American undersea craft have made forays against Japanese merchantmen, principally tankers, sometimes operating almost within sight of Yokohama. This is in keeping with American naval policy under which submarines were not designed primarily as raiders but for operations against enemy fleets and for defensive purposes.

The submarine is nothing more or less than a diving torpedo boat. Its primary function is to carry mobile torpedoes to within striking distance of enemy vessels. Its principal value is its comparative invisibility, which makes possible a stealthy approach on an enemy vessel. Its weaknesses are its slow speed under water and even on the surface and the fact that it must come up repeatedly to breathe, like the whale.

The idea of submarines is as old as naval warfare, Alexander the Great built himself a glass barrel and explored the floor of the sea. Lucullus used an inflated goatskin to send a dispatch rider out of a besieged port under the nose of the enemy. The protection of hides was used by divers in attempts to bore holes in enemy ships.

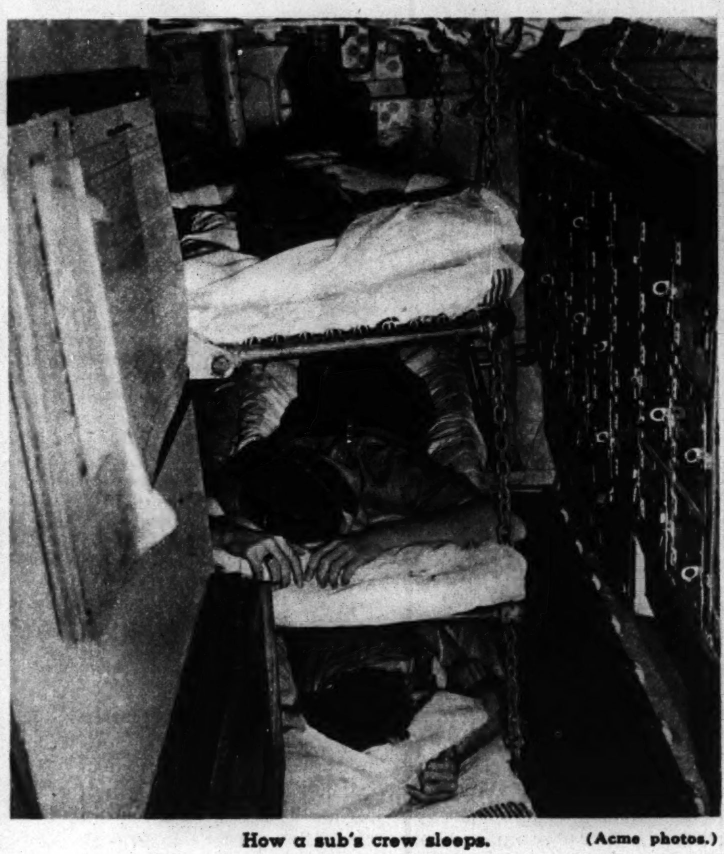
In 1150, when the crusaders were besieging the city of Ptolemais, a submarine was made of leather to carry messages to the beleaguered warriors, according to the poem of that day. In the 17th century the Barbary pirates were described as adept at undersea warfare.

In 1555 the bishop of Upsala wrote that the Greenland pirates employed leather boats which they were adept in using above and below the surface in their attacks. Leonardo da Vinci, a genius in many fields, built undersea craft.

The 17th century is as rich with submarine efforts as is the 18th. In 1771 Dr. David Bushnell, a colonial physician, designed a craft, which was completed four years later. His purpose was to destroy the British fleet in New York harbor. It was manned one night in 1776 by Sergt. Ezra Lee of the Continental army, and altho he failed to bore a hole in the side of H. M. S. Eagle, a 64-gun warship, he exploded a torpedo which frightened the Britishers and caused them to shift their anchorage to Sandy Hook. This was regarded as a victory and Sergt. Lee was personally congratulated by Gen. Washington. Bushnell tried twice again in the war with indifferent success.

In the Civil war the Confederates built several submarines which they called "Davids." They were expected to knock out the "Goliaths" of the Union navy. On Oct. 15, 1863, one of the Davids attacked the U. S. S. New Ironsides, on blockade duty at Charleston, S. C., using a torpedo on the end of a spar. The Union vessel was not seriously damaged. About four months later—Feb. 17, 1864—a Confederate submarine built by H. L. Hundley attacked and sank the U. S. S. Housatonic near Charleston. This was the first warship ever to be sunk by a submarine. The Confederate craft and its crew were lost in the attack.

Submarine development advanced during the last portion of the 19th century, mainly thru the efforts of John P. Holland, Irish-born American inventor.

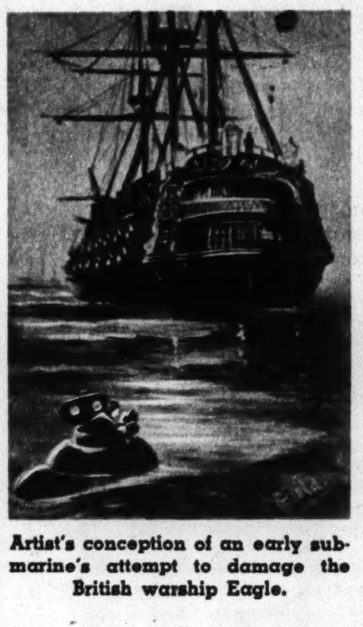


How a sub's crew sleeps. (Acme photos.)

Not until the World war were the possibilities of the submarine fully realized. The German undersea boat campaign was a major effort to win the war. Not until the North sea was strewn with mines, largely by American men of war, was this serious menace curbed.

• • •

The torpedo, which is the sub's principal weapon, can be regarded as a miniature submarine. It drives its huge charge thru the seas at race horse speeds. For all the terrific violence of which it is capable, it is a delicate mechanism from the blunt nose to the twin screw tail with eight small rudders. It is adjusted with microscopic precision and as beautifully made as a chronometer.



Artist's conception of an early submarine's attempt to damage the British warship Eagle.

Submarines may be divided into two types; first, the large cruiser type which can accompany the fleet. These may be employed in scouting the enemy fleet, attacking the enemy fleet with torpedoes, laying mines in the enemy's trade routes, planting mines off enemy harbors, and in attacking enemy commerce. These are comparable among surface craft to cruisers. These can be as large as 3,000 tons and carry planes and 6-inch guns.

The second type of sub is known generally as the first line type. These are smaller than the fleet submarines, averaging about 800 tons. They are designed to operate near the coast lines of their own countries or from bases with the object of preventing blockades, laying protective mines, attacking enemies who might come within their field of operations.

Accurate data on the number of American submarines and their performance is now banned because such information would be of value to the enemy. However, there is no objection to publication of data already known to be in enemy hands.

Shortly before the outbreak of the war the United States had 113 submarines and 73 building. The subs constituted about one-third the number of ships in the navy and were the largest single class of craft after destroyers. The last officially released report of American naval strength was as follows:

Type	Built	Building	Total
Battleships	17	15	32
Aircraft carriers	7	11	18
Cruisers	31	54	91
Destroyers	172	192	364

The navy's total of subs included a considerable number of World war craft which were recommissioned. While the total of 113 submarines actually in the fleet was impressive, the majority of these vessels for the most part were old in years and service.

How the United States at that time compared with axis powers in submarines and other craft, according to the best available data, is shown in the following table:

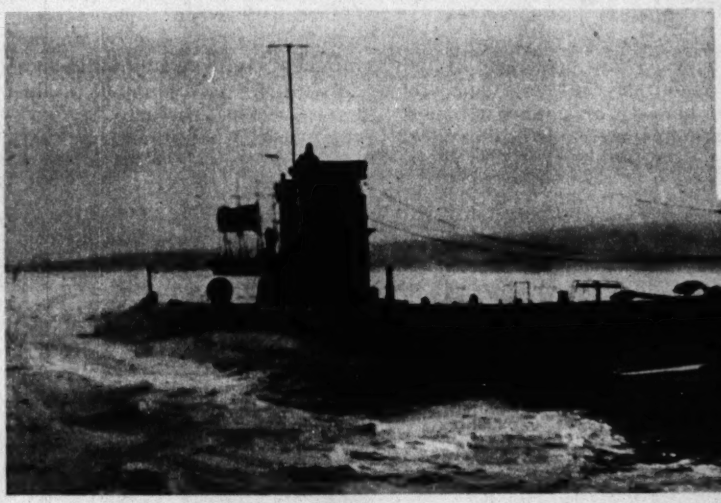
*Doubtful estimates. †Conservative estimates.



An O type submarine of the class built in 1917-'18. It is of 480 tons.

In recent years the size of American submarines has been curtailed. At one time the navy was building subs of about 2,500 tons. The latest subs to join the fleet before the war were of about 1,500 tons. It was found that the smaller craft could be operated more effectively and efficiently. What building policy has been adopted for subs now under way is a military secret.

This article is concerned with the information which can be printed on the types and operation of American submarines. The fleet submarines cost from 5 to 10 million or more dollars to build. Their motive power consists of internal combustion engines. Some subs carry two 2,000-horsepower two-cycle type of Diesel engines and two 1,000 horsepower four-cycle Diesel engines. When the vessels are submerged, electric motors which derive current from storage batteries propel the craft.

The hulls of the vessels are made strong enough to withstand pressure at a maximum depth of about 200 feet. Within that depth the vessels are able to lie on the bottom as long as the crew can stand it. At slow speeds the subs can stay under water 48 hours and then must come to the surface to recharge their batteries.

The vessels differ in size, the number of torpedo tubes, armament, cruising radius, speeds under water and on the surface. The fleet subs can accompany the fleet in all kinds of weather. Smaller subs find travel in storms difficult.

It is possible for crews of subs to remain under water for four days or even more without being seriously affected, altho this is a matter of dispute. Air is purified aboard the craft by being passed thru chemicals which remove carbon monoxide.

Sailors find it harder to live on subs than on surface craft. Drowsiness is always experienced when the vessel is submerged and there is an accompanying letdown of mental and physical activity. In tropical waters high temperatures aboard the vessel are difficult to bear and air is kept in circulation by fans. Subs carry supplies of oxygen for use in emergencies.

Every effort is made to provide for the comfort of the crew. There are comfortable bunks for the enlisted men and staterooms for the officers. The mess is excellent. Crews draw higher pay for sub duty.

In the navy subs are known as "pigboats" and crews take pride in belonging to the "dungaree navy," as conventional garb is not worn aboard the craft.

In the old days subs were without heat except that generated by engines and human bodies. Sometimes the engines heated up to 120 degrees when charging batteries, which made things more than hot enough. The old subs were full of vapors. None of the crew ever took his clothes off. And the craft were as difficult to ride as bronchos. They would roll 55 degrees except when 60 feet below the surface, where there is no motion at all. Watches were cut to three hours. Off watch the crews slept because it was difficult to keep awake and there was nothing else to do.

Subs have changed but little since the World war except in comfort. At one time a few subs were built whose displacement was close to 4,000 tons, such as the French Surcouf, recently reported lost, which carries a plane and two 8-inch guns, but the great majority are small craft. The designs of large and small craft are similar. Forward is the main torpedo room with six tubes. Directly aft is the battery compartment, in which storage batteries are packed beneath the deck.

On this deck are officers' quarters, including a diminutive wardroom. Directly aft in the next compartment is the control room, which is directly beneath the conning tower. Here are the valves controlling all tanks and compressed air chambers, rudder and diving plane controls, the depth registers, compasses, telegraphs, the periscope, the radio, and other mechanism.

Aft of this compartment are watertight doors locking off the engine room, where the Diesels which propel the craft on the surface are housed. This is as noisy as a boiler factory when the engines are running. Behind the engine room is a second engine room for the electric motors which propel the craft under water.

Above and around this compartment are the crew's quarters. Crew bunks are racked to the wall and are lowered only when in use. Farther aft is the stern torpedo compartment. Tanks for oil, water, and gas line the under side of the sub thruout and in the center completely encircle it.

On the outer deck is a gun, usually a 4-inch gun. In larger subs are a pair of 4-inch guns or even a pair of 6-inch guns.

The American submarine force consists of vessels of various classes. Data on those which are now being turned out is considered information of value to the enemy.

The newest class on which data is available to all is the Thresher class of six subs, all of which were laid down under the 1938 program. These are of 1,450 tons displacement and carry a crew of 55 officers and men. These vessels and fleet submarines were completed in 1940 and 1941.

The subs of this class are 300 feet long, 27 feet wide, and 13⅓ feet high. They have eight 21-inch torpedo tubes, one 4-inch gun, and an anti-aircraft .50-caliber machine gun. They are reported to have a surface speed of over 20 knots and a submerged speed of over 11 knots.

Similar to the Thresher class are 10 subs of the Sargo class. One of these was the ill-fated Squalus which went down off Portsmouth, N. H., in May, 1939. Thirty-three of 59 members of the crew and observers of the dive were saved by use of a diving bell. The vessel was raised to the surface, repaired, and recommissioned under another name.

Vessels of this class have the same dimensions as those of the Thresher class but were completed in 1938 and 1939. They are slower and lack improvements incorporated in the newer craft. They are armed with one 3-inch gun rather than a 4-inch gun.

Completed in 1938 were six submarines of the Salmon class, three of which are of 1,450 tons and three of 1,445 tons. These are 298 feet long, 26 feet wide, and 14⅓ feet high. They also carry a crew of 55 and one 3-inch gun, one .50-caliber anti-aircraft machine gun, and eight 21-inch torpedo tubes. They are not as fast as subs of the Thresher and Sargo class and lack improvements incorporated in the newer ships.

A year before the Salmon class subs were completed, the navy turned out six subs of the Perch class. These are of 1,330 tons, except for one sub which is of 1,335 tons. They cost about $2,400,000 each. They have but six 21-inch torpedo tubes.

In 1936 four subs of the Pike class were built. This class includes the Shark, the one submarine the United States lost in the first four months of the war. They carry a crew of 50, six 21-inch torpedo tubes, and one 3-inch anti-aircraft gun. These subs are reported to make better than 20 knots on the surface and about 11 knots submerged.

In 1932 the navy built but one sub. This was the Dolphin of 1,540 tons, which has a surface speed of 17 knots and a submerged speed of 8 knots. It carries a crew of 63, one 4-inch gun, and six 21-inch torpedo tubes.

In 1931 and 1930 the navy built two submarines in each year. These are repectively the Cachalot and the Cuttlefish and the Narwhal and the Nautilus. The former are of 1,100 and 1,120 tons, carry crews of 45, one 3-inch gun, and six 21-inch torpedo tubes and have surface speeds of 17 knots and submerged speeds of 9 knots.

The Narwhal and Nautilus are both larger craft. They are of 2,730 tons displacement and are 371 feet long, 33 feet wide, and 15 feet high. They carry two 6-inch guns each, six 21-inch torpedo tubes, and eight external storage torpedo tubes. These vessels cost over $6,000,000 and are manned by crews of 88. They have surface speeds of 17 knots and submerged speeds of 8 knots.

In 1927 the navy completed the Argonaut, a 2,710-ton mine-laying sub. This is 358 feet long, 33 feet wide, and 15 feet high. It carries two 6-inch guns, four 21-inch torpedo tubes, and 60 mines. It has a surface speed of 14.6 knots and a submerged speed of 8 knots and is manned by a crew of 89.

In 1924, 1925, and 1926 the navy completed three subs of the Barracuda class. These are of 2,000 tons, carry a crew of 75, and are 326 feet long, 27 feet wide, and 14 feet high. They carry one 3-inch gun, two machine guns, 6 torpedo tubes, and 16 torpedoes. They have a surface speed of 18.75 knots and a speed of 8 knots submerged.

Of the first line type of submarines the fleet has 38 vessels of the S class. These average about 800 tons, and have a surface speed of 14 knots and a submerged speed of 11 knots. They are about 220 feet long, 20 feet wide, and 15 feet high. They carry crews of 38 men. They are armed with one 4-inch gun, one .50-caliber machine gun, and four or five 21-inch torpedo tubes, and carry 12 to 14 torpedoes. They were authorized in 1916 and built during or after the war and have undergone frequent thoro overhaulings.

Also in the first line class are eight subs of the O class and 19 subs of the R class. Subs of the O class were built in 1917-'18 and those of the R class from 1917 to 1919. All have recently been reconditioned and recommissioned.

Those of the R class are of 530 tons. They are 186 feet long, 18 feet wide, and 14 feet high. They carry one 3-inch gun, one .50-caliber machine gun, four torpedo tubes, and eight torpedoes. The subs of the O class are even smaller, being of 480 tons. They have similar armament. They have surface speeds of 14 knots and submerged speeds of 11 knots.

NEW TYPES OF FIGHTER PLANES

The new British Westland Whirlwind fighter. It has four cannon mounted in nose and elevated tail unit.

By WAYNE THOMIS

THE WHIRLWIND, a product of the Westland company of England, is the new single-seater bimotored British fighter—the British equivalent of the Lockheed P-38 or Lightning and the German Messerschmitt 110 or Focke-Wulf 187. Release of information on the Whirlwind indicates that the Germans now possess relatively complete and accurate details of its performance, general design, and construction. As a matter of fact, this plane, flown first in 1939, has been in action over England and in daylight sweeps over France for 11 months.

Motives of the designers of the Whirlwind were similar to those of the Americans and Germans who produced the other airplanes mentioned above. The purpose was to obtain a great increase in power for this machine by using two standard types of power units that already were available. This is the only alternative to development of new power units of greatly increased power. As in the American and German cases, the expedient was only partly successful for the British.

Specifically the Whirlwind has a wing span of 45 feet, a length of 31½ feet, and a height of just under 12 feet. The original motors were two Rolls Royce Peregrines—developments of the prewar Rolls Royce Kestrel. They developed 860 horsepower each for takeoff and a maximum of 885 horsepower each at 3,000 revolutions a minute at 3,000 feet. According to information from England, the Germans rated the top speed of this Whirlwind at 353 miles an hour at 16,350 feet. This was probably about correct. The arms for this single-seater airplane are four 20-mm. cannon, all firing straight ahead thru the front of the fuselage.

Since this information was officially released it was learned that the Whirlwind now in service has been considerably modified. Most important change is the substitution of Rolls Royce Merlin XX engines for the Peregrines. The Merlins develop more than 1,300 horsepower for takeoff and have greatly increased the speed of the airplane. Also they increased its weight and reduced its range—showing how directly the emphasis on one phase of performance is reflected in all other phases.

Reports from England indicate that the Whirlwind has been followed by a De Havilland bimotored fighter type, also with the Merlin engines. The De Havilland firm is one of the oldest in England and one of the best known manufacturers around the world. The DH-4s and DH-9s were famous fighting planes in World War I., and the De Havilland Moth made air history right after the first World war. Now a new De Havilland plane is in combat.

This DH bimotored fighter is said to be constructed entirely of a plastic-bonded plywood. It is the first all-wooden—or rather all-plastic—type of fighter that the British ever have had in service. Even in World War I., when wood was the major material used, fabric covered the fuselage, wings, and control surfaces of airplanes. Today the plastic-impregnated plywood is used for the entire ship, outside coverings as well as internal structure. Without further accurate information it can only be said that it has an excellent performance, according to pilots who have seen it fly.

The American Lockheed Lightning or P-38 is pictured here to show the contrast between two radically different approaches to the same problem. The American ship is larger than the Whirlwind, having a span of 52 feet and length of 38 feet. It probably is heavier, weighing 13,500 pounds. The Whirlwind, according to reports, weighs 9,000 pounds.

SUCH A SALAD—AND WHAT A WHIP!

Crisp and crunchy is this salad, and wonderful with cheese dressing!

By MARY MEADE

APPETITE APPEAL—that's what this big bowlful of crisp salad has. What a wonderful lot of crunchiness there is in cauliflower, watercress, lettuce, and onion rings! And when you add a French dressing with crumbled blue cheese in it—ah, there you have a queen among salads!

Blue cheese is our American equivalent of the French roquefort which we can't get any more. It's even better than roquefort, I think! And it really adds piquancy to salads.

BERMUDA SALAD BOWL

1 small head cauliflower
1 small head lettuce
½ large peeled Bermuda onion, thinly sliced
½ cup sliced stuffed olives
Watercress
Crumbled blue cheese
French dressing

Separate cauliflower into small flowerets. Break lettuce into pieces. Combine salad ingredients with French dressing into which cheese has been finely crumbled.

Blue cheese is wonderful in that bacon dressing you use on spinach or watercress or lettuce, too. In fact, it's good on almost any green or crisp salad—even some fruit salads.

Here's a luscious prune whip made without any sugar. Sherry wine and the natural sugar of the prunes are the only sweetener.

SHERRY PRUNE WHIP
(Serves six)

1½ cups cooked prune pulp
½ cup California sherry
2 egg whites, beaten until stiff
1 cup whipping cream, whipped

Mix wine with prune pulp. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and the whipped cream. Pile high in sherbet glasses. Serve crisp little cookies with the whip.

Prune whip is a light, fluffy, easy-to-eat dessert and may follow a rather heavy meal. But heavy meals are on their way out, because they're not very healthful, and neither are they economical.

This menu is not heavy, but it's a good cure for hunger and is nutritious and satisfying: Broiled lamb shoulder chops, creamed potatoes with chives and pimiento, glazed carrots, watercress salad with bacon and blue cheese dressing, hot rolls, prune whip and cookies. Prune whip is an excellent end to such a dinner.

To fill out a luncheon starring the vegetable salad bowl which we talked about earlier I'd recommend a big platter of hot cornbread, jam or jelly, deep dish apple pie, and milk. The hearty dessert is permissible here because of the light body of the meal.

"BIGGEST PIE NEWS EVER TOLD!
Now you can be SURE of FLAKY PIE CRUST!"

NOW—NO MORE WORRY ABOUT TOUGH PASTRY!

SUNDAY SUPPER PIE . . . Fill individual casseroles or large baking dish with creamed fish and vegetables. Top with flaky Crisco crust. See recipe below.

Just change to Crisco and its own New Pastry Method!

EASY! No guesswork now—just follow Crisco's method exactly!

Imagine . . . never again need you worry about tough pie crust. For here at last is the winning combination for getting flaky pastry time after time—Crisco and its New Pastry Method. Right in Crisco is a pastry success secret found in no other shortening. And Crisco's new method ends the two chief causes of tough pie crust—using too much water and over-handling your dough.

DOUBLE-CRUST MEASUREMENTS: Mix 2 cups of sifted flour and 1 teaspoon salt into a bowl. Take out ⅓ cup of this flour and mix it with ¼ cup of water to make a paste.

TELLS EXACT AMOUNT OF WATER!

Notice—you don't have to guess about the water as you do with cookbook recipes. Too much water is the first big cause of tough pastry.

To remaining flour (1⅔ cups) add ⅔ cup Crisco; cut in until pieces are size of small peas.

WITH CRISCO, BLENDING'S EASY!

Next, add flour-paste to Crisco-flour mixture. Mix thoroughly until the dough comes together and can be shaped into a ball. Divide dough—roll out 2 crusts about ⅛ inch thick.

NEW WAY TO MIX DOUGH!

Your Crisco dough isn't sticky—it's easy to roll out. No danger of over-handling—the other big cause of toughness.

ONE-CRUST MEASUREMENTS: Use 1½ cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt and ⅓ cup Crisco. Take out ¼ cup flour and blend with 3 tablespoons water.

SUNDAY SUPPER PIE—Mix 2 cups salmon or other cooked fish, 1 cup cooked celery, ½ cup cooked peas. Add 2 cups medium white sauce. Use 1-crust pastry measurements for quart casserole. (For 4 to 6 small casseroles, use 2-crust measurements.)
Bake at 425° F. 20 minutes.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS BY BOB BECKER

Some boxers are being used as guide dogs for the blind. This is a 1½-year-old boxer photographed when it was benched in a dog show.

DOG OWNERS are apt to run into most any kind of a problem from how to feed a puppy to how to train one for a good companion dog. Here are some typical letters that come to this department in most any mail:

My 6-year-old Pekingese seems to be shedding more than usual. Could this be due to the season? He has a bath every two weeks. Is that too often?—HELEN B., St. Louis, Mo.

Dogs will shed their winter coats when spring comes, but if you believe your dog is shedding too much or at the wrong time you may suspect several things. A common cause for an unthrifty coat and excessive loss of hair is a faulty diet, with a lack of vitamins. Some dogs shed because during the winter they are allowed to sleep in too warm a place. Yes, a bath every two weeks will ruin the coat of any dog and may cause a skin irritation.

We have a beagle hound which we bathe once every week in warm water. For this bath we use a mild hand soap. But the dog still has a strong doggy odor. Can you tell us how to overcome this?—H. S. S., Griggsville, Ill.

You can eliminate the odor from your dog by bathing it less and using deodorants more frequently. No dog should get a bath every week. First brush the beagle every day. Get a small can or bottle of pine oil made especially for dogs and sprinkle a few drops on the brush before you use it on the dog. That will impart a fragrant odor to him. Or you can obtain a small pine bar from a pet shop and rub that on the dog. Another useful accessory is a can of cleaning powder made especially for dogs. This contains a deodorant. Rub the powder into the dog's coat and then brush it out.

Can you recommend anything that will rid a dog of lice? I have tried several preparations, but with not very good results. —C. B. EVERSON, Detroit, Mich.

There are both powders and liquids available which will kill lice and also fleas and ticks. As a rule an owner who reports that he doesn't have much success with them either is not applying the preparation correctly or thoroly or is letting the dog reinfest itself from its bed. You must disinfect the bed of the dog at once. If the animal is sleeping in a kennel on straw, burn the straw and scrub the kennel with a strong disinfectant and hot water. If your dog sleeps on a rug or in a dog bed, get after it at once or he'll never be free from lice. We are sending you a list of insecticides that we have tested. If you follow the directions for using them you will have no more trouble with your dog.

My husband brought home a 6-week-old German shepherd. The dog is awfully cute, but I don't know very much about taking care of her. What should she be fed? How soon can I feed her meat? What is the best way to house-break her? How soon can I teach her tricks? —DOROTHY A., Chicago.

It's impossible to answer all of your questions in this column or even by mail, because to cover them in full would take many pages of writing. May we suggest that you (and 13 other owners who wrote us in this same mail on how to bring up a pup) do what thousands of inexperienced owners have found to be the best plan? Get a good book and follow the instructions given on puppy care. This is a small investment (because a dollar or two will get a good book), and one of the best that you can make in a new dog, which if raised correctly will mean fun and companionship for 10 to 12 years or more. One of the newest and most concise handbooks on how to raise, feed, groom, and train a young dog is "How to Raise and Train Your Puppy." It's a guidebook written especially for novice owners who want sensible advice on dog care. It's on sale in any book store ($1).

About 40 years ago we owned a pug dog. I haven't seen one for a long time. Some one told me there aren't any more pug dogs. Is that correct?—MRS. R. M. O., Cleveland, O.

No, that isn't correct. It is true that the pug dog hasn't been popular in recent years, and very few have been bred. But the breed is showing signs of staging a comeback and there are quite a few kennels breeding them now.

We have just purchased a cocker spaniel, so could you send us information on the raising of cockers? We would like a leaflet on the diet for a cocker, how to detect symptoms of worms, and information on distemper inoculation.—MRS. L. A. B., Waukegan, Ill.

Your veterinarian should advise you on distemper immunization. When you ask him about the time to start the treatment take your puppy along and he will check it for worms. This department has no free leaflets on raising cockers. You will get many practical tips on raising and feeding your puppy from The Tribune's inexpensive dog book entitled "Feeding the Dog," which is sold for 30 cents by mail by the Chicago Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 South Dearborn street and in Tribune Tower. This handbook gives a diet for the cocker and more than 30 other breeds. It also contains tips on a number of puppy problems, including distemper, beds for puppies, grooming the pup, and bathing.

Could you tell me where I can buy a stripping knife for my wire-haired terrier?—WILLIAM G., Somonauk, Ill.

You can get a stripping knife in any dog or pet shop. There also is a small book on how to strip a terrier which we believe will help you. Before you start working on your dog try and get a few lessons on the use of the knife from a professional handler.

Please send me your pamphlet on "The Scientific Feeding of Dogs."—FLORENCE L., Indianapolis, Ind.

We're sorry, but we have no pamphlet of that name. Perhaps you have in mind "Feeding the Dog," the illustrated book on how to feed various breeds which was published by The Chicago Tribune. It is sold by the Public Service Office of The Tribune, 1 South Dearborn street, Chicago. The price is 30 cents by mail. If this is the book you want, send the money to the Public Service Office.

How British magazine Sphere explains newest American plan for armament of its battleships. Inset shows countersunk turret beside regular turret.

THE accompanying picture, a reproduction of a drawing in the British magazine Sphere, shows how United States naval designers, according to the magazine, are attempting to overcome dangers from air bombs in vessels of the U. S. S. Washington type.

The battleship shown in the picture has 24 dual-purpose guns, capable of high-angle fire, for use against airplanes and against surface craft as well. The guns are mounted four to a turret in six turrets. The novel feature of the plan is that two of these turrets, one on the forward deck and the other on the after deck, are countersunk in the decks. The inset drawing shows the method of mounting a countersunk turret.

The 24 dual-purpose guns represent the secondary armament and in no way would hamper or obstruct the use of the nine 16-inch guns of the main armament, which are mounted three to a turret in three turrets.

According to the British information on this subject, aircraft, catapult gear, and two conning tower positions would be sacrificed to provide space for all these dual-purpose weapons.

The battleship Washington, said to be the beginning point of this new development, actually carries 20 5-inch dual-purpose guns mounted in two-gun turrets. There are five turrets to each side of the vessel amidships but none forward or aft and none directly behind the main gun turrets, as shown in the picture here. Ships of the 35,000-ton Washington class, which include the North Carolina and the Alabama, each are equipped with two catapults and carry four aircraft.

● From Greenville, Tex., came JOHN BOLES with ambitions to be a doctor. The World war, however, saw him in the intelligence service. In France he discovered the professional potentialities of his voice and after the war studied until he was able to demand and get the lead in "Little Jesse James." Star parts followed rapidly, and when Gloria Swanson saw him she obtained his services for her picture "The Loves of Sonya." His first big film hit, however, was "The Desert Song." Six-foot-one-inch Boles made his most recent film appearance in "Road to Happiness." He is now doing theater and night club dates, having been a hit at the Chez Paree in Chicago last winter.

● The movie "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" might have been titled "Hello, GREER GARSON," for it marked the American arrival of this young Irish actress. Greer had been successful on the British stage and in television—the direct result of a childhood ambition to act. Greer (it's her mother's family name, a corruption of McGregor) has been seen recently in "Blossoms in the Dust" and "When Ladies Meet," and reaches for an Oscar in her forthcoming "Mrs. Miniver." She was born in County Down, is 5 feet 5, and weighs 112 pounds.

● EDWARD ARNOLD was born Guenther Schneider in New York's lower east side tenement district. Death of his parents forced him to quit school after the sixth grade, and he struggled along until a settlement school play gave him the acting bug. At 15 he changed his name and joined a Shakespearean company. Days in stock led to a contract with the old Essanay studios in Chicago. A professional visit to Los Angeles landed him in films in 1932. He is a lover of good food and music. His most recent film was with Robert Taylor in "Johnny Eager."

● MICHELE MORGAN has been pretty well publicized in this section of late, and now Chicagoans have been able to see her in "Joan of Paris," her first American starring rôle. When Michele was 15 she ran away to Paris seeking a drama career, and after family tribulations had been settled she made the grade. Hers has been a skyrocketing career in foreign films. Her real name is Simone Roussel, but she liked the name Mike Morgan and feminized it for her own use.

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

By ELEANOR NANGLE

THE TOMBSTONE of Mary Lyon, who opened Mount Holyoke seminary in 1837, stands at Mount Holyoke college in South Hadley, Mass., not far from some of the old red brick buildings, mostly in Tudor style, about which most campus activity centers. The stone bears her statement, "There is nothing in the universe that I fear, except that I may not know my duty, or fail to do it."

Mary Lyon's college, the oldest of the leading women's colleges in New England and parent of others, has a rather special atmosphere of earnestness and serenity that is undoubtedly a reflection of its age and its founder's character.

There is, for example, the unique experiment in participation in wartime duty which is known as the Mount Holyoke rural service bureau, designed to aid the harassed farmers of the Connecticut valley whose hands forsake the fields for jobs in the mills and defense plants. The farmers around the college were at first amused when college students asked permission to work on their farms. Now they are impressed and grateful.

There are about 60 willing workers, headed by Carroll Binder, '44, of Highland Park, Ill., who volunteer their services to short-handed nearby farmers. They demonstrated their earnestness and willingness to work so effectively last fall that this spring the bureau is besieged with requests for their help. Working in groups of five to ten, usually clad in dungarees and lumber jackets, they work afternoon or week-ends. In the autumn they husked corn, helped with the harvesting, fed cattle, and mastered dozens of other farm chores. Now they are helping with the planting, among other things.

For this they receive neither financial support nor academic credits from the college. They do not ask for pay, but if some is pressed upon them by stubborn and grateful farmers their transportation costs are deducted and the balance given to charity. They have won the respect of the farmers, whose first reaction of considering it a collegiate whim is now entirely dissipated. "They're not afraid to work," one farmer told us, "and they're spry." Last fall they husked 125 bushels of corn for him and dug 780 bushels of potatoes!

Mount Holyoke has more than its share of pretty girls, and one of the prettiest, as well as its most distinguished, is Rosamund Purdy of Glencoe, Ill. From March, 1941, to March, 1942, Rosamund was chairman of Community, a liaison organization between student body and faculty; this post is the highest elective office at the college. She is an honor student in English and a Phi Beta Kappa. Another Glencoe girl, Anne Wulchet, is president of the freshman class.

Know Your Camera

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

PHOTOGRAPHY is as simple or as complicated a hobby as you wish to make it. We have often stressed the fact that it is easy to take good pictures even tho your knowledge of photography is only very elementary. Now, just for the fun of it, let us see how complicated picture taking and picture "making" can be if you know what makes the process tick and if you try to control every step in it.

Control of the final picture starts right with the choice of camera. For extreme sharpness you would use the large size, as any picture is bound to lose somewhat in sharpness when enlarged. On the other hand, this loss is negligible for many purposes and may not become noticeable if you confine yourself to enlargements of approximately 11x14 inches.

Choice of the lens determines the size of the image you get on the negative and also the amount of space your picture will cover. Thus shooting from the same spot with the same camera, a wide-angle lens takes in a lot more territory than a normal lens, while a telephoto lens narrows down the angle and enlarges the object on which it is focused.

The selection of the film you plan to use has a controling influence on the picture you get. Its sensitivity or lack of sensitivity to certain colors creates pictures widely different in tone and rendition. Thus red lips will appear black when photographed on certain films and will show as pale gray on others.

Further control can be exerted by the use of filters, which have the effect of lightening objects of certain colors in your picture while they darken others.

THE HARD WAY

Exposure as such, independently of the filter question, controls to a large extent the picture you get. If you are somewhat experienced and know how to use an exposure meter you may make all exposures "on the button," yet your results may be far from what you wanted to get. Striking pictorial effects can be created by deliberately underexposing or overexposing your picture. Finally, you can make parts of your picture sharp or blurred at will by selective focusing and by using your lens diaphragm to control sharpness.

Controling your pictorial results really starts after you have made your exposure. The choice of the developer, the developing time, and the temperature of the solutions used have a great deal of influence on the contrast of your negative and consequently on the kind of picture you will get. The contrast of your negative can be increased or decreased at will by changing developers or by varying the developing time and temperature.

If your negative is too dense or too thin, printing results can be controled by reducing or intensifying the negative. Different types of chemicals employed in these processes permit a great deal of variation in results. Even the manner in which you dry your film after it has been developed, fixed, and washed makes a difference in the final picture.

The choice of the printing paper is quite important. The contrast and the tonal range of papers differ greatly. Papers come in many colors and surfaces, and the tone of the finished picture depends partly on the emulsion itself and partly on the chemicals used for developing it.

Printing control involves such things as "cropping" the picture, enlarging only certain sections of the negative. It is strengthened by darkening or lightening certain parts of the picture while printing—done by giving these parts either more or less exposure than the rest of the print.

The print exposure as well as the developer used, developing time, and temperature have decisive influence on the finished picture. Prints can be made "softer" or less contrasty by long exposure and short development, and they become "harder" or more contrasty if you expose short and develop long. Countless variations are possible, and all exert control over the picture.

The kind of enlarger you use —whether of the condenser or diffuser type—the enlarging lens, and the diaphragm stop affect the results you get. So do print intensification and reduction and the numerous retouching methods you employ on the print.

DISTINGUISHED AMERICANS

JAMES MADISON, fourth President of the United States, was born at Port Conway, King George county, Va., March 16, 1751, a descendant of Capt. Isaac Maddyson, who had settled in America as early as 1623 and had come to be known as a famous Indian fighter.

In 1769 young Madison enrolled as a student of the College of New Jersey (now Princeton university). He was graduated in 1771, but remained at college for another year to pursue studies that would fit him for the clergy. His flair for politics, however, soon turned him from thoughts of the ministry, and by the end of 1779 he was on his way to political fame as a delegate to the Continental congress.

As a member of this congress during the final stages of the Revolutionary war he took an active part in important debates and prepared a number of important state papers.

Late in 1783, his services in congress ended, he returned to Virginia and took up the study of law, being elected the following year to the state's house of delegates. He was one of the leaders in the fight for religious freedom in Virginia, strongly opposed the further issuance of paper money by the state, and stanchly supported a movement for a more general accord among the states. Out of this movement came the Annapolis convention of 1786 and the Philadelphia convention of 1787.

At the sessions from which eventually evolved the federal constitution Madison was one of the main speakers. He induced the delegates from his own state to uphold the new basic law, and to help meet objections that were raised to it he joined Alexander Hamilton and John Jay in writing a series of 85 papers, collectively known as "The Federalist." He wrote for a certainty at least 20 of these papers, and nine others are believed to have been of his authorship.

When it appeared that Virginia might not ratify the new constitution Madison devoted all his energies to its defense, answering in detail objections raised by Patrick Henry, George Mason, James Monroe, and others. He lost considerable political support as a result of this and was defeated for the United States senate. His own district, however, sent him to the national house of representatives.

As a congressman he proposed nine amendments to the constitution which were the basis of the bill of rights that finally was adopted. This bill of rights embodied the first 10 amendments. Madison opposed Hamilton's measures for funding the public debt, the assumption of state debts, and the creation of a national bank.

Retiring from congress in 1797, he still remained active in politics. In 1799, when he had become a member of the Virginia legislature, he prepared a masterly argument in support of the so-called Virginia resolutions, which he had helped Thomas Jefferson prepare in 1798. The resolutions were in opposition to the alien and sedition laws, the passage of which brought on the first great constitutional crisis in this country. The Virginia resolutions and similar resolutions drawn up by Kentucky strongly asserted the right and duty of the states to arrest the course of the national government whenever in their opinions this course had become unconstitutional.

When Jefferson became President in 1801 Madison was selected as secretary of state. He had an important part in the purchase of Louisiana territory and the suppression of the Barbary pirates. During his eight years in the cabinet he was forced continually to defend America's rights as a neutral against the encroachments of belligerent European powers.

Madison in 1809 succeeded Jefferson in the Presidency. He was in office, therefore, as this country was swiftly drawn into foreign entanglements with both France and Great Britain. The country was almost totally unprepared for the war with Britain which began in 1812, but that did not prevent Madison's reëlection that year. Early reverses in the war caused him to lose much of his popularity, but this in the main was regained with the final victory and peace.

In 1817 Madison concluded his second term as chief executive, and retired to his estate, Montpelier, in Orange county, Virginia. It was here that he died on June 28, 1836.

A few months later, on Dec. 3, 1836, the legislature of the newly created territory of Wisconsin chose a site for its capital and named it Madison in honor of the deceased ex-President.

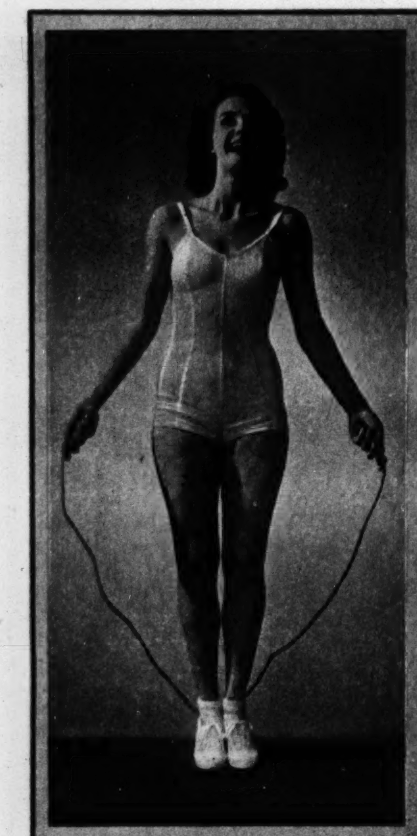
NOW MORE THAN EVER, IT'S A DUTY TO KEEP FIT!



Shoulder, arm, and abdomen muscles are particularly benefited by rope skipping—good, quick exercise.

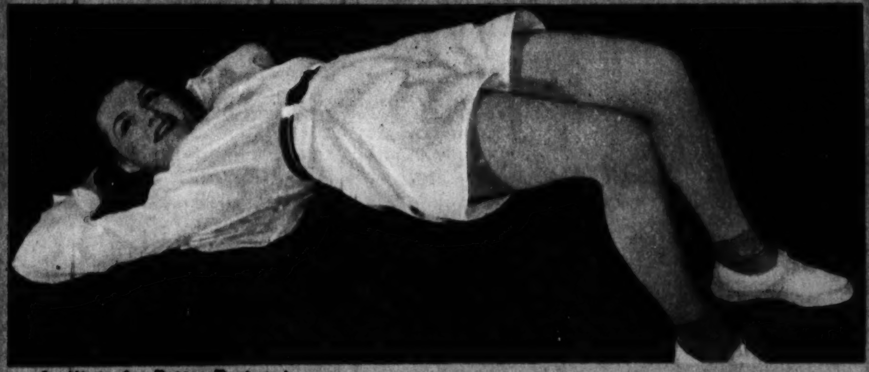
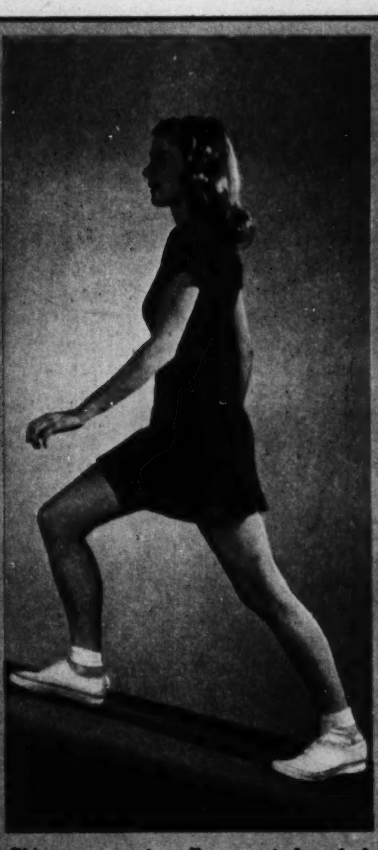
To stretch the chest and abdominal muscles and to make the entire body supple, take this position and crablike walk five steps to the right, then five to the left. Try it again as you become accustomed to it.



Lying on back, hands behind head, raise knees, chest, and trunk high, abdomen in. Rotate hips to left and then to right, five times in each direction. Relax and repeat. This is excellent for strengthening chest and abdomen.



Since we must walk more today, let's walk correctly, with shoulders back, body erect, arms swinging easily.

By LOUISE DOOLEY

AMERICAN women are noted for their zealous exercising programs. They struggle with them, abhor them often, but they stick to them, because a neat and trim figure has had to be maintained in order to stay in the fashion picture.

We've a new incentive now, something which makes exercising almost fun and which gives practically a feeling of heroism to the whole business. Women are conscious now of the fact that they must be fit, must be strong in body to assume added duties and labors they never dreamed they would be called upon to perform. Even the persons who never before bothered to stretch and bend except when absolutely necessary have made exercising part of their daily routine.

Exercising is more scientific than it ever was, and the sensible program includes routines that strengthen and firm chest and abdominal muscles and promote an erect and easy posture. Schools and colleges all over the country will observe National Posture week starting tomorrow, and the youth of the nation will demonstrate the best exercises.

Strong chest and abdominal muscles will help give the body the stamina it needs for erect bearing. A sagging posture promotes fatigue, gradually saps strength, and does not allow vital organs to function normally. The general body tone is lowered and the victim feels tuckered out and with not an extra ounce of energy to do anything except regular duties.

With proper exercise these muscles can be strengthened to such a degree that the body is given added energy, poise and alertness are stepped up, and a first aid course or some other extracurricular activity may be assumed with never a wince from a tired or overworked muscle.

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD with JOHN CHAPMAN

In "Tulip Time"—whose title will doubtless be changed soon—Van Heflin is the only leading man, and his support includes Frances Rafferty, Marsha Hunt, Kathryn Grayson, Cecilia Parker, Peggy Moran, Dorothy Morris, and Frances Raeburn. Ah, me, and ah-ah, Van!

In Twentieth's "Coney Island" the girls will outnumber the boys four to one. George Montgomery is the only male set for the cast, but women hired already include Alice Faye, Ann Rutherford, and Betty Grable. In "The Lives of Edgar Allen Poe" Linda Darnell, Virginia Gilmore, and Mary Howard all have their eyes on John Shepperd.

Several musicals, including Deanna Durbin's next, will involve women defense workers, and men will be secondary.

Paramount's schedule includes perfect examples of the wartime triangle—Claudette Colbert and Mary Astor after Joel McCrea in "Palm Beach Story," Betty Field and Patricia Morison pursuing Ray Milland in "Mr. and Mrs. Cugat," Paulette Goddard and Susan Hayward burning for Fred MacMurray in "Forest Rangers," and Veronica Lake and Susan Hayward yearning for Fredric March in "I Married a Witch."

All of the established women stars are still in the running, of course, so the new young ones just can't sit back and let fame come their way. They've got to scrap—and if you have ever seen an established female star making sure that no rival ever gets her pretty face in front of the camera you'll know it's going to be a good scrap.

Let's have a look at some of the youngsters whom the war has given an increased chance—a chance to play bigger parts in more movies.

One of the seven girls in "Tulip Time" is Frances Rafferty of Sioux City, Ia. Like one or two other Iowa families, the Raffertys moved to California, and Frances went to the U. C. L. A. High school and was going to take a pre-med course in the college. But she liked to dance, and pretty soon she got a job in the chorus of the Civic opera, which was putting on "The Merry Widow." Next she became a dancing stand-in for Zorina, and she plumped for show business instead of medicine.

One day, clowning at rehearsal, Frances tore a cartilage in her leg, and this ended her career as a dancer. It was midsummer at college, so to occupy her time she enrolled in Maria Ouspenskaya's dramatic school. One day she visited Alexis Smith, her childhood chum, at a studio commissary. A producer sighted her, and that afternoon she was making a screen test at M-G-M. Next morning she had a contract. She made her debut with Lew Ayres and Larraine Day in "Finger at the Window." Frances lives in Westwood with her parents, is called Fanno by her family and Riffraff by her friends, is superstitious, thinks Wednesday is her lucky day, picks up pins like mad, and collects phonograph records.

Frances, like so many girls, busted into the movies fairly simply. She just went to lunch and somebody saw her. In contrast take Jennifer Jones, whose first screen rôle will be one of the leads in David O. Selznick's "The Keys of Kingdom."

True, Jennifer busted into the movies by busting into Selznick's New York office and demanding a job; but she has show business in her blood and a long, hard career behind her. She was born in Tulsa, Okla., and her father, Phil R. Isley, used to operate a traveling stock company in the southwest.

Jennifer was in school and junior college plays, and then she joined Richard Mansfield Dickinson's stock company. After that she trouped with Ted North's tent show and another tent outfit, the Sadler company. Next she resumed dramatic study at Northwestern university, finally landed at New York American Academy of Dramatic Arts.

During her second session at the academy Miss Jones invaded the office of Katharine Brown, Selznick's New York representative. "I was born to play Claudia," she announced. She announced this at length and with vehemence, and while she was going on David O. Selznick happened in. He was interested and ordered a screen test. Jennifer, however, does not get the Claudia part, for that belongs to Dorothy McGuire, who did it on Broadway.

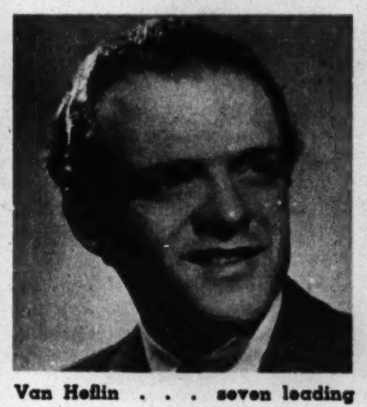
"Orchestra Wife" is just what it sounds like; it's about a bunch of girls who are unfortunate enough to be married to dance band musicians. They're all married, in a manner of speaking, to Glenn Miller's band, altho it is called Gene Morgan's in the script, and they almost wreck it with their gossip, fights, and intrigues. Linda Darnell is up against a tough life when she marries Trumpeter George Montgomery—but of course she wins out.

Linda, tall, slender, black-haired, is one of the great young beauties of Hollywood and one of the few who look possibly lovelier off screen than on. Only recently did she have her 18th birthday, and up to now in all of her films she has been exceedingly demure and virginal. In "Orchestra Wife" she livens up and becomes a jitterbug. And quite definitely she has passed the young girl stage and gained the allure of womanhood. It may well be that with the new picture Linda is really off to the races at last.

Linda is from Dallas, Tex., where all girls must be beautiful. Her full name is Linda Monette Eloyse, if you can fancy that, and her nickname is Tweedles. Her father, Calvin Darnell, is a postoffice employé who only recently got transferred here from Texas. In 1937 a Twentieth-Fox talent scout came to Dallas to interview all comers, and Linda went to see him. In 1938 the studio sent for her to come to Hollywood for screen tests. Then it told her to go home and grow up. In 1939 Darryl Zanuck sent for her and put her in Elsa Maxwell's "Hotel for Women."

Two young women with a good chance are Chicago's Beth Drake and New York's Jean Ames, who have rôles in Warners' "Sweethearts of 1942."

Beth, whose real name is Doris Simpson, is one of 10 children born to the Joseph Simpsons of Chicago. She went to Hyde Park High, was in a local singing act with three of her sisters, and was a fashion model (her first fame came when she was named the Play Suit girl).



Van Heflin . . . seven leading women!

She sang on the radio and thus won Hollywood attention. Her first movie rôle was in "Yankee Doodle Dandy," to be released July 4. She's married to Max Marek, a boxer.

Jean Ames, one of Beth's sidekicks in "Sweethearts," was born in New York but came with her family to California and went to Hollywood High, where so many movie cuties have been discovered. She has been in eight pictures, including "Navy Blues" and "The Male Animal"—in which she scores in the rôle of Hot Garters.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer recently sold its contract with Ann Rutherford to Twentieth-Fox. For 11 pictures Ann had been Polly Benedict, Mickey Rooney's girl friend in the Andy Hardy series. There has been some speculation as to why M-G-M let Ann go—but, whatever the reason, she has gone from Culver City and arrived in Beverly Hills. Twentieth waited only long enough for her to recover from a case of measles, then handed her her first grownup rôle—that of a glamor girl in "Coney Island." She should do all right, for she is glamorous and she is grownup. She's 22.

JANE RANDOLPH . . . another "other woman."

Like Jennifer Jones, Ann has show business in her blood. Her mother was an early movie actress and a cousin of Richard Mansfield; her father was a Metropolitan Opera tenor. Ann got her first stage job when she was in the first grade, playing in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" in San Francisco. She lives with her mother in Beverly Hills, and she owns 14 bathing suits.

The wartime triangle situation means steady work for more "other women" than ever before. Another other woman who is getting a chance is Jane Randolph, whom RKO snagged from Warners and is putting into the screen version of Clarence Buddington Kelland's tale "Silver Spoon." (There'll be a new movie title when the boys finish tossing coins, or whatever it is they do to pick movie titles.)

Jane is 24, real name Jane Roemer; she's another beauty from the middle west, which is always pushing Texas in the beauty sweepstakes. Jane was born in Youngstown, O., and calls Kokomo, Ind., her home town. She went to grammar school at Canton, O.; high school in Kokomo; college at Depauw, which is in Greencastle, Ind.

When Jane quit after her freshman year at Depauw she got a job as secretary to a judge in Chicago, then as secretary to a stock broker. Next she was a mannequin in a couple of stores and became a photographers' model. A pretty model naturally envisions a movie career, so Jane ultimately packed up and, instead of heading for a drama school in New York, headed for Max Reinhardt's school in Hollywood. A talent scout caught her performance in a school production of the comedy "The Merchant of Yonkers," and soon she was signed by Warners.

Jane made a number of shorts on the Burbank lot, then was in Marlene Dietrich's "Manpower" and in my favorite picture of 1941, "One Foot in Heaven." Now RKO has her.

This business of young leading men going into the army is fine for the girls. It is also fine for the men who are left. Older men, mostly. Many of them are veterans of the last war; many once were leading men who have been forced by years into secondary or character parts—and now they are getting a new chance. But that's another story.

So the next time you overeat—or stay up late at a gay party—try Phillips' Milk of Magnesia at bedtime, and wake up feeling "fit as a fiddle." Read the directions on the Milk of Magnesia package and take only as directed thereon, or as prescribed by your physician.

ONE-TWO ACTION!

1 AN EFFECTIVE ALKALIZER. Gives speedy relief when your stomach feels "uneasy" or gassy due to too much acid. Rated among the most effective neutralizers of excess stomach acids known. Acts almost immediately.

2 A MILD LAXATIVE. Not a purge — merely promotes more thorough elimination. Does not leave you feeling "all wrung out." Take it at any time of the day because it does not act with embarrassing urgency. Many physicians recommend it for young children. There is no better mild laxative.

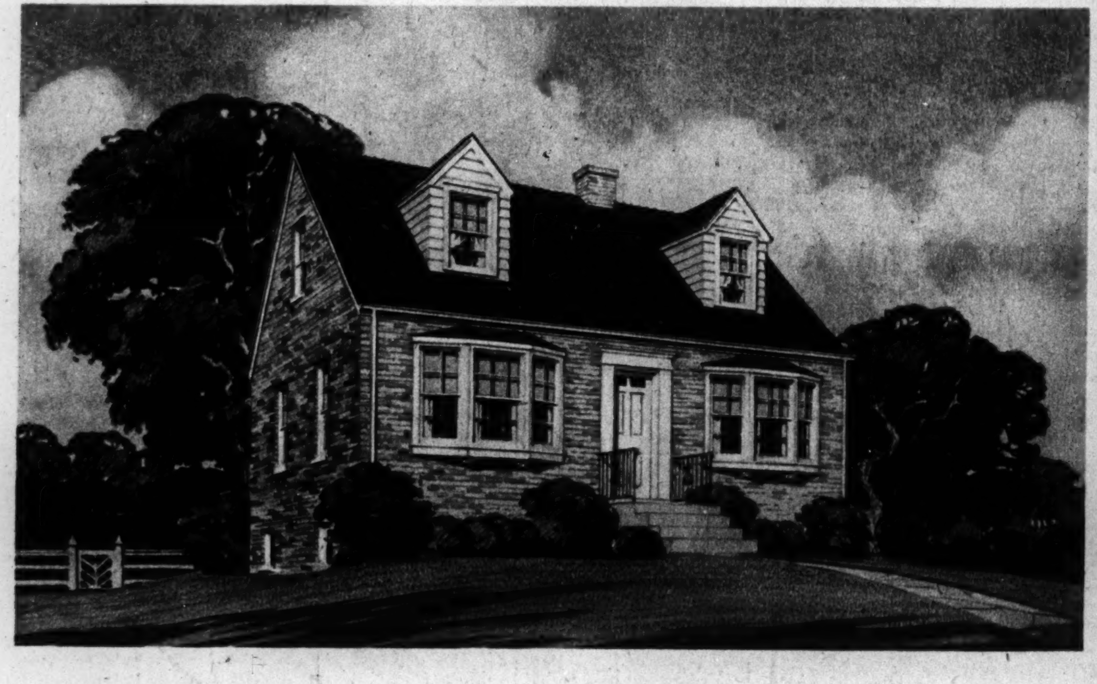
[ADVERTISMENT]



SUBURBAN SETTING. Wide bays, dormers and wrought-iron hand rails make this simple brick home especially interesting. Its owner bought it after reading a description of its features in a Tribune real estate want ad. If you are looking for the right opportunity to buy an attractive home, you will be far more certain of finding it if you read the Tribune because the Tribune prints more real estate want advertising than any two other Chicago newspapers combined. Read the offerings of homes in today's Chicago Sunday Tribune now.

FIGHTING WITH DANIEL BOONE by C.C. COOPER
As the pioneers prepare for the expected battle, Girty and his Indians have quietly surrounded the fort.....
Keep your braves well hidden, Chief Killbear - my men will get the cannon here by tonight!
Good! We will make surprise attack at dawn on palefaces when thunder gun comes!
-But inside the fort....!
Folks, we've got a big fight ahead - our scouts report that Girty has surrounded us with over two hundred Injun allies!!
Dan! Come here! Quick!
What is it, Mollie?
Our well! It's jus' caved in!
How'd it happen, Mollie?
I was drawing a pail of water an' this left wall jus' caved in.....
This is bad! Mighty bad! We can't fight long without water!
An' the spring is outside the fort! - in the midst of Girty's savages!
Wait! I have a plan how we can get water from the spring! But no men can help - only women!
Next week - "Mollie's Plan."

A Lesson in Arithmetic

THE WEATHER suddenly had become warm. The hot sun brought the green grass fairly popping out of the ground, and the dandelions nodded their blonde heads in the warm breeze. Those signs told the Teenie Weenie General that it was time to plant their potato. So he told the little people to make ready for the great event.

"Ah, shoot!" grumbled the Dunce, when he heard of the order. "I was going tadpole fishing."

"Well, sir," said the General, if you expect to eat potato you'll do your share of the work in planting it. The fishing can wait until later."

The Dunce grumbled a great deal, but he joined the rest of the Teenie Weenies in the work, for he was especially fond of potato — particularly when minced frog ham was mixed with mashed potato and the Cook had fried it in tiny brown cakes.

The Teenie Weenies brought out the potato they had saved for seed and moved it to the spot where they expected to plant their garden. The little men were set to work digging four holes, for the General said they would need four hills of potatoes.

The Policeman climbed to the top of the potato and began chopping out the parts which were to be planted. The Sailor and the Old Soldier started on the great task of removing a dandelion from the garden patch. The Chinaman had a hard task, too, for it was his duty to keep the thirsty workers supplied with drinking water. The poor Chinaman was forced to make many trips to the creek with his acorn bucket, for the day was warm and the Teenie Weenie workers were always shouting for water.

The Turk, who had stepped into an ant hole and hurt one of his legs, was hobbling about on crutches, fuming because he could not help with the digging.

"You're lucky to have a sprained ankle and get out of all this hot work," the Dunce told the Turk.

"You're all wrong," answered the Turk. "I'd rather work any time than go around on crutches."

"Well, I wish I had something sprained so I wouldn't have to work in this hot sun," the Dunce complained.

"It seems to me as though you have something sprained to make a wish like that," said the Turk.

"What have I that is sprained?" asked the curious Dunce.

"Your brain," answered the Turk, and he hobbled off to watch the Policeman cut the eyes from the potato with a very sharp Teenie Weenie ax.

The Dunce wiped the sweat from his little head and glanced toward the hole where the Cook and Gogo were digging. "I wonder what's the idea of digging so many holes," thought the Dunce, and he decided it would give him a little rest if he went over and asked the General that question.

"General," said the Dunce, we're digging four holes and we've only one potato. May I ask how we're going to get one potato into four separate holes?"

"See this," answered the General, pointing to a spot in the side of the potato. "That's what is called a potato eye. Every one of those eyes is a seed. There are eight eyes in this potato, and the Policeman is cutting them out so that we can plant two seeds in each hole; then, when the potatoes grow, we will have a great many potatoes out of this one. That is a lesson in division and multiplication which you will do well to remember."

"Oh," said the Dunce meekly, and he went back to his work with a feeling that he was not nearly as bright as he thought he was.

Your Government wants you to take plenty of milk as part of the NATIONAL NUTRITION PROGRAM

You can eat your milk with a spoon when made into tempting rennet-custards.

Drink plenty of milk. Every boy and girl needs a quart each day.

Now it is of utmost importance that our Nation be fit, keep well, and guard its health.

Milk, one of Nature's greatest protective foods, is such a precious source of proteins, valuable mineral elements, and vitamin values that it is right at the top of the basic foods suggested in the National Nutrition Program.

When milk is made into delightful rennet-custards with "Junket" Rennet Powder or Tablets, you get all of these precious food values. In addition, these eggless, non-cooked custards are more readily digested because of the rennet enzyme. Here is a delightful dessert for the whole family, from baby to grandma.

It takes but a minute to make rennet-custards with either:

"Junket" Rennet Powder—Already sweetened. Six delicious flavors, a different flavor, different color every day. At all grocers.

"Junket" Rennet Tablets—Not sweetened or flavored. Add sugar and flavor to taste. Dozens of variations. More economical. At grocers' and druggists'.

"JUNKET" is the trade-mark of Chr. Hansen's Laboratory, Inc., for its rennet and other food products, and is registered in United States and Canada.

CHICAGO'S ROTC SHINES BUTTONS FOR INSPECTION

Army Officers Begin Tour Tomorrow.

BY PAUL HEALY.

The annual showdown among Chicago's 28 ROTC units, comprising the largest junior brigade in the nation, begins this week. After months of scrupulous preparations, each corps will submit to a two and a half hour inspection by visiting officers. After the final inspection on May 22, the No. 1 and No. 2 units in the city will be announced and a number of others will be singled out as honor schools.

A total of approximately 11,000 cadets will be carefully surveyed in the reviews, which are conducted on the school grounds or in neighboring parks. They will represent 27 public high schools and St. Mel Catholic High school.

Medals to Leaders.

During each ceremony gold and silver medals will be presented to outstanding cadets by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. A total of 221 Chicago cadets will be decorated with these awards this month. Other medals will be presented to superior cadets by the war department, American Legion posts, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Spanish American War Veterans, PTA groups and other community organizations.

The first 1942 inspection will take place at 1:15 o'clock tomorrow when Waller High school is reviewed at De Paul stadium, 2210 Sheffield avenue. On Tuesday Roosevelt will be inspected at 9 o'clock in the morning on the school campus at Wilson and Kimball avenues, and Lakeview and Von Steuben will both be inspected at 1:15 o'clock. Lakeview will be reviewed at Welles park, Montrose and Western avenues, and Von Steuben will be examined on the Roosevelt High school grounds.

Following are the other inspections scheduled for this week:

Wednesday, Sullivan, 9 a. m., school campus, 6631 Bosworth avenue; Senn, 1:15 p. m., school campus, 5900 Glenwood avenue, and Amundsen, 1:15 p. m., Winnemac stadium, 2100 Winnemac avenue.

Thursday: Fenger, 9 a. m., school campus, 11220 Wallace street; Morgan Park, 1:15 p. m., school campus, 1744 Pryor avenue. In the event of rain, inspections will be held indoors.

Colors to Best Units.

Color stands will be presented by THE TRIBUNE to the two units adjudged the best in Chicago. They will be carried when these two units lead the giant ROTC parade down Michigan avenu Wednesday, May 27. Last year Tilden and Crane High schools were named first and second best in that order.

Lieut. Col. R. K. Whitson, supervisor of ROTC at the University of Illinois, and Lieut. Col. Roy T. Rouse, supervisor of the ROTC at Michigan State college, have been chosen to inspect the Chicago units this spring. They also will examine the ROTC at Joliet Township High school on May 13; Evanston Township High school on May 16; and Waukegan Township High school on June 2. Tribune medals also will be presented at the suburban ceremonies.

In addition to watching mass drilling by the unit, inspectors will scrutinize and quiz individual cadets in the ranks. Each corps will be rated on general appearance, knowledge of subject matter, military demeanor, performance of duties, and the attitude and condition of equipment in its school.

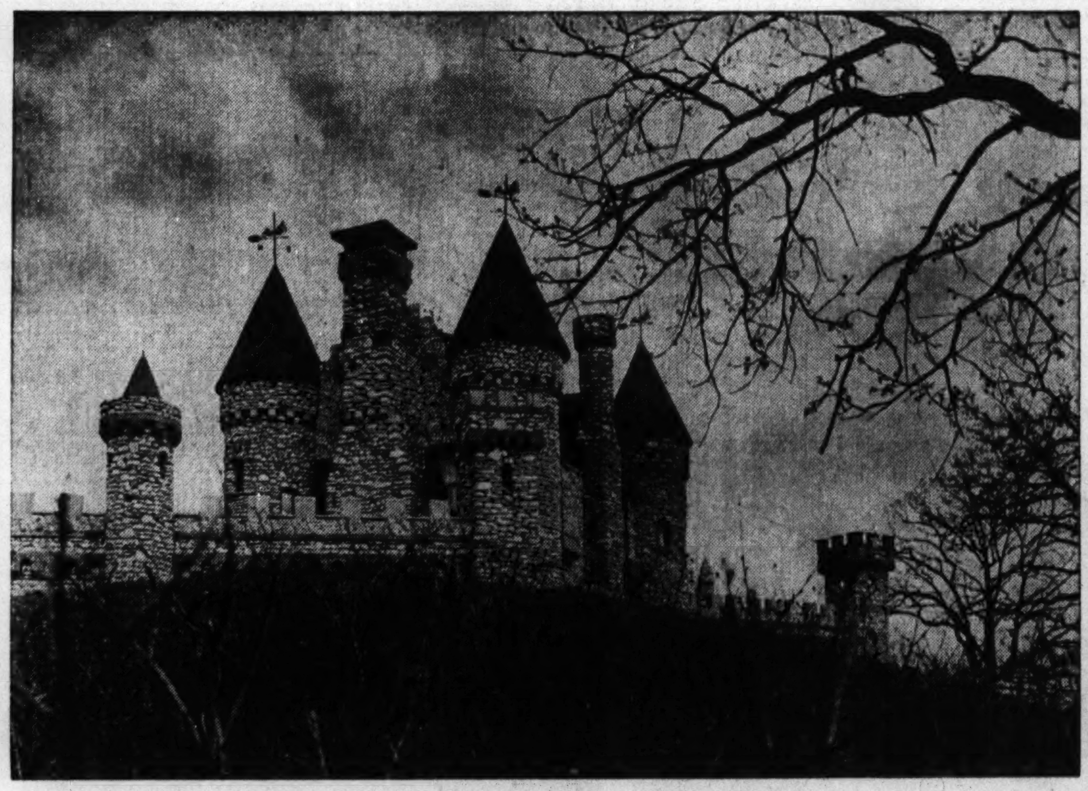
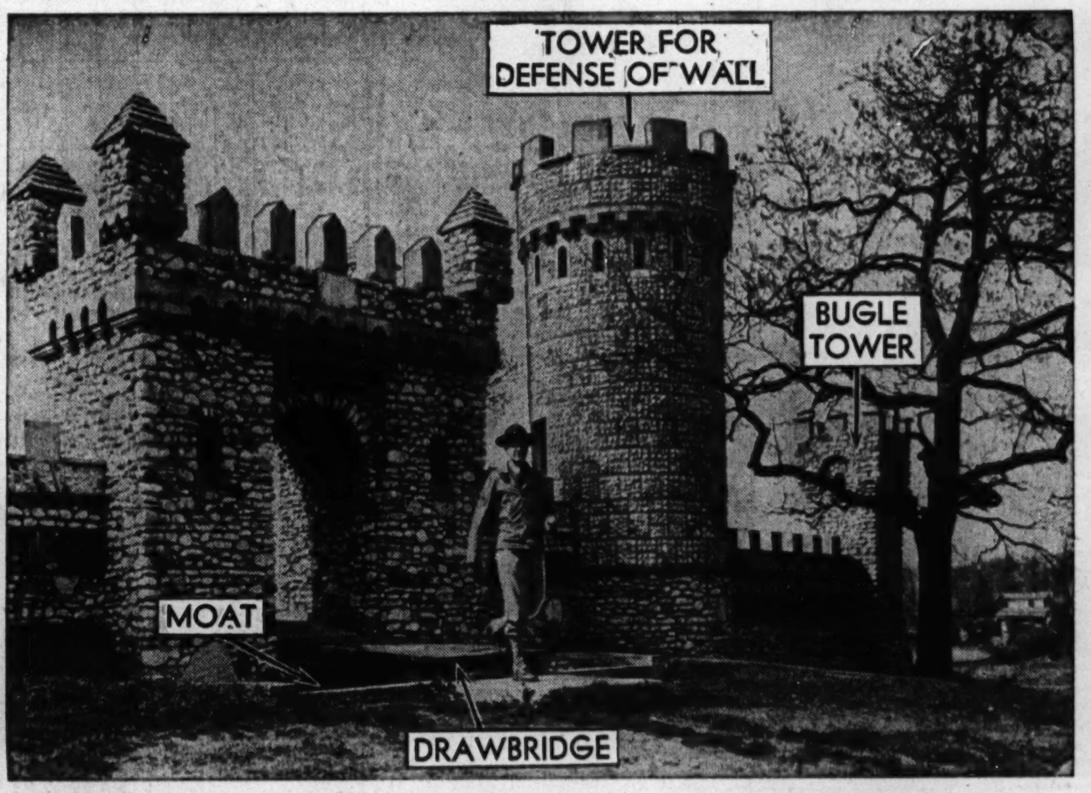
Makes His Home a Castle Like the One He Knew in Childhood





Bettendorff castle stands high on a hill overlooking the village of Fox River Grove and the Northwest highway. A scale reproduction of a medieval Luxemburg castle, which builder Ted Bettendorff remembers from his youth, his castle stands out in striking contrast to the modern streamlined trains which rush by at the foot of the hill. The castle was started in 1931. The castle has a drawbridge, a moat, towers and turrets. Inside the castle are modern living quarters. The soldier guest who is leaving is Thomas Callahan who is visiting in Algonquin.

Countless hours of hard work and painstaking detail were spent by Bettendorff in reproducing the old castle in Vianden, Luxemburg. The only plans he had were a few picture postcards of the original and memories of explorations he made thru the ruins as a boy. Above is a tower of the defense wall and the fortified front entrance taken from the inside.

In the days of the depression when jobs were scarce Builder Bettendorff worked in his own quarry digging out the stones with which to build his castle. Today, with his job in the defense plant occupying much of his time, his home is still his hobby and he puts in what few hours he has for himself in fashioning walls and other additions. Here he is mixing concrete, which he molds into slabs imbedded with stones.

CASTLE YARD

One of the many features about his unique home which Mr. Bettendorff enjoys is his yard. In constructing the walls and towers he made sure there was plenty of space for a yard where he entertains friends on warm summer evenings.

FANTASY TO BE FINAL OFFERING OF SEASON AT LOYOLA THEATER

Miss Jerry Schmal, 1214 North La Salle street, will have the feminine lead in "Lady Precious Stream," a fantasy by Dr. S. I. Hsiung, to be presented at the Loyola Community theater, 1320 Loyola avenue, tomorrow and Tuesday evenings. The play, directed by William F. Madden, will be the closing event of the Community theater's 15th season.

Jerry Schmal.

Miss Schmal will enact the rôle of the prime minister's wife and William Gyles will be the prime minister. Dixie Marsteller, Corinne Sullivan, and Dorothy Messer will be their daughters. Other players will be: Sherman Forbes, William Foy, Bill Slattery, George Butzen, and Frank Fitzsimmons.

Presentation of the play will be unusual in that property men will move in and out among the players as the action is in progress. The prop crew will hand the actors whatever is needed at the moment. There will be no scenery, but the costumes will supply the color on the stage.

EIGHTH GRADERS OF GLENCOE WILL STAGE OPERETTA

This year's operetta offering of the eighth grade in Glencoe schools will be a performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance" at 8 o'clock Friday evening in the Central school auditorium. Glencoe school children will attend a preview of the show at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Every child in the eighth grade participates in the production. Mrs. Jane Calvi is the musical director. Miss Gretchen Collins is the dramatic coach, and Miss Martha Ream is the orchestra leader. Miss Janet Ruthhart will be the pianist.

Toils 11 Years to Turn House Into a Castle

High over the banks of the Sauer river in Vianden, Luxemburg, a medieval castle has commanded the view of the surrounding territory for hundreds of years. When Napoleon took over the tiny duchy in the early years of the 19th century, it had long been unoccupied. He sold it to the highest bidder for $1,200 who salvaged all usable material in it. Today its crumbling shell still stands, a bastion of bygone days, hardly noticed by townsfolk in the valley. For generations their children have roamed thru its damp halls and explored its secret passageways.

High above the Northwest highway overlooking the village of Fox River Grove stands another castle, a replica on a much smaller scale, which for years has captured the imagination of thousands of tourists and Sunday afternoon drivers.

Lord of the Castle.

Its genial "lord" and builder, Ted Bettendorff, 52 year old bachelor, is a machinist for a Chicago firm manufacturing war equipment. Forty years ago Ted was playing in the bleak Vianden castle but did not say to himself at that time, "Some day I will have a castle like this."

In fact when Ted started in 1931 it was only a three room frame house.

"If I'd known then what it was going to turn into, I would have been afraid to attempt it," he says. He's reluctant to hazard an estimate of the hours he has spent on it. Fear that a husky wind might blow his place off the hill prompted him to dig a foundation. He found himself located right above a rich stone bed.

The rest was elementary. With an abundant supply of material and plenty of time on his hands, being unable to get a job in the depths of the depression Ted modestly started to put a stone facing around the outside walls.

Turrets Are Useful.

Some time during this process the castle idea struck him. He dug out postcard pictures of the old Vianden castle. Stone by stone he erected turrets at each corner, placing shower equipment in one, a toilet in another, a clothes closet in a third and a wind-

Du Page Lilacs Keep Faith for Near Century

[Announcement of the days selected as Lilac days and other information on the annual community gift of flowers appears in the main news section of today's Sunday Tribune.]

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

Lilacs from the Lyman homestead in Downers Grove come from bushes that are nearly 100 years old. The main stems are as thick as the trunks of small trees and the clumps shade spacious places in the yard. Each year of the Share Your Lilacs campaign their blooms have added to the offerings of the Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit guild, which cooperates with THE TRIBUNE in making it possible for shut-ins to enjoy the springtime beauty and fragrance.

There are many old lilac bushes in Du Page county. Early settlers sought to give their new homes something of the atmosphere of the neighborhood they had left in the east. There are instances where the house itself has vanished but the sturdy lilacs continue to bloom year after year beside what was once a doorstep or the path to a roadside gate.

The Lyman homestead at 900 Ogden avenue is said to be the only one in Du Page county where the family name is the same as that when the place was settled a century ago.

Settled in 1839.

To the acres beside Ogden avenue, then the Old Plank road, the Rev. Orange Lyman came in 1839. As a home missionary, he had migrated west from Ohio with the shift of settlements. He died in 1851.

Henry Martin Lyman, a son, died in 1894. Walter Lyman, a grandson, was born on the place in 1854 and died there in 1926. Mrs. Walter Lyman has resided at the home 19 years. She said the old lilac bushes were planted by the wife of the Rev. Orange Lyman. They are of the old-fashioned purple variety.

When Gen. John A. Logan designated May 30, 1868 for the purpose of strewing with flowers the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country during the Civil war, the Lyman lilac bushes responded. They had been a part of the setting when Capt. Walter Blanchard had drilled his company on Maple avenue. Their blooms were carried on Memorial day by members of Walter Blanchard post and, as the years passed, for departed members.

Bloom Year After Year.

Of the 59 men who enlisted from Du Page county for the Spanish-American war in 1898, 12 were from Downers Grove. History as it was being unfolded in the village dovetailed with history of the nation. The lilacs bloomed when men went away and after men came back. Their message remained steadfast in a world of change.

Time came when Alexander Bradley Burns post of the American Legion was formed with many members in the village. Lilacs along the street had become more firmly interwoven into the lives of the people. Whims of the weather might influence the period and the extent of their blooming but they never failed the townspeople.

More than any person living, the lilacs have witnessed the passing epochs of village history. Another war, more world shaking than any of its predecessors now has reached into the routine of the community. With all of their kind in all the yards in the Chicagoland area, and with all who share in their significance, the Downers Grove lilacs are ready to blossom again.

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION TO OBSERVE 90TH YEAR WITH FETE SATURDAY

Chicago Typographical union, No. 16, will celebrate its 90th anniversary with a dinner-dance Saturday in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. Granted a charter on May 18, 1852, the local union has enjoyed continued success from that day on. International President Claude Baker and Secretary-Treasurer Woodruff Randolph are expected to attend. An elaborate program has been arranged for the occasion. Reservations for the dinner can be made thru union headquarters at 130 North Wells street.

Kilmer League Will Elect Officers at Fete Tuesday

Joyce Kilmer league will have a dinner for members only at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday at the Rogers Park Woman's club. The annual business meeting with committee reports and election will follow.

TIME TO REPORT BASED ON LAST NAME INITIAL

Four Day Task Will Start Tomorrow.

All is in readiness for the registration of millions of sugar users in the Chicago area who will visit their public elementary schools during the next four days to qualify for the ration books without which the purchase of sugar in its various forms is henceforth prohibited. This was announced by Michael F. Mulcahy, state rationing administrator for the Chicago area.

More than 15,000 elementary teachers and volunteer workers will aid in the huge task, which will start tomorrow morning and end late Thursday, Mulcahy said. The schools will be open for registration from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. each day.

One Can Represent Family.

One person may register for his or her entire family, the rationing authorities have ruled. Thus it will not be necessary for each individual sugar user to visit the local registration point. The books to be issued on the basis of this week's registration may later be used in the rationing of other commodities besides sugar.

The commercial users of sugar were similarly registered in the high schools last Tuesday. The registrants included 21,025 retailers, wholesalers, industries, and institutions. They are already receiving sugar purchase certificates.

In Chicago, the applicants for this week's registration will be registered in public elementary schools according to ward boundaries. In the suburbs the schools are divided according to ration board districts, which follow township boundaries.

The addresses of the schools in Chicago, and other information concerning the registration machinery setup in both the city and the suburbs appears elsewhere in these columns.

Listed by Alphabet.

Registrants are expected to visit the elementary schools in accordance with a schedule based upon the alphabetical arrangement of the initials of last names, Mulcahy said. This is the schedule:

Last Name Initial.	Registration Period.
A-B	Monday morning
C-D-E	Monday afternoon
F-G-H	Tuesday morning
I-J-K-L	Tuesday afternoon
M-N	Wednesday morning
O-P-Q-R	Wednesday afternoon
S	Thursday morning
T to Z	Thursday afternoon

If a registrant finds it impossible to register on the day assigned in the above schedule, he can make arrangements at his registration place to sign up on some other day in the registration period.

CASE HISTORIES IN RETAILING

A NEIGHBORHOOD laundry placed an ad in the South Side Metropolitan section of the Chicago Sunday Tribune. In six days, the ad produced some 500 new customers. Drivers who normally brought in four or five dollars' worth of new business a day turned in as high as $40.00 worth of new business a day following the appearance of the ad in the Sunday Tribune.

Other case histories, many based on the experiences of merchants right in your own line, are yours for the asking. It costs you nothing to find out why 726 neighborhood merchants last year used the Sunday Tribune's low-cost advertising plan for retailers. For greater sales and profits, call SUPerior 0100 tomorrow and ask for Metropolitan section advertising.

EVANSTON MUSIC CLUB PLANS 35TH BIRTHDAY PARTY

The annual luncheon meeting of the Evanston Music club at the Georgian hotel tomorrow will be a birthday party as well. The club is 35 years old, and the program will be devoted to celebrating the anniversary. Mrs. W. R. T. Ewen Jr., a past president and the only active member remaining of the original Evanston Music Study club, will direct the afternoon events.

Mrs. Ewen also will review the history and accomplishments of the club. Conducted for 25 years under the original name, it became the Evanston Music club in 1930, when it received a charter from the state. Mrs. Ewen is one of the three founders of the organization. The others, Mrs. Ralph Bogarth and Mrs. Frederick Kinney, are still residents of Evanston but are no longer active club members.

Each Member a Musician.

The original club was limited to 25 members. The present one is limited to 45. Every member must be a musician and must appear on a program twice a year. Not content to share music among themselves, members have coöperated to promote music interests in the community. At one time they gave regular programs in the Evanston public schools. They gave programs at Fort Sheridan and Great Lakes in the last war period and are scheduled to go to both stations at this time. The club maintains a scholarship at Northwestern university school of music.

Music study is stimulated among younger groups thru two auxiliaries. The junior auxiliary is for girls from 10 years old up to juniors in high school. The senior group is for high school juniors, seniors, and college students.

Original Music to Be Heard.

The anniversary program will feature music by Evanston composers who are club members or of the families of members. Millicent Chapman Cooke, pianist, will play a group of numbers by Gardner Read, whose mother is prominent in Evanston music circles. Lulu Jones Downing's piano quintet will be background for readings by James Bradley-Griffin. Mary Fluck Eldredge will play her own Three Preludes. Lillian De Lissovoy also will play her own composition. Marion Sellers and Helen Guest, song composers, will accompany the singers presenting their songs.

The 1942-'43 officers will be installed. Mrs. H. P. Demand will continue as president. Mrs. G. Bunn Guest will be first vice president and program chairman; Mrs. Harry W. Craven, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Floyd A. Owens, treasurer.

Moliere Comedy.

Moliere's comedy, "Tartuffe," will be presented by the Douglas Smith Players this evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Olivet institute, 1441 Cleveland avenue.

KEEPING BLOOMS FRESH IS LILAC DAY REQUISITE

Wrapping Helps Assure Better Bouquets.

The happiness and moral courage that flowers bring to the sick and shut-ins make the 14th annual "Share Your Lilacs" campaign more important than ever this wartime year, according to officials of the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild.

For this reason guild officials are urging every lilac donor to take special care in cutting, wrapping, and shipping the blooms. With warm weather rushing the appearance of the flowers everywhere flower lovers are getting ready to gather the lilacs. Here are some recommendations offered by the guild for handling the blossoms.

Cut lilacs the afternoon before lilac day. The stems should be cut 14 to 18 inches below the flower head, preferably just above where they branch from the main stem.

Size for Bouquets.

A proper sized bouquet can be made by tying as many stems as can be held in one hand. The cut flowers should be placed in tubs or pails of water over night. Early the next morning the bunches should be wrapped in damp newspaper and tied. The paper should cover the blooms but must not compress them.

Where there is a choice, cut blooms that are just opening rather than those that are full blown. If the lilacs are placed in cartons the blooms should not extend over the sides, as they are easily damaged.

Each year lilacs are gathered from yards, gardens, estates, and casual bushes thruout Chicagoland for the enjoyment of the city's shut-ins. The lilac campaign is sponsored jointly by the guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Eight Railroads Aiding.

This year eight railroads have volunteered to bring the bouquets into the city from suburban areas freight free. Much of the success of the lilac campaign is due to the cooperation of the railroads in making speedy delivery of the blooms to terminals in the city so that hospital patients can enjoy them while they still retain their country freshness.

Railroads that will take part in the drive this year are the Chicago and North Western, Illinois Central, Rock Island, Aurora and Elgin, North Shore Electric, Burlington, Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, and the Pennsylvania.

Last year the trains brought in more than 100,000 bouquets. They filled the baggage cars, and in many cases overflowed into the passenger cars. Upon delivery at the terminal the blooms were picked up by a fleet of Tribune trucks and delivered to the various hospitals and institutions thruout the city. Bouquets were given to 25,000 patients in 158 hospitals, orphanages, and old people's homes.

WASHINGTON, D.C., PASTOR TO TALK AT SUNDAY CLUB

Dr. Peter Marshall.

The Rev. Dr. Peter Marshall, young Scotch minister of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, Washington, D.C., the church Abraham Lincoln attended, will be the speaker at 8 o'clock tonight at the Chicago Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall. He will be presented for his second address before the club by Clifford W. Barnes, president, and will speak on the subject, "Rendezvous in Samarra," an argument for immortality.

Dr. Marshall was born in Scotland and lived there for a number of years. He was employed in a steel mill before coming to this country in 1927. Since 1937 he has been associated with historic New York Avenue church, known as the "Church of the Presidents." His talk tonight will be preceded by music by the club choir of 125 voices under direction of Edgar Nelson. Edward Hall Taylor, a trustee, will read the Scripture.

At 7 o'clock Dr. Charles T. Holman of the University of Chicago divinity school will begin a new series of Bible talks, and the Melodists, a group of 33 choristers from city churches, will sing.

AMERICA LOVES MELODY MOVES TO LATER HOUR

Song Program Scheduled on W-G-N, 8 to 9 P. M.

Two song dramatizations will highlight the broadcast of America Loves a Melody over W-G-N, W59C, and the coast to coast Mutual Broadcasting system next Saturday evening. Starting on this date the program will be presented a half hour later than heretofore. The new broadcast hour is 8 to 9 p. m.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will be the speaker.

The song spots will feature Miss Marion Claire as the soloist, supported by the W-G-N orchestra, directed by Henry Weber. Thomas L. Thomas, Metropolitan opera baritone, will be guest singer. Stories behind their favorite song as submitted by listeners will be depicted in these presentations. Two $25 cash awards are made each week for the best letters telling the story of songs.

The song stories for next Saturday will feature Miss Claire singing "Alice Blue Gown" from "Irene" and "My Hero" from "The Chocolate Soldier."

Miss Claire also will sing "Ave Maria" as the special request of the Marion Claire club of Gary, Ind. Forty members of the club headed by their chairman, Mrs. Mary Galumbus, will be in the audience.

Mr. Thomas will sing "Siboney." He will also join Miss Claire in selections from "Vagabond King" and "Show Boat."

The orchestra will offer a special arrangement of "America Marches On." The chorus will be under the direction of Robert Trendler. Kenneth MacGregor will be the producer.

HOOVER, M'NUTT TO SPEAK OVER W-G-N THURSDAY

Herbert Hoover, former President of the United States, and Paul McNutt, administrator of federal security, will speak on a special broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Thursday evening.

The broadcast will come from the Drake hotel, where Hoover and McNutt will address delegates to the 36th annual convention of the Boys' Clubs of America. Mr. Hoover is chairman of the organization's board of directors.

Mary Ann's New Title.

Little Mary Ann Mercer, singing star of Uncle Walter's Dog House, has added a new title to the imposing list she's collected. Most recent is "Barrancas Breeze," bestowed on her by the boys at Fort Barrancas, Fla.

Guest Tomorrow

Grace Moore, noted soprano of the movies, opera, and concert stage, will make a guest appearance in salute to Music week on the Telephone hour over WMAQ-NBC at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening.

CITIZENS' HOUR HONORS MORGAN PARK ACADEMY

Youth Program on Air at 10:30 A. M. Today.

Citizens of Tomorrow, the half hour radio program on W-G-N usually scheduled at 1:30 p. m. Sundays, will be heard at 10:30 a. m. today. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, sponsor of the program, will salute Morgan Park Military academy and its superintendent, Col. Harry D. Abells, will give the principal address, outlining the history of the school since its beginning in 1873.

The academy chorus of 50 cadets, directed by Capt. Jean L. Taylor, will sing two numbers, "The Caissons Go Rolling Along" and "The White Cliffs of Dover."

Philip Maxwell, master of ceremonies, will announce the five members of a scholarship committee which will meet May 11 to administer the 40 scholarships which have been offered by that number of colleges and universities of the middle west to those on the Citizens of Tomorrow Honor Roll.

Maxwell also will nominate two more high school seniors to the roll, Cadet Maj. Bill Kettering of Lemont, a student at the academy who will be interviewed, and Jack Cunningham, honor student, athlete, and musician of Janesville, Wis.

Next Sunday the program will return to the 1:30 time.

Cobina Is Heard From.

Tootsie Sagwell, Gracie Allen's girl friend on the Burns and Allen program on W-G-N, used to be Cobina, of Brenda and Cobina fame. Elvia Allman is the radio actress who now depicts so graphically the love-starved old maid rôles.

PLAN RED CROSS FOOD, MUNITION HOUR ON W-G-N

A new food and nutrition series to be conducted by the American Red Cross will be heard on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 9:45 to 10 a. m. on Saturday mornings beginning May 9.

Alida Drake of the nutrition department of the Red Cross will be instructor on the new program. She has been heard on many W-G-N programs recently, among them "Dollar Stretchers."

Myrtle Stahl, educational director of W-G-N, said the new series will endeavor to explain the value of foods, vitamins and calories, and at the same time make the listening public as food conscious as they are war conscious. The program will debunk the current idea that people will be seriously handicapped by the sugar shortage, for it will be shown that a sugar substitute is contained in many foods we eat.

The program will originate in the main audience studio of W-G-N. After the program each Saturday members of the studio audience will hear a 45 minute lecture by Miss Drake in which she will explain her ideas with the use of charts. The public is invited.

Danny Grogan in Disguise.

Disguised as French peasants, Danny Grogan and his cohort, Tex, are attempting to reach a secluded military outpost on the northern coast of France in the serial, "Linda's First Love," to be heard on W-G-N at 9:45 a. m. Monday thru Friday.

WORKS 11 YEARS TO TURN A HOME INTO REAL CASTLE

Copies Old Fortress He Knew as Boy.

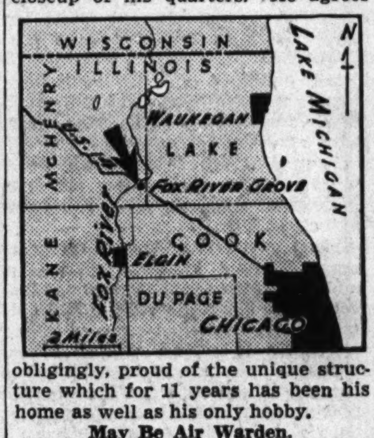
ing staircase to basement and attic in the fourth.

With the stone veneer completed he built an imposing granite fireplace after scouring the countryside for rocks which he hauled back in his model T. Next came the heavy walls and the realistic drawbridge and moat. The latter is a handy protection against bill collectors, says Ted, altho with his heavy schedule at the defense plant he is seldom home anyway.

Altho he lives alone, Ted is hardly a hermit. Friends are always dropping in and hundreds of curious tourists have asked permission to get a closeup of his quarters. He agrees obligingly, proud of the unique structure which for 11 years has been his home as well as his only hobby.



May Be Air Warden.

Now he is working on a retaining wall along the driveway. During the winter months he has been molding foot square concrete slabs imbedded with stones. This intermediate process simplifies the stone laying while producing the same effect.

Townsfolk talk of making Ted official air raid warden of Fox River Grove, for the towers of his castle command the view for miles around. A cement inclosed quarry at the edge of his hill could be easily converted into a bomb shelter, they also point out.

Ted doesn't know yet what his next project will be. "Maybe a secret passageway to the railroad station or the restaurant across the street," he says.

THIS IS LIFE! PRESENTS MUSIC AND PHILOSOPHY

"This Is Life," heard on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 11:15 to 11:30 a. m., on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays has a new form. Replacing the former type of show which tried to aid radio listeners by broadcasting the story behind articles needed for a worthy cause, "This Is Life" now presents a program of music, poetry, and cheerful philosophy.

Victor Powell remains as master of ceremonies and interpolates the songs of Jack Baker with bits of inspirational poetry and "cheer-up" musings about life in wartime.

As newest member of "This Is Life" Baker brings to the program a talented tenor voice. A native of Shreveport, La., Baker has been singing all his life while holding down jobs varying from clerking in a dry goods store to teaching school.

SUGARPUSS, YA JUST GOTTA LET ME. SEE!..

And that's the way it went. The wild, blood-thirsty jeers of the crowd failed to disturb these bundles of brutality, as Mustafa, the Terrible Turk, said "Please," and Sugarpuss, the Lion-Hearted McGonigle, said "No." The gang wanted an execution, a moider, but these two ferocious monstrosities, in between loud bellows, gurgles, grunts, biting, and cursing continued, Mustafa pleading, begging, McGonigle saying "no, no, no, no!"

This "Please," "No," "Please," "No," business started the night before, when Mustafa got hold of one of Sugarpuss' towels by mistake. Sugar's skin was of a somewhat delicate satiny texture and he'd found that Skokie Valley Laundry's POWDER PUFF towels were particularly soothing after a hard tussle with Mustafa. Mustafa, although he looked like a throw-back to the ape, or something out of a pre-historic subterranean cave, also had skin that felt like the luxurious texture of silk-soft, deep moss. He, too, wanted one of those POWDER PUFF towels after the gruntin', and groanin' was over that night, but he hadn't got them back from Skokie yet. So that's the why of "Sugarpuss, you just gotta let me. See!"

HERE IS SECOND DEFENSE LESSON IN CLASS SERIES

Workers Learn Methods of Protection.

To assist the more than 300,000 civilian defense workers in Chicago now attending basic training classes of the OCD, THE TRIBUNE is publishing the series of lessons prepared by the OCD training division.

M. J. Corrigan.

The series is intended to refresh workers on their classroom studies and give them a permanent record for reference. THE TRIBUNE makes no effort to interpret these courses since they are self-explanatory. Lesson No. 2 follows. Lesson No. 3 will appear in next Sunday's Metropolitan section.

Training is in charge of experts in the various fields. Marshal M. J. Corrigan of the Chicago fire department directs the training of the volunteer fire fighters.

PROTECTIVE AND UTILITY SERVICES.

Warning and Spotting.

A civilian air raid warning system is organized to give warning of approaching enemy aircraft in order that steps may be taken in ample time to preserve life and property.

The civilian system goes into action when the district warning center receives a report from the United States military regional information center. The air raid warning goes from the district warning center to the control center of the civilian defense communications network.

Air raid warning messages, by following colors are issued over the telephone or flashed by light bulbs:

1. Yellow—Alert, preliminary caution by telephone to civilian protective services, police, fire, utilities, defense works, blast furnaces, and other industrial centers.
2. Blue—Alert, lights warning, to factories lights out.
3. Red — To siren operators, sound sirens, public take cover.
4. White—Raiders passed, all clear signals.

Standard air raid sound signals for warning to the public are:

1. Red—By siren of two minutes duration with fluctuating pitch.
2. White—A continuous siren signal of two minutes duration with a steady pitch.

Civilian spotters are used as roof spotters by day, as fire watchers by night. Training of spotter takes several weeks as spotter tries to learn:

1. Types and construction of enemy planes.
2. Distinctive sound of enemy planes.
3. Estimate where bombs will drop, for example: Bomb dropped from 5,000 feet will hit 1¼ miles away from the point at which it is dropped in 17.6 seconds, and a bomb dropped at 40,000 feet will hit 3½ miles away from the point at which it is dropped in 49.7 seconds.

Blackout and Camouflage.

Blackout is a condition under which lights are extinguished or effectively screened, and light reflecting surfaces darkened. It does not conceal the presence of cities, because cities are easily located even at night. Blackout, however, will make it difficult to find the specific targets with the cities.

Blackout methods include:

1. Turning out lights.
2. Covering windows with opaque curtains, plywood screens, or papering.
3. Use of mats or mattresses over windows.
4. Adhesive stripping or fine wire mesh over windows to prevent glass shattering.
5. Blue filter over windows, with red electric bulbs to neutralize lights.

Traffic signals and auto headlights are hooded and painted over except for small slits; house or shop entrance can be blacked out by constructing a large hooded tunnel [light lock].

Aid during blackout includes white or luminous painting on curbs, signs, and fenders of cars. Pedestrians may wear reflecting discs on belts.

Camouflage is the technique of disguising a target by making it blend in with its natural surroundings. Altho it is essentially a military function, camouflage by civilian authorities may include:

1. Changing of light pattern of city.
2. Counter shading by elimination of shadows.
3. Using of paint as protective coloration.
4. Decoying or imitating by false models.
5. Blotting out areas with smudge.

Fire Defense.

One medium bomber can carry 1,000 to 2,000 two pound incendiary bombs. These bombs cannot be extinguished in the usual manner with water or with commercial extinguishers. The bomb may be put out with dry sand or scooped up on a shovel, put in a pail with sand in it, or sprayed with a hose. The standard equipment to fight the incendiary bomb consists of dry sand, long handled shovels, buckets of water, or a stirrup pump with a long hose and a dual nozzle for spray or jet.

Gas Defense.

Gas has not been used in this war except in China and Ethiopia. However, it is best to be prepared since there is less chance then of its being attempted. The object of using gas is not to kill but to demoralize the population. Not all gases are gaseous. Many are liquids, like mustard and Lewisite. The methods of using gas are by spraying or by bomb. Gas identification is a highly expert process.

Gas decontamination is the process of removing gas by:

1. Destroying or neutralizing liquid gas by bleaching powder or by other chemicals or by burning.
2. Removing by washing away with water.
3. Covering the liquid gas with earth, after which natural action will destroy it.

The gas alarm is a different sound from the sound of an air raid siren. Bells, rattles, or klaxons are utilized. All civilian defense workers are required to have an elementary course in gas defense.

Bomb Disposal.

Types of bombs are contact bombs, delayed action bombs, and time bombs.

The delayed action bomb has a delayed action fuse which needs 1 to 10 seconds to set off the explosive charge, after it has penetrated its target. The delayed action or unexploded bomb [UXB] is used to disrupt the normal activities of a region as well as to destroy by blast. The removal of the unexploded time bomb is a highly technical, as well as a dangerous task, and requires trained experts.

1. Evacuation of area of all occupants.
2. Barricading of area and posting a guard.
3. Use of a special bomb removal squad to remove bomb, allowing only one person to be near bomb at a time.
4. Loading bomb on a special truck operated by one man who will drive it to an isolated spot where bomb will be rendered harmless.

Ambulance and First Aid.

Many more are injured and shocked than are killed in air raids. To care for these casualties large first aid squads contain about four physicians, four nurses, and four orderlies.

First aid posts should be provided thruout the community, not only at hospitals. Ambulances must be supplemented by cars for situp cases.

Police.

The duties of police are to help wardens in:

1. Enforcing blackouts.
2. Prevent looting in blackouts or air raids.
3. Enforce traffic control in order to keep streets clear for emergency cars.
4. Do patrol work.

The auxiliary police force is made up of volunteers organized and trained under the regular police department for aid in emergencies. Training schools are being set up under supervision of the police training division.

Roads and Transportation.

Interruption of transportation services by bombs disrupts the daily travel of workers, thus slowing down production and delivery of food and supplies.

To prevent transportation tieups:

1. Road blocks and detour routes must be planned.
2. Road repair material and personnel must be ready.
3. Auxiliary traffic officers must be trained.
4. Express routes for buses and street cars to by-pass bombed areas must be provided.

Rescue Squad Service.

The rescue squad must be able to support or demolish walls before tunneling for victims. Because of such special problems in rescue procedure, rescue squad men should be recruited from:

Miners, house wreckers, scaffolders, structural steel erectors, plumbers, electricians, handymen, and helpers.

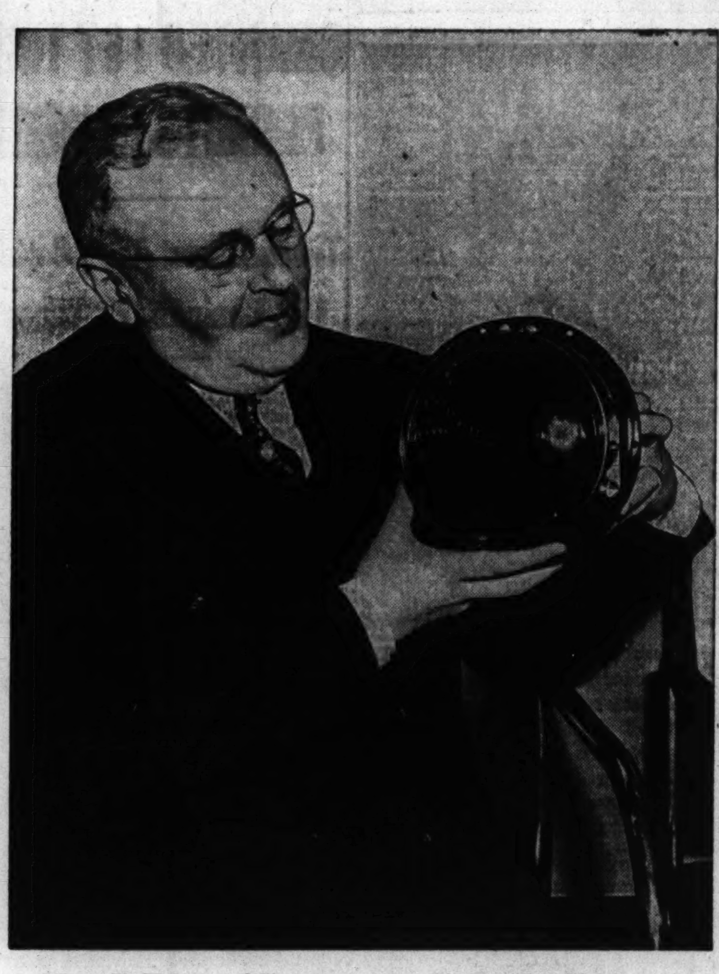
Water Supply.

In wartime water is not only important for the normal needs of the civilian population, but also for the efficiency of any fire fighting organization. Increase in available flow can be obtained by providing supplementary water mains, or establishing water reservoirs at specified points.

Where water has been shut off or bombed out it may be necessary to have water carts to distribute water, or gasoline and milk tank trucks may be used for this purpose. If there are any boilers in the affected area depending on the water supply for water, the engineers must be warned to pull their fires in order to prevent explosions.

The purity of water must be maintained. It is assumed that all water in the affected area will be contaminated. It will be dangerous to drink until the official announces it is safe.

Invents Blackout Headlight



Albert E. Holmes of Evanston shows his auto headlight regulator designed to control not only the volume but also the direction of light. The unit, which can be attached easily to any standard headlight, can be adjusted to eliminate road and top glare and can be closed to permit only a slit of light to show, useful, the inventor claims, for blackout purposes. The unit, which can be made of metals, plastics or glass, has been brought to the attention of civilian defense authorities.

JEWISH WOMEN PLAN RECEPTION FOR NEW LEADER

A meeting Wednesday of the North Shore committee of the National Council of Jewish Women, Chicago section, at the North Shore Congregation Israel in Glencoe, will be a reception for Mrs. William H. Sahud, newly elected president of the Chicago section. Mrs. Harry L. Canmann, chairman of the North Shore committee, will conduct a short business meeting when the session opens at 1 o'clock.

Other officers elected to serve with Mrs. Sahud are: Mrs. Edward DuBroff, first vice president; Mrs. Emile Levy, second vice president; Mrs. Harry Joseph, third vice president; Mrs. Max Stein, treasurer; Mrs. Sol Westerfeld, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Myron I. Ingram, financial secretary, and Mrs. Morris L. Koff, assistant financial secretary. All will be presented with Mrs. Sahud.

The speaker will be Helen R. Adams, newspaper reporter, whose topic will be: "Reporting the News in a War." A dessert luncheon will precede the program.

HINTS ON CARE OF HEATING AND PLUMBING UNITS

Few Replacements to Be Available During War.

[Don't forget to visit the annual Chicago Home show which opened yesterday at the Coliseum. Jot it down on your calendar.]

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

That resolve to make the most of the things we have and insure for them long and healthy life has been put into action in most homes these days. Floors, walls, woodwork, screen blinds, electrical equipment, and heating and plumbing units, fixtures, and fittings are all in the limelight and stamped for care, and repair if necessary.

Plumbing and heating equipment is a vital part of every house, and any prompt repair made as soon as it is needed may mean that a major breakdown is avoided.

Plumbing and heating contractors are permitted to obtain the necessary material for emergency repairs, but the home owner is asked to take every precaution against replacement.

Hints for Preserving Utensils.

We know that no object is too small to pass over lightly; that even a small enamelware pan should not have cold water poured into it while it is hot, that cast iron utensils can have their life lengthened by baking soda in rinsing water to avoid rust; that strongly alkaline soaps and harsh abrasives should be avoided in the upkeep of aluminum and that tinware should not be scoured since the thin coating of the tin, once worn away, leaves the iron base exposed and liable to rust.

And for the proper conservation of larger items, such as water heaters, drains, chromium plated fittings, sinks, tubs, water closets, heating equipment, and the like come money and metal saving hints:

Advice on Water Heater.

Have a master plumber advise on safe maximum water temperature and have heater adjusted to it; hot water is more corrosive than cold water.

Polish hinges of closet seats with metal polish and replace any worn float valve and old or deformed tank balls of water closet.

Pour scalding water down drain pipes at least once a day for long periods of freedom from congealed and clogged lines.

Keep fans and motors of oil burners clean and lubricate frequently, and have oil service man or heating contractor check air volume and controls.

In case chromium plating is exposed to salt air, salt, or calcium chloride it can be given a protective coating of furniture wax after it has been thoroly washed and dried.

Flush sediment from indirect water heating coils at frequent intervals, and have air expelled from expansion tank.

Use care in the selection of fuel for stoker and keep motor clean.

Fill Coal Bins Early.

New bins for coal storage are already in the process of building since home owners are urged to store every ton of coal they may need for next winter, now if possible, and to build extra bins if space is available.

Coal should not be stored near any external sources of heat, and old coal should not be allowed to accumulate in corners or on the bottom of bins or piles. Practice dictates that coal should not be piled higher than 12 to 15 feet, tho this is not a law. Eliminate all oily rags or paper from contact with coal while it is being stored and afterward.

Wives of Retiring N. U. Professors to Be Guests

Wives of Northwestern university professors who are retiring this year will be special guests at the spring luncheon of the University circle Friday in Scott hall lounge. Mrs. Herbert Philbrick, Mrs. Frederick Deibler, Mrs. Ralph Dennis, Mrs. Arthur I. Kendall, and Mrs. Robert Millar will be the guests. Also on the special guest list will be Mrs. Franklyn Bliss Snyder and Mrs. Walter Dill Scott. Harold Van Horne, pianist, will be the program artist.

Heads Sorority

Miss Ruth Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood of Evanston, was recently elected president of Beta chapter of Gamma Phi Beta sorority at the University of Michigan. She is a member of the class of 1943 and is on the university judiciary council.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, May 4

The home gardener will do well to observe the plants that grow best in various locations. When passing thru city areas plants like the iris, daylily, and sedum spectable are seen in numbers. In fact, iris appears everywhere, but it is best to grow a few of the better varieties than to continue growing the oldtime yellow.

Iris should be transplanted after flowering. Apply a scattering of commercial plant food along the sides of strawberry plants and hoe it under.

Tuesday, May 5

Many soils lack humus [decayed animal and vegetable matter] and by spreading a layer two or three inches thick over the surface before digging it will be very beneficial. Mushroom manure, compost, leafmold, or peat are excellent.

Sweet peas are well along by this time. Thin out to six or eight inches between the plants and if mildew is present, spray with Bordeaux mixture.

Wednesday, May 6

Choose a quiet, cloudy day when setting out seedlings, and if the plants are long and spindly plant somewhat deeper than usual, altho the tops must not be buried. The reason many seeds fail to germinate freely is because of dry soil.

When sowing place burlap, cloth, or newspaper over the seedbed to hold the moisture and shade the bed but uncover when the seeds have germinated. Many of the finer seeds, like the petunia, fail on this account.

Thursday, May 7

Use annual flowering plants in bulb beds after the latter have flowered. Annuals give color to the garden and they are so easily grown that a fine effect can be obtained the first season. Persons moving into new homes in open areas will find they can enjoy fine gardens if they will use this group of plants.

Make the beds along the side of the yard and at the alley end. Use tall kinds in the rear and dwarf kinds in the front.

Friday, May 8

Thin all plants to enable each one to have space to develop. The vegetable garden is well under way. Do not attempt to grow root crops in clay soil; grow them in good, well drained, well enriched sandy loam.

Sow Kentucky wonder pole beans along the fences about the time apple trees are in bloom. Lima beans are more tender and should not be sown until later.

Saturday, May 9

Plant in long rows for vegetable growing rather than in small beds for cultivation is much easier. Plant sweet corn in several rows together rather than a single row; use in blocks even tho they are small rows. Pollen must be carried to each plant to insure good ears.

Do not mulch the ground during wet weather or disease may result. Wait until about July 1 when hot weather prevails and the soil is dry.

CENTRAL REGION PARLEY OF YWCA TO OPEN FRIDAY

North Shore Groups Will Take Leading Part.

Leaders in units of the Young Women's Christian association along the north shore will take a prominent part in the organization's Central regional convention at Hotel Sherman Friday thru Sunday. Mrs. Ernest A. Johnson of Lake Forest is conference chairman. Mrs. Johnson, member of the national board of the YWCA, is official convener for the central region. Miss Lilace Reid Barnes, Lake Forest, president of the Chicago Y, also will be active in conference plans.

Mrs. Ernest A. Johnson.

The meeting will draw delegates from YWCAs in a dozen states—Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Minnesota.

North Shore Units Busy.

Altho Mrs. Eugene Ross McCarthy of St. Louis is chairman of the committee on convention arrangements, north shore associations have been delegated to carry out specific duties. The Evanston Center will provide pages and ushers. Mrs. Donald A. Wallace, Mrs. Edward T. Muir, and Mrs. Wayne Mitten are on the committee for that work. Mrs. C. P. Barnum, also of the Evanston group, is the local representative in charge of hotel contacts.

Conference meals are the responsibility of the Waukegan YWCA with Mrs. Robert A. Jones as chairman. The Lake Forest Y is in charge of registration, and Mrs. Waldo Allen is chairman.

Arranges Music Program.

Miss Ardith Ries, director of music at Lake Forest college, will assist with the music program for the conference sessions. The meeting will bring Y leaders from outside the region. They will include Miss Charlotte T. Niven who has had two years of experience with the British YWCA; Mrs. Henry A. Ingraham, president of the national board, and Miss Emma P. Hirth, general secretary of the national board of the YWCA. National headquarters are in New York.

LIST SUGAR REGISTRATION PLACES

CHICAGO'S ROTC SHINES BUTTONS FOR INSPECTION

Army Officers Begin Tour Tomorrow.

BY PAUL HEALY.

The annual showdown among Chicago's 28 ROTC units, comprising the largest junior brigade in the nation, begins this week. After months of scrupulous preparations, each corps will submit to a two and a half hour inspection by visiting officers. After the final inspection on May 22, the No. 1 and No. 2 units in the city will be announced and a number of others will be singled out as honor schools.

A total of approximately 11,000 cadets will be carefully surveyed in the reviews, which are conducted on the school grounds or in neighboring parks. They will represent 27 public high schools and St. Mel Catholic High school.

Medals to Leaders.

During each ceremony gold and silver medals will be presented to outstanding cadets by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. A total of 221 Chicago cadets will be decorated with these awards this month. Other medals will be presented to superior cadets by the war department, American Legion posts, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Spanish American War Veterans, PTA groups and other community organizations.

The first 1942 inspection will take place at 1:15 o'clock tomorrow when Waller High school is reviewed at De Paul stadium, 2210 Sheffield avenue. On Tuesday Roosevelt will be inspected at 9 o'clock in the morning on the school campus at Wilson and Kimball avenues, and Lakeview and Von Steuben will both be inspected at 1:15 o'clock. Lakeview will be reviewed at Welles park, Montrose and Western avenues, and Von Steuben will be examined on the Roosevelt High school grounds.

Following are the other inspections scheduled for this week:

Wednesday, Sullivan, 9 a. m., school campus, 6631 Bosworth avenue; Senn, 1:15 p. m., school campus, 5900 Glenwood avenue, and Amundsen, 1:15 p. m., Winnemac stadium, 2100 Winnemac avenue.

Thursday: Fenger, 9 a. m., school campus, 11220 Wallace street; Morgan Park, 1:15 p. m., school campus, 1744 Pryor avenue. In the event of rain, inspections will be held indoors.

Colors to Best Units.

Color stands will be presented by THE TRIBUNE to the two units adjudged the best in Chicago. They will be carried when these two units lead the giant ROTC parade down Michigan avenue Wednesday, May 27. Last year Tilden and Crane High schools were named first and second best in that order.

Lieut. Col. R. K. Whitson, supervisor of ROTC at the University of Illinois, and Lieut. Col. Roy T. Rouse, supervisor of the ROTC at Michigan State college, have been chosen to inspect the Chicago units this spring. They also will examine the ROTC at Joliet Township High school on May 13; Evanston Township High school on May 16; and Waukegan Township High school on June 2. Tribune medals also will be presented at the suburban ceremonies.

In addition to watching mass drilling by the unit, inspectors will scrutinize and quiz individual cadets in the ranks. Each corps will be rated on general appearance, knowledge of subject matter, military demeanor, performance of duties, and the attitude and condition of equipment in its school.

Following are the northwest siders who will receive medals this week:

ROOSEVELT.

Officers efficiency, Lieut. Col. Seymour Appleblood; noncoms efficiency, Master Sergt. George Friedman; band efficiency, Second Lieut. Earl Rosenberg; neatness, First Sergt. Edwin Rubens and Corp. Earl Swimmer; rifle marksmanship, First Lieut. Arthur Turetzky; D. A. R., Maj. Lawrence LeVine; American Legion auxiliary, Capt. Leonard Stein; American Legion, Capt. William Sullivan, Second Lieut. Raymond Friedlander, and Second Lieut. Seymour Stiss; Veterans of Foreign Wars, Capt. Sherwin Levinson; Spanish American War Veterans, Capt. Earl Mirsky.

Tribune medals, Second Lieuts. Martin Drugoff, Burton Fink, and Mitchell Teeman, Sergt. Glenn Spath, and Cadet Paul Chan.

VON STEUBEN.

Officers efficiency, First Lieut. Leslie Schalla; noncoms efficiency, Sergt. Richard Scully; neatness, Sergt. Leonard Salzberg and Cadet John Weichman; recruiting, Sergt. Robert Phipps; band efficiency, First Lieut. Fred Powell; American Legion, Second Lieut. Robert Gustadt, Sergt. Arnold Miller and Corps. Sponsored by the Office of Civilian Defense, classes in foods and nutritions will begin in Itasca on May 26. Classes will be held Tuesday and Thursday mornings in the village hall.

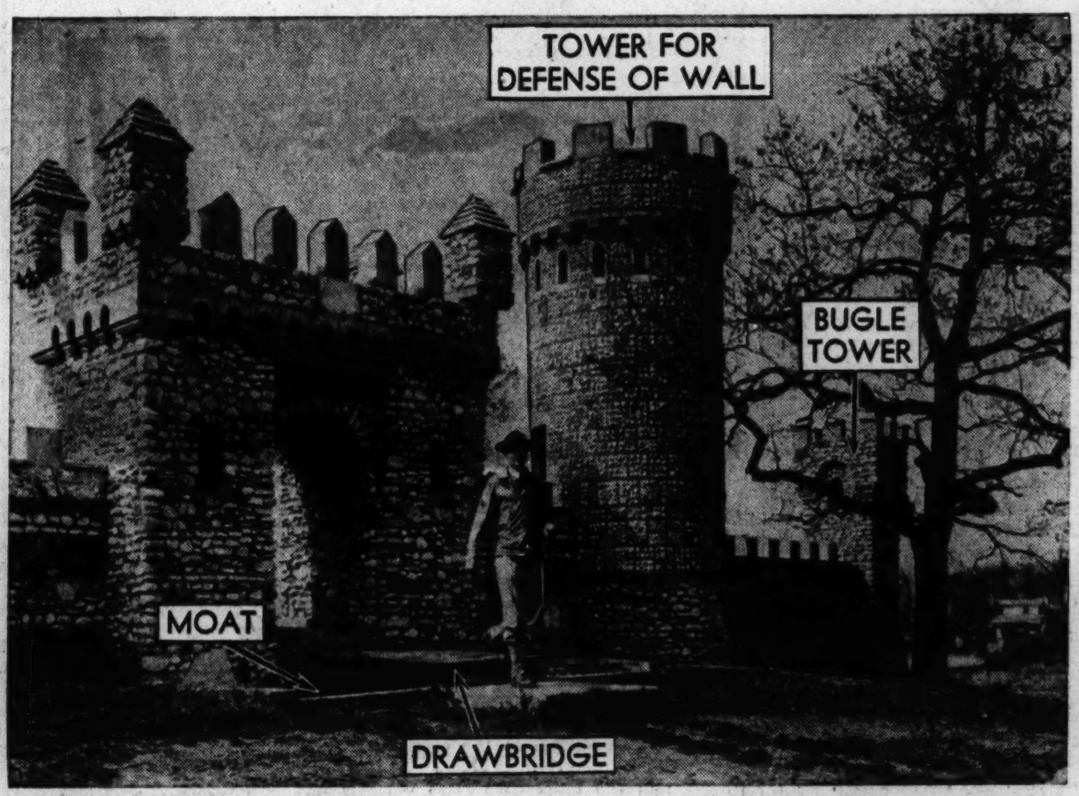
Makes His Home a Castle Like the One He Knew in Childhood



Bettendorff castle stands high on a hill overlooking the village of Fox River Grove and the Northwest highway. A scale reproduction of a medieval Luxemburg castle, which builder Ted Bettendorff remembers from his youth, his castle stands out in striking contrast to the modern streamlined trains which rush by at the foot of the hill. The castle was started in 1931. The castle has a drawbridge, a moat, towers and turrets. Inside the castle are modern living quarters. The soldier guest who is leaving is Thomas Callahan who is visiting in Algonquin.

Countless hours of hard work and painstaking detail were spent by Bettendorff in reproducing the old castle in Vianden, Luxemburg. The only plans he had were a few picture postcards of the original and memories of explorations he made thru the ruins as a boy. Above is a tower of the defense wall and the fortified front entrance taken from the inside.

In the days of the depression when jobs were scarce Builder Bettendorff worked in his own quarry digging out the stones with which to build his castle. Today, with his job in the defense plant occupying much of his time, his home is still his hobby and he puts in what few hours he has for himself in fashioning walls and other additions. Here he is mixing concrete, which he molds into slabs imbedded with stones.

CASTLE YARD

One of the many features about his unique home which Mr. Bettendorff enjoys is his yard. In constructing the walls and towers he made sure there was plenty of space for a yard where he entertains friends on warm summer evenings.

Toils 11 Years to Turn House Into a Castle

High over the banks of the Sauer river in Vianden, Luxemburg, a medieval castle has commanded the view of the surrounding territory for hundreds of years. When Napoleon took over the tiny duchy in the early years of the 19th century, it had long been unoccupied. He sold it to the highest bidder for $1,200 who salvaged all usable material in it. Today its crumbling shell still stands, a bastion of bygone days, hardly noticed by townsfolk in the valley. For generations their children have roamed thru its damp halls and explored its secret passageways.

High above the Northwest highway overlooking the village of Fox River Grove stands another castle, a replica on a much smaller scale, which for years has captured the imagination of thousands of tourists and Sunday afternoon drivers.

Lord of the Castle.

Its genial "lord" and builder, Ted Bettendorff, 52 year old bachelor, is a machinist for a Chicago firm manufacturing war equipment. Forty years ago Ted was playing in the bleak Vianden castle but did not say to himself at that time, "Some day I will have a castle like this."

In fact when Ted started in 1931 it was only a three room frame house.

"If I'd known then what it was going to turn into, I would have been afraid to attempt it," he says. He's reluctant to hazard an estimate of the hours he has spent on it. Fear that a husky wind might blow his place off the hill prompted him to dig a foundation. He found himself located right above a rich stone bed. The rest was elementary. With an abundant supply of material and plenty of time on his hands, being unable to get a job in the depths of the depression Ted modestly started to put a stone facing around the outside walls.

Turrets Are Useful.

Some time during this process the castle idea struck him. He dug out postcard pictures of the old Vianden castle. Stone by stone he erected turrets at each corner, placing shower equipment in one, a toilet in another, a clothes closet in a third and a wind-

Du Page Lilacs Keep Faith for Near Century

[Announcement of the days selected as Lilac days and other information on the annual community gift of flowers appears in the main news section of today's Sunday Tribune.]

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

Lilacs from the Lyman homestead in Downers Grove come from bushes that are nearly 100 years old. The main stems are as thick as the trunks of small trees and the clumps shade spacious places in the yard. Each year of the Share Your Lilacs campaign their blooms have added to the offerings of the Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit guild, which cooperates with THE TRIBUNE in making it possible for shut-ins to enjoy the springtime beauty and fragrance.

There are many old lilac bushes in Du Page county. Early settlers sought to give their new homes something of the atmosphere of the neighborhood they had left in the east. There are instances where the house itself has vanished but the sturdy lilacs continue to bloom year after year beside what was once a doorstep or the path to a roadside gate.

The Lyman homestead at 900 Ogden avenue is said to be the only one in Du Page county where the family name is the same as that when the place was settled a century ago.

Settled in 1839.

To the acres beside Ogden avenue, then the Old Plank road, the Rev. Orange Lyman came in 1839. As a home missionary, he had migrated west from Ohio with the shift of settlements. He died in 1851.

Henry Martin Lyman, a son, died in 1894. Walter Lyman, a grandson, was born on the place in 1854 and died there in 1926. Mrs. Walter Lyman has resided at the home 19 years. She said the old lilac bushes were planted by the wife of the Rev. Orange Lyman. They are of the old-fashioned purple variety.

When Gen. John A. Logan designated May 30, 1868 for the purpose of strewing with flowers the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country during the Civil war, the Lyman lilac bushes responded. They had been a part of the setting when Capt. Walter Blanchard had drilled his company on Maple avenue. Their blooms were carried on Memorial day by members of Walter Blanchard post and, as the years passed, for departed members.

Bloom Year After Year.

Of the 59 men who enlisted from Du Page county for the Spanish-American war in 1898, 12 were from Downers Grove. History as it was being unfolded in the village dovetailed with history of the nation. The lilacs bloomed when men went away and after men came back. Their message remained steadfast in a world of change.

Time came when Alexander Bradley Burns post of the American Legion was formed with many members in the village. Lilacs along the street had become more firmly interwoven into the lives of the people. Whims of the weather might influence the period and the extent of their blooming but they never failed the townspeople.

More than any person living, the lilacs have witnessed the passing epochs of village history. Another war, more world shaking than any of its predecessors now has reached into the routine of the community. With all of their kind in all the yards in the Chicagoland area, and with all who share in their significance, the Downers Grove lilacs are ready to blossom again.

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION TO OBSERVE 90TH YEAR WITH FETE SATURDAY

Chicago Typographical union, No. 16, will celebrate its 90th anniversary with a dinner-dance Saturday in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. Granted a charter on May 18, 1852, the local union has enjoyed continued success from that day on. International President Claude Baker and Secretary-Treasurer Woodruff Randolph are expected to attend. An elaborate program has been arranged for the occasion. Reservations for the dinner can be made thru union headquarters at 130 North Wells street.

School Board to Meet.

The Maine Township board of education will convene Tuesday evening to elect a new president and secretary, and organize committees. The election was postponed last week when two board members, Erwin Goll and Emil Bergman, were unable to be present.

TIME TO REPORT BASED ON LAST NAME INITIAL

Four Day Task Will Start Tomorrow.

All is in readiness for the registration of millions of sugar users in the Chicago area who will visit their public elementary schools during the next four days to qualify for the ration books without which the purchase of sugar in its various forms is henceforth prohibited. This was announced by Michael F. Mulcahy, state rationing administrator for the Chicago area.

More than 15,000 elementary teachers and volunteer workers will aid in the huge task, which will start tomorrow morning and end late Thursday, Mulcahy said. The schools will be open for registration from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. each day.

One Can Represent Family.

One person may register for his or her entire family, the rationing authorities have ruled. Thus it will not be necessary for each individual sugar user to visit the local registration point. The books to be issued on the basis of this week's registration may later be used in the rationing of other commodities besides sugar.

The commercial users of sugar were similarly registered in the high schools last Tuesday. The registrants included 21,025 retailers, wholesalers, industries, and institutions. They are already receiving sugar purchase certificates.

In Chicago, the applicants for this week's registration will be registered in public elementary schools according to ward boundaries. In the suburbs the schools are divided according to ration board districts, which follow township boundaries.

The addresses of the schools in Chicago, and other information concerning the registration machinery setup in both the city and the suburbs appears elsewhere in these columns.

Listed by Alphabet.

Registrants are expected to visit the elementary schools in accordance with a schedule based upon the alphabetical arrangement of the initials of last names, Mulcahy said. This is the schedule:

Last Name Initial.	Registration Period.
A-B	Monday morning
C-D-E	Monday afternoon
F-G-H	Tuesday morning
I-J-K-L	Tuesday afternoon
M-N	Wednesday morning
O-P-Q-R	Wednesday afternoon
S	Thursday morning
T to Z	Thursday afternoon

If a registrant finds it impossible to register on the day assigned in the above schedule, he can make arrangements at his registration place to sign up on some other day in the registration period.

Here are the names and addresses of the elementary schools where the residents of northwest Chicago will register for their sugar rationing books:

SELECT 4 MAINE HIGH STUDENTS TO ATTEND CITIZENSHIP CAMPS

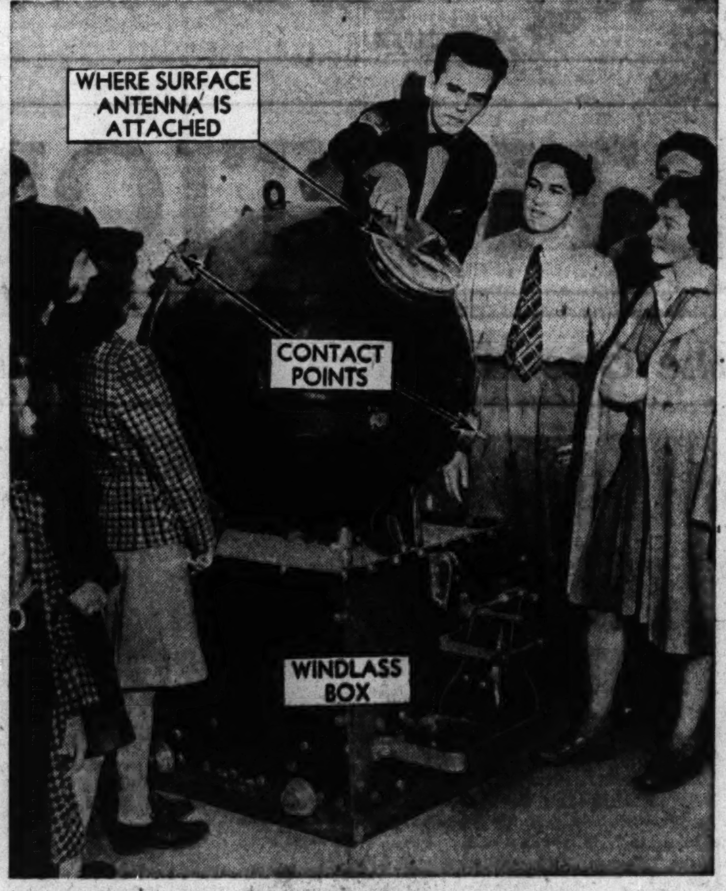
Four Maine Township High school students—two girls and two boys—were selected last week to attend the Illinois State Citizenship camps from June 24 to July 1 at Jacksonville, Ill. The four will go as representatives of the Des Plaines American Legion post and auxiliary and the Mel Tierney post and auxiliary of Park Ridge.

Vivian Houser.

The two students who will represent the Des Plaines American Legion post are Miss Vivian Houser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Houser, 747 Fifth avenue, Des Plaines, and Bob Duthie, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Duthie, 800 Graceland avenue, Des Plaines. Miss Marilyn Otto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Otto, 501 Wisner avenue, Park Ridge, and Dave Haake, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Haake, 426 North Prospect avenue, Park Ridge, will represent the Mel Tierney post.

Purpose of the camps, held each year, is to "train young men and women in constructive attitudes toward the American form of government." Boys' camp will be held on the campus of the Illinois School for the Deaf, and the girls' camp will be held on the MacMurray college campus.

Physics Students Inspect Mine



WHERE SURFACE ANTENNA IS ATTACHED
CONTACT POINTS
WINDLASS BOX

James D. Perdue, physics instructor at Tuley High school and a demonstrator at the Museum of Science and Industry, explains the workings of a contact mine to a group of students.

Held by Cable

The contact mine, covered with contact points which serve as detonators, is a globe connected by a cable to a windlass box. When the mine is laid, the box settles to the ocean floor, the windlass mechanism is tripped, and the mine then rises to a point just beneath the surface.

The depth at which a mine is laid depends upon the rise and fall of the tide, since mines are usually found in harbors where the water is comparatively shallow. Should the hull of a ship touch a contact point the mine would explode.

For further protection against small craft with little draft, an antenna rises from the mine to the surface. The contact with this antenna also will set off the mine.

PHYSICS EXHIBIT BY TULEY PUPILS TO OPEN MAY 12

Youthful Scientists to Show Wonders.

Youthful scientists and boyish inventors will be on hand Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, May 12, 13, and 14, when the annual physics exposition is held at Tuley High school, 1313 Claremont avenue.

The event, sponsored by the school's Physics club, is a climax to the science department's year of activities. During the last year Tuley students have had as a classroom a section of the Museum of Science and Industry. Here, amid some of the world's finest scientific phenomena, reside exhibits created by students of Tuley's physics classes.

Here, on Saturday and Sunday afternoons, Tuley students preside at the exhibit, carefully explaining the construction and operation of each piece of equipment. During the period of less than a year that the exhibit has been at the museum, students have explained the display to more than 7,500 spectators.

Tedious Research Necessary.

Weeks of research, preceded by a thoro knowledge of elementary physics, have enable the students to prepare exhibits of fine caliber. Under direction of James D. Perdue, physics instructor at Tuley and a demonstrator at the museum, Charles Salemi has prepared a pin hole camera. Warren Gjorup has created a skeleton model of an airplane, showing the function of the controls.

Lillian Art and Eleanor Hamis, thru the pair of motors they built, have brought to the feminine section of the physics department some of the credit.

One of the chief attractions of the museum's student exhibition is Hugo Korn's Thompson type induction coil capable of lighting an underwater lamp, ringing a bell without an electrical connection, rotating a copper disc, and making an aluminum ring do a high jump.

Visit Museum on Class Tours.

Hundreds of Tuley students, traveling to the south side museum as part of school tours, have heard their fellow students explain the intricacies of the exhibits.

Selected for their understanding of physics, as well as for their speaking voices, the following students were chosen to act as demonstrators at the exhibit: Thelma Kass, Sylvia Sopkin, Sam Altshuler, Bernard Malina, Allen Rebhan, Edgar Manseau, William Parkhurst, Martin Ash, Josephine Migdal, and Elsie Gutenstein.

At the closing of the exposition at the high school, the students and Mr. Perdue expect to make many changes in the exhibit at the museum. Because of the war, members of the physics department agree that a greater stress should be placed upon devices of warfare and an all out for victory.

St. Andrew's Confirmation Classes to Hold Reunion

Representatives of the 18 confirmation classes of St. Andrew's Lutheran church, Addison street and Linder avenue, will meet at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the church for a confirmation class reunion. The Rev. Glenn Gilbert, pastor, will direct the program. The arrangement committee includes: Miss Lorraine Milke, Miss Lorraine Petersen, Allen Wolter, and Harry Pearson.

RALLY TO SHOW DEFENSE PLANS IN NORTH PARK

Veterans, Youth Groups to Parade Wednesday.

Thirty-five thousand members of the North Park defense community will observe the progress of the community's civilian defense program this week during a two day patriotic rally sponsored by the community defense headquarters, it was announced by Isadore Nemeroff, community commander.

Highlights of the rally will include a parade Wednesday evening and a citizens' gathering in the auditorium of Von Steuben High school, 5039 North Kimball avenue, Thursday evening. Commander Nemeroff announced all community residents were urged to take part in the two day program.

Many Units in Parade.

Numerous community groups will march in the parade, to get under way at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday evening, under direction of Herbert N. Magida, 4704 North Sawyer avenue. Taking part will be groups from the Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, Boy and Girl Scout and Cub Scout organizations, North Park college, Good Counsel High school, Red Cross units, state militia, Peterson school pupils, and others.

Forming at Carmen and Kimball avenues, the parade will follow a line of march north to Foster avenue, then east to Sawyer avenue, north to Berwyn avenue, west to Kimball avenue, north to Bryn Mawr avenue, east to Kedzie avenue, and north to Olive venue, at which point the groups will disperse.

The program at Von Steuben High school Thursday evening will celebrate the formal opening of the consumers' information service at community headquarters, 3247 Bryn Mawr avenue. It also is designed as a report to community residents on the progress of their civilian defense system, Commander Nemeroff said.

Principal speaker at the meeting will be J. Charles Laue, field representative of the consumers' division, Office of Price Administration. Commander Nemeroff also announced that Mrs. J. B. Stewart, 5645 North Central Park avenue, would head the consumers' information service in the community.

15 Zones in Community.

Bounded by Devon avenue on the north, Pulaski road on the west, and the Chicago river on the south and east, the North Park community is comprised of 15 zones divided into 80 blocks. Formed along military lines, the community is typical in organization of other defense communities in the Chicago area.

Orders from the central office of civilian defense, 23 North Wacker drive, reach Commander Nemeroff in the North Park community after they have been transmitted thru the northwest divisional office, headed by Roy I. Levinson, 5100 North Ridgeway avenue. Commander Nemeroff then issues the order to one of the 12 committees of his community organization, which in turn transmits it to the zone captains. The latter transmit the order to the block captains under their command.

Defense Committees Listed.

Committees in the North Park community which handle the various phases of civilian defense are listed, together with their chairmen, as follows: Physical fitness, Miss Virginia Peterson, 5811 North Christiana avenue, and Samuel Klapham, 5841 North Spaulding avenue; youth activities, Herbert N. Magida, 4704 North Sawyer avenue; war gardens, Herman Nordlinger, 5324 North Bernard street; war savings bonds and stamps, Edward Steinborn, 5404 North Sawyer avenue; conservation, Mrs. Goldie Du Bou, 5428 North Sawyer avenue; salvage, Al B. Wolf, 5644 North Drake avenue; community training, Peter P. Persch, 5501 North Sawyer avenue.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, May 4

The home gardener will do well to observe the plants that grow best in various locations. When passing thru city areas plants like the iris, daylily, and sedum spectable are seen in numbers. In fact, iris appears everywhere, but it is best to grow a few of the better varieties than to continue growing the oldtime yellow.

Iris should be transplanted after flowering. Apply a scattering of commercial plant food along the sides of strawberry plants and hoe it under.

Tuesday, May 5

Many soils lack humus [decayed animal and vegetable matter] and by spreading a layer two or three inches thick over the surface before digging it will be very beneficial. Mushroom manure, compost, leafmold, or peat are excellent.

Sweet peas are well along by this time. Thin out to six or eight inches between the plants and if mildew is present, spray with Bordeaux mixture.

Wednesday, May 6

Choose a quiet, cloudy day when setting out seedlings, and if the plants are long and spindly plant somewhat deeper than usual, altho the tops must not be buried. The reason many seeds fail to germinate freely is because of dry soil.

When sowing place burlap, cloth, or newspaper over the seedbed to hold the moisture and shade the bed but uncover when the seeds have germinated. Many of the finer seeds, like the petunia, fail on this account.

Thursday, May 7

Use annual flowering plants in bulb beds after the latter have flowered. Annuals give color to the garden and they are so easily grown that a fine effect can be obtained the first season. Persons moving into new homes in open areas will find they can enjoy fine gardens if they will use this group of plants.

Make the beds along the side of the yard and at the alley end. Use tall kinds in the rear and dwarf kinds in the front.

Friday, May 8

Thin all plants to enable each one to have space to develop. The vegetable garden is well under way. Do not attempt to grow root crops in clay soil; grow them in good, well drained, well enriched sandy loam.

Sow Kentucky wonder pole beans along the fences about the time apple trees are in bloom. Lima beans are more tender and should not be sown until later.

Saturday, May 9

Plant in long rows for vegetable growing rather than in small beds for cultivation is much easier. Plant sweet corn in several rows together rather than a single row; use in blocks even tho they are small rows. Pollen must be carried to each plant to insure good ears.

Do not mulch the ground during wet weather or disease may result. Wait until about July 1 when hot weather prevails and the soil is dry.

WALTHER LEAGUE ZONE RALLY TO DRAW 250 TODAY

Arlington Heights Will Be Host.

More than 250 youthful representatives will attend the spring rally today of the junior and senior divisions of the northwest suburban zone of the Walther league at St. Peter's Lutheran church in Arlington Heights.

Arthur Streit, vice president of the zone who assumed the presidency when the position was vacated by the calling of Theodore Meyer to the army, will conduct the afternoon business session and the election of officers. The Rev. A. R. Kretzmann, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran church of Chicago, will speak on the rally's theme, "Prayer, Study, and Action." Another speaker will be Adolph Rittmueller, the new vice president of the northern Illinois district.

Rally representatives will discuss the increased need of writing to men in the armed forces, and pastors will be urged to continue their practice of writing a monthly letter to each congregation member in the services. The collection from the rally will be forwarded to the Lutheran army and navy commission.

Howard Hasz is chairman of the entertainment program which will be offered after an evening supper, of which Miss Dorothy Host, Miss Lorna Meyer, and Miss Ruth Schulte are in charge. The Rev. H. C. Fricke of Arlington Heights will direct a vesper service.

Outgoing officers include Arthur Streit, president, and Miss Lucile Kolb, secretary and treasurer. Roselle Salvage Campaign to Be Ended Tomorrow

Roselle's observance of Illinois' Salvage for Victory drive will close tomorrow, John G. Schellenberg, president of the village board, said. Salvage week opened Wednesday in the village and was for the purpose of gathering waste paper, iron, rubber, and other material.

HINTS ON CARE OF HEATING AND PLUMBING UNITS

Few Replacements to Be Available During War.

[Don't forget to visit the annual Chicago Home show which opened yesterday at the Coliseum. Jot it down on your calendar.]

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

That resolve to make the most of the things we have and insure for them long and healthy life has been put into action in most homes these days. Floors, walls, woodwork, screen blinds, electrical equipment, and heating and plumbing units, fixtures, and fittings are all in the limelight and stamped for care, and repair if necessary.

Plumbing and heating equipment is a vital part of every house, and any prompt repair made as soon as it is needed may mean that a major breakdown is avoided.

Plumbing and heating contractors are permitted to obtain the necessary material for emergency repairs, but the home owner is asked to take every precaution against replacement.

Hints for Preserving Utensils.

We know that no object is too small to pass over lightly; that even a small enamelware pan should not have cold water poured into it while it is hot, that cast iron utensils can have their life lengthened by baking soda in rinsing water to avoid rust; that strongly alkaline soaps and harsh abrasives should be avoided in the upkeep of aluminum and that tinware should not be scoured since the thin coating of the tin, once worn away, leaves the iron base exposed and liable to rust.

And for the proper conservation of larger items, such as water heaters, drains, chromium plated fittings, sinks, tubs, water closets, heating equipment, and the like come money and metal saving hints:

Advice on Water Heater.

Have a master plumber advise on safe maximum water temperature and have heater adjusted to it; hot water is more corrosive than cold water.

Polish hinges of closet seats with metal polish and replace any worn float valve and old or deformed tank balls of water closet.

Pour scalding water down drain pipes at least once a day for long periods of freedom from congealed and clogged lines.

Keep fans and motors of oil burners clean and lubricate frequently, and have oil service man or heating contractor check air volume and controls.

In case chromium plating is exposed to salt air, salt, or calcium chloride it can be given a protective coating of furniture wax after it has been thoroly washed and dried.

Flush sediment from indirect water heating coils at frequent intervals, and have air expelled from expansion tank.

Use care in the selection of fuel for stoker and keep motor clean.

Fill Coal Bins Early.

New bins for coal storage are already in the process of building since home owners are urged to store every ton of coal they may need for next winter, now if possible, and to build extra bins if space is available.

Coal should not be stored near any external sources of heat, and old coal should not be allowed to accumulate in corners or on the bottom of bins or piles. Practice dictates that coal should not be piled higher than 12 to 15 feet, tho this is not a law. Eliminate all oily rags or paper from contact with coal while it is being stored and afterward.

CHURCH IN PARK RIDGE TO HAVE SILVER JUBILEE

Community Pageant Is Planned Tuesday.

Dr. Orvis F. Jordan.

A celebration marking the 25th anniversary of the Community church of Park Ridge will be heard at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the parish house. The program planned for the evening includes an address by the Rev. Orvis F. Jordan, pastor of the church, and a pageant setting forth its history and present activities.

Founded in 1917, the church was one of the first community parishes in the United States. Today there are some 2,000.

Three pastors served during the first three years of its existence, the Rev. James R. Stead, the Rev. Noble S. Elderkin, and Dr. C. C. Morrison. The Rev. Dr. Jordan, the present pastor, came to the church in 1922.

During the 25 years of the growth of the church its membership has quadrupuled. There are now over 800 members, 250 of which are young people. Sunday school enrollment is 550. Members of 24 denominations are numbered among the congregation.

Since its founding the church has been a "community" church in the sense that it is committed to a program of community service. During the pastorate of the Rev. Dr. Jordan an $80,000 community house was erected. It is the center for Red Cross work, Scout groups, and activities of other community organizations.

Copies Old Fortress He Knew as Boy.

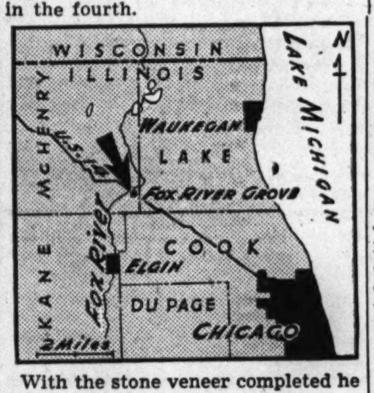
ing staircase to basement and attic in the fourth.



With the stone veneer completed he built an imposing granite fireplace after scouring the countryside for rocks which he hauled back in his model T. Next came the heavy walls and the realistic drawbridge and moat. The latter is a handy protection against bill collectors, says Ted, altho with his heavy schedule at the defense plant he is seldom home anyway.

Altho he lives alone, Ted is hardly a hermit. Friends are always dropping in and hundreds of curious tourists have asked permission to get a closeup of his quarters. He agrees obligingly, proud of the unique structure which for 11 years has been his home as well as his only hobby.

May Be Air Warden.

Now he is working on a retaining wall along the driveway. During the winter months he has been molding foot square concrete slabs imbedded with stones. This intermediate process simplifies the stone laying while producing the same effect.

Townsfolk talk of making Ted official air raid warden of Fox River Grove, for the towers of his castle command the view for miles around. A cement inclosed quarry at the edge of his hill could be easily converted into a bomb shelter, they also point out.

Ted doesn't know yet what his next project will be. "Maybe a secret passageway to the railroad station or the restaurant across the street," he says.

CAMP MEETING OPENS FOR 83D YEAR THIS WEEK

Methodists to Assemble at Des Plaines.

August 22, 1860, marked the founding of the Methodist camp meeting in Des Plaines. This week the camp ground, situated on the river on the outskirts of Des Plaines, will officially open its 83d season. Thousands of visitors from Chicago churches as well as those in other areas are expected to participate in the program thruout the summer.

The camp ground has undergone many changes and improvements since the early days when Methodists arrived on open day, pitched their tents, and camped thruout the season. Gradually frame structures replaced the tents, and later years ushered in tabernacles, cottages, a hotel, and a swimming pool.

Social Events Scheduled.

In addition to the religious services held during the season there are other activities such as institutes, group meetings, and picnics. Each season the camp ground committee sponsors a summer program for the welfare of underprivileged children.

Feature of the camping season is the annual midsummer assembly program, to be staged this year from July 12 to 26. Scheduled to speak during the assembly program are a number of prominent churchmen and speakers, including Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, Dr. Schuyler Garth of Youngstown, O.; Dr. George Fowler, Chicago; Bishop William C. Martin, Omaha, Neb.; Dr. Paul Whitfield Quilliam, Houston, Tex.; Bishop Ivan Lee Holt, Dallas, Tex.; Dr. John Wesley Holland, Chicago.

Director of Program.

Program director for the camp ground is the Rev. Clarence H. Diercks. The Rev. Lester R. Minion is chairman of music, and the Rev. Paul W. Grimes is director of young peoples' activities.

Headed by Raymond G. Kimbell, president, the camp ground board of trustees includes George F. Witt, J. S. McClure, William G. Cooper, Clarence H. Diercks, Herbert W. Kirchhoff, M. E. Mickelsen, David J. Leaf, and Douglas W. Cork.

AMERICA LOVES MELODY MOVES TO LATER HOUR

Song Program Scheduled on W-G-N, 8 to 9 P. M.

Two song dramatizations will highlight the broadcast of America Loves a Melody over W-G-N, W59C, and the coast to coast Mutual Broadcasting system next Saturday evening. Starting on this date the program will be presented a half hour later than heretofore. The new broadcast hour is 8 to 9 p. m.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will be the speaker.

The song spots will feature Miss Marion Claire as the soloist, supported by the W-G-N orchestra, directed by Henry Weber. Thomas L. Thomas, Metropolitan opera baritone, will be guest singer. Stories behind their favorite song as submitted by listeners will be depicted in these presentations. Two $25 cash awards are made each week for the best letters telling the story of songs.

The song stories for next Saturday will feature Miss Claire singing "Alice Blue Gown" from "Irene" and "My Hero" from "The Chocolate Soldier."

Miss Claire also will sing "Ave Maria" as the special request of the Marion Claire club of Gary, Ind. Forty members of the club headed by their chairman, Mrs. Mary Galumbus, will be in the audience.

Mr. Thomas will sing "Siboney." He will also join Miss Claire in selections from "Vagabond King" and "Show Boat."

The orchestra will offer a special arrangement of "America Marches On." The chorus will be under the direction of Robert Trendler. Kenneth MacGregor will be the producer.

PLAN RED CROSS FOOD, MUNITION HOUR ON W-G-N

A new food and nutrition series to be conducted by the American Red Cross will be heard on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 9:45 to 10 a. m. on Saturday mornings beginning May 9.

Alida Drake of the nutrition department of the Red Cross will be instructor on the new program. She has been heard on many W-G-N programs recently, among them "Dollar Stretchers."

Myrtle Stahl, educational director of W-G-N, said the new series will endeavor to explain the value of foods, vitamins and calories, and at the same time make the listening public as food conscious as they are war conscious. The program will debunk the current idea that people will be seriously handicapped by the sugar shortage, for it will be shown that a sugar substitute is contained in many foods we eat.

The program will originate in the main audience studio of W-G-N. After the program each Saturday members of the studio audience will hear a 45 minute lecture by Miss Drake in which she will explain her ideas with the use of charts. The public is invited.

RADIO'S USE IN WAR IS SUBJECT OF RADIO FORUM

The question, "Is radio being effectively used in the war effort?" will be the topic of discussion on W-G-N and Mutual's American Forum of the Air to be heard at 7 p. m. today. The broadcast will be the opening event of the Institute for Education by Radio of Ohio State university.

Speaking in the affirmative will be: J. Harrison Hartley of the United States navy office of public relations; Ed Kirby, chief of radio branch of the Bureau of Public Relations, war department, and William B. Lewis of the Office of Facts and Figures.

The negative side will be upheld by: Edward L. Bernays, noted publicist; Robert J. Landry, radio editor of Variety, and Roger Baldwin, director of the American Civil Liberties union. Theodore Granik is moderator of the forum.

Girl and Seeing Eye Dog on Becker Show Today

Miss Bernice Clifton, 132 North Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, and her famous Seeing Eye dog, Dr. Karla, will be guests on Bob Becker's Chats About Dogs show at 1 p. m. today. During the last year Karla has been Miss Clifton's only companion and guide in the course of 10,000 miles of travel. Miss Clifton will tell how the Seeing Eye dogs are trained and how they take their owners thru traffic.

Anne Roselle to Sing in Radio City Music Hall

Anne Roselle, soprano, who has just completed a series of guest star appearances with the San Carlo Opera company, and Erno Balogh, concert pianist, will be the featured soloists on the Radio City Music Hall on the Air at 11:30 a. m. today over WCFL.

Cissie Loftus Guest on Those Good Old Days

Cissie Loftus, impersonator, will revive a bygone golden era when she presents her impressions of the great Sarah Bernhardt in a dramatic sketch and of Bert Williams singing "Nobody" during Those Good Old Days to be aired over WLS and the Blue network at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Mike Trent Will Expose Blackjack Cheats Today

Mike Trent, ace detective of "Easy Money," heard on W-G-N from 6:30 to 7 p. m. each Sunday, will expose card cheating in blackjack during the program today. Lou Jackobson is producer of "Easy Money" which is presented in the main audience studio of W-G-N.

Guest Tomorrow

Grace Moore, noted soprano of the movies, opera, and concert stage, will make a guest appearance in salute to Music week on the Telephone hour over WMAQ-NBC at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening.

FORREST LEWIS TO START STAR GAZING SERIES

Forrest Lewis, Chicago radio actor who at times has taken as many as 30 rôles on one program, will begin a new series titled "Star Gazing" on W-G-N at 10 p. m. tomorrow. Lewis will be heard from 10 to 10:15 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays thereafter.

Inside information on personalities in radio and in Hollywood will be featured in Lewis' broadcasts. He will interview radio stars regularly. To start the series, Les Tremayne, one of the air's best known leading men, will be interviewed. The guest on Friday will be Barbara Luddy.

Famous broadcast boners will be another of Lewis' regular departments. He will slip into several varying character rôles during each program. Lewis is heard regularly on W-G-N in "heavy" rôles on Easy Money, scheduled each Sunday from 6:30 to 7 p. m., CWT.

THIS IS LIFE! PRESENTS MUSIC AND PHILOSOPHY

"This Is Life," heard on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 11:15 to 11:30 a. m., on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays has a new form. Replacing the former type of show which tried to aid radio listeners by broadcasting the story behind articles needed for a worthy cause, "This Is Life" now presents a program of music, poetry, and cheerful philosophy.

Victor Powell remains as master of ceremonies and interpolates the songs of Jack Baker with bits of inspirational poetry and "cheer-up" musings about life in wartime.

As newest member of "This Is Life" Baker brings to the program a talented tenor voice. A native of Shreveport, La., Baker has been singing all his life while holding down jobs varying from clerking in a dry goods store to teaching school.

POLITICS DURING WARTIME, TOPIC OF ROUND TABLE

Problems of party politics and national unity will be discussed on the University of Chicago Round Table broadcast "Politics in Wartime," over WMAQ-NBC at 1:30 p. m. today.

The Round Table will consider the effects of "playing politics" on the prosecution of the war effort, and discuss the effects of party rivalries on national unity.

Peter Odegard, Amherst college political scientist, will participate in the Round Table discussion with John Eberhart, Northwestern university social psychologist, and Richard P. McKeon, dean of the Division of the Humanities at the University of Chicago.

CITIZENS' HOUR HONORS MORGAN PARK ACADEMY

Youth Program on Air at 10:30 A. M. Today.

Citizens of Tomorrow, the half hour radio program on W-G-N usually scheduled at 1:30 p. m. Sundays, will be heard at 10:30 a. m. today. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, sponsor of the program, will salute Morgan Park Military academy and its superintendent, Col. Harry D. Abells, will give the principal address, outlining the history of the school since its beginning in 1873.

The academy chorus of 50 cadets, directed by Capt. Jean L. Taylor, will sing two numbers, "The Caissons Go Rolling Along" and "The White Cliffs of Dover."

Philip Maxwell, master of ceremonies, will announce the five members of a scholarship committee which will meet May 11 to administer the 40 scholarships which have been offered by that number of colleges and universities of the middle west to those on the Citizens of Tomorrow Honor Roll.

Maxwell also will nominate two more high school seniors to the roll, Cadet Maj. Bill Kettering of Lemont, a student at the academy who will be interviewed, and Jack Cunningham, honor student, athlete, and musician of Janesville, Wis.

Next Sunday the program will return to the 1:30 time.

HOOVER, M'NUTT TO SPEAK OVER W-G-N THURSDAY

Herbert Hoover, former President of the United States, and Paul McNutt, administrator of federal security, will speak on a special broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Thursday evening.

The broadcast will come from the Drake hotel, where Hoover and McNutt will address delegates to the 36th annual convention of the Boys' Clubs of America. Mr. Hoover is chairman of the organization's board of directors.

KEEPING BLOOMS FRESH IS LILAC DAY REQUISITE

Wrapping Helps Assure Better Bouquets.

The happiness and moral courage that flowers bring to the sick and shut-ins make the 14th annual "Share Your Lilacs" campaign more important than ever this wartime year, according to officials of the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild.

For this reason guild officials are urging every lilac donor to take special care in cutting, wrapping, and shipping the blooms. With warm weather rushing the appearance of the flowers everywhere flower lovers are getting ready to gather the lilacs. Here are some recommendations offered by the guild for handling the blossoms.

Cut lilacs the afternoon before lilac day. The stems should be cut 14 to 18 inches below the flower head, preferably just above where they branch from the main stem.

Size for Bouquets.

A proper sized bouquet can be made by tying as many stems as can be held in one hand. The cut flowers should be placed in tubs or pails of water over night. Early the next morning the bunches should be wrapped in damp newspaper and tied. The paper should cover the blooms but must not compress them.

Where there is a choice, cut blooms that are just opening rather than those that are full blown. If the lilacs are placed in cartons the blooms should not extend over the sides, as they are easily damaged.

Each year lilacs are gathered from yards, gardens, estates, and casual bushes thruout Chicagoland for the enjoyment of the city's shut-ins. The lilac campaign is sponsored jointly by the guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Eight Railroads Aiding.

This year eight railroads have volunteered to bring the bouquets into the city from suburban areas freight free. Much of the success of the lilac campaign is due to the cooperation of the railroads in making speedy delivery of the blooms to terminals in the city so that hospital patients can enjoy them while they still retain their country freshness.

Railroads that will take part in the drive this year are the Chicago and North Western, Illinois Central, Rock Island, Aurora and Elgin, North Shore Electric, Burlington, Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, and the Pennsylvania.

Last year the trains brought in more than 100,000 bouquets. They filled the baggage cars, and in many cases overflowed into the passenger cars. Upon delivery at the terminal the blooms were picked up by a fleet of Tribune trucks and delivered to the various hospitals and institutions thruout the city. Bouquets were given to 25,000 patients in 158 hospitals, orphanages, and old people's homes.

WASHINGTON, D.C., PASTOR TO TALK AT SUNDAY CLUB

Dr. Peter Marshall.

The Rev. Dr. Peter Marshall, young Scotch minister of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, Washington, D.C., the church Abraham Lincoln attended, will be the speaker at 8 o'clock tonight at the Chicago Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall. He will be presented for his second address before the club by Clifford W. Barnes, president, and will speak on the subject, "Rendezvous in Samarra," an argument for immortality.

Since 1937 he has been associated with historic New York Avenue church, known as the "Church of the Presidents." His talk tonight will be preceded by music by the club choir of 125 voices under direction of Edgar Nelson. Edward Hall Taylor, a trustee, will read the Scripture.

At 7 o'clock Dr. Charles T. Holman of the University of Chicago divinity school will begin a new series of Bible talks, and the Melodists, a group of 33 choristers from city churches, will sing.

HERE IS SECOND DEFENSE LESSON IN CLASS SERIES

Workers Learn Methods of Protection.

To assist the more than 300,000 civilian defense workers in Chicago now attending basic training classes of the OCD, THE TRIBUNE is publishing the series of lessons prepared by the OCD training division.

M. J. Corrigan.

The series is intended to refresh workers on their classroom studies and give them a permanent record for reference. THE TRIBUNE makes no effort to interpret these courses since they are self-explanatory. Lesson No. 2 follows. Lesson No. 3 will appear in next Sunday's Metropolitan section.

Training is in charge of experts in the various fields. Marshal M. J. Corrigan of the Chicago fire department directs the training of the volunteer fire fighters.

PROTECTIVE AND UTILITY SERVICES.

Warning and Spotting.

A civilian air raid warning system is organized to give warning of approaching enemy aircraft in order that steps may be taken in ample time to preserve life and property.

The civilian system goes into action when the district warning center receives a report from the United States military regional information center. The air raid warning goes from the district warning center to the control center of the civilian defense communications network.

Air raid warning messages, by following colors are issued over the telephone or flashed by light bulbs:

1. Yellow—Alert, preliminary caution by telephone to civilian protective services, police, fire, utilities, defense works, blast furnaces, and other industrial centers.
2. Blue—Alert, lights warning, to factories lights out.
3. Red — To siren operators, sound sirens, public take cover.
4. White—Raiders passed, all clear signals.

Standard air raid sound signals for warning to the public are:

1. Red—By siren of two minutes duration with fluctuating pitch.
2. White—A continuous siren signal of two minutes duration with a steady pitch.

Civilian spotters are used as roof spotters by day, as fire watchers by night. Training of spotter takes several weeks as spotter tries to learn:

1. Types and construction of enemy planes.
2. Distinctive sound of enemy planes.
3. Estimate where bombs will drop, for example: Bomb dropped from 5,000 feet will hit 1¼ miles away from the point at which it is dropped in 17.6 seconds, and a bomb dropped at 40,000 feet will hit 3½ miles away from the point at which it is dropped in 49.7 seconds.

Blackout and Camouflage.

Blackout is a condition under which lights are extinguished or effectively screened, and light reflecting surfaces darkened. It does not conceal the presence of cities, because cities are easily located even at night. Blackout, however, will make it difficult to find the specific targets with the cities.

Blackout methods include:

1. Turning out lights.
2. Covering windows with opaque curtains, plywood screens, or papering.
3. Use of mats or mattresses over windows.
4. Adhesive stripping or fine wire mesh over windows to prevent glass shattering.
5. Blue filter over windows, with red electric bulbs to neutralize lights.

Traffic signals and auto headlights are hooded and painted over except for small slits; house or shop entrance can be blacked out by constructing a large hooded tunnel [light lock].

Aid during blackout includes white or luminous painting on curbs, signs, and fenders of cars. Pedestrians may wear reflecting discs on belts.

Camouflage is the technique of disguising a target by making it blend in with its natural surroundings. Altho it is essentially a military function, camouflage by civilian authorities may include:

1. Changing of light pattern of city.
2. Counter shading by elimination of shadows.
3. Using of paint as protective coloration.
4. Decoying or imitating by false models.
5. Blotting out areas with smudge.

Fire Defense.

One medium bomber can carry 1,000 to 2,000 two pound incendiary bombs. These bombs cannot be extinguished in the usual manner with water or with commercial extinguishers. The bomb may be put out with dry sand or scooped up on a shovel, put in a pail with sand in it, or sprayed with a hose. The standard equipment to fight the incendiary bomb consists of dry sand, long handled shovels, buckets of water, or a stirrup pump with a long hose and a dual nozzle for spray or jet.

Gas Defense.

Gas has not been used in this war except in China and Ethiopia. However, it is best to be prepared since there is less chance then of its being attempted. The object of using gas is not to kill but to demoralize the population. Not all gases are gaseous. Many are liquids, like mustard and Lewisite. The methods of using gas are by spraying or by bomb. Gas identification is a highly expert process.

Gas decontamination is the process of removing gas by:

1. Destroying or neutralizing liquid gas by bleaching powder or by other chemicals or by burning.
2. Removing by washing away with water.
3. Covering the liquid gas with earth, after which natural action will destroy it.

The gas alarm is a different sound from the sound of an air raid siren. Bells, rattles, or klaxons are utilized. All civilian defense workers are required to have an elementary course in gas defense.

Bomb Disposal.

Types of bombs are contact bombs, delayed action bombs, and time bombs.

The delayed action bomb has a delayed action fuse which needs 1 to 10 seconds to set off the explosive charge, after it has penetrated its target. The delayed action or unexploded bomb [UXB] is used to disrupt the normal activities of a region as well as to destroy by blast. The removal of the unexploded time bomb is a highly technical, as well as a dangerous task, and requires trained experts.

Steps taken to lessen the potential damage of an unexploded bomb are:

1. Evacuation of area of all occupants.
2. Barricading of area and posting a guard.
3. Use of a special bomb removal squad to remove bomb, allowing only one person to be near bomb at a time.
4. Loading bomb on a special truck operated by one man who will drive it to an isolated spot where bomb will be rendered harmless.

Ambulance and First Aid.

Many more are injured and shocked than are killed in air raids. To care for these casualties large first aid squads contain about four physicians, four nurses, and four orderlies.

First aid posts should be provided thruout the community, not only at hospitals. Ambulances must be supplemented by cars for situp cases.

Police.

The duties of police are to help wardens in:

1. Enforcing blackouts.
2. Prevent looting in blackouts or air raids.
3. Enforce traffic control in order to keep streets clear for emergency cars.
4. Do patrol work.

The auxiliary police force is made up of volunteers organized and trained under the regular police department for aid in emergencies. Training schools are being set up under supervision of the police training division.

Roads and Transportation.

Interruption of transportation services by bombs disrupts the daily travel of workers, thus slowing down production and delivery of food and supplies.

To prevent transportation tieups:

1. Road blocks and detour routes must be planned.
2. Road repair material and personnel must be ready.
3. Auxiliary traffic officers must be trained.
4. Express routes for buses and street cars to by-pass bombed areas must be provided.

Rescue Squad Service.

The rescue squad must be able to support or demolish walls before tunneling for victims. Because of such special problems in rescue procedure, rescue squad men should be recruited from:

Miners, house wreckers, scaffolders, structural steel erectors, plumbers, electricians, handymen, and helpers.

Water Supply.

In wartime water is not only important for the normal needs of the civilian population, but also for the efficiency of any fire fighting organization. Increase in available flow can be obtained by providing supplementary water mains, or establishing water reservoirs at specified points.

Where water has been shut off or bombed out it may be necessary to have water carts to distribute water, or gasoline and milk tank trucks may be used for this purpose. If there are any boilers in the affected area depending on the water supply for water, the engineers must be warned to pull their fires in order to prevent explosions.

The purity of water must be maintained. It is assumed that all water in the affected area will be contaminated. It will be dangerous to drink until the official announces it is safe.

LIST SUGAR REGISTRATION PLACES

Another Spring Decorates Streets of Old Canal Town of Tiedtville

Wolf road coming down thru the west suburbs from the north starts to wind as it nears the Des Plaines river and the old canal town of Tiedtville. At the entrance to main street stands the birthplace of Frederick C. Tiedt, son of the town's founder.

Twice in its history a roaring community as the canals were being developed, Tiedtville today welcomes the bursting of another spring undisturbed by a world in chaos. Changes along main street are only such as the season brings. The lone pedestrian is Howard Tiedt of the third generation of Tiedts.

This May, Frederick C. Tiedt is observing his 50th anniversary as the only storekeeper in the village. Along with conducting the general store he serves as postmaster. At intervals he locks up to catch the mail as it is tossed out by the fast moving Santa Fe which has its tracks along the river's edge.

Richard Prescott decides to join his nephew, Emery Tiedt, on the other side of the fence at a bit of gardening. The row of catalpa trees at the left are slow in putting forth their leafage, but otherwise the first week of May finds expression thru all growing things.

Excessively generous are the blossoms in the old pear orchard where the trees were planted by Mr. Tiedt 40 years ago.

TIME TO REPORT BASED ON LAST NAME INITIAL

Four Day Task Will Start Tomorrow.

All is in readiness for the registration of millions of sugar users in the Chicago area who will visit their public elementary schools during the next four days to qualify for the ration books without which the purchase of sugar in its various forms is henceforth prohibited. This was announced by Michael F. Mulcahy, state rationing administrator for the Chicago area.

More than 15,000 elementary teachers and volunteer workers will aid in the huge task, which will start tomorrow morning and end late Thursday, Mulcahy said. The schools will be open for registration from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. each day.

One Can Represent Family.

One person may register for his or her entire family, the rationing authorities have ruled. Thus it will not be necessary for each individual sugar user to visit the local registration point. The books to be issued on the basis of this week's registration may later be used in the rationing of other commodities besides sugar.

The commercial users of sugar were similarly registered in the high schools last Tuesday. The registrants included 21,025 retailers, wholesalers, industries, and institutions. They are already receiving sugar purchase certificates.

In Chicago, the applicants for this week's registration will be registered in public elementary schools according to ward boundaries. In the suburbs the schools are divided according to ration board districts, which follow township boundaries.

The addresses of the schools in Chicago, and other information concerning the registration machinery setup in both the city and the suburbs appears elsewhere in these columns.

Listed by Alphabet.

Registrants are expected to visit the elementary schools in accordance with a schedule based upon the alphabetical arrangement of the initials of last names, Mulcahy said. This is the schedule:

Last Name Initial.	Registration Period.
A-B	Monday morning
C-D-E	Monday afternoon
F-G-H	Tuesday morning
I-J-K-L	Tuesday afternoon
M-N	Wednesday morning
O-P-Q-R	Wednesday afternoon
S	Thursday morning
T to Z	Thursday afternoon

If a registrant finds it impossible to register on the day assigned in the above schedule, he can make arrangements at his registration place to sign up on some other day in the registration period.

This is a list of the elementary schools where residents of the southwest side will register for sugar rationing books:

CALUMET LISTS FORMER ROTC CADETS IN WAR

BY PAUL HEALY.

C. Edward Holtsberg.

The Calumet High school ROTC, which has been given an honor rating seven times by federal inspectors, is contributing a good share of its alumni to the nation's fighting forces, a survey reveals. Early returns in the poll shows that 10 former ROTC cadets are in the army, 5 are in the marines, 4 in the navy, 5 in the army air corps, and 1 in the navy air corps. Many of them are under draft age.

Probably the best known of those who were quick to volunteer for service was the late William P. Robinson, who was graduated in 1932. Entering service at Fort Sheridan, he made excellent progress as a soldier and later spent several years as a sergeant and military instructor at Fenger High school. Last year, after being promoted to second lieutenant, he was killed in an airplane crash.

Second Ranking Cadet.

Another graduate of Calumet is C. Edward Holtsberg, who is currently a first lieutenant doing administrative work in the army air corps in Australia. Lieut. Holtsberg was the second highest ranking cadet officer during his career in the Calumet ROTC. He was graduated in 1930 and enrolled in the University of Chicago. A member of the bar association, he joined the army last June and sailed for Australia last February. On March 11 his family received a radiogram saying he had landed safely.

Lieut. Holtsberg's brother, Warren, will be sent to California shortly as a cadet in the army air corps. The family resides at 7706 South Paulina street.

Robert C. Proffitt ['32] is enrolled in the officers candidate course at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. At Calumet he was a captain in the ROTC, treasurer of the senior class, and a member of the yearbook staff, the Public Speaking club and the Civic forum.

Stationed in Hawaii.

Carl Miller, who left school a few years ago and joined the marines, is stationed at Wahiawa, T. H. Robert Penn ['36] is a private in the 2d armored division supply battalion at Fort Benning, Georgia. At Calumet he was a member of the Chemistry, Noncommissioned Officers, Safety and Botany clubs. He resided at 7434 South May street.

Bush That Blossomed for Nation's First Memorial Day Again to Share Its Lilacs

[Announcement of the days selected as Lilac days and other information on the annual community gift of flowers appears in the main news section of today's Sunday Tribune.]

Lilacs from the Lyman homestead in Downers Grove come from bushes that are nearly 100 years old. The main stems are as thick as the trunks of small trees and the clumps shade spacious places in the yard. Each year of the Share Your Lilacs campaign their blooms have added to the offerings of the Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit guild, which cooperates with THE TRIBUNE in making it possible for shut-ins to enjoy the springtime beauty and fragrance.

There are many old lilac bushes in Du Page county. Early settlers sought to give their new homes something of the atmosphere of the neighborhood they had left in the east. There are instances where the house itself has vanished but the sturdy lilacs continue to bloom year after year beside what was once a doorstep or the path to a roadside gate.

The Lyman homestead at 900 Ogden avenue is said to be the only one in Du Page county where the family name is the same as that when the place was settled a century ago.

Settled in 1839.

To the acres beside Ogden avenue, then the Old Plank road, the Rev. Orange Lyman came in 1839. As a home missionary, he had migrated west from Ohio with the shift of settlements. He died in 1851.

Henry Martin Lyman, a son, died in 1894. Walter Lyman, a grandson, was born on the place in 1854 and died there in 1926. Mrs. Walter Lyman has resided at the home 19 years. She said the old lilac bushes were planted by the wife of the Rev. Orange Lyman. They are of the old-fashioned purple variety.

When Gen. John A. Logan designated May 30, 1868 for the purpose of strewing with flowers the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country during the Civil war, the Lyman lilac bushes responded. They had been a part of the setting when Capt. Walter Blanchard had drilled his company on Maple avenue. Their blooms were carried on Memorial day by members of Walter Blanchard post and, as the years passed, for departed members.

Bloom Year After Year.

Of the 59 men who enlisted from Du Page county for the Spanish-American war in 1898, 12 were from Downers Grove. History as it was being unfolded in the village dovetailed with history of the nation. The lilacs bloomed when men went away and after men came back. Their message remained steadfast in a world of change.

Time came when Alexander Bradley Burns post of the American Legion was formed with many members in the village. Lilacs along the street had become more firmly interwoven into the lives of the people. Whims of the weather might influence the period and the extent of their blooming but they never failed the townspeople.

More than any person living, the lilacs have witnessed the passing epochs of village history. Another war, more world shaking than any of its predecessors now has reached into the routine of the community. With all of their kind in all the yards in the Chicagoland area, and with all who share in their significance, the Downers Grove lilacs are ready to blossom again.

General Store Is Monument to Boom Town

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

When it's pear blossom time in Tiedtville, the effect has a charm only to be found in a little town that has grown old with the slightest possible concession to the changes of a tumultuous world. Other towns may straighten their streets, pave them, give them names, darken them with tall buildings. Tiedtville has remained what it was at the beginning—a one-store town beside the river at the end of a winding road.

Despite its proximity to Chicago, Tiedtville has escaped all semblance of being a suburb. It stands as unincorporated as on the day it took its name from John Tiedt who, a century ago, came to the locality to work on the Illinois and Michigan canal.

50 Years in Store.

Just as there are towns that were once mining towns, river towns, and cattle towns, so Tiedtville was once a canal town. When excitement of digging the early canal died down, John Tiedt turned to farming. When history repeated and the Chicago Drainage canal was developed in roaring 1892, John Tiedt opened a general store on the west bank of the Des Plaines river. A son, Frederick C. Tiedt, at 22, came to work in the store. That was 50 years ago this spring. "F. C." has been in the store ever since.

Mr. Tiedt was reminded of the anniversary as he finished waiting on a woman with a babe in her arms who had had trouble remembering the items on her shopping list. During a lull, he doubled as postmaster and, without waiting for the request, stuffed his neighbor's mail into her grocery sack. Shortly before he had caught the mail on a crane as the Santa Fe whistled thru. There are train sounds in Tiedtville but no train stops. Beyond the river and the old and new canals are also the Chicago and Alton tracks.

Everything for the Family.

One of the customer's wants was located on a shelf over in what had once been the gent's furnishings department. There had been a time when families had driven in to be outfitted from head to foot.

Reminded again of his 50th anniversary in conducting the same sort of business in the selfsame spot, Mr. Tiedt at first opined that really the store had undergone little change. Daily routine has a tendency to blur and blend the erase of adjustment.

The hitching posts that once stood in front of the store with its broad wooden awning? "That's so," said Mr. Tiedt. "We took them out 40 years ago. After we quit the hanging kerosene lamps, we had our own electric plant. Then, 10 years ago, we connected up with the public service."

The general store that, under other circumstances, might have become a department store, is still heated with a stove. Beside it were logs cut from the nearby timber. Close to the worn fender was a lone chair. It was empty. Perhaps the space required for a varied assortment of merchandise precluded facilities offering an invitation to philosophical loafers.

Memory of Cracker Barrel.

Two brown, well worn barrels and a much used scale on the counter spoke of the days when coffee and crackers and sugar had been sold by bulk rather than in fancy packages.

Mr. Tiedt made but one reference to the problems of the small business man. He said that at one time he had received so many eggs in exchange for goods that he hadn't known what to do with them.

"I only know about the Illinois and Michigan canal from hearsay," said Mr. Tiedt, "ut in the '90s there were 2,000 canal workers along here, 500 to the mile. When the job was finished most of the men followed up other public works, many of them

HERE IS SECOND DEFENSE LESSON IN CLASS SERIES

Workers Learn Methods of Protection.

M. J. Corrigan.

To assist the more than 300,000 civilian defense workers in Chicago now attending basic training classes of the OCD, THE TRIBUNE is publishing the series of lessons prepared by the OCD training division.

The series is intended to refresh workers on their classroom studies and give them a permanent record for reference. THE TRIBUNE makes no effort to interpret these courses since they are self-explanatory. Lesson No. 2 follows. Lesson No. 3 will appear in next Sunday's Metropolitan section.

Training is in charge of experts in the various fields. Marshal M. J. Corrigan of the Chicago fire department directs the training of the volunteer fire fighters.

PROTECTIVE AND UTILITY SERVICES.

Warning and Spotting.

A civilian air raid warning system is organized to give warning of approaching enemy aircraft in order that steps may be taken in ample time to preserve life and property.

The civilian system goes into action when the district warning center receives a report from the United States military regional information center. The air raid warning goes from the district warning center to the control center of the civilian defense communications network.

Air raid warning messages, by following colors are issued over the telephone or flashed by light bulbs:

1. Yellow—Alert, preliminary caution by telephone to civilian protective services, police, fire, utilities, defense works, blast furnaces, and other industrial centers.
2. Blue—Alert, lights warning, to factories lights out.
3. Red — To siren operators, sound sirens, public take cover.
4. White—Raiders passed, all clear signals.

Standard air raid sound signals for warning to the public are:

1. Red—By siren of two minutes duration with fluctuating pitch.
2. White—A continuous siren signal of two minutes duration with a steady pitch.

Civilian spotters are used as roof spotters by day, as fire watchers by night. Training of spotter takes several weeks as spotter tries to learn:

1. Types and construction of enemy planes.
2. Distinctive sound of enemy planes.
3. Estimate where bombs will drop, for example: Bomb dropped from 5,000 feet will hit 1¼ miles away from the point at which it is dropped in 17.6 seconds, and a bomb dropped at 40,000 feet will hit 3½ miles away from the point at which it is dropped in 49.7 seconds.

Blackout and Camouflage.

Blackout is a condition under which lights are extinguished or effectively screened, and light reflecting surfaces darkened. It does not conceal the presence of cities, because cities are easily located even at night. Blackout, however, will make it difficult to find the specific targets with the cities.

Blackout methods include:

1. Turning out lights.
2. Covering windows with opaque curtains, plywood screens, or papering.
3. Use of mats or mattresses over windows.
4. Adhesive stripping or fine wire mesh over windows to prevent glass shattering.
5. Blue filter over windows, with red electric bulbs to neutralize lights.

Traffic signals and auto headlights are hooded and painted over except for small slits; house or shop entrance can be blacked out by constructing a large hooded tunnel [light lock].

Aid during blackout includes white or luminous painting on curbs, signs, and fenders of cars. Pedestrians may wear reflecting discs on belts.

Camouflage is the technique of disguising a target by making it blend in with its natural surroundings. Altho it is essentially a military function, camouflage by civilian authorities may include:

1. Changing of light pattern of city.
2. Counter shading by elimination of shadows.
3. Using of paint as protective coloration.
4. Decoying or imitating by false models.
5. Blotting out areas with smudge.

Fire Defense.

One medium bomber can carry 1,000 to 2,000 two pound incendiary bombs. These bombs cannot be extinguished in the usual manner with water or with commercial extinguishers. The bomb may be put out with dry sand or scooped up on a shovel, put in a pail with sand in it, or sprayed with a hose. The standard equipment to fight the incendiary bomb consists of dry sand, long handled shovels, buckets of water, or a stirrup pump with a long hose and a dual nozzle for spray or jet.

Gas Defense.

Gas has not been used in this war except in China and Ethiopia. However, it is best to be prepared since there is less chance then of its being attempted. The object of using gas is not to kill but to demoralize the population. Not all gases are gaseous. Many are liquids, like mustard and Lewisite. The methods of using gas are by spraying or by bomb. Gas identification is a highly expert process.

Gas decontamination is the process of removing gas by:

1. Destroying or neutralizing liquid gas by bleaching powder or by other chemicals or by burning.
2. Removing by washing away with water.
3. Covering the liquid gas with earth, after which natural action will destroy it.

The gas alarm is a different sound from the sound of an air raid siren. Bells, rattles, or klaxons are utilized. All civilian defense workers are required to have an elementary course in gas defense.

Bomb Disposal.

Types of bombs are contact bombs, delayed action bombs, and time bombs.

The delayed action bomb has a delayed action fuse which needs 1 to 10 seconds to set off the explosive charge, after it has penetrated its target. The delayed action or unexploded bomb [UXB] is used to disrupt the normal activities of a region as well as to destroy by blast. The removal of the unexploded time bomb is a highly technical, as well as a dangerous task, and requires trained experts.

Steps taken to lessen the potential damage of an unexploded bomb are:

1. Evacuation of area of all occupants.
2. Barricading of area and posting a guard.
3. Use of a special bomb removal squad to remove bomb, allowing only one person to be near bomb at a time.
4. Loading bomb on a special truck operated by one man who will drive it to an isolated spot where bomb will be rendered harmless.

Rescue Squad Service.

The rescue squad must be able to support or demolish walls before tunneling for victims. Because of such special problems in rescue procedure, rescue squad men should be recruited from:

Miners, house wreckers, scaffolders, structural steel erectors, plumbers, electricians, handymen, and helpers.

Ambulance and First Aid.

Many more are injured and shocked than are killed in air raids. To care for these casualties large first aid squads contain about four physicians, four nurses, and four orderlies.

First aid posts should be provided thruout the community, not only at hospitals. Ambulances must be supplemented by cars for situp cases.

Police.

The duties of police are to help wardens in:

1. Enforcing blackouts.
2. Prevent looting in blackouts or air raids.
3. Enforce traffic control in order to keep streets clear for emergency cars.
4. Do patrol work.

The auxiliary police force is made up of volunteers organized and trained under the regular police department for aid in emergencies. Training schools are being set up under supervision of the police training division.

Roads and Transportation.

Interruption of transportation services by bombs disrupts the daily travel of workers, thus slowing down production and delivery of food and supplies.

To prevent transportation tieups:

1. Road blocks and detour routes must be planned.
2. Road repair material and personnel must be ready.
3. Auxiliary traffic officers must be trained.
4. Express routes for buses and street cars to by-pass bombed areas must be provided.

Water Supply.

In wartime water is not only important for the normal needs of the civilian population, but also for the efficiency of any fire fighting organization. Increase in available flow can be obtained by providing supplementary water mains, or establishing water reservoirs at specified points.

Where water has been shut off or bombed out it may be necessary to have water carts to distribute water, or gasoline and milk tank trucks may be used for this purpose. If there are any boilers in the affected area depending on the water supply for water, the engineers must be warned to pull their fires in order to prevent explosions.

The purity of water must be maintained. It is assumed that all water in the affected area will be contaminated. It will be dangerous to drink until the official announces it is safe.

Electricity, Gas, and Telephone.

London experience indicated that electrical power seldom was interrupted; gas supply occasionally was stopped by bombing of gas mains, while telephone interruptions were frequent.

Repairs and Demolition.

Repairs to property should be made not only to save the property and keep the homes efficient, but also to help public morale. Demolition squads and repair squads must be organized, equipped, and trained to demolish dangerous walls and buildings and to make repairs.

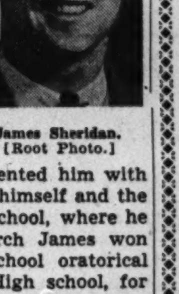
JAMES SHERIDAN WINS ORATORY CONTEST, HIS THIRD IN TWO YEARS



James Sheridan.

James Sheridan, 8124 St. Lawrence avenue, won another oratorical contest recently, the third triumph of this kind during the last two years. James' latest feat was taking first place among 24 contestants representing four midwestern states at Notre Dame university.

In recognition of his winning, the Wranglers club, sponsors of the competition, presented him with two trophies, one for himself and the other for Leo High school, where he is a senior. In March James won the Catholic High school oratorical contest at Fenwick High school, for which he was given a gold cup, and a year ago he placed first in the American Legion's Cook county contest.

MEASLES AT 7 LEADS HER TO POET'S CAREER

Latest Verse Wins Club District Prize.

When Mrs. Robert Voral, 9628 California avenue, Evergreen Park, was seven and recuperating from the German measles, she wrote her first poem. She wrote it as she looked from her bedroom window. It was snowing at the time. Her poem was called "Snow Flakes."

"Snow Flakes" went like this:

As I gaze from my bedroom window
With a look that is blurred with pain
And I see the cool white beauty
Of that wonder, frozen rain.

And my tired head stops aching
With my weary brain at rest
I watch the lazy movements
Of the snow flakes God has blest.

Awarded Club Prize.

Mrs. Voral thinks "Snow Flakes" sounds a little silly now but she remembers she thought it quite good then. This opinion was shared by the editor of a Buchanan, Mich., newspaper who published it and launched her on a poet's career. Mrs. Voral was making her home in Buchanan at that time. Her latest poetic reward was second prize in the Third District Federation of Woman's Clubs' literature contest. Her subject was "Our American Heritage."

Mrs. Voral figures she has written more than 100 poems. She keeps them in a loose leaf notebook. She had written about all sorts of subjects, except her husband, and her two year old son, Gregory. She finds that she writes better about things with which she isn't so familiar. "You get a better perspective," she said. She has done a number on China and the Chinese. Some of her poetry is rhymed, some in blank verse.

Husband Proud of Her.

Altho not particularly sympathetic with his 25 year old wife's poetry writing, Mr. Voral is tolerant of the whole thing and very proud of her when she has things published or wins prizes. She thinks that Gregory might have a poetic streak. He's developed a penchant for writing indecipherable somethings on the parlor walls in ink.

One of her favorite compositions is "Fall Cameo." It goes like this:

There is an austere beauty in the autumn skies
That summer never knows;
Blue glow the asters—the wild goose flies
Withered the rose.

And along each road, the leafless trees
Form a pattern reticent as a Grecian frieze.

Fashion Chairman

Wilson college's spring carnival will be climaxed with a fashion show at 7 o'clock Friday evening at the school, 6800 Stewart avenue. Lynne Holland, 5602 Francisco avenue, is chairman. HINTS ON CARE OF HEATING AND PLUMBING UNITS

Few Replacements to Be Available During War.

[Don't forget to visit the annual Chicago Home show which opened yesterday at the Coliseum. Jot it down on your calendar.]

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

That resolve to make the most of the things we have and insure for them long and healthy life has been put into action in most homes these days. Floors, walls, woodwork, screen blinds, electrical equipment, and heating and plumbing units, fixtures, and fittings are all in the limelight and stamped for care, and repair if necessary.

Plumbing and heating equipment is a vital part of every house, and any prompt repair made as soon as it is needed may mean that a major breakdown is avoided.

Plumbing and heating contractors are permitted to obtain the necessary material for emergency repairs, but the home owner is asked to take every precaution against replacement.

Hints for Preserving Utensils.

We know that no object is too small to pass over lightly; that even a small enamelware pan should not have cold water poured into it while it is hot, that cast iron utensils can have their life lengthened by baking soda in rinsing water to avoid rust; that strongly alkaline soaps and harsh abrasives should be avoided in the upkeep of aluminum and that tinware should not be scoured since the thin coating of the tin, once worn away, leaves the iron base exposed and liable to rust.

And for the proper conservation of larger items, such as water heaters, drains, chromium plated fittings, sinks, tubs, water closets, heating equipment, and the like come money and metal saving hints:

Take extra precaution during spring cleaning and decorating days and cover tubs and sinks with heavy cloths while work is going on.

Advice on Water Heater.

Have a master plumber advise on safe maximum water temperature and have heater adjusted to it; hot water is more corrosive than cold water.

Polish hinges of closet seats with metal polish and replace any worn float valve and old or deformed tank balls of water closet.

Pour scalding water down drain pipes at least once a day for long periods of freedom from congealed and clogged lines.

Keep fans and motors of oil burners clean and lubricate frequently, and have oil service man or heating contractor check air volume and controls.

In case chromium plating is exposed to salt air, salt, or calcium chloride it can be given a protective coating of furniture wax after it has been thoroly washed and dried.

Flush sediment from indirect water heating coils at frequent intervals, and have air expelled from expansion tank.

Use care in the selection of fuel for stoker and keep motor clean.

Fill Coal Bins Early.

New bins for coal storage are already in the process of building since home owners are urged to store every ton of coal they may need for next winter, now if possible, and to build extra bins if space is available.

Coal should not be stored near any external sources of heat, and old coal should not be allowed to accumulate in corners or on the bottom of bins or piles. Practice dictates that coal should not be piled higher than 12 to 15 feet, tho this is not a law. Eliminate all oily rags or paper from contact with coal while it is being stored and afterward.

If, by September, every dealer has a well stocked coal yard and every homeowner's coal bin is filled, it will be a worthwhile contribution to the war effort, for railroads will be freer to haul maximum war goods tonnage later in the year.

For defense work and for radiator replacement in a home where a radiator has broken down completely, small tube radiators are available which require much less metal. Manufacturers will no longer make the large tube radiators, but concentrate on the slimmer ones, which will save more than 11,000 tons of cast iron annually.

Grace church held its first meeting in a storeroom at 20th and State streets 54 years ago. Nineteen charter members were on hand, and, of this number, two are still alive. They are Mrs. John R. Coleman, 3746 South Park way, and Horace B. Cooper, 612 East Marquette road. The organizer and first pastor was the Rev. Moses H. Jackson, who served for 42 years. He died in 1933. The Rev. Mr. Bennett, a minister for 22 years, has been in charge of the church since September, 1936.

In 1919, the church moved from quarters at 34th and Dearborns streets to the present location. It was previously occupied by the old Sixth Presbyterian church. The Negro congregation of Grace is now made up of 456 members. Of this number, eight are in the country's armed forces.

Next Sunday's celebration is under the guidance of Mrs. Louise Mackey and Mrs. Lillian Henry, co-chairmen. Also assisting are Dr. Albert Beckham, chairman of the finance committee, and retired Brig. Gen. Spencer C. Dickerson, chairman of the trustee board. Clubs and individual members within the church are coöperating.

Tiedtville Slumbers On at End of Road.

going to Chicago to work on the water tunnel."

Descendants of Carl Bachmann also still reside in the community, Mr. Bachmann having been less nomadic than his companions.

"This place was an Indian camp when my father arrived here," said Mr. Tiedt. "He found their tepee poles still standing. Thousands of them were transferred to a reservation in Minnesota."

Blacksmith Moves.

At one time Tiedtville had a blacksmith shop operated by Charles Ogren who still continues in the business at Lisle. The house where Mr. Tiedt was born still stands but he resides in a more pretentious dwelling across the street.

The apple and pear orchards were planted by Mr. Tiedt 40 years ago, and the catalpa trees that shade both sides of Main street some eight years earlier.

In the '90s there was a footbridge across the Des Plaines, but today Wolf road, coming down from the north, winds thru the lowlands and comes abruptly to a stop in front of the store, which is built of stones taken from the nearby fields.

The war has touched Tiedtville in proportion to its population. Wilbert Tiedt, a nephew of the store owner, is cook in an army camp in Wyoming. The town has no draft board. Robert Stoker is coördinator for civilian defense.

No Church or School.

Tiedtville, well marked on the maps, has never had a church or a school. Youngsters, carrying their lunch pails and books, walk to the school at Pleasantdale, a truck farm community. There is a Lutheran church a mile north, that was built before the days of the second canal. Voting also takes place at Pleasantdale.

The merchant of Tiedtville keeps open from 8 to 8. He remains after hours to do his bookkeeping, and he goes to bed at least without any troubled thoughts about local business rivals.

His only competition, he says, is the car. Maybe he'll be able to say "was" the car. His booster slogan on the occasion of his 50th anniversary as Tiedtville's sole store owner is simply this:

"If the place where you are born is a good place, why isn't it a good place to spend your days?"

BEVERLY GRA-Y CLUBS TO HOLD FATHERS' DINNER

Members of the Beverly YMCA Gra-Y clubs will gather Tuesday for their third annual father and son dinner. It will be held at 6:30 o'clock at the Gresham Methodist church, 87th street and Emerald avenue.

Fifteen boys' clubs with a membership of 194 will compete for table decoration honors, for the highest attendance among fathers and for the award for best entertainment presented by an individual club.

Winning clubs and individuals will be presented athletic recognition awards by James E. Smith. E. N. Hendricks, chairman of the Beverly Y grade school committee, will act as master of ceremonies.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, May 4

The home gardener will do well to observe the plants that grow best in various locations. When passing thru city areas plants like the iris, daylily, and sedum spectable are seen in numbers. In fact, iris appears everywhere, but it is best to grow a few of the better varieties than to continue growing the oldtime yellow.

Iris should be transplanted after flowering. Apply a scattering of commercial plant food along the sides of strawberry plants and hoe it under.

Tuesday, May 5

Many soils lack humus [decayed animal and vegetable matter] and by spreading a layer two or three inches thick over the surface before digging it will be very beneficial. Mushroom manure, compost, leafmold, or peat are excellent.

Sweet peas are well along by this time. Thin out to six or eight inches between the plants and if mildew is present, spray with Bordeaux mixture.

Wednesday, May 6

Choose a quiet, cloudy day when setting out seedlings, and if the plants are long and spindly plant somewhat deeper than usual, altho the tops must not be buried. The reason many seeds fail to germinate freely is because of dry soil.

When sowing place burlap, cloth, or newspaper over the seedbed to hold the moisture and shade the bed but uncover when the seeds have germinated. Many of the finer seeds, like the petunia, fail on this account.

Thursday, May 7

Use annual flowering plants in bulb beds after the latter have flowered. Annuals give color to the garden and they are so easily grown that a fine effect can be obtained the first season. Persons moving into new homes in open areas will find they can enjoy fine gardens if they will use this group of plants.

Make the beds along the side of the yard and at the alley end. Use tall kinds in the rear and dwarf kinds in the front.

Friday, May 8

Thin all plants to enable each one to have space to develop. The vegetable garden is well under way. Do not attempt to grow root crops in clay soil; grow them in good, well drained, well enriched sandy loam.

Sow Kentucky wonder pole beans along the fences about the time apple trees are in bloom. Lima beans are more tender and should not be sown until later.

Saturday, May 9

Plant in long rows for vegetable growing rather than in small beds for cultivation is much easier. Plant sweet corn in several rows together rather than a single row; use in blocks even tho they are small rows. Pollen must be carried to each plant to insure good ears.

Do not mulch the ground during wet weather or disease may result. Wait until about July 1 when hot weather prevails and the soil is dry.

KEEPING BLOOMS FRESH IS LILAC DAY REQUISITE

Wrapping Helps Assure Better Bouquets.

The happiness and moral courage that flowers bring to the sick and shut-ins make the 14th annual "Share Your Lilacs" campaign more important than ever this wartime year, according to officials of the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild.

For this reason guild officials are urging every lilac donor to take special care in cutting, wrapping, and shipping the blooms. With warm weather rushing the appearance of the flowers everywhere flower lovers are getting ready to gather the lilacs. Here are some recommendations offered by the guild for handling the blossoms.

Cut lilacs the afternoon before lilac day. The stems should be cut 14 to 18 inches below the flower head, preferably just above where they branch from the main stem.

Size for Bouquets.

A proper sized bouquet can be made by tying as many stems as can be held in one hand. The cut flowers should be placed in tubs or pails of water over night. Early the next morning the bunches should be wrapped in damp newspaper and tied. The paper should cover the blooms but must not compress them.

Where there is a choice, cut blooms that are just opening rather than those that are full blown. If the lilacs are placed in cartons the blooms should not extend over the sides, as they are easily damaged.

Each year lilacs are gathered from yards, gardens, estates, and casual bushes thruout Chicagoland for the enjoyment of the city's shut-ins. The lilac campaign is sponsored jointly by the guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Eight Railroads Aiding.

This year eight railroads have volunteered to bring the bouquets into the city from suburban areas freight free. Much of the success of the lilac campaign is due to the cooperation of the railroads in making speedy delivery of the blooms to terminals in the city so that hospital patients can enjoy them while they still retain their country freshness.

Railroads that will take part in the drive this year are the Chicago and North Western, Illinois Central, Rock Island, Aurora and Elgin, North Shore Electric, Burlington, Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, and the Pennsylvania.

Last year the trains brought in more than 100,000 bouquets. They filled the baggage cars, and in many cases overflowed into the passenger cars. Upon delivery at the terminal the blooms were picked up by a fleet of Tribune trucks and delivered to the various hospitals and institutions thruout the city. Bouquets were given to 25,000 patients in 158 hospitals, orphanages, and old people's homes.

WASHINGTON, D.C., PASTOR TO TALK AT SUNDAY CLUB

Dr. Peter Marshall.

The Rev. Dr. Peter Marshall, young Scotch minister of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, Washington, D.C., the church Abraham Lincoln attended, will be the speaker at 8 o'clock tonight at the Chicago Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall. He will be presented for his second address before the club by Clifford W. Barnes, president, and will speak on the subject, "Rendezvous in Samarra," an argument for immortality.

Dr. Marshall was born in Scotland and lived there for a number of years. He was employed in a steel mill before coming to this country in 1927. Since 1937 he has been associated with historic New York Avenue church, known as the "Church of the Presidents." His talk tonight will be preceded by music by the club choir of 125 voices under direction of Edgar Nelson. Edward Hall Taylor, a trustee, will read the Scripture.

At 7 o'clock Dr. Charles T. Holman of the University of Chicago divinity school will begin a new series of Bible talks, and the Melodists, a group of 33 choristers from city churches, will sing.

AMERICA LOVES MELODY MOVES TO LATER HOUR

Song Program Scheduled on W-G-N, 8 to 9 P. M.

Two song dramatizations will highlight the broadcast of America Loves a Melody over W-G-N, W59C, and the coast to coast Mutual Broadcasting system next Saturday evening. Starting on this date the program will be presented a half hour later than heretofore. The new broadcast hour is 8 to 9 p. m.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will be the speaker.

The song spots will feature Miss Marion Claire as the soloist, supported by the W-G-N orchestra, directed by Henry Weber. Thomas L. Thomas, Metropolitan opera baritone, will be guest singer. Stories behind their favorite song as submitted by listeners will be depicted in these presentations. Two $25 cash awards are made each week for the best letters telling the story of songs.

The song stories for next Saturday will feature Miss Claire singing "Alice Blue Gown" from "Irene" and "My Hero" from "The Chocolate Soldier."

Miss Claire also will sing "Ave Maria" as the special request of the Marion Claire club of Gary, Ind. Forty members of the club headed by their chairman, Mrs. Mary Galumbus, will be in the audience.

Mr. Thomas will sing "Siboney." He will also join Miss Claire in selections from "Vagabond King" and "Show Boat."

The orchestra will offer a special arrangement of "America Marches On." The chorus will be under the direction of Robert Trendler. Kenneth MacGregor will be the producer.

PLAN RED CROSS FOOD, MUNITION HOUR ON W-G-N

A new food and nutrition series to be conducted by the American Red Cross will be heard on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 9:45 to 10 a. m. on Saturday mornings beginning May 9.

Alida Drake of the nutrition department of the Red Cross will be instructor on the new program. She has been heard on many W-G-N programs recently, among them "Dollar Stretchers."

Myrtle Stahl, educational director of W-G-N, said the new series will endeavor to explain the value of foods, vitamins and calories, and at the same time make the listening public as food conscious as they are war conscious. The program will debunk the current idea that people will be seriously handicapped by the sugar shortage, for it will be shown that a sugar substitute is contained in many foods we eat.

The program will originate in the main audience studio of W-G-N. After the program each Saturday members of the studio audience will hear a 45 minute lecture by Miss Drake in which she will explain her ideas with the use of charts. The public is invited.

HOOVER, M'NUTT TO SPEAK OVER W-G-N THURSDAY

Herbert Hoover, former President of the United States, and Paul McNutt, administrator of federal security, will speak on a special broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Thursday evening.

The broadcast will come from the Drake hotel, where Hoover and McNutt will address delegates to the 36th annual convention of the Boys' Clubs of America. Mr. Hoover is chairman of the organization's board of directors.

Girl and Seeing Eye Dog on Becker Show Today

Miss Bernice Clifton, 132 North Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, and her famous Seeing Eye dog, Dr. Karla, will be guests on Bob Becker's Chats About Dogs show at 1 p. m. today. During the last year Karla has been Miss Clifton's only companion and guide in the course of 10,000 miles of travel. Miss Clifton will tell how the Seeing Eye dogs are trained and how they take their owners thru traffic.

Limit Corporation Profit? Subject of Radio Forum

"Should There Be a Limitation of Corporation Profits?" will be discussed pro and con by Congressman Albert A. Gore of Tennessee and Prof. O. Glenn Saxon during the presentation of Wake Up, America, over WENR and the Blue network at 2 p. m. today. Fred G. Clark, general chairman of the American Economic Foundation, will serve as moderator.

Danny Grogan in Disguise.

Disguised as French peasants, Danny Grogan and his cohort, Tex, are attempting to reach a secluded military outpost on the northern coast of France in the serial, "Linda's First Love," to be heard on W-G-N at 9:45 a. m. Monday thru Friday.

THIS IS LIFE! PRESENTS MUSIC AND PHILOSOPHY

"This Is Life," heard on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 11:15 to 11:30 a. m., on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays has a new form. Replacing the former type of show which tried to aid radio listeners by broadcasting the story behind articles needed for a worthy cause, "This Is Life" now presents a program of music, poetry, and cheerful philosophy.

Victor Powell remains as master of ceremonies and interpolates the songs of Jack Baker with bits of inspirational poetry and "cheer-up" musings about life in wartime.

As newest member of "This Is Life" Baker brings to the program a talented tenor voice. A native of Shreveport, La., Baker has been singing all his life while holding down jobs varying from clerking in a dry goods store to teaching school.

CASE HISTORIES IN RETAILING

A NEIGHBORHOOD laundry placed an ad in the South Side Metropolitan section of the Chicago Sunday Tribune. In six days, the ad produced some 500 new customers. Drivers who normally brought in four or five dollars' worth of new business a day turned in as high as $40.00 worth of new business a day following the appearance of the ad in the Sunday Tribune.

Other case histories, many based on the experiences of merchants right in your own line, are yours for the asking. It costs you nothing to find out why 726 neighborhood merchants last year used the Sunday Tribune's low-cost advertising plan for retailers. For greater sales and profits, call SUPerior 0100 tomorrow and ask for Metropolitan section advertising.

CHICAGO'S ROTC SHINES BUTTONS FOR INSPECTION

Army Officers to Start Tour Tomorrow.

BY PAUL HEALY.

The annual showdown among Chicago's 28 ROTC units, comprising the largest junior brigade in the nation, begins this week. After months of scrupulous preparations, each corps will submit to a two and a half hour inspection by visiting officers. After the final inspection on May 22, the No. 1 and No. 2 units in the city will be announced and a number of others will be singled out as honor schools.

A total of approximately 11,000 cadets will be carefully surveyed in the reviews, which are conducted on the school grounds or in neighboring parks. They will represent 27 public high schools and St. Mel Catholic High school.

Medals to Leaders.

During each ceremony gold and silver medals will be presented to outstanding cadets by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. A total of 221 Chicago cadets will be decorated with these awards this month. Other medals will be presented to superior cadets by the war department, American Legion posts, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Spanish American War Veterans, PTA groups and other community organizations.

The first 1942 inspection will take place at 1:15 o'clock tomorrow when Waller High school is reviewed at De Paul stadium, 2210 Sheffield avenue. On Tuesday Roosevelt will be inspected at 9 o'clock in the morning on the school campus at Wilson and Kimball avenues, and Lakeview and Von Steuben will both be inspected at 1:15 o'clock. Lakeview will be reviewed at Welles park, Montrose and Western avenues, and Von Steuben will be examined on the Roosevelt High school grounds.

Following are the other inspections scheduled for this week:

Wednesday, Sullivan, 9 a. m., school campus, 6631 Bosworth avenue; Senn, 1:15 p. m., school campus, 5900 Glenwood avenue, and Amundsen, 1:15 p. m., Winnemac stadium, 2100 Winnemac avenue.

Thursday, Fenger, 9 a. m., school campus, 11220 Wallace street; Morgan Park, 1:15 p. m., school campus, 1744 Pryor avenue. In the event of rain, inspections will be held indoors.

Colors to Best Units.

Color stands will be presented by THE TRIBUNE to the two units adjudged the best in Chicago. They will be carried when these two units lead the giant ROTC parade down Michigan avenue Wednesday, May 27. Last year Tilden and Crane High schools were named first and second best in that order. In addition, 15 schools were given honor ratings.

Lieut. Col. R. K. Whitson, supervisor of ROTC at the University of Illinois, and Lieut. Col. Roy T. Rouse, supervisor of the ROTC at Michigan State college, have been chosen to inspect the Chicago units this spring. They also will examine the ROTC at Joliet Township High school on May 13; Evanston Township High school on May 16; and Waukegan Township High school on June 2. Tribune medals also will be presented at the suburban ceremonies.

Cadets on the southwest side who will receive medals this week are as follows:

Officers efficiency, Lieut. Col. Robert Heisler; noncoms efficiency, Sergt. Kegan Giragosian; rifle marksmanship, Maj. Edward Matchus; band efficiency, Lieut. LIST SUGAR REGISTRATION PLACES

CALUMET LISTS FORMER ROTC CADETS IN WAR

25 Now Serving in Armed Forces.

BY PAUL HEALY.

C. Edward Holtsberg.

The Calumet High school ROTC, which has been given an honor rating seven times by federal inspectors, is contributing a good share of its alumni to the nation's fighting forces, a survey reveals. Early returns in the poll shows that 10 former ROTC cadets are in the army, 5 are in the marines, 4 in the navy, 5 in the army air corps, and 1 in the navy air corps. Many of them are under draft age.

Probably the best known of those who were quick to volunteer for service was the late William P. Robinson, who was graduated in 1932. Entering service at Fort Sheridan, he made excellent progress as a soldier and later spent several years as a sergeant and military instructor at Fenger High school. Last year, after being promoted to second lieutenant, he was killed in an airplane crash.

Second Ranking Cadet.

Another graduate of Calumet is C. Edward Holtsberg, who is currently a first lieutenant doing administrative work in the army air corps in Australia. Lieut. Holtsberg was the second highest ranking cadet officer during his career in the Calumet ROTC. He was graduated in 1930 and enrolled in the University of Chicago. A member of the bar association, he joined the army last June and sailed for Australia last February. On March 11 his family received a radiogram saying he had landed safely.

Lieut. Holtsberg's brother, Warren, will be sent to California shortly as a cadet in the army air corps. The family resides at 7706 South Paulina street.

Robert C. Proffitt ['32] is enrolled in the officers candidate course at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. At Calumet he was a captain in the ROTC.

Stationed in Hawaii.

Robert Bock ['39] is a sergeant in the 208th field artillery at Camp Forrest, Tennessee. At Calumet he was in the Officers, Wrestling, Junior Hi-Y and Glee clubs.

William Bauske ['39] is a corporal in the field artillery. While a member of the Calumet ROTC, he also was in the Men's club, the Officers club, Science club, basketball team and interclass baseball teams. He lives at 8607 South Paulina street.

Air Corps Cadet.

Ralph J. Barry, an army air corps cadet at Kelly field, Texas, was graduated from Calumet in January, 1941. A captain in the ROTC, he was a member of the Officers and Camera clubs and the rifle team, and president of the Ushers club.

Bryan Biggers, a private in the marines, was graduated from Calumet last June. He was president of the Camera club and a member of the Noncommissioned Officers and Leaders clubs and the rifle team, fire marshal and Student council representatives. He resides at 8122 Princeton avenue.

Arthur Kerchner ['38] is a private in the air corps at headquarters and headquarters squadron, Patterson field, Fairfield, O. At Calumet he was in the Noncommissioned Officers club, Biology club, a cappella choir, Dramatic club, mixed chorus, and German club. He resided at 7651 Eggleston avenue.

Coast Guard Apprentice.

Ted Sedlack ['41] is an apprentice seaman in the coast guard. At Calumet he was a member of the Junior Honor society, the Officers club.

The remainder of the names on the partial list of former ROTC men in service follows:

John W. Berry, 8011 Wood street, seaman first class in coast guard.

James Burgess, 8512 Peoria street, corporal in the 124th field artillery at Camp Forrest, Tennessee.

John L. Cormann, 1228 West 77th street, private with Battery H, 702d tank destroyer, Fort Benning, Georgia.

Francis Donaghue, 8946 May street, seaman in the navy.

Charles E. Fetter, 8212 Green street, corporal in the 184th field artillery, Camp Forrest, Tennessee.

Joseph Greenberg, 7208 May street, private in the marines.

With 33d Division.

Arthur W. Hassel, 9016 Throop street, corporal in the special services office, 33d division, Camp Forrest, Tennessee.

Ervin G. Mertes, 8948 Normal avenue, private in the marines.

Joseph W. McDonnell, corporal in the 131st infantry, Camp Forrest, Tennessee.

Rudolph S. Rydell, private in the 2d battalion, Fort Knox, Kentucky.

John Schillo, 7522 Halsted street, private in the marines at San Diego, Cal.

Raymond J. Senecal Jr., 9320 Sawyer avenue, private in the marine aircraft engineering squadron at San Diego, Cal.

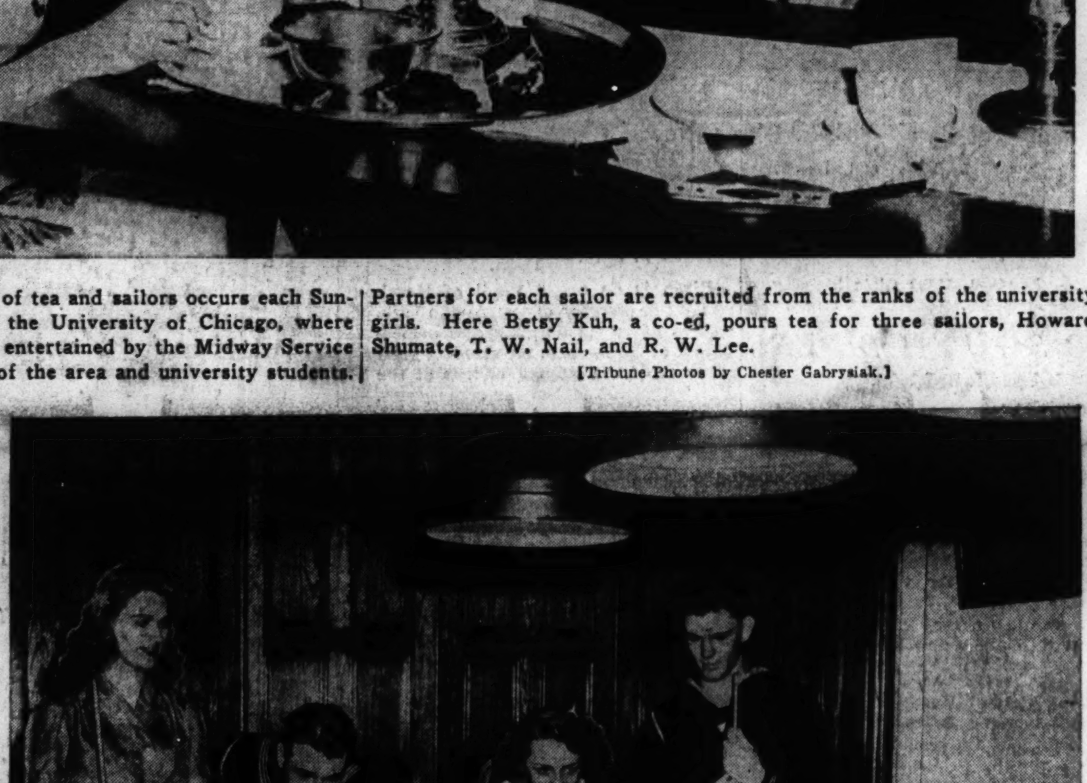
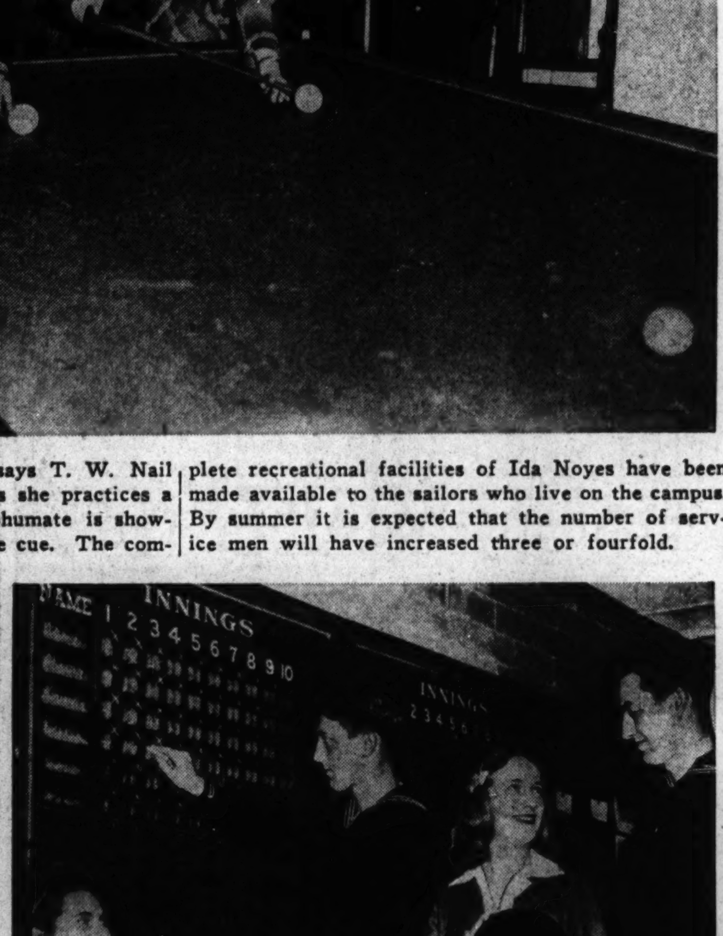
Girls at U. of C. Entertain Campus Sailors

This rather unusual combination of tea and sailors occurs each Sunday afternoon in Ida Noyes hall at the University of Chicago, where several hundred sailors are regularly entertained by the Midway Service organization, composed of residents of the area and university students. Partners for each sailor are recruited from the ranks of the university girls. Here Betsy Kuh, a co-ed, pours tea for three sailors, Howard Shumate, T. W. Nail, and R. W. Lee.

[Tribune Photos by Chester Gabrysiak.]



"Keep your eye on the ball," says T. W. Nail (left) to pretty Virginia Bennett as she practices a shot in billiards.. Sailor Howard Shumate is showing Gloria Hickman how to hold the cue. The complete recreational facilities of Ida Noyes have been made available to the sailors who live on the campus. By summer it is expected that the number of service men will have increased three or fourfold.



Bowling facilities are open to the sailors at the girls' recreation center at the university. Sailors find time to take advantage of this offer during week-ends, when they are off duty from Saturday noon until Sunday night. Here Mary Trovillion, Dick Lee, Louise Howson, and A. J. Frank chalk up their strikes and spares.

Du Page Lilacs Keep Faith for Near Century

[Announcement of the days selected as Lilac days and other information on the annual community gift of flowers appears in the main news section of today's Sunday Tribune.]

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

Lilacs from the Lyman homestead in Downers Grove come from bushes that are nearly 100 years old. The main stems are as thick as the trunks of small trees and the clumps shade spacious places in the yard. Each year of the Share Your Lilacs campaign their blooms have added to the offerings of the Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit guild, which cooperates with THE TRIBUNE in making it possible for shut-ins to enjoy the springtime beauty and fragrance.

There are many old lilac bushes in Du Page county. Early settlers sought to give their new homes something of the atmosphere of the neighborhood they had left in the east. There are instances where the house itself has vanished but the sturdy lilacs continue to bloom year after year beside what was once a doorstep or the path to a roadside gate.

The Lyman homestead at 900 Ogden avenue is said to be the only one in Du Page county where the family name is the same as that when the place was settled a century ago.

Settled in 1839.

To the acres beside Ogden avenue, then the Old Plank road, the Rev. Orange Lyman came in 1839. As a home missionary, he had migrated west from Ohio with the shift of settlements. He died in 1851.

Henry Martin Lyman, a son, died in 1894. Walter Lyman, a grandson, was born on the place in 1854 and died there in 1926. Mrs. Walter Lyman has resided at the home 19 years. She said the old lilac bushes were planted by the wife of the Rev. Orange Lyman. They are of the old-fashioned purple variety.

When Gen. John A. Logan designated May 30, 1868 for the purpose of strewing with flowers the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country during the Civil war, the Lyman lilac bushes responded. They had been a part of the setting when Capt. Walter Blanchard had drilled his company on Maple avenue. Their blooms were carried on Memorial day by members of Walter Blanchard post and, as the years passed, for departed members.

Bloom Year After Year.

Of the 59 men who enlisted from Du Page county for the Spanish-American war in 1898, 12 were from Downers Grove. History as it was being unfolded in the village dovetailed with history of the nation. The lilacs bloomed when men went away and after men came back. Their message remained steadfast in a world of change.

Time came when Alexander Bradley Burns post of the American Legion was formed with many members in the village. Lilacs along the street had become more firmly interwoven into the lives of the people. Whims of the weather might influence the period and the extent of their blooming but they never failed the townspeople.

More than any person living, the lilacs have witnessed the passing epochs of village history. Another war, more world shaking than any of its predecessors now has reached into the routine of the community. With all of their kind in all the yards in the Chicagoland area, and with all who share in their significance, the Downers Grove lilacs are ready to blossom again.

PARADE TO HELP ROSELAND WAR SAVINGS DRIVE

MinuteMen to Assist Brainerd Work.

National defense comes to the fore this week in activities sponsored by many south side communities in addition to their regular emergency programs. A mass meeting and a two mile parade are being planned for Friday evening by Roseland community. In the Brainerd district John B. Arato, 9414 Ada street, is appointing three "minute men" in each block who will cover the district on the evenings of May 11, 12, and 13 to obtain pledges for the purchase of War Savings bonds.

A war stamp rally at Mandel hall on the University of Chicago campus Wednesday evening will probably have Ald. Paul Douglas and film actress Annabella, wife of Tyrone Power, as speakers, according to Hyde Park defense officials. Ald. Douglas has just been accepted as a private in the marine corps. More than 1,500 minute men are expected to attend this rally before starting on a house to house canvass of the Midway district.

Chatham, Grand Crossing, Chesterfield, Avalon Park, South Chicago, and South Shore districts have combined to prepare for a general community Independence Day celebration. Capt. Patrick Brady is general chairman of the committee making arrangements.

Route of Parade.

The Roseland district mass meeting and parade is being sponsored by more than 100 Roseland-Pullman community organizations to stimulate public interest in the treasury department's war savings pledge campaign. A platform and public address system is being erected in Palmer park under the direction of Vern Dahlman and E. S. Richter of the park district.

Starting at 7 o'clock Friday evening at 119th street and Wallace avenue, the parade will proceed east on 119th street to Michigan avenue, north on Michigan avenue to 109th street, then east to Palmer park where the mass meeting will be held. The parade is under the direction of Reginald DuBois, general chairman, who is assisted by Dan Lucas and Max Ernst. It will be led by Major Al Becker, veteran cavalryman, and will contain bands from the American Legion, Camp Fire Girls, Roseland community, Acme Steel company, Fenger high school, Englewood Sons of Legion, Clan of MacDonald, Pullman Technical high school, Morgan Park high school and other organizations.

Leaders In Plans.

Sam Rosenbloom, president of the Roseland Business Men's association, is in charge of entertainment for the rally, and is negotiating for the presence of Gene Autrey, Spencer Tracy, Charles Laughton or Dorothy Lamour. William Venning, Emil Kuester, and Ald. Arthur Lindell are members of a committee to secure permits and policing. Guy Nelson, president of the South Chicago Savings bank, and Lester Beck, civilian defense chairman, are handling the bond sales portion of the campaign.

The seven South Shore communities that are combining their efforts toward an Independence Day celebration have already named committees to plan the affair, and negotiations are being made to secure units from nearby army and navy posts for the occasion. Squadrons of military planes are among the special detachments that have been requested.

Capt. Brady has asked all organizations that will be able to participate to send a representative to a round table meeeting Thursday evening at the Grand Crossing fieldhouse. The committee working under Capt. Brady includes Ernest L. Rea, Carl Kingsbury, W. K. Lasher, John D. Harris, Walter Feldhoff, E. A. Danford, E. J. King, Louis T. LePointe, L. D. Sexauer, Miss Marie A. DeRoulet, Mrs. Helene Manthey, Ambrose A. Burke, A. L. Van Valkenburgh, David Stromberg, E. G. Johnson, and Trevor S. Hirst.

Veterans to Assist.

Tom Walsh, Cook county commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, attended the initial meeting and pledged the coöperation of his entire group. Eight VFW units are expected to be among those taking part in the patriotic festivities.

In the Brainerd civilian defense district 503 people have taken a course of instruction in civilian defense techniques and last week underwent an examination on what they had learned.

Beginning last Friday, a nutrition course is being offered by the Brainerd defense office. Sessions are held at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. A fee of $1 will be charged each member of the class to cover the cost of textbooks. Red Cross awards will be made to those passing an examination at the end of the course.

Brainerd also has selected members of the community to act as minute men for the sale of war savings bonds. The drive will be carried out between 6 and 9 o'clock on May 11, 12, and 13 by the minute men who will attempt to secure pledges to buy bonds from residents.

TIME TO REPORT BASED ON LAST NAME INITIAL

Four Day Task Will Start Tomorrow.

All is in readiness for the registration of millions of sugar users in the Chicago area who will visit their public elementary schools during the next four days to qualify for the ration books without which the purchase of sugar in its various forms is henceforth prohibited. This was announced by Michael F. Mulcahy, state rationing administrator for the Chicago area.

More than 15,000 elementary teachers and volunteer workers will aid in the huge task, which will start tomorrow morning and end late Thursday, Mulcahy said. The schools will be open for registration from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. each day.

One Can Represent Family.

One person may register for his or her entire family, the rationing authorities have ruled. Thus it will not be necessary for each individual sugar user to visit the local registration point. The books to be issued on the basis of this week's registration may later be used in the rationing of other commodities besides sugar.

The commercial users of sugar were similarly registered in the high schools last Tuesday. The registrants included 21,025 retailers, wholesalers, industries, and institutions. They are already receiving sugar purchase certificates.

In Chicago, the applicants for this week's registration will be registered in public elementary schools according to ward boundaries. In the suburbs the schools are divided according to ration board districts, which follow township boundaries.

The addresses of the schools in Chicago, and other information concerning the registration machinery setup in both the city and the suburbs appears elsewhere in these columns.

Listed by Alphabet.

Registrants are expected to visit the elementary schools in accordance with a schedule based upon the alphabetical arrangement of the initials of last names, Mulcahy said. This is the schedule:

Last Name Initial.	Registration Period.
A-B	Monday morning
C-D-E	Monday afternoon
F-G-H	Tuesday morning
I-J-K-L	Tuesday afternoon
M-N	Wednesday morning
O-P-Q-R	Wednesday afternoon
S	Thursday morning
T to Z	Thursday afternoon

If a registrant finds it impossible to register on the day assigned in the above schedule, he can make arrangements at his registration place to sign up on some other day in the registration period.

HERE IS SECOND DEFENSE LESSON IN CLASS SERIES

Workers Learn Methods of Protection.

M. J. Corrigan.

To assist the more than 300,000 civilian defense workers in Chicago now attending basic training classes of the OCD, THE TRIBUNE is publishing the series of lessons prepared by the OCD training division.

The series is intended to refresh workers on their classroom studies and give them a permanent record for reference. THE TRIBUNE makes no effort to interpret these courses since they are self-explanatory. Lesson No. 2 follows. Lesson No. 3 will appear in next Sunday's Metropolitan section.

Training is in charge of experts in the various fields. Marshal M. J. Corrigan of the Chicago fire department directs the training of the volunteer fire fighters.

PROTECTIVE AND UTILITY SERVICES.

Warning and Spotting.

A civilian air raid warning system is organized to give warning of approaching enemy aircraft in order that steps may be taken in ample time to preserve life and property.

The civilian system goes into action when the district warning center receives a report from the United States military regional information center. The air raid warning goes from the district warning center to the control center of the civilian defense communications network.

Air raid warning messages, by following colors are issued over the telephone or flashed by light bulbs:

1. Yellow—Alert, preliminary caution by telephone to civilian protective services, police, fire, utilities, defense works, blast furnaces, and other industrial centers.
2. Blue—Alert, lights warning, to factories lights out.
3. Red — To siren operators, sound sirens, public take cover.
4. White—Raiders passed, all clear signals.

Standard air raid sound signals for warning to the public are:

1. Red—By siren of two minutes duration with fluctuating pitch.
2. White—A continuous siren signal of two minutes duration with a steady pitch.

Civilian spotters are used as roof spotters by day, as fire watchers by night. Training of spotter takes several weeks as spotter tries to learn:

1. Types and construction of enemy planes.
2. Distinctive sound of enemy planes.
3. Estimate where bombs will drop, for example: Bomb dropped from 5,000 feet will hit 1¼ miles away from the point at which it is dropped in 17.6 seconds, and a bomb dropped at 40,000 feet will hit 3½ miles away from the point at which it is dropped in 49.7 seconds.

Blackout and Camouflage.

Blackout is a condition under which lights are extinguished or effectively screened, and light reflecting surfaces darkened. It does not conceal the presence of cities, because cities are easily located even at night. Blackout, however, will make it difficult to find the specific targets with the cities.

Blackout methods include:

1. Turning out lights.
2. Covering windows with opaque curtains, plywood screens, or papering.
3. Use of mats or mattresses over windows.
4. Adhesive stripping or fine wire mesh over windows to prevent glass shattering.
5. Blue filter over windows, with red electric bulbs to neutralize lights.

Traffic signals and auto headlights are hooded and painted over except for small slits; house or shop entrance can be blacked out by constructing a large hooded tunnel [light lock].

Aid during blackout includes white or luminous painting on curbs, signs, and fenders of cars. Pedestrians may wear reflecting discs on belts.

Camouflage is the technique of disguising a target by making it blend in with its natural surroundings. Altho it is essentially a military function, camouflage by civilian authorities may include:

1. Changing of light pattern of city.
2. Counter shading by elimination of shadows.
3. Using of paint as protective coloration.
4. Decoying or imitating by false models.
5. Blotting out areas with smudge.

Fire Defense.

One medium bomber can carry 1,000 to 2,000 two pound incendiary bombs. These bombs cannot be extinguished in the usual manner with water or with commercial extinguishers. The bomb may be put out with dry sand or scooped up on a shovel, put in a pail with sand in it, or sprayed with a hose. The standard equipment to fight the incendiary bomb consists of dry sand, long handled shovels, buckets of water, or a stirrup pump with a long hose and a dual nozzle for spray or jet.

Gas Defense.

Gas has not been used in this war except in China and Ethiopia. However, it is best to be prepared since there is less chance then of its being attempted. The object of using gas is not to kill but to demoralize the population. Not all gases are gaseous. Many are liquids, like mustard and Lewisite. The methods of using gas are by spraying or by bomb. Gas identification is a highly expert process.

Gas decontamination is the process of removing gas by:

1. Destroying or neutralizing liquid gas by bleaching powder or by other chemicals or by burning.
2. Removing by washing away with water.
3. Covering the liquid gas with earth, after which natural action will destroy it.

The gas alarm is a different sound from the sound of an air raid siren. Bells, rattles, or klaxons are utilized. All civilian defense workers are required to have an elementary course in gas defense.

Bomb Disposal.

Types of bombs are contact bombs, delayed action bombs, and time bombs.

The delayed action bomb has a delayed action fuse which needs 1 to 10 seconds to set off the explosive charge, after it has penetrated its target. The delayed action or unexploded bomb [UXB] is used to disrupt the normal activities of a region as well as to destroy by blast. The removal of the unexploded time bomb is a highly technical, as well as a dangerous task, and requires trained experts.

Steps taken to lessen the potential damage of an unexploded bomb are:

1. Evacuation of area of all occupants.
2. Barricading of area and posting a guard.
3. Use of a special bomb removal squad to remove bomb, allowing only one person to be near bomb at a time.
4. Loading bomb on a special truck operated by one man who will drive it to an isolated spot where bomb will be rendered harmless.

Rescue Squad Service.

The rescue squad must be able to support or demolish walls before tunneling for victims. Because of such special problems in rescue procedure, rescue squad men should be recruited from:

Miners, house wreckers, scaffolders, structural steel erectors, plumbers, electricians, handymen, and helpers.

Ambulance and First Aid.

Many more are injured and shocked than are killed in air raids. To care for these casualties large first aid squads contain about four physicians, four nurses, and four orderlies.

First aid posts should be provided thruout the community, not only at hospitals. Ambulances must be supplemented by cars for situp cases.

All civilian defense workers are required to have some first aid training.

Police.

The duties of police are to help wardens in:

1. Enforcing blackouts.
2. Prevent looting in blackouts or air raids.
3. Enforce traffic control in order to keep streets clear for emergency cars.
4. Do patrol work.

The auxiliary police force is made up of volunteers organized and trained under the regular police department for aid in emergencies. Training schools are being set up under supervision of the police training division.

Roads and Transportation.

Interruption of transportation services by bombs disrupts the daily travel of workers, thus slowing down production and delivery of food and supplies.

To prevent transportation tieups:

1. Road blocks and detour routes must be planned.
2. Road repair material and personnel must be ready.
3. Auxiliary traffic officers must be trained.
4. Express routes for buses and street cars to by-pass bombed areas must be provided.

Water Supply.

In wartime water is not only important for the normal needs of the civilian population, but also for the efficiency of any fire fighting organization. Increase in available flow can be obtained by providing supplementary water mains, or establishing water reservoirs at specified points.

Where water has been shut off or bombed out it may be necessary to have water carts to distribute water, or gasoline and milk tank trucks may be used for this purpose. If there are any boilers in the affected area depending on the water supply for water, the engineers must be warned to pull their fires in order to prevent explosions.

The purity of water must be maintained. It is assumed that all water in the affected area will be contaminated. It will be dangerous to drink until the official announces it is safe. Water contaminated by gas must not be used until chemically treated.

Electricity, Gas, and Telephone.

London experience indicated that electrical power seldom was interrupted; gas supply occasionally was stopped by bombing of gas mains, while telephone interruptions were frequent.

Repairs and Demolition.

Repairs to property should be made not only to save the property and keep the homes efficient, but also to help public morale. Demolition squads and repair squads must be organized, equipped, and trained to demolish dangerous walls and buildings and to make repairs.

This new information office, located at 6010 Dorchester avenue, will coördinate the activities of the Woodlawn War Service organization, the University of Chicago's Service Men's Entertainment council, and the Hyde Park Advisory council.

Many Groups Coöperate.

Groups coöperating in the Midway Service organization are the Associated Clubs of Woodlawn, representing 32 organizations, the Hyde Park League of Women Voters, the Ida Noyes Service Men's Entertainment council, the Hyde Park YMCA, the Hyde Park Neighborhood club, and the Hyde Park Council of Churches and Synagogues.

"The problem of providing entertainment for the sailors has been recognized by many members of the community," Mrs. Jacob Viner, chairman of the newly formed organization, said. "In order to coördinate the activities of all groups in a way most helpful to the sailors, committees have been set up to entertain the boys at dances, to provide them with lunches, and even to darn their sox and help with their mending."

Y Offers Facilities.

A series of Sunday afternoon and evening parties at Ida Noyes hall on the university campus are being held, among other activities. The Hyde Park YMCA has offered the navy men the use of all its facilities, which include swimming, basketball, volleyball, and handball. Cakes will be baked by women members of the affiliated organizations and sent to parties scheduled to be held.

Robert Steele, ensign in charge of recreation for sailors on the Midway, has the task of advising the men of the invitations being extended them. Mrs. C. Kingman-Perkins, 5629 University avenue, is president of the coördinating group.

TO SATISFY THE DEMAND FOR THE WORLD'S BIGGEST SUNDAY NEWSPAPER VALUE!

Chicago Tribune
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

March average net paid total circulation: Daily, over 1,000,000—Sunday, over 1,200,000

During each of the past ten months, average net paid circulation of the Sunday Tribune showed a gain over the same months in the previous year. Set forth in the panel above are some of the reasons why.

News, editorials, comics, photos, features, fiction—the Sunday Tribune covers the entire range of interests of every member of the family. No expense or effort is spared in order to deliver a product worthy of recognition as the best Sunday newspaper value in the world.

In section after section, printed in black-and-white, in newsprint color, in rotogravure and in colorotogravure, Sunday Tribune readers get a well-rounded newspaper, thoroly readable and designed to win and hold interest for every page.

As a result, public preference continues, year after year, to increase Sunday Tribune circulation. The average net paid sale of more than 1,200,000 copies last month represents a gain of more than 50,000 over March, 1941, and more than 390,000 over March, 1933.

By delivering greater value to readers, the Tribune is able to deliver greater value to advertisers. To sell more in Chicago and in the great five-state territory adjacent to Chicago, build your advertising program around the Tribune.

KEEPING BLOOMS FRESH IS LILAC DAY REQUISITE

Wrapping Helps Assure Better Bouquets.

The happiness and moral courage that flowers bring to the sick and shut-ins make the 14th annual "Share Your Lilacs" campaign more important than ever this wartime year, according to officials of the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild.

For this reason guild officials are urging every lilac donor to take special care in cutting, wrapping, and shipping the blooms. With warm weather rushing the appearance of the flowers everywhere flower lovers are getting ready to gather the lilacs. Here are some recommendations offered by the guild for handling the blossoms.

Cut lilacs the afternoon before lilac day. The stems should be cut 14 to 18 inches below the flower head, preferably just above where they branch from the main stem.

Size for Bouquets.

A proper sized bouquet can be made by tying as many stems as can be held in one hand. The cut flowers should be placed in tubs or pails of water over night. Early the next morning the bunches should be wrapped in damp newspaper and tied. The paper should cover the blooms but must not compress them.

Where there is a choice, cut blooms that are just opening rather than those that are full blown. If the lilacs are placed in cartons the blooms should not extend over the sides, as they are easily damaged.

Each year lilacs are gathered from yards, gardens, estates, and casual bushes thruout Chicagoland for the enjoyment of the city's shut-ins. The lilac campaign is sponsored jointly by the guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

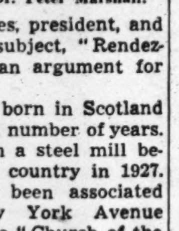
Eight Railroads Aiding.

This year eight railroads have volunteered to bring the bouquets into the city from suburban areas freight free. Much of the success of the lilac campaign is due to the coöperation of the railroads in making speedy delivery of the blooms to terminals in the city so that hospital patients can enjoy them while they still retain their country freshness.

Railroads that will take part in the drive this year are the Chicago and North Western, Illinois Central, Rock Island, Aurora and Elgin, North Shore Electric, Burlington, Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul, and the Pennsylvania.

Last year the trains brought in more than 100,000 bouquets. They filled the baggage cars, and in many cases overflowed into the passenger cars. Upon delivery at the terminal the blooms were picked up by a fleet of Tribune trucks and delivered to the various hospitals and institutions thruout the city. Bouquets were given to 25,000 patients in 158 hospitals, orphanages, and old people's homes.

WASHINGTON, D.C., PASTOR TO TALK AT SUNDAY CLUB



Dr. Peter Marshall.

The Rev. Dr. Peter Marshall, young Scotch minister of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, Washington, D.C., the church Abraham Lincoln attended, will be the speaker at 8 o'clock tonight at the Chicago Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall. He will be presented for his second address before the club by Clifford W. Barnes, president, and will speak on the subject, "Rendezvous in Samarra," an argument for immortality.

Dr. Marshall was born in Scotland and lived there for a number of years. He was employed in a steel mill before coming to this country in 1927. Since 1937 he has been associated with historic New York Avenue church, known as the "Church of the Presidents." His talk tonight will be preceded by music by the club choir of 125 voices under direction of Edgar Nelson. Edward Hall Taylor, a trustee, will read the Scripture.

At 7 o'clock Dr. Charles T. Holman of the University of Chicago divinity school will begin a new series of Bible talks, and the Melodists, a group of 33 choristers from city churches, will sing.

Lodge to Vote on War Bond Quota.

More than 50,000 Knights of Columbus in Illinois will meet at the Morrison hotel tomorrow and Tuesday for their 45th annual convention. This will be the first time since 1930 that Chicago has been the K. of C. convention city.

Leo M. Flynn, Illinois state deputy, will open the first session tomorrow morning following a pontifical high mass at Holy Name cathedral, 730 North Wabash avenue. The Most Rev. Samuel A. Stritch, archbishop of Chicago, will celebrate the mass, and the Most Rev. James A. Griffin, bishop of Springfield, will preach the sermon.

War Bond Campaign.

Convention business will include a vote on adoption of a 3 million dollar war bond quota, a full report on the organization's blood donor activities, its participation in the USO-NACCS work, and its insurance and other welfare activities. The 1942-'43 state officers will be elected.

Delegates' wives will attend a luncheon and fashion show tomorrow noon at Marshall Field's. Another social function will be a dinner-dance in the Terrace Casino tomorrow evening. Bishop Griffin and Joseph A. Lamb, national secretary of the Knights of Columbus, will be the dinner speakers.

Chicagoans Are Hosts.

The Chicago delegates will be hosts to the downstate representatives at this function. Lafayette post of the American Legion, made up wholly of K. of C.'s, will open the banquet ceremonies with the presentation of colors.

AMERICA LOVES MELODY MOVES TO LATER HOUR

Song Program Scheduled on W-G-N, 8 to 9 P. M.

Two song dramatizations will highlight the broadcast of America Loves a Melody over W-G-N, W59C, and the coast to coast Mutual Broadcasting system next Saturday evening. Starting on this date the program will be presented a half hour later than heretofore. The new broadcast hour is 8 to 9 p. m.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will be the speaker.

The song spots will feature Miss Marion Claire as the soloist, supported by the W-G-N orchestra, directed by Henry Weber. Thomas L. Thomas, Metropolitan opera baritone, will be guest singer. Stories behind their favorite song as submitted by listeners will be depicted in these presentations. Two $25 cash awards are made each week for the best letters telling the story of songs.

The song stories for next Saturday will feature Miss Claire singing "Alice Blue Gown" from "Irene" and "My Hero" from "The Chocolate Soldier."

Miss Claire also will sing "Ave Maria" as the special request of the Marion Claire club of Gary, Ind. Forty members of the club headed by their chairman, Mrs. Mary Galumbus, will be in the audience.

Mr. Thomas will sing "Siboney." He will also join Miss Claire in selections from "Vagabond King" and "Show Boat."

The orchestra will offer a special arrangement of "America Marches On." The chorus will be under the direction of Robert Trendler. Kenneth MacGregor will be the producer.

THIS IS LIFE! PRESENTS MUSIC AND PHILOSOPHY

"This Is Life," heard on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 11:15 to 11:30 a. m., on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays has a new form. Replacing the former type of show which tried to aid radio listeners by broadcasting the story behind articles needed for a worthy cause, "This Is Life" now presents a program of music, poetry, and cheerful philosophy.

Victor Powell remains as master of ceremonies and interpolates the songs of Jack Baker with bits of inspirational poetry and "cheer-up" musings about life in wartime.

As newest member of "This Is Life" Baker brings to the program a talented tenor voice. A native of Shreveport, La., Baker has been singing all his life while holding down jobs varying from clerking in a dry goods store to teaching school.

Musical accompaniment is provided on "This Is Life" by W-G-N's Len Salvo, who will be heard at the organ, and Harold Turner, pianist.

Girl and Seeing Eye Dog on Becker Show Today

Miss Bernice Clifton, 132 North Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, and her famous Seeing Eye dog, Dr. Karla, will be guests on Bob Becker's Chats About Dogs show at 1 p. m. today. During the last year Karla has been Miss Clifton's only companion and guide in the course of 10,000 miles of travel. Miss Clifton will tell how the Seeing Eye dogs are trained and how they take their owners thru traffic.

Evelyn Ames Will Sing Current Popular Tunes

The currently popular tunes, "Somebody Else Is Taking My Place" and "You Made Me Love You," will be Evelyn Ames' selections for the Maid of America program to be heard on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 7:30 to 8 p. m. Tuesday. The program features the poetry reading of Franklyn MacCormick and the music of the Minute Men directed by Bob Trendler.

Cissie Loftus Guest on Those Good Old Days

Cissie Loftus, impersonator, will revive a bygone golden era when she presents her impressions of the great Sarah Bernhardt in a dramatic sketch and of Bert Williams singing "Nobody" during Those Good Old Days to be aired over WLS and the Blue network at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Guest Tomorrow

Grace Moore, noted soprano of the movies, opera, and concert stage, will make a guest appearance in salute to Music week on the Telephone hour over WMAQ-NBC at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening.

PLAN RED CROSS FOOD, NUTRITION HOUR ON W-G-N

Alida Drake Will Give Hints for Women.

A new food and nutrition series to be conducted by the American Red Cross will be heard on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 9:45 to 10 a. m. on Saturday mornings beginning May 9.

Alida Drake of the nutrition department of the Red Cross will be instructor on the new program. She has been heard on many W-G-N programs recently, among them "Dollar Stretchers."

Myrtle Stahl, educational director of W-G-N, said the new series will endeavor to explain the value of foods, vitamins and calories, and at the same time make the listening public as food conscious as they are war conscious. The program will debunk the current idea that people will be seriously handicapped by the sugar shortage, for it will be shown that a sugar substitute is contained in many foods we eat.

The program will originate in the main audience studio of W-G-N. After the program each Saturday members of the studio audience will hear a 45 minute lecture by Miss Drake in which she will explain her ideas with the use of charts. The public is invited.

HOOVER, M'NUTT TO SPEAK OVER W-G-N THURSDAY

Herbert Hoover, former President of the United States, and Paul McNutt, administrator of federal security, will speak on a special broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Thursday evening.

The broadcast will come from the Drake hotel, where Hoover and McNutt will address delegates to the 36th annual convention of the Boys' Clubs of America. Mr. Hoover is chairman of the organization's board of directors.

Danny Grogan in Disguise.

Disguised as French peasants, Danny Grogan and his cohort, Tex, are attempting to reach a secluded military outpost on the northern coast of France in the serial, "Linda's First Love," to be heard on W-G-N at 9:45 a. m. Monday thru Friday.

GREAT LAKES CHOIR TO SING ON W-G-N TOMORROW

The Great Lakes Naval Training station choir will be featured on the broadcast of I Hear America Singing, over W-G-N from noon to 12:30 p. m. tomorrow. The choir of 50 voices is directed by Chaplain Hjalmar Hanson. The program will originate in studio 1 of W-G-N. I Hear America Singing is a weekly feature of W-G-N and the Mutual network.

CHICAGO'S ROTC SHINES BUTTONS FOR INSPECTION

Army Officers to Start Tour Tomorrow.

BY PAUL HEALY.

The annual showdown among Chicago's 28 ROTC units, comprising the largest junior brigade in the nation, begins this week. After months of scrupulous preparations, each corps will submit to a two and a half hour inspection by visiting officers. After the final inspection on May 22, the No. 1 and No. 2 units in the city will be announced and a number of others will be singled out as honor schools.

A total of approximately 11,000 cadets will be carefully surveyed in the reviews, which are conducted on the school grounds or in neighboring parks. They will represent 27 public high schools and St. Mel Catholic High school.

Medals to Leaders.

During each ceremony gold and silver medals will be presented to outstanding cadets by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. A total of 221 Chicago cadets will be decorated with these awards this month. Other medals will be presented to superior cadets by the war department, American Legion posts, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Spanish American War Veterans, PTA groups and other community organizations.

The first 1942 inspection will take place at 1:15 o'clock tomorrow when Waller High school is reviewed at De Paul stadium, 2210 Sheffield avenue. On Tuesday Roosevelt will be inspected at 9 o'clock in the morning on the school campus at Wilson and Kimball avenues, and Lakeview and Von Steuben will both be inspected at 1:15 o'clock. Lakeview will be reviewed at Welles park, Montrose and Western avenues, and Von Steuben will be examined on the Roosevelt High school grounds.

Following are the other inspections scheduled for this week:

Wednesday, Sullivan, 9 a. m., school campus, 6631 Bosworth avenue; Senn, 1:15 p. m., school campus, 5900 Glenwood avenue, and Amundsen, 1:15 p. m., Winnemac stadium, 2100 Winnemac avenue.

Thursday: Fenger, 9 a. m., school campus, 11220 Wallace street; Morgan Park, 1:15 p. m., school campus, 1744 Pryor avenue. In the event of rain, inspections will be held indoors.

Colors to Best Units.

Color stands will be presented by THE TRIBUNE to the two units adjudged the best in Chicago. They will be carried when these two units lead the giant ROTC parade down Michigan avenue Wednesday, May 27. Last year Tilden and Crane High schools were named first and second best in that order. In addition, 15 schools were given honor ratings.

Lieut. Col. R. K. Whitson, supervisor of ROTC at the University of Illinois, and Lieut. Col. Roy T. Rouse, supervisor of the ROTC at Michigan State college, have been chosen to inspect the Chicago units this spring. They also will examine the ROTC at Joliet Township High school on May 13; Evanston Township High school on May 16; and Waukegan Township High school on June 2. Tribune medals also will be presented at the suburban ceremonies.

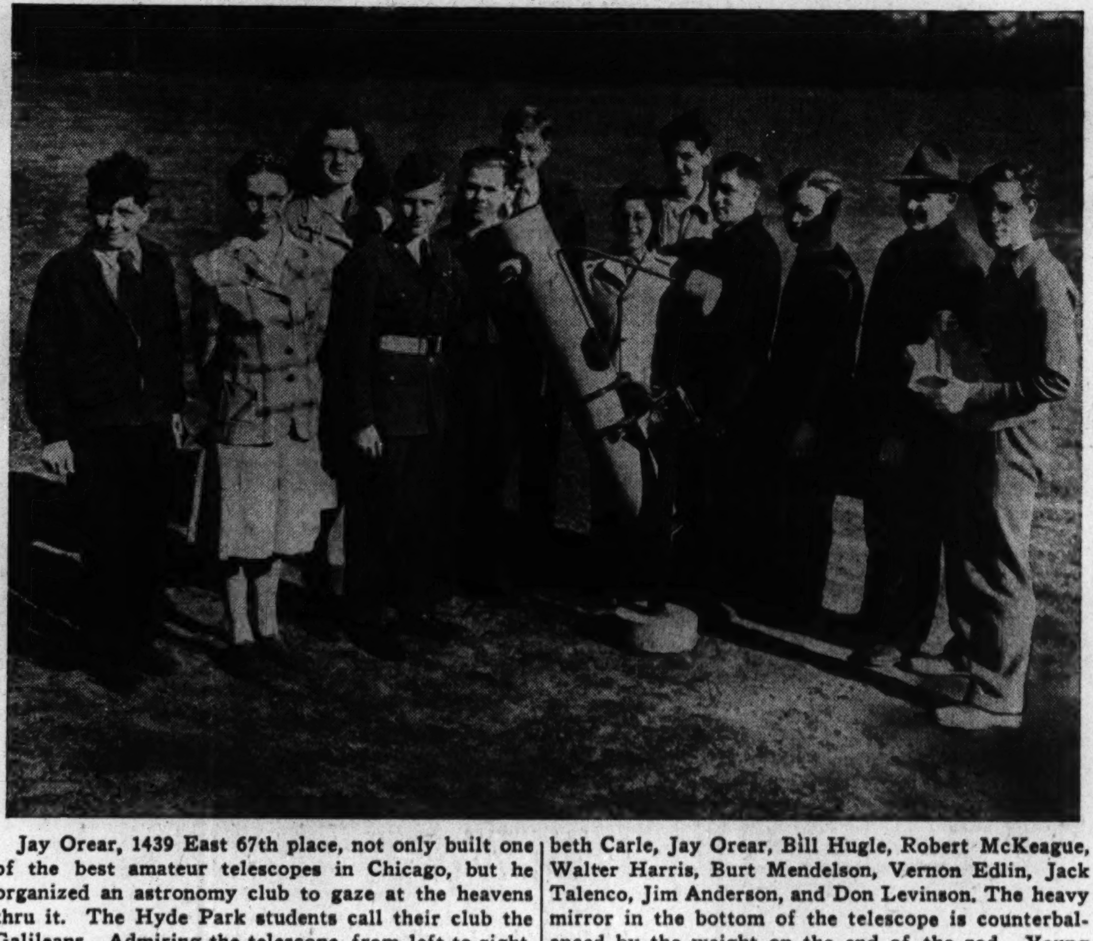
Young Astronomer Makes Own Telescope



Jay Orear, 1439 East 67th place, not only built one of the best amateur telescopes in Chicago, but he organized an astronomy club to gaze at the heavens thru it. The Hyde Park students call their club the Galileans. Admiring the telescope, from left to right, are Stephen Maszkowski, Harriet Van Duzer, Elizabeth Carle, Jay Orear, Bill Hugle, Robert McKeague, Walter Harris, Burt Mendelson, Vernon Edlin, Jack Talenco, Jim Anderson, and Don Levinson. The heavy mirror in the bottom of the telescope is counterbalanced by the weight on the end of the rod. Young Orear has his hand on the eyepiece.

CITIZENS' HOUR HONORS MORGAN PARK ACADEMY

Youth Program on Air at 10:30 A. M. Today.

Citizens of Tomorrow, the half hour radio program on W-G-N usually scheduled at 1:30 p. m. Sundays, will be heard at 10:30 a. m. today. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, sponsor of the program, will salute Morgan Park Military academy and its superintendent, Col. Harry D. Abells, will give the principal address, outlining the history of the school since its beginning in 1873.

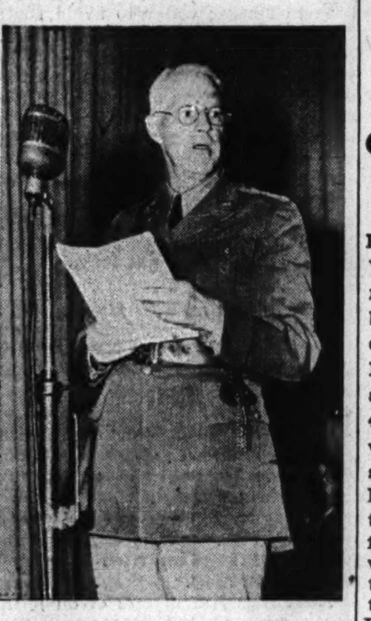
The academy chorus of 50 cadets, directed by Capt. Jean L. Taylor, will sing two numbers, "The Caissons Go Rolling Along" and "The White Cliffs of Dover."

Philip Maxwell, master of ceremonies, will announce the five members of a scholarship committee which will meet May 11 to administer the 40 scholarships which have been offered by that number of colleges and universities of the middle west to those on the Citizens of Tomorrow Honor Roll.

Maxwell also will nominate two more high school seniors to the roll, Cadet Maj. Bill Kettering of Lemont, a student at the academy who will be interviewed, and Jack Cunningham, honor student, athlete, and musician of Janesville, Wis.

Next Sunday the program will return to the 1:30 time. Manley High school of Chicago will be saluted.

Citizens Program



Col. Harry D. Abells, head of Morgan Park Military academy, will be heard on the Citizens of Tomorrow radio broadcast over W-G-N at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Six hundred Morgan Park cadets witnessed the recording of the program last Wednesday afternoon in the W-G-N studio.

GOOD SHEPHERD CENTER PLAYERS TO GIVE DRAMA

The Skyloft Players, a new Negro group formed at the Good Shepherd community center, 5120 South Park way, are presenting a new Langston Hughes' drama, "The Sun Do Move," on Thursday and Friday evenings during May. Negro spirituals are woven into the drama of the play.

Mrs. Brunetta Mouzan

The play begins with a ballet prolog in Africa, runs thru the slave period in the south, and ends with the Civil war. The plot concerns a young slave husband sold and separated from his wife just as their first child is born.

Many members of the cast are former actors in the Federal theater "Swing Mikado" cast. The Good Shepherd community chorus, under direction of James H. Barr, handles the background music, while ballet portions are directed by Miss Olive Blackwell. The leading rôle is played by Mrs. Brunetta Mouzan.

FORREST LEWIS TO START STAR GAZING SERIES

Forrest Lewis, Chicago radio actor who at times has taken as many as 30 rôles on one program, will begin a new series titled "Star Gazing" on W-G-N at 10 p. m. tomorrow. Lewis will be heard from 10 to 10:15 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays thereafter.

Inside information on personalities in radio and in Hollywood will be featured in Lewis' broadcasts. He will interview radio stars regularly. To start the series, Les Tremayne, one of the air's best known leading men, will be interviewed. The guest on Friday will be Barbara Luddy.

In additilon to spotlighting the big names of radio, Lewis plans to give a break to character actors and others who normally get little publicity.

Famous broadcast boners will be another of Lewis' regular departments. He will slip into several varying character rôles during each program. Lewis is heard regularly on W-G-N in "heavy" rôles on Easy Money, scheduled each Sunday from 6:30 to 7 p. m., CWT.

Trinity Church Men Plan Dinner; Invite Governor

Gov. Dwight H. Green has been invited to attend a dinner at 6:30 o'clock Friday, given by the men's class of the Trinity Methodist church, 99th street and Winchester avenue. Samuel J. Smith, 9157 Loomis boulevard, is president of the organization.

5,000 ARE INVITED TO ANNIVERSARY FETE OF CHURCH

Grace Presbyterian Is 54 Years Old.

The 54th anniversary of Grace Presbyterian church, 36th street and Vincennes avenue, will be celebrated next Sunday with a Mothers' day tea at Parkway hall, 4459 South Park way. Five thousand invitations have been sent to friends and former members who have moved to other parishes, the pastor, the Rev. Augustus E. Bennett, said.

Grace church held its first meeting in a storeroom at 20th and State streets 54 years ago. Nineteen charter members were on hand, and, of this number, two are still alive. They are Mrs. John R. Coleman, 3746 South Park way, and Horace B. Cooper, 612 East Marquette road. The organizer and first pastor was the Rev. Moses H. Jackson, who served for 42 years. He died in 1933. The Rev. Mr. Bennett, a minister for 22 years, has been in charge of the church since September, 1936.

In 1919, the church moved from quarters at 34th and Dearborns streets to the present location. It was previously occupied by the old Sixth Presbyterian church. The Negro congregation of Grace is now made up of 456 members. Of this number, eight are in the country's armed forces.

Next Sunday's celebration is under the guidance of Mrs. Louise Mackey and Mrs. Lillian Henry, co-chairmen. Also assisting are Dr. Albert Beckham, chairman of the finance committee, and retired Brig. Gen. Spencer C. Dickerson, chairman of the trustee board. Clubs and individual members within the church are coöperating.

GAZING AT STARS IS AN OLD HABIT TO YOUTH OF 17

Started to Build His First Telescope When 9.

BY JOHN WILHELM.

If Jay Orear, 17, of 1439 East 67th street, has the best amateur telescope on the south side of Chicago [and few can dispute this], his present pinnacle can be traced back to the time that Venus "got out of line" during the 1934 Century of Progress exposition.

Jay's father was on the exposition's executive staff, and Jay spent many an afternoon at the fair that year. He soon discovered near by Adler planetarium, and became a regular visitor. One day the planet Venus began a dizzy variation from its normal orbit on the planetarium ceiling. When Dr. Phillip Fox, then director of the planetarium, began adjusting the delicate Zeiss projector after the erratic performance, Jay stood eager-eyed alongside, altho the rest of the audience had filed out.

"Venus got out of the groove today, but we lined her up," Jay announced to his parents at dinner that night. He was not presumptuous in using the first person pronoun, for indeed Dr. Fox had noticed the absorbed look on the face of the 9 year old boy, had carefully explained to him just what was going on in the repair job and why.

Was Daily Visitor.

From that day on for the rest of the summer, Jay saw little of the fair. Daily he showed up at the planetarium, hunted up Dr. Fox, who talked of nebula, orbits, light years, and refracting lenses for the benefit of young Orear. At the end of the summer, the director gave the boy two blocks of optical glass, pieces that weighed several pounds.

"Take them home, Jay," he said. "Get a tin can cover and some pumice stone and rub it like this." He demonstrated the even, rotating strokes of a lens grinder.

"If you're going to know about the star, you must do like the early astronomers did—learn about lenses."

From this first lens grinding job [which never was finished even tho he ground faithfully for months], Jay received a $4.95 telescope for Christmas in 1938, and within a few months he had exhausted its possibilities. Everything that the telescope could bring within range, he had seen.

Makes a Telescope.

With funds secured by delivering the neighborhood paper, and by tutoring a classmate in mathematics, Jay raised enough money to send to New York for a professional "blank" of optical glass. This time he secured "rouge" instead of the pumice he had used on the glass Dr. Fox had given him when he was younger. All thru the summer of 1939 he spent many hours each day wearing the glass down to a concave surface.

Then came the day of rejoicing when it was finally ground to the ideal curve. Jay seized the glass, intending to show the result of his long hours of effort to his mother. But his triumph was dashed to the ground when the six inch lens slipped from his wet hands, splintered on the basement floor.

But like a true scientist, Jay started over at once, ordered a new blank as soon as he could scrape together the money. This time he got better glass, and this time the lens was ground, polished, and silvered without mishap. Attending an auction held by adult astronomers, he purchased accessories for his telescope. It is of the type where the viewer gazes down into the telescope, seeing the heavens reflected in the mirror-like lens.

Thrills at Sight of Vega.

"The first night I aimed the telescope toward the brightest star in the sky—it was about 8 o'clock in the evening, and Vega was shining," Jay recalls. "Unfortunately, I had misjudged the focal distance of the eye piece, and had to hold it in my hand as the tube was not long enough. But there was Vega, sharp and clear, and larger than I had ever seen it."

His present telescope has 300 power, in astronomical language, meaning that the viewer appears to be 300 times closer to the star than as seen with the naked eye. Jay has been able to buy only a 75 power eye piece, so he supplements this with apparatus borrowed from the Hyde Park High school laboratories.

At Hyde Park High he organized the Galileans, an astronomy club. The 80 pound telescope has been placed on the roof of the school so the club may use it. During the summer it is moved to Jay's back yard or to near by Jackson park.

"You can imagine what it is living with a kid like that," Jay's father says as he throws up his hands in resignation and amazement. "One night he insisted the whole family spend the middle of the night on the roof of the school so they might see the complete eclipse of the moon. We had to stay until the entire affair was over."

And it all started because "Venus got out of line one night in the planetarium."

Plan Card Party.

A card party will be given by the south side unit of Chicago Mothers of Young Judea at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday at the South Side Hebrew congregation, 74th street and Chappel avenue. Mrs. Fannie Walen is secretary of the unit.

Mills, a quartermaster officer whose home is at 6319 Kenwood avenue, participated in the campaign against Aguinaldo's insurrectionist forces in the Philippines in 1899, and returned to the islands during the first World war, serving as quartermaster in the Manila area. He retired in 1934, but was recalled to active duty last June to serve in the 6th corps area quartermaster office.

FIERY CONTESTS FEATURE INDIANA CITY PRIMARIES

Interest High in Gary, Hammond Races.

Two hotly contested races for the mayoralty in Gary and Hammond feature the primary elections to be held in the Indiana cities Tuesday. City, county and some state officials are up for election. Less interest in the mayoral elections has been shown in Hobart, Crown Point, East Chicago, the attention centering around the Gary and Hammond balloting.

On the Republican ticket for mayor in Gary, the incumbent, Dr. E. L. Schaible, is being opposed by Dr. A. A. Watts whom he defeated for the same office four years ago. A former mayor, L. B. Clayton, is running for mayor on the Democratic ticket against a former Lake county auditor, Joseph E. Finerty.

A CIO supported candidate also has entered the Democratic field for mayor. He is John Titak. Other candidates for the same position are Charles Barran, former county commissioner; Dr. Antonio Giogi, B. Ray Smith, and Martin Smith.

Many Changes in Hammond.

Charges of gang rule and threatened end of law enforcement fill the political air in the Hammond contest for mayor. G. Bertram Smith, incumbent, has charged that the election of his opponent, Archie Spoerner, city clerk and former Democratic county chairman, would endanger Hammond's record for law enforcement.

Spoerner charges that Smith is part of a political machine built by Frank R. Morton, who resigned as mayor last fall to become Lake county treasurer. Smith was city comptroller at the time and automatically succeeded to the office of mayor.

In the Republican primary there are three candidates, Roy E. Church, Frank J. Piper, and William M. Thompson. Five candidates have filed for the position of city clerk to fill the Spoerner vacancy.

Woman in East Chicago Race.

In East Chicago, Mayor Frank Migas is facing five opponents on the Democratic ticket. Other candidates are L. D. Hunt, George W. Lamb, city councilman, Mrs. Lloyia Donora, the first woman ever to run for this office, William Keller, and Alois Moldroske. The two Republican candidates are Harry L. Davis and Stanley Wieklinski.

The Whiting mayor, James T. McNamara, has no opposition for the Republican nomination. The Democratic race finds Louis Opachan, chief deputy recorder of Lake county, running against Andrew Kozacik and Stanley Shebish, city councilman. Opachan was barely defeated for mayor in the election four years ago.

Hobart has Fred Rose Jr., the Republican incumbent, running against John Barkert, while the Democratic contest is between William T. Distell and Henry E. Keilman.

The Democratic congressional election in the 1st Indiana district is the scene of a battle to defeat William T. Schulte of Hammond. A split in the heavy labor vote has greatly increased the chances of success for Ray J. Madden, former Lake County treasurer, who is running for the Democratic nomination. On the Republican side Samuel W. Cullison is opposing Robert W. Moore. Both of the latter are residents of Gary.

B'nai B'rith Bowlers.

The fourth annual banquet of the South Side B'nai B'rith bowling club will be held tomorrow evening at the Windermere East hotel. Club officers are Al Stone, president; Fred Wolff, vice president, and L. S. Moser, secretary.

JAMES SHERIDAN WINS ORATORY CONTEST, HIS THIRD IN TWO YEARS

James Sheridan.

James Sheridan, 8124 St. Lawrence avenue, won another oratorical contest recently, the third triumph of this kind during the last two years. James' latest feat was taking first place among 24 contestants representing four midwestern states at Notre Dame university.

In recognition of his winning, the Wranglers club, sponsors of the competition, presented him with two trophies, one for himself and the other for Leo High school, where he is a senior. In March James won the Catholic High school oratorical contest at Fenwick High school, for which he was given a gold cup, and a year ago he placed first in the American Legion's Cook county contest.

As a reward for the latter he was given a scholarship to the University of Illinois. James studies at the Chicago School of Expression and Dramatic Art and is prominent in the Leo Dramatic club.

Auburn Park Male Chorus to Give Concert Tuesday

Auburn Park Male chorus will be heard in a spring concert at the Brookline Presbyterian church, 73d street and Maryland avenue, at 8 o'clock Tuesday. The church choir and soloists also will be on the program. Miss Ann McIlhenny, 7418 Ellis avenue, is church organist and chairman of the program.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, May 4

The home gardener will do well to observe the plants that grow best in various locations. When passing thru city areas plants like the iris, daylily, and sedum spectable are seen in numbers. In fact, iris appears everywhere, but it is best to grow a few of the better varieties than to continue growing the oldtime yellow.

Iris should be transplanted after flowering. Apply a scattering of commercial plant food along the sides of strawberry plants and hoe it under.

Tuesday, May 5

Many soils lack humus [decayed animal and vegetable matter] and by spreading a layer two or three inches thick over the surface before digging it will be very beneficial. Mushroom manure, compost, leafmold, or peat are excellent.

Sweet peas are well along by this time. Thin out to six or eight inches between the plants and if mildew is present, spray with Bordeaux mixture.

Wednesday, May 6

Choose a quiet, cloudy day when setting out seedlings, and if the plants are long and spindly plant somewhat deeper than usual, altho the tops must not be buried. The reason many seeds fail to germinate freely is because of dry soil.

When sowing place burlap, cloth, or newspaper over the seedbed to hold the moisture and shade the bed but uncover when the seeds have germinated. Many of the finer seeds, like the petunia, fail on this account.

Thursday, May 7

Use annual flowering plants in bulb beds after the latter have flowered. Annuals give color to the garden and they are so easily grown that a fine effect can be obtained the first season. Persons moving into new homes in open areas will find they can enjoy fine gardens if they will use this group of plants.

Make the beds along the side of the yard and at the alley end. Use tall kinds in the rear and dwarf kinds in the front.

Friday, May 8

Thin all plants to enable each one to have space to develop. The vegetable garden is well under way. Do not attempt to grow root crops in clay soil; grow them in good, well drained, well enriched sandy loam.

Sow Kentucky wonder pole beans along the fences about the time apple trees are in bloom. Lima beans are more tender and should not be sown until later.

Saturday, May 9

Plant in long rows for vegetable growing rather than in small beds for cultivation is much easier. Plant sweet corn in several rows together rather than a single row; use in blocks even tho they are small rows. Pollen must be carried to each plant to insure good ears.

Do not mulch the ground during wet weather or disease may result. Wait until about July 1 when hot weather prevails and the soil is dry.

HINTS ON CARE OF HEATING AND PLUMBING UNITS

Few Replacements to Be Available During War.

[Don't forget to visit the annual Chicago Home show which opened yesterday at the Coliseum. Jot it down on your calendar.]

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

That resolve to make the most of the things we have and insure for them long and healthy life has been put into action in most homes these days. Floors, walls, woodwork, screen blinds, electrical equipment, and heating and plumbing units, fixtures, and fittings are all in the limelight and stamped for care, and repair if necessary.

Plumbing and heating equipment is a vital part of every house, and any prompt repair made as soon as it is needed may mean that a major breakdown is avoided.

Plumbing and heating contractors are permitted to obtain the necessary material for emergency repairs, but the home owner is asked to take every precaution against replacement.

Hints for Preserving Utensils.

We know that no object is too small to pass over lightly; that even a small enamelware pan should not have cold water poured into it while it is hot, that cast iron utensils can have their life lengthened by baking soda in rinsing water to avoid rust; that strongly alkaline soaps and harsh abrasives should be avoided in the upkeep of aluminum and that tinware should not be scoured since the thin coating of the tin, once worn away, leaves the iron base exposed and liable to rust.

And for the proper conservation of larger items, such as water heaters, drains, chromium plated fittings, sinks, tubs, water closets, heating equipment, and the like come money and metal saving hints:

Advice on Water Heater.

Have a master plumber advise on safe maximum water temperature and have heater adjusted to it; hot water is more corrosive than cold water.

Polish hinges of closet seats with metal polish and replace any worn float valve and old or deformed tank balls of water closet.

Pour scalding water down drain pipes at least once a day for long periods of freedom from congealed and clogged lines.

Keep fans and motors of oil burners clean and lubricate frequently, and have oil service man or heating contractor check air volume and controls.

In case chromium plating is exposed to salt air, salt, or calcium chloride it can be given a protective coating of furniture wax after it has been thoroly washed and dried.

Fill Coal Bins Early.

New bins for coal storage are already in the process of building since home owners are urged to store every ton of coal they may need for next winter, now if possible, and to build extra bins if space is available.

Coal should not be stored near any external sources of heat, and old coal should not be allowed to accumulate in corners or on the bottom of bins or piles. Practice dictates that coal should not be piled higher than 12 to 15 feet, tho this is not a law. Eliminate all oily rags or paper from contact with coal while it is being stored and afterward.

For defense work and for radiator replacement in a home where a radiator has broken down completely, small tube radiators are available which require much less metal. Manufacturers will no longer make the large tube radiators, but concentrate on the slimmer ones, which will save more than 11,000 tons of cast iron annually.

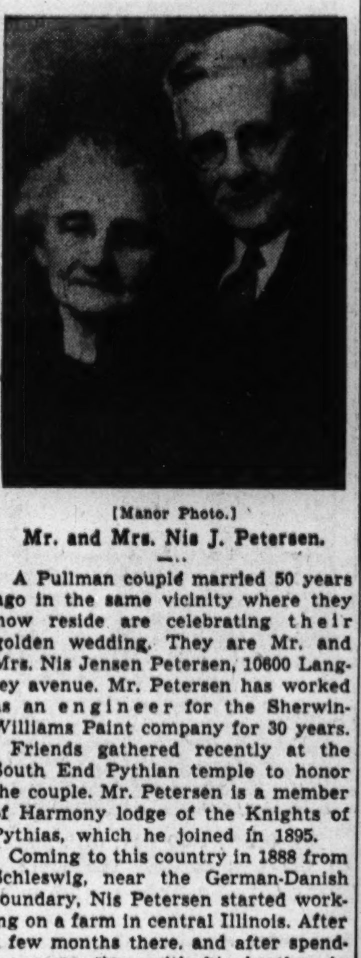
50 Years Together



[Manor Photo.]
Mr. and Mrs. Nis J. Petersen.

A Pullman couple married 50 years ago in the same vicinity where they now reside are celebrating their golden wedding. They are Mr. and Mrs. Nis Jensen Petersen, 10600 Langley avenue. Mr. Petersen has worked as an engineer for the Sherwin-Williams Paint company for 30 years.

Friends gathered recently at the South End Pythian temple to honor the couple. Mr. Petersen is a member of Harmony lodge of the Knights of Pythias, which he joined in 1895.

Coming to this country in 1888 from Schleswig, near the German-Danish boundary, Nis Petersen started working on a farm in central Illinois. After a few months there, and after spending some time with his brother in Minnesota, he came to East Chicago in 1889. His first permanent job was with the Allen Paper mill.

His sweetheart, Maria, journeyed from Europe a year later and did housework in Chicago a few months until the young couple married in April, 1892. In 1894 Mr. Petersen became a citizen thru the regular naturalization procedure, and his wife shared the new status of her husband.

The Petersens have two children living. A son, Jens, was killed at the age of 32 in an automobile accident in 1926. The two children are Mrs. Helene Dykstra of 19 West 108th street and Mrs. Christine Seeder, 10600 Langley avenue.

Film Showing Nazi Attack to Be Viewed at U. of C.

The documentary film, "Lights Out in Europe," will be presented in the Social Science building at the University of Chicago at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening. The film, believed to be the last made in Poland and France before their collapse, shows preparations for air raid and gas attack in the continental cities, and portions of the actual Nazi attack, according to Robert E. Lewis, head of the documentary film group presenting the picture.

LIST SUGAR REGISTRATION PLACES

TIME TO REPORT BASED ON LAST NAME INITIAL

Four Day Task Will Start Tomorrow.

All is in readiness for the registration of millions of sugar users in the Chicago area who will visit their public elementary schools during the next four days to qualify for the ration books without which the purchase of sugar in its various forms is henceforth prohibited. This was announced by Michael F. Mulcahy, state rationing administrator for the Chicago area.

More than 15,000 elementary teachers and volunteer workers will aid in the huge task, which will start tomorrow morning and end late Thursday, Mulcahy said. The schools will be open for registration from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. each day.

One Can Represent Family.

One person may register for his or her entire family, the rationing authorities have ruled. Thus it will not be necessary for each individual sugar user to visit the local registration point. The books to be issued on the basis of this week's registration may later be used in the rationing of other commodities besides sugar.

The commercial users of sugar were similarly registered in the high schools last Tuesday. The registrants included 21,025 retailers, wholesalers, industries, and institutions. They are already receiving sugar purchase certificates.

In Chicago, the applicants for this week's registration will be registered in public elementary schools according to ward boundaries. In the suburbs the schools are divided according to ration board districts, which follow township boundaries.

The addresses of the schools in Chicago, and other information concerning the registration machinery setup in both the city and the suburbs appears elsewhere in these columns.

Listed by Alphabet.

Registrants are expected to visit the elementary schools in accordance with a schedule based upon the alphabetical arrangement of the initials of last names, Mulcahy said. This is the schedule:

Last Name Initial.	Registration Period.
A-B	Monday morning
C-D-E	Monday afternoon
F-G-H	Tuesday morning
I-J-K-L	Tuesday afternoon
M-N	Wednesday morning
O-P-Q-R	Wednesday afternoon
S	Thursday morning
T to Z	Thursday afternoon

If a registrant finds it impossible to register on the day assigned in the above schedule, he can make arrangements at his registration place to sign up on some other day in the registration period.

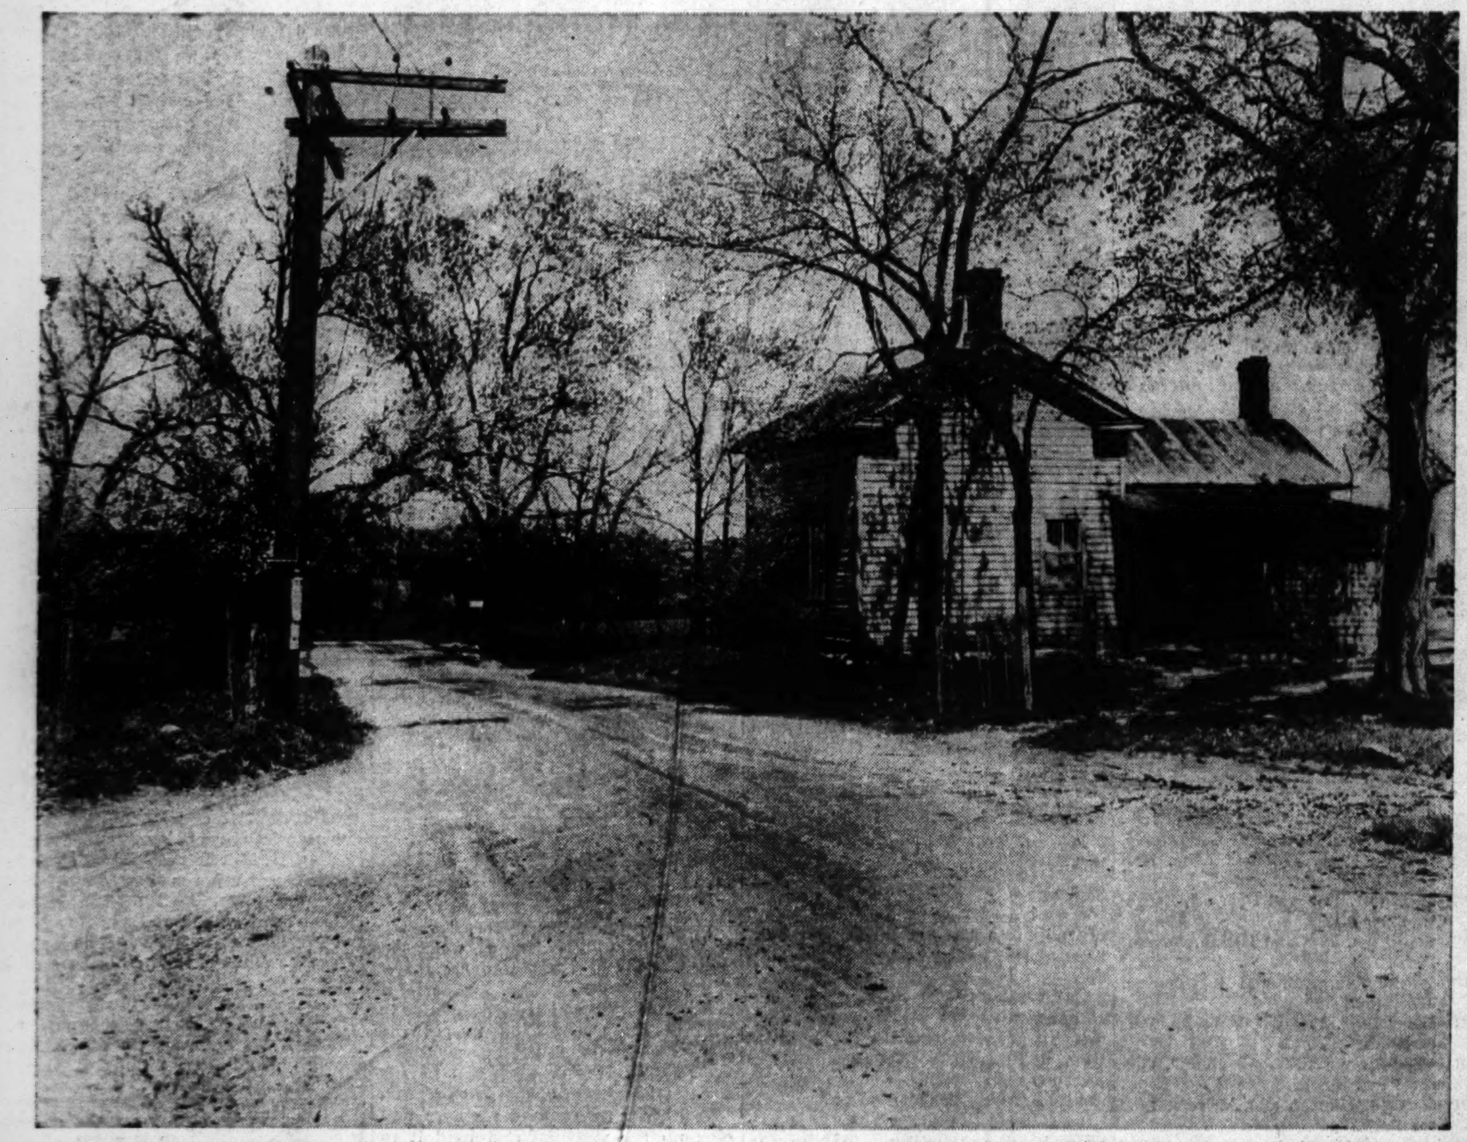
Another Spring Decorates Streets of Old Canal Town of Tiedtville

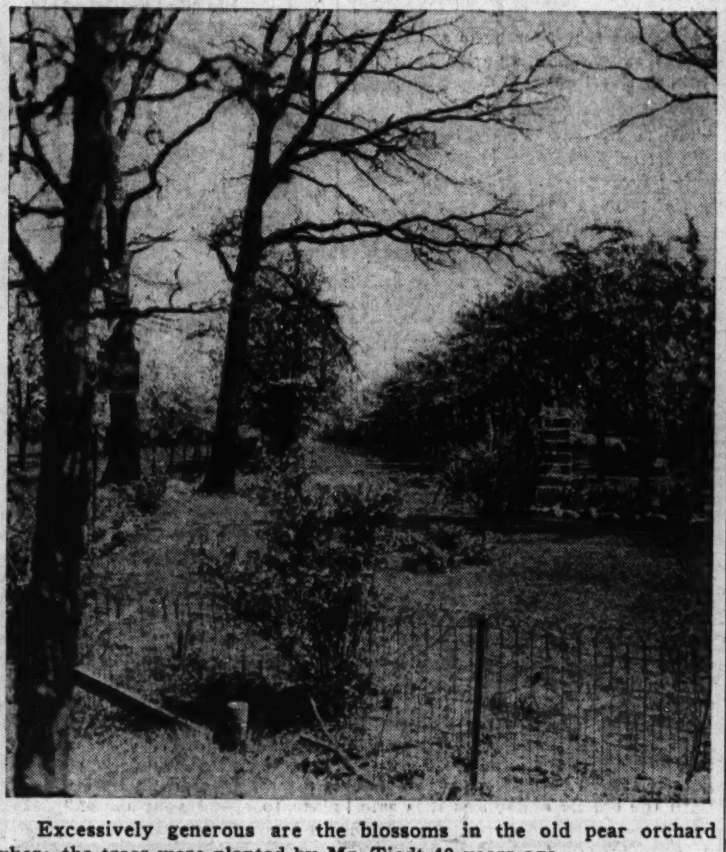


Wolf road coming down thru the west suburbs from the north starts to wind as it nears the Des Plaines river and the old canal town of Tiedtville. At the entrance to main street stands the birthplace of Frederick C. Tiedt, son of the town's founder.

Twice in its history a roaring community as the canals were being developed, Tiedtville today welcomes the bursting of another spring undisturbed by a world in chaos. Changes along main street are only such as the season brings. The lone pedestrian is Howard Tiedt of the third generation of Tiedts.

This May, Frederick C. Tiedt is observing his 50th anniversary as the only storekeeper in the village. Along with conducting the general store he serves as postmaster. At intervals he locks up to catch the mail as it is tossed out by the fast moving Santa Fe which has its tracks along the river's edge.

Richard Prescott decides to join his nephew, Emery Tiedt, on the other side of the fence at a bit of gardening. The row of catalpa trees at the left are slow in putting forth their leafage, but otherwise the first week of May finds expression thru all growing things.



Excessively generous are the blossoms in the old pear orchard where the trees were planted by Mr. Tiedt 40 years ago.

[TRIBUNE Photos by Julius Gantter.]

General Store Is Monument to Boom Town

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

When it's pear blossom time in Tiedtville, the effect has a charm only to be found in a little town that has grown old with the slightest possible concession to the changes of a tumultuous world. Other towns may straighten their streets, pave them, give them names, darken them with tall buildings. Tiedtville has remained what it was at the beginning—a one-store town beside the river at the end of a winding road.

Despite its proximity to Chicago, Tiedtville has escaped all semblance of being a suburb. It stands as unincorporated as on the day it took its name from John Tiedt who, a century ago, came to the locality to work on the Illinois and Michigan canal.

50 Years in Store.

Just as there are towns that were once mining towns, river towns, and cattle towns, so Tiedtville was once a canal town. When excitement of digging the early canal died down, John Tiedt turned to farming. When history repeated and the Chicago Drainage canal was developed in roaring 1892, John Tiedt opened a general store on the west bank of the Des Plaines river. A son, Frederick C. Tiedt, at 22, came to work in the store. That was 50 years ago this spring. "F. C." has been in the store ever since.

Mr. Tiedt was reminded of the anniversary as he finished waiting on a woman with a babe in her arms who had had trouble remembering the items on her shopping list. During a lull, he doubled as postmaster and, without waiting for the request, stuffed his neighbor's mail into her grocery sack. Shortly before he had caught the mail on a crane as the Santa Fe whistled thru. There are train sounds in Tiedtville but no train stops. Beyond the river and the old and new canals are also the Chicago and Alton tracks.

Everything for the Family.

One of the customer's wants was located on a shelf over in what had once been the gent's furnishings department. There had been a time when families had driven in to be outfitted from head to foot.

Reminded again of his 50th anniversary in conducting the same sort of business in the selfsame spot, Mr. Tiedt at first opined that really the store had undergone little change. Daily routine has a tendency to blur and blend the erase of adjustment.

The hitching posts that once stood in front of the store with its broad wooden awning? "That's so," said Mr. Tiedt. "We took them out 40 years ago. After we quit the hanging kerosene lamps, we had our own electric plant. Then, 10 years ago, we connected up with the public service."

The general store that, under other circumstances, might have become a department store, is still heated with a stove. Beside it were logs cut from the nearby timber. Close to the worn fender was a lone chair. It was empty. Perhaps the space required for a varied assortment of merchandise precluded facilities offering an invitation to philosophical loafers.

Memory of Cracker Barrel.

Two brown, well worn barrels and a much used scale on the counter spoke of the days when coffee and crackers and sugar had been sold by bulk rather than in fancy packages.

Mr. Tiedt made but one reference to the problems of the small business man. He said that at one time he had received so many eggs in exchange for goods that he hadn't known what to do with them.

"I only know about the Illinois and Michigan canal from hearsay," said Mr. Tiedt, "ut in the '90s there were 2,000 canal workers along here, 500 to the mile. When the job was finished most of the men followed up other public works, many of them

MARK 70 YEARS OF METHODISM AT LA GRANGE

Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, taking for his topic "The Church," will preach the sermon at 11 o'clock this morning as part of the 70th anniversary observance of the First Methodist church, La Grange.

At an anniversary banquet in the church dining room Wednesday night guests will be former pastors of the church and Dr. John M. Schneider. Next Sunday morning the guest preacher will be Dr. Martin J. Magor, former pastor of the church, whose theme will be "Facing Life's Greatest Problem."

History of the church is being compiled by a committee made up of H. F. Wagner, chairman; George M. Davis, Harry E. De Camp, and W. W. Gothard.

Services Held in Home.

The church had its beginning in 1872 when services were held in the home of Isaac P. Poinier. Later, in the same year, the Methodist society was organized by the Rev. W. C. Dandy, presiding elder. The Rev. A. G. Parish, visiting preacher, was assisted by students from Evanston.

Upon the completion of a school building at the southwest corner of Cossitt and Madison avenues, site of the present church, services were held in the structure with Mr. Poinier acting as Sunday school superintendent, organist, and janitor. Often he carried coal from his own home to heat the building for church use. The first resident pastor, 1875 to 1877, was the Rev. William H. Holmes.

Much credit for the growth of the church is given the ladies' aid society. A donation of land for a new church was obtained from F. D. Cossitt, but the project was dropped when several members moved away and the land, reverting to Mr. Cossitt, was later used as the site for the Congregational church.

Meet at Railroad Depot.

For a time members of the society joined persons of other denominations in services held in the railroad station, with the Rev. Mr. Metcalf, the station agent and a Baptist preacher, in charge.

From the records of Mrs. Frank York, it is learned that the First Methodist church of La Grange was organized in 1884, with W. B. Frazells as pastor. Services were held in the old Masonic hall and other buildings. The pastor's salary for the year was $216.

Pastors thru the years have been as follows:

The Rev. R. W. Farquhar, 1885-'86; the Rev. E. N. Currier, 1886-'88; the Rev. M. E. Fawcett, 1888-'90; the Rev. Alfred H. Henry, 1890-'91; the Rev. Milton M. Bales, 1891-'94; the Rev. E. E. McKay, 1894-'96; the Rev. J. Franklin Chancy, 1896-'97; the Rev. W. E. Wilkinson and wife, 1897-'98; the Rev. John T. Pierce, 1898-'99; the Rev. N. P. Tedrick, 1899-1901; the Rev. Grover C. Bush That Blossomed for Nation's First Memorial Day Again to Share Its Lilacs

[Announcement of the days selected as Lilac days and other information on the annual community gift of flowers appears in the main news section of today's Sunday Tribune.]

Lilacs from the Lyman homestead in Downers Grove come from bushes that are nearly 100 years old. The main stems are as thick as the trunks of small trees and the clumps shade spacious places in the yard. Each year of the Share Your Lilacs campaign their blooms have added to the offerings of the Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit guild, which cooperates with THE TRIBUNE in making it possible for shut-ins to enjoy the springtime beauty and fragrance.

There are many old lilac bushes in Du Page county. Early settlers sought to give their new homes something of the atmosphere of the neighborhood they had left in the east. There are instances where the house itself has vanished but the sturdy lilacs continue to bloom year after year beside what was once a doorstep or the path to a roadside gate.

The Lyman homestead at 900 Ogden avenue is said to be the only one in Du Page county where the family name is the same as that when the place was settled a century ago.

Settled in 1839.

To the acres beside Ogden avenue, then the Old Plank road, the Rev. Orange Lyman came in 1839. As a home missionary, he had migrated west from Ohio with the shift of settlements. He died in 1851.

Henry Martin Lyman, a son, died in 1894. Walter Lyman, a grandson, was born on the place in 1854 and died there in 1926. Mrs. Walter Lyman has resided at the home 19 years. She said the old lilac bushes were planted by the wife of the Rev. Orange Lyman. They are of the old-fashioned purple variety.

When Gen. John A. Logan designated May 30, 1868 for the purpose of strewing with flowers the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country during the Civil war, the Lyman lilac bushes responded. They had been a part of the setting when Capt. Walter Blanchard had drilled his company on Maple avenue. Their blooms were carried on Memorial day by members of Walter Blanchard post and, as the years passed, for departed members.

Bloom Year After Year.

Of the 59 men who enlisted from Du Page county for the Spanish-American war in 1898, 12 were from Downers Grove. History as it was being unfolded in the village dovetailed with history of the nation. The lilacs bloomed when men went away and after men came back. Their message remained steadfast in a world of change.

Time came when Alexander Bradley Burns post of the American Legion was formed with many members in the village. Lilacs along the street had become more firmly interwoven into the lives of the people. Whims of the weather might influence the period and the extent of their blooming but they never failed the townspeople.

More than any person living, the lilacs have witnessed the passing epochs of village history. Another war, more world shaking than any of its predecessors now has reached into the routine of the community. With all of their kind in all the yards in the Chicagoland area, and with all who share in their significance, the Downers Grove lilacs are ready to blossom again.

HERE IS SECOND DEFENSE LESSON IN CLASS SERIES

Workers Learn Methods of Protection.

M. J. Corrigan.

To assist the more than 300,000 civilian defense workers in Chicago now attending basic training classes of the OCD, THE TRIBUNE is publishing the series of lessons prepared by the OCD training division.

The series is intended to refresh workers on their classroom studies and give them a permanent record for reference. THE TRIBUNE makes no effort to interpret these courses since they are self-explanatory. Lesson No. 2 follows. Lesson No. 3 will appear in next Sunday's Metropolitan section.

Training is in charge of experts in the various fields. Marshal M. J. Corrigan of the Chicago fire department directs the training of the volunteer fire fighters.

PROTECTIVE AND UTILITY SERVICES.

Warning and Spotting.

A civilian air raid warning system is organized to give warning of approaching enemy aircraft in order that steps may be taken in ample time to preserve life and property.

The civilian system goes into action when the district warning center receives a report from the United States military regional information center. The air raid warning goes from the district warning center to the control center of the civilian defense communications network.

Air raid warning messages, by following colors are issued over the telephone or flashed by light bulbs:

1. Yellow—Alert, preliminary caution by telephone to civilian protective services, police, fire, utilities, defense works, blast furnaces, and other industrial centers.
2. Blue—Alert, lights warning, to factories lights out.
3. Red — To siren operators, sound sirens, public take cover.
4. White—Raiders passed, all clear signals.

Standard air raid sound signals for warning to the public are:

1. Red—By siren of two minutes duration with fluctuating pitch.
2. White—A continuous siren signal of two minutes duration with a steady pitch.

Civilian spotters are used as roof spotters by day, as fire watchers by night. Training of spotter takes several weeks as spotter tries to learn:

1. Types and construction of enemy planes.
2. Distinctive sound of enemy planes.
3. Estimate where bombs will drop, for example: Bomb dropped from 5,000 feet will hit 1¼ miles away from the point at which it is dropped in 17.6 seconds, and a bomb dropped at 40,000 feet will hit 3¼ miles away from the point at which it is dropped in 49.7 seconds.

Blackout and Camouflage.

Blackout is a condition under which lights are extinguished or effectively screened, and light reflecting surfaces darkened. It does not conceal the presence of cities, because cities are easily located even at night. Blackout, however, will make it difficult to find the specific targets with the cities.

Blackout methods include:

1. Turning out lights.
2. Covering windows with opaque curtains, plywood screens, or papering.
3. Use of mats or mattresses over windows.
4. Adhesive stripping or fine wire mesh over windows to prevent glass shattering.
5. Blue filter over windows, with red electric bulbs to neutralize lights.

Traffic signals and auto headlights are hooded and painted over except for small slits; house or shop entrance can be blacked out by constructing a large hooded tunnel [light lock].

Aid during blackout includes white or luminous painting on curbs, signs, and fenders of cars. Pedestrians may wear reflecting discs on belts.

Camouflage is the technique of disguising a target by making it blend in with its natural surroundings. Altho it is essentially a military function, camouflage by civilian authorities may include:

1. Changing of light pattern of city.
2. Counter shading by elimination of shadows.
3. Using of paint as protective coloration.
4. Decoying or imitating by false models.
5. Blotting out areas with smudge.

Fire Defense.

One medium bomber can carry 1,000 to 2,000 two pound incendiary bombs. These bombs cannot be extinguished in the usual manner with water or with commercial extinguishers. The bomb may be put out with dry sand or scooped up on a shovel, put in a pail with sand in it, or sprayed with a hose. The standard equipment to fight the incendiary bomb consists of dry sand, long handled shovels, buckets of water, or a stirrup pump with a long hose and a dual nozzle for spray or jet.

Gas Defense.

Gas has not been used in this war except in China and Ethiopia. However, it is best to be prepared since there is less chance then of its being attempted. The object of using gas is not to kill but to demoralize the population. Not all gases are gaseous. Many are liquids, like mustard and Lewisite. The methods of using gas are by spraying or by bomb. Gas identification is a highly expert process.

Gas decontamination is the process of removing gas by:

1. Destroying or neutralizing liquid gas by bleaching powder or by other chemicals or by burning.
2. Removing by washing away with water.
3. Covering the liquid gas with earth, after which natural action will destroy it.

The gas alarm is a different sound from the sound of an air raid siren. Bells, rattles, or klaxons are utilized. All civilian defense workers are required to have an elementary course in gas defense.

Bomb Disposal.

Types of bombs are contact bombs, delayed action bombs, and time bombs.

The delayed action bomb has a delayed action fuse which needs 1 to 10 seconds to set off the explosive charge, after it has penetrated its target. The delayed action or unexploded bomb [UXB] is used to disrupt the normal activities of a region as well as to destroy by blast. The removal of the unexploded time bomb is a highly technical, as well as a dangerous task, and requires trained experts.

Steps taken to lessen the potential damage of an unexploded bomb are:

1. Evacuation of area of all occupants.
2. Barricading of area and posting a guard.
3. Use of a special bomb removal squad to remove bomb, allowing only one person to be near bomb at a time.
4. Loading bomb on a special truck operated by one man who will drive it to an isolated spot where bomb will be rendered harmless.

Ambulance and First Aid.

Many more are injured and shocked than are killed in air raids. To care for these casualties large first aid squads contain about four physicians, four nurses, and four orderlies.

First aid posts should be provided thruout the community, not only at hospitals. Ambulances must be supplemented by cars for situp cases.

Police.

The duties of police are to help wardens in:

1. Enforcing blackouts.
2. Prevent looting in blackouts or air raids.
3. Enforce traffic control in order to keep streets clear for emergency cars.
4. Do patrol work.

The auxiliary police force is made up of volunteers organized and trained under the regular police department for aid in emergencies. Training schools are being set up under supervision of the police training division.

Roads and Transportation.

Interruption of transportation services by bombs disrupts the daily travel of workers, thus slowing down production and delivery of food and supplies.

To prevent transportation tieups:

1. Road blocks and detour routes must be planned.
2. Road repair material and personnel must be ready.
3. Auxiliary traffic officers must be trained.
4. Express routes for buses and street cars to by-pass bombed areas must be provided.

Rescue Squad Service.

The rescue squad must be able to support or demolish walls before tunneling for victims. Because of such special problems in rescue procedure, rescue squad men should be recruited from:

Miners, house wreckers, scaffolders, structural steel erectors, plumbers, electricians, handymen, and helpers.

Water Supply.

In wartime water is not only important for the normal needs of the civilian population, but also for the efficiency of any fire fighting organization. Increase in available flow can be obtained by providing supplementary water mains, or establishing water reservoirs at specified points.

Where water has been shut off or bombed out it may be necessary to have water carts to distribute water, or gasoline and milk tank trucks may be used for this purpose. If there are any boilers in the affected area depending on the water supply for water, the engineers must be warned to pull their fires in order to prevent explosions.

The purity of water must be maintained. It is assumed that all water in the affected area will be contaminated. It will be dangerous to drink until the official announces it is safe.

Win State Contest for Stage Work

First place in a state-wide play competition was won by these five Trinity High school seniors who presented a portion of "Ladies in Retirement." They are, left to right, Claire Burns, Audrey Smith, Helen McSweeney, Marie Petrillo, and Marilyn Keeley. Miss Frances Young directed the production.

going to Chicago to work on the water tunnel."

Descendants of Carl Bachmann also still reside in the community, Mr. Bachmann having been less nomadic than his companions.

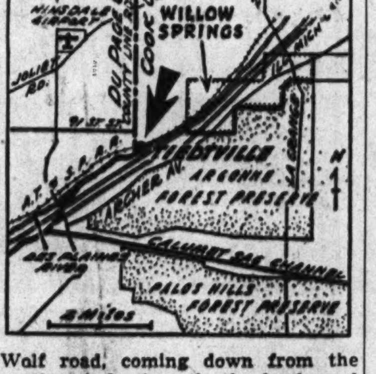
"This place was an Indian camp when my father arrived here," said Mr. Tiedt. "He found their tepee poles still standing. Thousands of them were transferred to a reservation in Minnesota."

Blacksmith Moves.

At one time Tiedtville had a blacksmith shop operated by Charles Ogren who still continues in the business at Lisle. The house where Mr. Tiedt was born still stands but he resides in a more pretentious dwelling across the street.

The apple and pear orchards were planted by Mr. Tiedt 40 years ago, and the catalpa trees that shade both sides of Main street some eight years earlier.

In the '90s there was a footbridge across the Des Plaines, but today



Wolf road, coming down from the north, winds thru the lowlands and comes abruptly to a stop in front of the store, which is built of stones taken from the nearby fields.

The war has touched Tiedtville in proportion to its population. Wilbert Tiedt, a nephew of the store owner, is cook in an army camp in Wyoming. The town has no draft board. Robert Stoker is coördinator for civilian defense.

The merchant of Tiedtville keeps open from 8 to 8. He remains after hours to do his bookkeeping, and he goes to bed at least without any troubled thoughts about local business rivals.

His only competition, he says, is the car. Maybe he'll be able to say "was" the car. His booster slogan on the occasion of his 50th anniversary as Tiedtville's sole store owner is simply this:

"If the place where you are born is a good place, why isn't it a good place to spend your days?"

In 1886 the board of trustees purchased a school building and two lots at the site of the present church. The building was remodeled for a place of worship and served until a new church was dedicated in 1895. In 1908 the official board authorized the extension of what is called the "Green room," and a Sunday school annex was dedicated in 1917.

During the first World war 45 young men of the church joined the nation's armed forces. Four who made the supreme sacrifice were Louis H. Bright, Robert C. Cline, Archie L. Lake, and Harry R. Potter.

The most recent conference figures show that the church has an actual membership of 1,027 and 192 nonresident members. The Epworth league was one of the earliest in the district to obtain a charter.

AMERICA LOVES MELODY MOVES TO LATER HOUR

Song Program Scheduled on W-G-N, 8 to 9 P. M.

Two song dramatizations will highlight the broadcast of America Loves a Melody over W-G-N, W59C, and the coast to coast Mutual Broadcasting system next Saturday evening. Starting on this date the program will be presented a half hour later than heretofore. The new broadcast hour is 8 to 9 p. m.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will be the speaker.

* * *

The song spots will feature Miss Marion Claire as the soloist, supported by the W-G-N orchestra, directed by Henry Weber. Thomas L. Thomas, Metropolitan opera baritone, will be guest singer. Stories behind their favorite song as submitted by listeners will be depicted in these presentations. Two $25 cash awards are made each week for the best letters telling the story of songs.

The song stories for next Saturday will feature Miss Claire singing "Alice Blue Gown" from "Irene" and "My Hero" from "The Chocolate Soldier."

* * *

Miss Claire also will sing "Ave Maria" as the special request of the Marion Claire club of Gary, Ind. Forty members of the club headed by their chairman, Mrs. Mary Galumbus, will be in the audience.

Mr. Thomas will sing "Siboney." He will also join Miss Claire in selections from "Vagabond King" and "Show Boat."

The orchestra will offer a special arrangement of "America Marches On." The chorus will be under the direction of Robert Trendler. Kenneth MacGregor will be the producer.

PLAN RED CROSS FOOD, MUNITION HOUR ON W-G-N

A new food and nutrition series to be conducted by the American Red Cross will be heard on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 9:45 to 10 a. m. on Saturday mornings beginning May 9.

Alida Drake of the nutrition department of the Red Cross will be instructor on the new program. She has been heard on many W-G-N programs recently, among them "Dollar Stretchers."

Myrtle Stahl, educational director of W-G-N, said the new series will endeavor to explain the value of foods, vitamins and calories, and at the same time make the listening public as food conscious as they are war conscious. The program will debunk the current idea that people will be seriously handicapped by the sugar shortage, for it will be shown that a sugar substitute is contained in many foods we eat.

The program will originate in the main audience studio of W-G-N. After the program each Saturday members of the studio audience will hear a 45 minute lecture by Miss Drake in which she will explain her ideas with the use of charts. The public is invited.

HOOVER, M'NUTT TO SPEAK OVER W-G-N THURSDAY

Herbert Hoover, former President of the United States, and Paul McNutt, administrator of federal security, will speak on a special broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Thursday evening.

The broadcast will come from the Drake hotel, where Hoover and McNutt will address delegates to the 36th annual convention of the Boys' Clubs of America. Mr. Hoover is chairman of the organization's board of directors.

Girl and Seeing Eye Dog on Becker Show Today

Miss Bernice Clifton, 132 North Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, and her famous Seeing Eye dog, Dr. Karla, will be guests on Bob Becker's Chats About Dogs show at 1 p. m. today. During the last year Karla has been Miss Clifton's only companion and guide in the course of 10,000 miles of travel. Miss Clifton will tell how the Seeing Eye dogs are trained and how they take their owners thru traffic.

Plan to Give Navy Hand.

Billy Mills and his Fibber McGee and Molly bandsmen will help the United States navy dedicate the huge naval air cadet barracks and recreation center at Long Beach, Calif., early in June.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, sponsor of the program, will salute Morgan Park Military academy and its superintendent, Col. Harry D. Abells, will give the principal address, outlining the history of the school since its beginning in 1873.

The academy chorus of 50 cadets, directed by Capt. Jean L. Taylor, will sing two numbers, "The Caissons Go Rolling Along" and "The White Cliffs of Dover."

Philip Maxwell, master of ceremonies, will announce the five members of a scholarship committee which will meet May 11 to administer the 40 scholarships which have been offered by that number of colleges and universities of the middle west to those on the Citizens of Tomorrow Honor Roll.

Maxwell also will nominate two more high school seniors to the roll, Cadet Maj. Bill Kettering of Lemont, a student at the academy who will be interviewed, and Jack Cunningham, honor student, athlete, and musician of Janesville, Wis.

KEEPING BLOOMS FRESH IS LILAC DAY REQUISITE

Wrapping Helps Assure Better Bouquets.

The happiness and moral courage that flowers bring to the sick and shut-ins make the 14th annual "Share Your Lilacs" campaign more important than ever this wartime year, according to officials of the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild.

For this reason guild officials are urging every lilac donor to take special care in cutting, wrapping, and shipping the blooms. With warm weather rushing the appearance of the flowers everywhere flower lovers are getting ready to gather the lilacs. Here are some recommendations offered by the guild for handling the blossoms.

Cut lilacs the afternoon before lilac day. The stems should be cut 14 to 18 inches below the flower head, preferably just above where they branch from the main stem.

Size for Bouquets.

A proper sized bouquet can be made by tying as many stems as can be held in one hand. The cut flowers should be placed in tubs or pails of water over night. Early the next morning the bunches should be wrapped in damp newspaper and tied. The paper should cover the blooms but must not compress them.

Where there is a choice, cut blooms that are just opening rather than those that are full blown. If the lilacs are placed in cartons the blooms should not extend over the sides, as they are easily damaged.

Each year lilacs are gathered from yards, gardens, estates, and casual bushes thruout Chicagoland for the enjoyment of the city's shut-ins. The lilac campaign is sponsored jointly by the guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Eight Railroads Aiding.

This year eight railroads have volunteered to bring the bouquets into the city from suburban areas freight free. Much of the success of the lilac campaign is due to the cooperation of the railroads in making speedy delivery of the blooms to terminals in the city so that hospital patients can enjoy them while they still retain their country freshness.

Railroads that will take part in the drive this year are the Chicago and North Western, Illinois Central, Rock Island, Aurora and Elgin, North Shore Electric, Burlington, Chicago. Milwaukee and St. Paul, and the Pennsylvania.

Last year the trains brought in more than 100,000 bouquets. They filled the baggage cars, and in many cases overflowed into the passenger cars. Upon delivery at the terminal the blooms were picked up by a fleet of Tribune trucks and delivered to the various hospitals and institutions thruout the city. Bouquets were given to 25,000 patients in 158 hospitals, orphanages, and old people's homes.

WASHINGTON, D.C., PASTOR TO TALK AT SUNDAY CLUB

Dr. Peter Marshall.

The Rev. Dr. Peter Marshall, young Scotch minister of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, Washington, D.C., the church Abraham Lincoln attended, will be the speaker at 8 o'clock tonight at the Chicago Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall. Since 1937 he has been associated with historic New York Avenue church, known as the "Church of the Presidents." His talk tonight will be preceded by music by the club choir of 125 voices under direction of Edgar Nelson. Edward Hall Taylor, a trustee, will read the Scripture.

At 7 o'clock Dr. Charles T. Holman of the University of Chicago divinity school will begin a new series of Bible talks, and the Melodists, a group of 33 choristers from city churches, will sing.

WAR GARDEN IS HAPPY PROJECT FOR NEIGHBORS

Dozen Families Sharing Work—and Products.

BY MAURINE MYERS.

Tables in the vicinity of 5438 Ferdinand street should be amply provided with home grown vegetables this summer if present plans of the amateur gardeners in that neighborhood materialize. A dozen households have combined forces to cultivate a large vacant lot, and within the next few weeks neat plots of vegetables will take the place of last year's desolate weed patch.

The project is under general direction of Frank L. Bennett, 5438 Ferdinand street, who serves also as war garden chairman of the central Austin community. When Mr. Bennett was a lad he lived near Canton, Ill., and operated a miniature truck garden, complete with a pony and cart for delivery purposes. The love of gardening has stayed with him, and each summer he helps with the vegetables on the farm of his wife's parents in Michigan.

The garden Mr. Bennett has planned is laid out on a lot where a residence once stood. The sidewalk still leads into the lot, and the gardeners plan to erect an arched trellis over this entrance bearing the official title of the war garden.

Provides Neighborly Atmosphere.

If matters progress as outlined the garden will produce more than vegetables. One gardener declares that already on warm evenings the lot resembles "Gasoline Alley," with the "farmers" leaning on rakes and hoes for a friendly chat.

O. F. Browder, 5319 Lake street, hasn't finished clearing the 20 by 40 foot plot where he plans to plant the "usual line of vegetables — radishes, onions, chard and salad trimmings." Thus far, however, he's found everything in the soil but Capt. Kidd's treasure—and he's still digging.

He hasn't had gardening callouses on his hands since the time he lived in Oak Park, nearly 15 years ago. Then his garden was an ambitious affair, the full length of a 125 foot lot. When he was a boy in a small town he did a lot of gardening, so it comes natural to him. His days are occupied with commercial art work in the firm of Jens E. Erikson, Inc., at 201 North Wells street. But his evenings from now on will be devoted to working his plot of garden.

Wife Plans Flower Bed.

Mrs. Browder will probably have a flower bed, and will help some with the vegetables. The Browders' 18 year old son, Frank, has "boats on his chest," as Mr. Browder puts it—and it is extremely dubious if he can be induced to leave the lake long enough this summer to help much in the garden.

It has been at least 20 years since Walter Hardwick, 509 North Lockwood avenue, put spade to soil. That was in the suburbs, and since he moved into Chicago he hasn't had much chance at gardening, until this year. A singer touring with the Mastersingers' quartet, he spends many months away from Chicago, but his schedule allows for time to be spent in his garden. Mrs. Hardwick will spend a lot of time in the garden this spring too, and their small son, Herbert, 3, already has his rake, hoe, and shovel busy on the tiny plot assigned to him.

Just what the Julian Mogensons will raise on their 20 by 20 plot is still a moot question. Mr. Mogenson declares they will probably realize a carrot or two from the garden once they get the plaster curried out of the soil. Mr. Mogenson once lived in Sheboygan, Wis., which he recalls was a city of gardens, and it was there he first learned how it was done.

First Gardening in 25 Years.

It has been 25 years since he planted his own rows of vegetables, but he declares that Mr. Bennett's enthusiasm for the project was so infectious no one could resist wanting to put out several acres in cabbages and corn. Mr. Mogenson will spend his hours away from his salesman's job in the garden plot, and with Mrs. Mogenson's help will harvest a good crop of eatables during the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Leathers, 527 North Pine avenue, have only a small plot, on which Mrs. Leathers plans to do most of the work. Armchair gardeners, they have been studying seed catalogs since January, and purchased their seeds weeks ago. Mrs. Leathers declares she is already brown from working the soil under the warm spring sun. She hopes to work off a few extra pounds, but is slightly dubious about the chances, since the outdoor work thus far has succeeded only in stimulating her appetite.

She has planted flowers every year for many seasons, but this is the first vegetable garden she has put in since the first World war. Her husband's duties as a salesman keep him busy for such long hours she doesn't anticipate he'll be able to join her often in hoeing and weeding operations.

Melons His Special Project.

They may not be full of vitamins, but melons are the special project of R. C. Lochman, 5438 Ferdinand street. An ambitious gardener, he plans to cultivate a large part of his plot in watermelons and muskmelons. Joking friends already have volunteered to take turns staying up nights, shotguns handy, to guard the melons as they ripen. The Lochmans are not new at gardening, for the lawn around the six apartment building they manage has won honors in garden competitions for a number of years.

Mr. Lochman, who is a contractor and builder by trade, has an uncle who is a landscape architect, and Mrs. Lochman believes there must be some inherited talent for gardening in the family.

Daughter of Nurseryman.

Mrs. W. B. Kingsbury, 5445 Race avenue, is the daughter of a nurseryman, and it was from her father she inherited the love of, and talent for, gardening. However, it has been at least 15 years since the Kingsburys planted any vegetables—and they are welcoming the opportunity to get back to raising their own wax beans, peas, carrots, and corn. The radishes and lettuce they have planted are already up.

The garden Mr. Bennett has organized is not the only one of its kind on the west side. Every week there are more plots, similar in size and arrangement. Mrs. Jules Myer, 725 North Central avenue, is chairman of the garden in her block, located at 729 North Central avenue. Already seven families have signed up and will cultivate plots large enough to furnish them with fresh garden stuff all summer.

Oak Park Girl Married

Mrs. Richard Rowland Jones, 500 North Euclid avenue, Oak Park, was formerly Miss Dorothy Jane Braese, daughter of Mrs. Otto C. Braese, 327 North Marion street, Oak Park.

HINTS ON CARE OF HEATING AND PLUMBING UNITS

Replacements Will Be Difficult to Get.

[Don't forget to visit the annual Chicago Home show which opened yesterday at the Coliseum. Jot it down on your calendar.]

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

That resolve to make the most of the things we have and insure for them long and healthy life has been put into action in most homes these days. Floors, walls, woodwork, screen blinds, electrical equipment, and heating and plumbing units, fixtures, and fittings are all in the limelight and stamped for care, and repair if necessary.

Plumbing and heating equipment is a vital part of every house, and any prompt repair made as soon as it is needed may mean that a major breakdown is avoided.

Plumbing and heating contractors are permitted to obtain the necessary material for emergency repairs, but the home owner is asked to take every precaution against replacement.

Hints for Preserving Utensils.

We know that no object is too small to pass over lightly; that even a small enamelware pan should not have cold water poured into it while it is hot, that cast iron utensils can have their life lengthened by baking soda in rinsing water to avoid rust; that strongly alkaline soaps and harsh abrasives should be avoided in the upkeep of aluminum and that tinware should not be scoured since the thin coating of the tin, once worn away, leaves the iron base exposed and liable to rust.

And for the proper conservation of larger items, such as water heaters, drains, chromium plated fittings, sinks, tubs, water closets, heating equipment, and the like come money and metal saving hints:

Advice on Water Heater.

Have a master plumber advise on safe maximum water temperature and have heater adjusted to it; hot water is more corrosive than cold water.

Polish hinges of closet seats with metal polish and replace any worn float valve and old or deformed tank balls of water closet.

Pour scalding water down drain pipes at least once a day for long periods of freedom from congealed and clogged lines.

Keep fans and motors of oil burners clean and lubricate frequently, and have oil service man or heating contractor check air volume and controls.

In case chromium plating is exposed to salt air, salt, or calcium chloride it can be given a protective coating of furniture wax after it has been thoroly washed and dried.

Fill Coal Bins Early.

New bins for coal storage are already in the process of building since home owners are urged to store every ton of coal they may need for next winter, now if possible, and to build extra bins if space is available.

Coal should not be stored near any external sources of heat, and old coal should not be allowed to accumulate in corners or on the bottom of bins or piles. Practice dictates that coal should not be piled higher than 12 to 15 feet, tho this is not a law. Eliminate all oily rags or paper from contact with coal while it is being stored and afterward.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, May 4

The home gardener will do well to observe the plants that grow best in various locations. When passing thru city areas plants like the iris, daylily, and sedum spectable are seen in numbers. In fact, iris appears everywhere, but it is best to grow a few of the better varieties than to continue growing the oldtime yellow.

Iris should be transplanted after flowering. Apply a scattering of commercial plant food along the sides of strawberry plants and hoe it under.

Tuesday, May 5

Many soils lack humus [decayed animal and vegetable matter] and by spreading a layer two or three inches thick over the surface before digging it will be very beneficial. Mushroom manure, compost, leafmold, or peat are excellent.

Sweet peas are well along by this time. Thin out to six or eight inches between the plants and if mildew is present, spray with Bordeaux mixture.

Wednesday, May 6

Choose a quiet, cloudy day when setting out seedlings, and if the plants are long and spindly plant somewhat deeper than usual, altho the tops must not be buried. The reason many seeds fail to germinate freely is because of dry soil.

When sowing place burlap, cloth, or newspaper over the seedbed to hold the moisture and shade the bed but uncover when the seeds have germinated. Many of the finer seeds, like the petunia, fail on this account.

Thursday, May 7

Use annual flowering plants in bulb beds after the latter have flowered. Annuals give color to the garden and they are so easily grown that a fine effect can be obtained the first season. Persons moving into new homes in open areas will find they can enjoy fine gardens if they will use this group of plants.

Make the beds along the side of the yard and at the alley end. Use tall kinds in the rear and dwarf kinds in the front.

Friday, May 8

Thin all plants to enable each one to have space to develop. The vegetable garden is well under way. Do not attempt to grow root crops in clay soil; grow them in good, well drained, well enriched sandy loam.

Sow Kentucky wonder pole beans along the fences about the time apple trees are in bloom. Lima beans are more tender and should not be sown until later.

Saturday, May 9

Plant in long rows for vegetable growing rather than in small beds for cultivation is much easier. Plant sweet corn in several rows together rather than a single row; use in blocks even tho they are small rows. Pollen must be carried to each plant to insure good ears.

Do not mulch the ground during wet weather or disease may result. Wait until about July 1 when hot weather prevails and the soil is dry.

MORE WAR JOBS FOR NEGROES IS GROUP'S PROJECT

Young Women Canvass West Side Plants.

If the younger generation of Negroes on the west side find it easier to get jobs within the next few years, they may thank the group of young professional women who made it possible. Even now, those young women, who call themselves the Les Consolatrices club, are conducting a campaign for employment of more Negroes as skilled laborers in defense plants.

Working in coöperation with the Chicago Urban league, the young women operate a job clinic at the Urban league's west side office, 2024 Maypole avenue. There employed or unemployed Negroes may register their capabilities, experience, and other essential information.

When registration is completed, members of the club will make a thoro canvass of all business firms located on the west side, in an effort to obtain additional work opportunities for talented and skilled young Negroes. They will carry as ammunition statistics compiled by the league showing the constant increase of employers hiring skilled Negro labor and the advance of these individual workers, demonstrating their ability.

Idleness Promoting Delinquency.

Urban league officials claim that lack of employment is causing an increase in juvenile delinquency. It is to halt this tendency that the club is seeking to convince employers that Negro youths can become valuable as skilled laborers.

Employment is not the only problem engaging the attention of the club. Since their organization 10 years ago, the club has helped a number of groups and individuals in dozens of different ways. They have served lunches for hungry children, provided layettes for needy mothers, given carfare and book money to deserving students. And this spring finds them with one of the most active programs in their history.

Miss Thelma Pratt, public school physical education teacher, began the instruction of a first aid class recently at the community center. The job seekers will be interviewed at the center by Mrs. Rosetta Wright, kindergarten teacher at Hardigan school; Miss Estelle Gunter, dietitian at Provident hospital; Mrs. Tessie Gordon and Mrs. Leah Jones, housewives.

Aid Youths in Trouble.

Assisting the Urban league's civic department by visiting the courts in behalf of youngsters who get into trouble are Mrs. Mildred Jordan, Miss Creola Bell, Miss Thelma Pratt, Miss Rosalie Jackson, social service worker, and Mrs. Marion Clemmons, housewife. Three of the club members have volunteered to visit the homes of boys and girls who appear before the courts for the first time, to enlist the coöperation of parents. These are Miss Thelma Butler of Oak Park; Miss Annette Smith, matron at Madden Park, and Miss Elizabeth Clemmons, vocational guidance instructor at Drake school. Mrs. Mildred Jordan, dietitian, is club president.

One of the most recent projects the club has begun and one which is bringing them a great deal of pleasure, as well as dispensing it, is the "Pen Pals" program. Members of the club write letters to Negro soldiers thruout the United States—and already a number of interested soldiers have replied, telling how much the letters mean to them. At first the tasks of letter writing were delegated to younger girls, from 18 to 23. Then it was discovered that many of the soldiers were doctors, lawyers, and former teachers. About that time the club members, who are between 25 and 30, decided to take care of the writing themselves.

THIS IS LIFE! PRESENTS MUSIC AND PHILOSOPHY

"This Is Life," heard on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 11:15 to 11:30 a. m., on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays has a new form. Replacing the former type of show which tried to aid radio listeners by broadcasting the story behind articles needed for a worthy cause, "This Is Life" now presents a program of music, poetry, and cheerful philosophy.

Victor Powell remains as master of ceremonies and interpolates the songs of Jack Baker with bits of inspirational poetry and "cheer-up" musings about life in wartime.

As newest member of "This Is Life" Baker brings to the program a talented tenor voice. A native of Shreveport, La., Baker has been singing all his life while holding down jobs varying from clerking in a dry goods store to teaching school.

Organ Recital.

Wearing a gown of her own design, Claire Coci, organ virtuoso, will give a recital at 4 o'clock this afternoon at St. Peter's Evangelical church in Elmhurst. The Elmhurst college school of music is sponsor of the recital.

Scene from 'Ladies in Retirement'

SEARCH WESTERN SPRINGS ATTICS FOR STAGE PROPS

'Ladies in Retirement' Is Play of '80s.

That the costumes and properties may be authentic in the presentation of "Ladies in Retirement" to be given Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights at the Village club by the Little Theater of Western Springs, attic trunks of the community have been searched for old fashioned bustles and whalebone bodices of the 1880s.

Furnishings of English heirlooms from the home of Mrs. R. M. Stanley and furniture donated by resident members of the Little theater, including large pieces belonging to Mrs. F. J. Ventresca, will be used for the stage settings.

Collecting the material has been an activity of Katherine Lewis, Helen Wright and Alice Harriss.

The dress to be worn by Margaret Collom, who will take the part of Louisa Creed, is the property of Mrs. J. A. Sammons of La Grange, and was an original model made for her grandmother by Madame Rene in Chicago in 1885. The material is a heavy green silk poplin over a pannier and an underskirt of taffeta. The whaleboned bodice is topped by a vest of white chiffon, trimmed with tiny black velvet bows.

Ella Payne Heimbrodt, who will portray Ellen Creed, will wear a gown owned by Mrs. Charles P. Horr of La Grange. The creation is of black silk moire with a three tiered bustle and an overskirt of moire edged in deep lace flounces. The dress has an underskirt of black taffeta and with this dress, as with all the others, a minimum of two petticoats are de rigueur.

The two toned grey wool dress to be worn by Sylvia McClure, who will play the part of Emily Creed, was made in the early 1870s for the grandmother of H. B. Knowlton of La Grange, and belongs to a collection of treasures brought by the Knowltons from Indianapolis, Ind.

Mary Cattell, director of the Little theater, on her recent return from New York, brought a strawberry red wig which will be worn by Gwendolyn Hautau, who will play the part of Leonora Fiske.

Warren Ross will play the part of the renegade nephew of the three spinster Creed sisters. Others in the cast are Alice Roth and Frances Forslund.

Alice Roth is cast as the maid in the Western Springs play.

FORREST LEWIS TO START STAR GAZING SERIES

Forrest Lewis, Chicago radio actor who at times has taken as many as 30 rôles on one program, will begin a new series titled "Star Gazing" on W-G-N at 10 p. m. tomorrow. Lewis will be heard from 10 to 10:15 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays thereafter.

Inside information on personalities in radio and in Hollywood will be featured in Lewis' broadcasts. He will interview radio stars regularly. To start the series, Les Tremayne, one of the air's best known leading men, will be interviewed. The guest on Friday will be Barbara Luddy.

Famous broadcast boners will be another of Lewis' regular departments. He will slip into several varying character rôles during each program. Lewis is heard regularly on W-G-N in "heavy" rôles on Easy Money, scheduled each Sunday from 6:30 to 7 p. m., CWT.

MANLEY PUPILS TO BE HONORED ON CITIZENS HOUR

Program Over W-G-N at 1:30 Next Sunday.

Students of Manley High school, 2935 Polk street, will be featured in next Sunday's Citizens of Tomorrow broadcast, aired at 1:30 o'clock over W-G-N. The transcription for the broadcast will be made in the W-G-N studios Wednesday afternoon.

Principal Thomas J. Crofts will present a brief history of Manley High, which was changed from a junior to a senior high school in 1933. Mr. Crofts obtained his bachelor's degree from Wheaton college, and his master in education degree from the University of Chicago. After assignments in elementary schools, and as teacher and assistant principal at Senn High school, he became principal of Manley High in 1933.

Boys' Chorus to Sing.

The boys' chorus of Manley, under direction of H. Ray Staater, will sing "God, the All Powerful," by Alexis Lvoff; "At the End of the Day," by Robert Flagler, and "The White Road Westward," by Raymond Mitchell. The American's Creed will be presented by the Manley speech classes, under the direction of Miss Marie H. Kelly. Cheer leaders appearing on the program will be Arthur Malin, Sameus Marcus, Ben Shorr, and Howard Palakof.

Guests for the broadcast will include Mrs. Jack Blitzvlau, president of Lawson PTA; Mrs. Frank Novak, president of Penn PTA; J. E. Keller, treasurer of Bethany seminary; Frank J. Wieting, director of Sears YMCA, and Charles Lawson, engineer and custodian of Manley High school.

Honor Student to Be Presented.

Special recognition will be given Robert Jacobson, 17, of 1359 South Kildare avenue, Manley's honor student. A senior, Robert is chief fire marshal, editor of the school yearbook, war savings stamp promoter, and one of the top ranking students at Manley for four years. He delivers newspapers after school and Sunday mornings. In his block he is official messenger on the civilian defense program.

We suggest perfumes and cosmetics as being the ideal way of expressing "scentiment seasoned with sense."

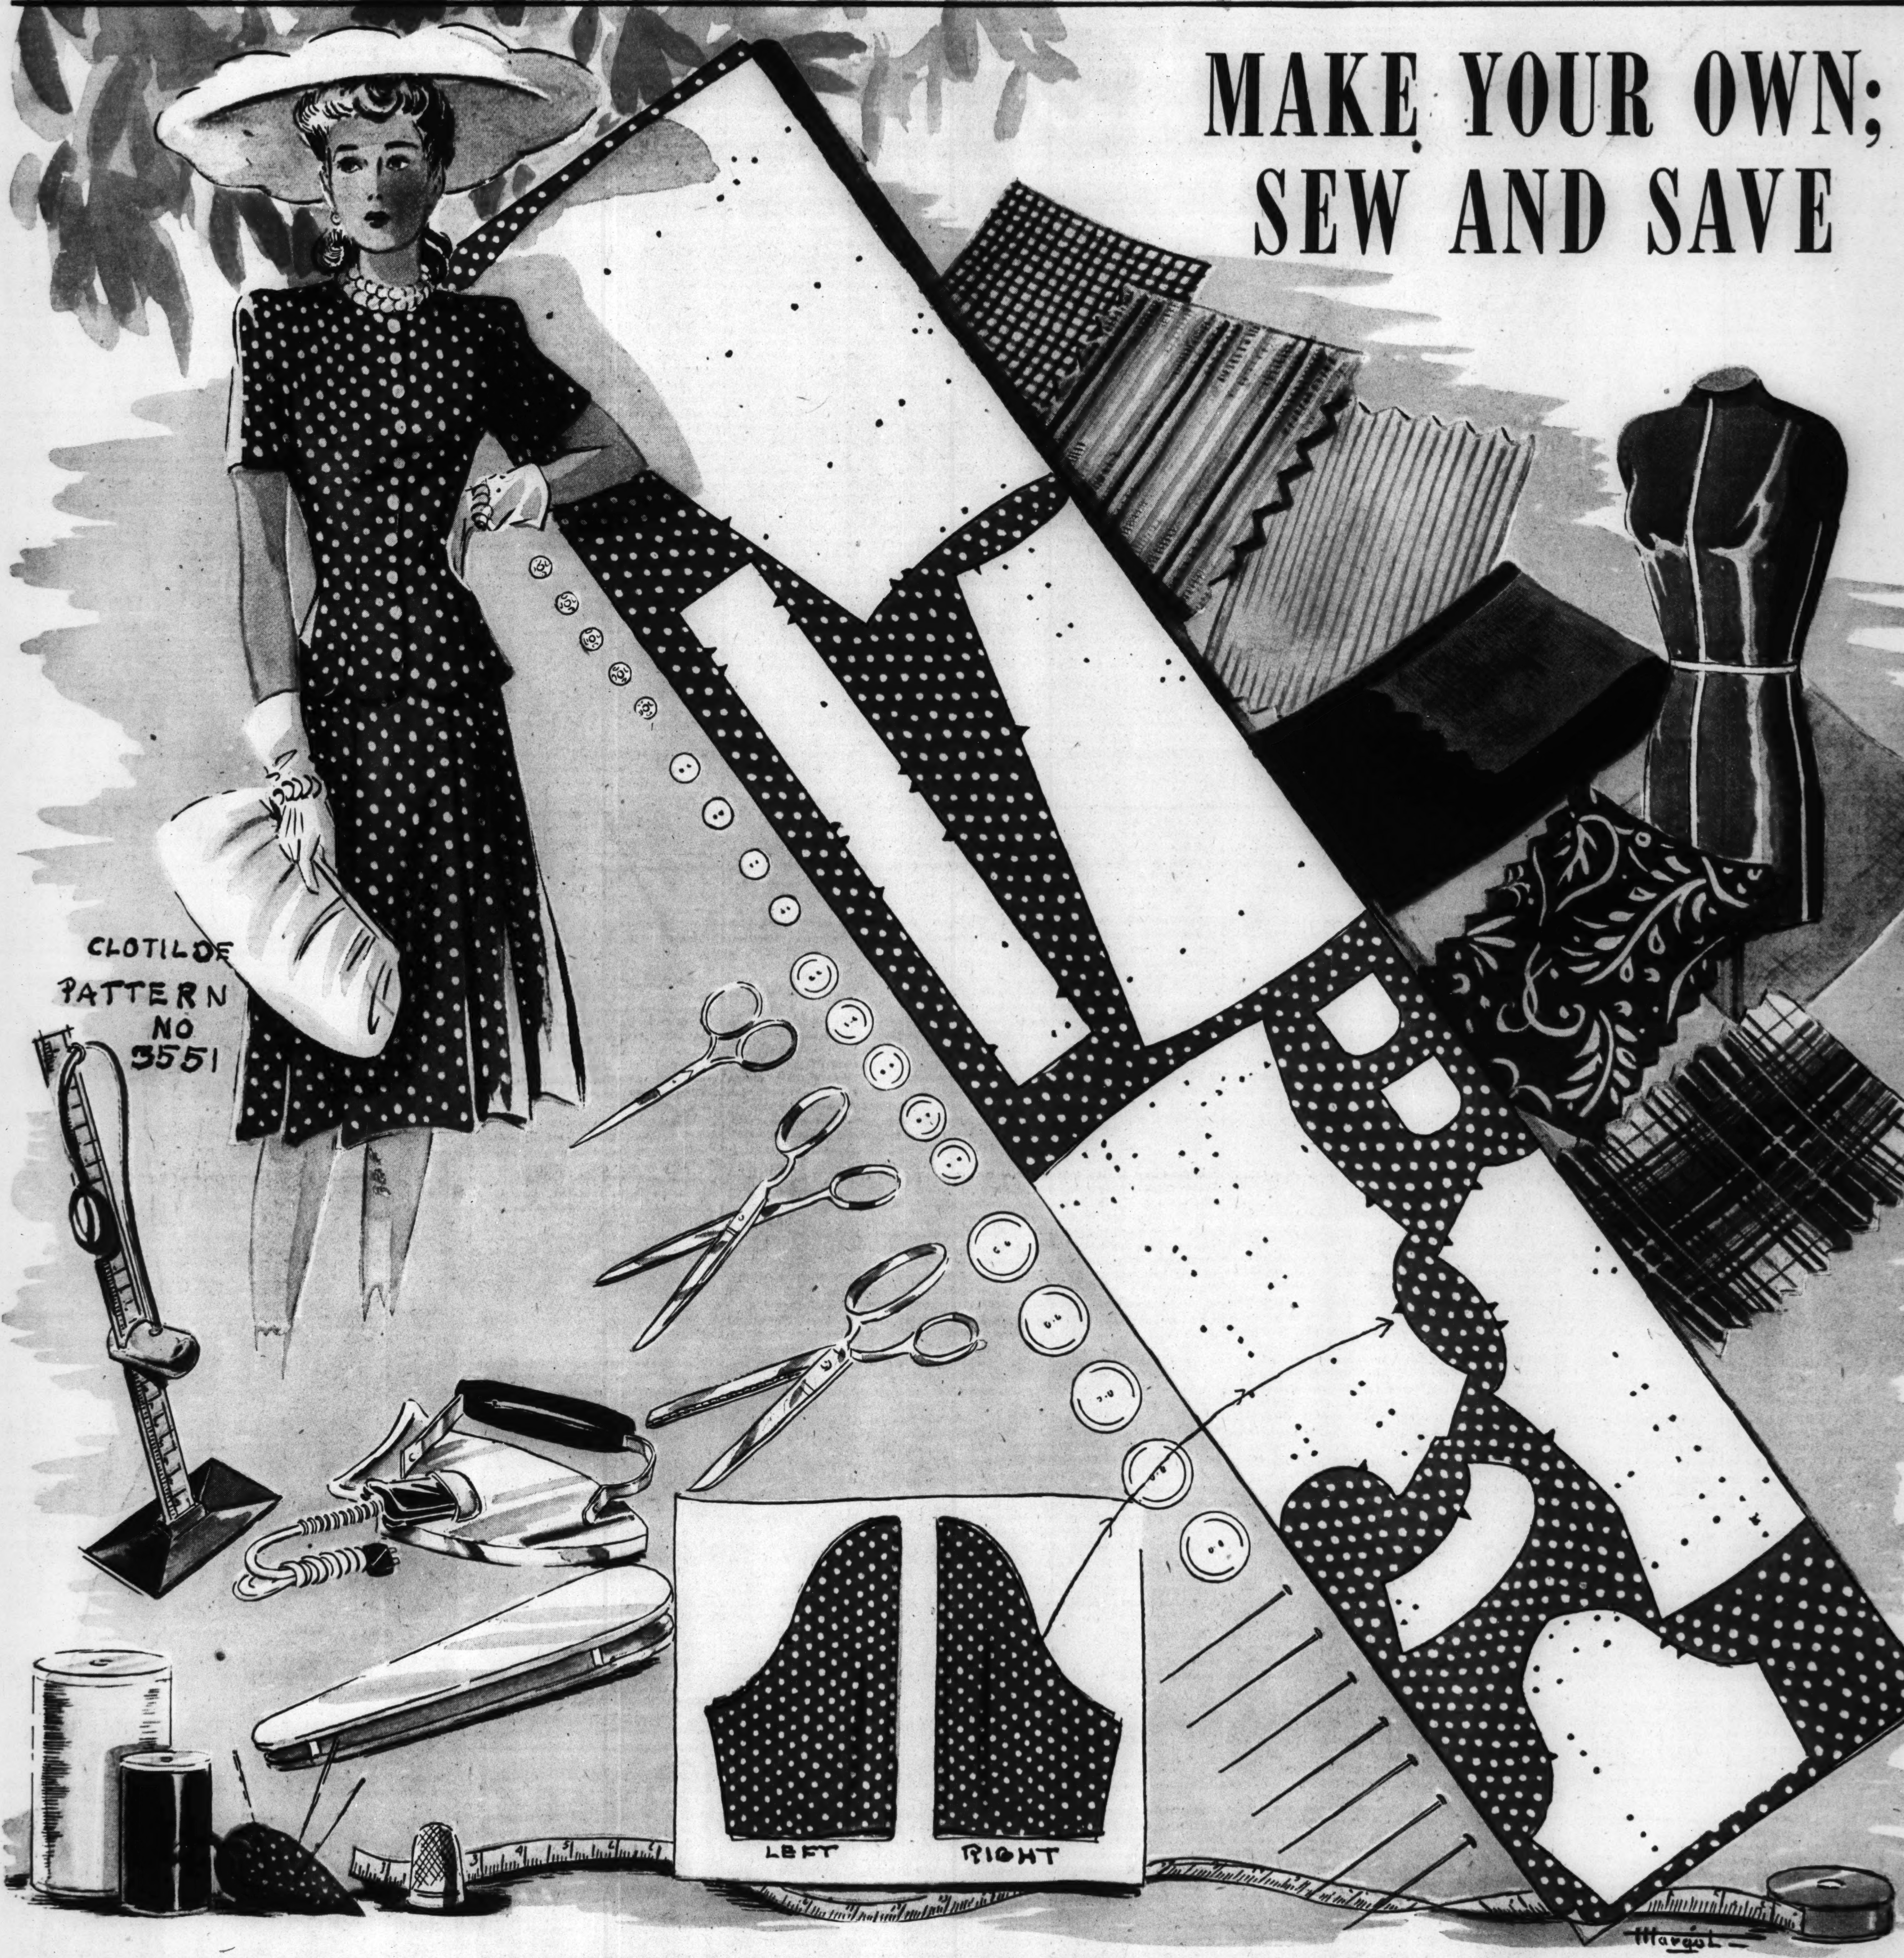
MAKE YOUR OWN; SEW AND SAVE



GETTING A DRESS together isn't the staggering task it used to be, nor is it involved, tedious, or an interminable project. All you have to do these days is select your pattern and material, read every printed word of the instructions, and proceed with enthusiasm.

Patterns are foolproof. Every step of the proceedings is explained and illustrated, especially the trickier details. Even the best kind of materials are listed, fabrics that are particularly ideal for the pattern you select. The notions, or findings, are most important, for, as in any other craft, the tools must be the best to achieve results and that smooth professional look to the finished dress.

Sharp pins, sharp scissors—three at least of the scissors in a set; one the pinking shears for cutting out the entire dress (to assure a workmanlike interior finish), cutting shears, and the small, very sharp, pointed scissors for detail work. Chalk, basting thread (in white, black, or yellow), especially reeled for quick and easy basting without knots; snaps, buttons, belting, tape, hem marker, rule, and measuring tape.

There are many excellent "dummies" in expertly designed regulation sizes, 32 to 42. These may be padded to copy exactly your own silhouette, or, if you are blessed with an average figure, no extra padding is needed. If you are going seriously into this intriguing stunt of making your own clothes it is smart thinking to have a "twin sister" made, a dressmaker's dummy, carefully constructed from your own measurements.

The routine for making any costume is always the same. Choose a pattern, one that will not only be practical but that will provide the kind of a dress that you need. Simply designed dresses always are best, but particularly so for the first attempt. Listed on the envelope of the pattern you select is an expertly recommended choice of materials best for the silhouette and details of this pattern—cottons, silks, woolens, etc.

By REA SEEGER

During National Sewing week, May 3 to May 10, all the Chicago shops and stores are featuring new materials, new spring fashions in colors, in color combines and color contrasts. All the gay summer cottons and new wartime synthetics are on display. Many of the stores have sewing counselors in the yardage departments to advise and help with sewing problems.

After you've selected your pattern and the best materials for that design you proceed to the cutting. Inclosed in the envelope of every pattern is an instruction sheet, clearly worded and illustrated, describing the assembling of the dress. There is an illustration showing how the material should be cut according to sizes 32 and up; the darts and tucks are notched, so are the sleeves. the bodice or blouse or jacket top, the hems, and so on.

Using Clotilde pattern No. 3551 as an example, we've sketched the basic ideas of making a new spring costume, the popular and very practical two-piece dress suit model. The material used is a gay white-dotted red piqué, a cool and smart summer material. Other new spring cottons and synthetics, also ideal for this costume, are sketched. A seersucker in cerise and small white checks, a cotton corduroy, a Scotch plaid, a contrast of navy blue nubbed cotton with a green jacket (the jacket may be used for all the wardrobe), gold linen, white patterned print, striped cotton.

The test of any dressmaker is the fit of the sleeves. Sleeves are usually the snag where most beginners halt, but cutting a right and left sleeve and making them fit is easy if you notch correctly. Sleeves are usually cut in the pair, cut double thickness of material, right side against right side. Notch the material according to the pattern when it is securely pinned in position (and don't be afraid to use plenty of pins so that the pattern is secure). The right and left sleeve, after seamed, are illustrated with the single notch of the front clearly indicated and the single notch in front sides of the jacket, where the sleeves will be matched, also shown with an arrow. Thus the right sleeve matches the right side of the front and the left sleeve also fits into the left side. After that the rest is play.

Sewing accessories and fabrics sketched will be found in Chicago stores. For information call Superior 0200.

Clotilde pattern No. 3551 is designed for sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, and 40. Size 16 requires 3⅛ yards of 39-inch material.

Lillian Hellman's 'Watch on the Rhine' Opens May 11

Play Concerns Activities of Anti-Hitlerites

By Cecil Smith.

When Lillian Hellman, author of "Watch on the Rhine," which comes to the Grand Opera house on May 11, and Herman Shumlin, its producer, collaborate upon a play, the result of their labors is likely to make theatrical history. In 1934, while Miss Hellman was employed by Mr. Shumlin as a play reader, she submitted a script of her own authorship to him. Altho her only earlier effort, entitled "Dear Queen," had never been produced on Broadway, Miss Hellman's manuscript fired the producer's imagination.

Lillian Hellman. [Vandamm Photo.]

In due course of time "The Children's Hour" reached the stage of the Maxine Elliott theater in New York, where it remained for 691 consecutive performances. Altho its somewhat perverse theme was handled with delicacy and artistic restraint, and altho its performance turned the play into one of the chief events of the season, an inane ban was instituted against "The Children's Hour" in Chicago, and Mr. Shumlin's noteworthy production was never seen here. [The Actors Company of Chicago, an unusually competent subprofessional group, is currently presenting "The Children's Hour" every Friday, Saturday, and Sunday evening at 218 South Wabash avenue].

After Miss Hellman had spent a time in Hollywood rewriting "The Children's Hour" in terms of folkways acceptable to the Will Hays office, she turned her hand to a new play, "Days to Come." This work, also produced by Mr. Shumlin, provided the only blot on their coöperative escutcheon, for it failed quickly and quite decisively.

Miss Hellman was obviously able to profit as well from a failure as from a success, however, for she spent three painstaking years, between 1936 and 1939, preparing her now celebrated drama of a hard and selfish southern family, "The Little Foxes." In staging this play Mr. Shumlin proved to have an almost clairvoyant understanding of its casting requirements, for from Tallulah Bankhead and Patricia Collinge all the way down to the shortest part, "The Little Foxes" was as perfectly and as effectively acted as any play within a decade.

This gift for finding the right people to appear in the plays he produces amounts virtually to an obsession with Mr. Shumlin. He refused to form a second company for "Watch on the Rhine," for he did not believe that it would be possible to duplicate the unique appropriateness to their parts of Lucile Watson, Paul Lukas, and Mady Christians. His excellent judgment and his splendid gift for creating ensemble performances—he directs all his productions himself—were also attested to by Ethel Barrymore's company in "The Corn Is Green." Only in the case of "The Male Animal" was a Shumlin performance allowed to decline in excellence between New York and Chicago engagements, and after a few glances at the Chicago box office record of "The Male Animal" Mr. Shumlin is reported to have vowed never again to take a chance on even a single rôle.

The list of Shumlin productions is not long, as producers' lists go, for he has never staged more than one or two plays a season. In the last few years his foresight has evidently become almost infallible, and in New York he is viewed with awe as a man whose artistic conscience is so stern that he cannot go wrong in his play selections.

He is willing to pay any necessary price in order to obtain exactly the actors he wants. "Watch on the Rhine" has one of the largest weekly pay rolls, in proportion to the size of its cast, of any play in many seasons. In three years he has produced four plays, all of which became smash hits—"The Little Foxes," "The Male Animal," "The Corn Is Green," and the current "Watch on the Rhine." The last two plays were both awarded the Critics' Circle prize, and "Watch on the Rhine" is a prominent contender for the 1942 Pulitzer prize, to be awarded next Tuesday.

"Watch on the Rhine" combines touching drama with an eloquent plea for the defense and ultimate triumph of democracy. Unlike "Candle in the Wind," its scene is not laid in Europe. The action takes place just outside of Washington, D. C. The central figures of the play are Kurt Mueller, a German expatriate, and his family. Paul Lukas, as Mueller, is engaged in an underground anti-Hitler and anti-Fascist conspiracy; he is a member of a proud but scattered group of German democrats who are keeping a watch on the Hitlerized Rhine from without, seeking opportunities to destroy the oppressive government they hate.

With the sort of tenderness she hinted at in the characters of Birdie [Patricia Collinge] and the young girl in "The Little Foxes," Miss Hellman tells her story in warmly human terms, avoiding preachy sequences and allowing the force of her democratic argument to be felt thru the life experiences of Kurt Mueller and his appealing family.

As Kurt Mueller, Mr. Lukas makes his second Chicago stage appearance. He played here with Ruth Gordon in "A Doll's House" four years ago. Lucile Watson, a genuinely distinguished actress, returns after many years' absence. Mady Christians has acted here only once, as a memorable queen in Maurice Evans' uncut "Hamlet."

The remaining members of Mr. Shumlin's remarkable cast scarcely deserve to be referred to as "supporting players." George Coulouris last appeared here with Katharine Cornell in "Saint Joan," altho he has been seen in many movies since then. John Lodge, grandson of the late Massachusetts senator, Henry Cabot Lodge, fulfilled an unworthy assignment here in 1940 in the short lived Shubert operetta, "Night of Love." Like Mr. Coulouris, he has appeared prominently in many films, both American and British. Others in the cast are Helen Trenholme, Eda Heinemann, and Frank Wilson.

The Grand Opera house engagement of "Watch on the Rhine" is limited to three weeks. Since a number of the players have summer moving picture commitments, the tour will be interrupted until fall at the close of the Chicago engagement.

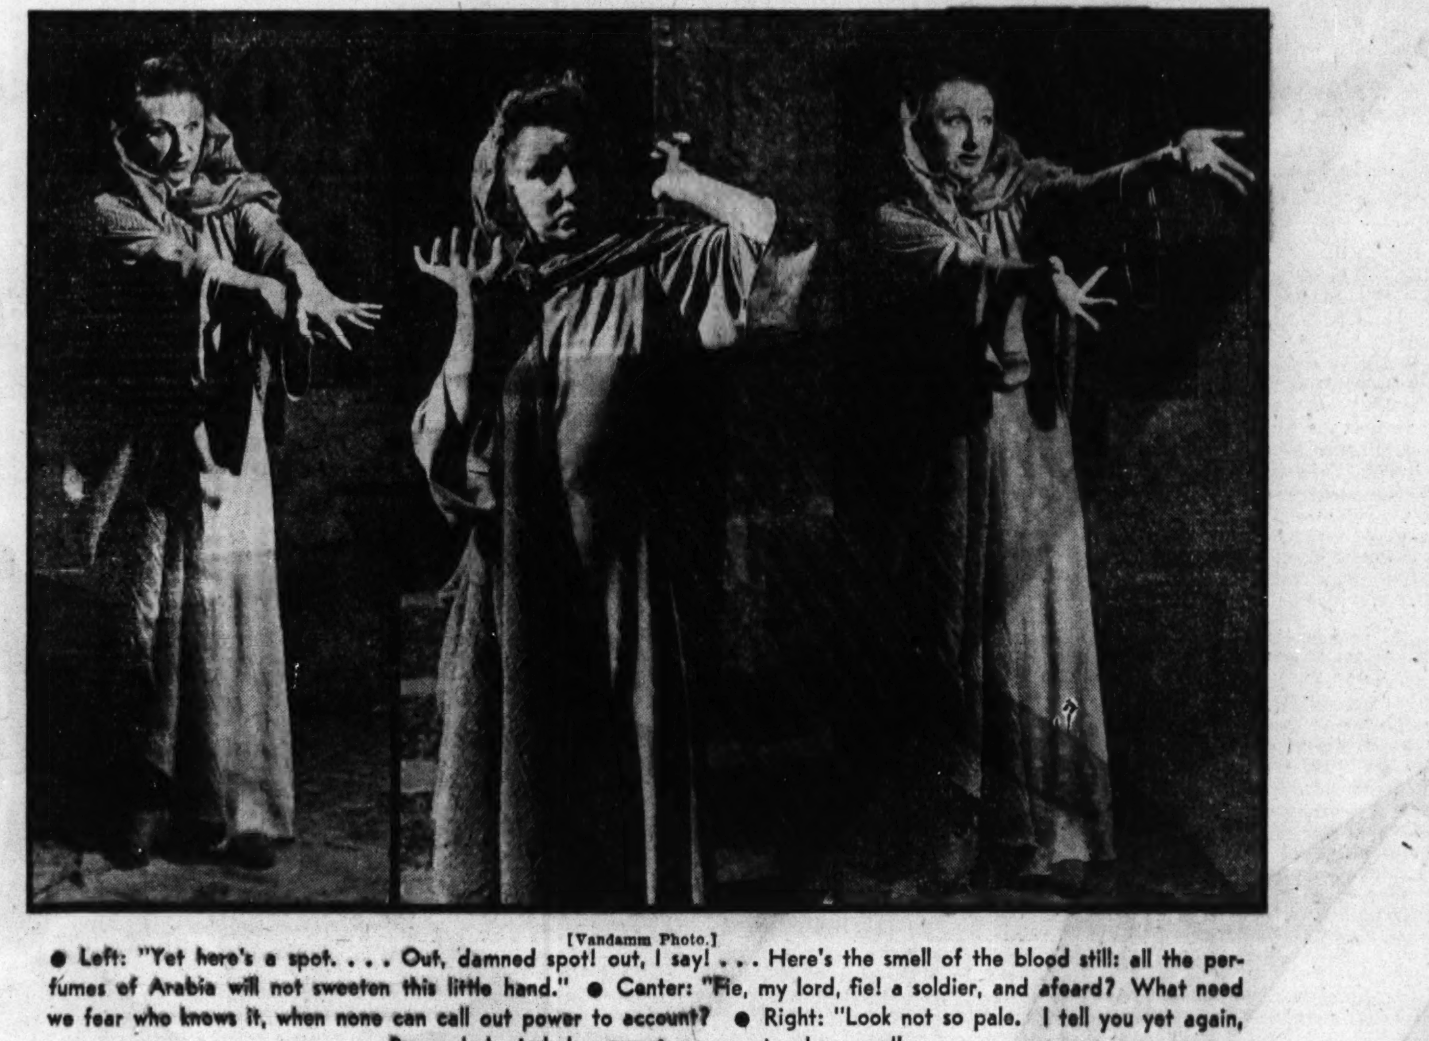
JUDITH ANDERSON AS THE BLOODTHIRSTY LADY MACBETH



[Vandamm Photo.]

● Left: "Yet here's a spot. . . . Out, damned spot! out, I say! . . . Here's the smell of the blood still: all the perfumes of Arabia will not sweeten this little hand." ● Center: "Fie, my lord, fie! a soldier, and afeard? What need we fear who knows it, when none can call out power to account? ● Right: "Look not so pale. I tell you yet again, Banquo's buried; he cannot come out on's grave."

Vaudeville

Jan Garber, known as "the idol of the air lanes," takes over the stage of the Oriental theater this week, with his orchestra, the romantic baritone Lee Bennett, and the comic mimic, Fritz Heilbron. Garber defines his orchestral style as "sweet swing." Also featured in the Oriental stage bill are Alice Kavan, Jack Marshall, and the Whitsons. The screen attraction is "The Affairs of Jimmy Valentine."

Alice Kavan. [Seymour photo.]

In a stellar double bill, the Chicago theater stage this week co-features Connie Boswell, the songstress, and drum-beating Gene Krupa with his orchestra. A home town boy, Krupa has become a great favorite with Chicago theater audiences in his annual appearances there. His portion of the show brings forward Anita O'Day, Johnny Desmond, Roy Eldridge, Johnny Rardin, and the Acromaniacs. The film is "The Fleet's In."

Two Chinese beauties, Amy Fong and Sen Lee, are headlined among the Rialto theater's dozen vaudeville acts this week. Kenny Brenna, Herbie Faye, Marion La Marr and many others are also featured. On the screen is "Johnny Eager," with Lana Turner.

Notes of the Theater

"High Kickers," a musical comedy produced by George Jessel and co-starring Mr. Jessel and Sophie Tucker, opens an engagement of three weeks at the Erlanger theater on Monday, May 11. In Chicago Mr. Jessel is known in musical comedy solely for his success in "The Jazz Singer" more than 15 years ago. He has appeared here occasionally in vaudeville since that time. Miss Tucker, a more frequent visitor to the city, last raised her hearty voice and displayed her ample contours in "Leave It to Me," which occupied the Auditorium theater in late 1939, at the time of the 50th anniversary of the historic—and now apparently permanently darkened—theater.

George Jessel. [Chaplin photo.]

The book, lyrics and music of "High Kickers" represent a collaboration between Mr. Jessel and two Hollywood song writers, Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby. The cast of the show includes such tried and true performers as Chick York and Rose King, and also Chaz Chase, the pantomime comic. Newer acquisitions of the stage are Betty Bruce, a dancer who moved from the Fokine Ballet into "The Boys from Syracuse" and "Keep Off the Grass," neither of which was brought to Chicago; Imogen Carpenter, who was discovered at the Cotillion room, a restaurant in New York's Hotel Pierre inspired by the Pump room in Chicago, and also Jack Mann, Franklin Fox, Sidney Stone, and the American Beauty octet. The entire production was designed by Nat Karson, who conceived "The Hot Mikado." Carl Randall directed the dances and Edward Sobol the book.

Revival of vaudeville. According to a whisper which seems reliable, Alfred Bloomingdale will soon institute rehearsals of a supervaudeville show which he will produce and bring into the Grand Opera house early in June—either the 6th or the 13th—as prospects now stand. With several big name stars, the show will be modeled after "Priorities of 1942" in New York, and presumably will be retailed at similar popular prices.

Estelle Winwood, the inimitably wacky medium of "Blithe Spirit" at the Selwyn theater, gives credit to four men for her knowledge of acting technique [and a very good knowledge it is, too]. They are John Galsworthy, Bernard Shaw, Basil Dean, and Granville Barker. "When I was playing at the Liverpool Repertory theater, long before I had thoughts of coming to this country," she recalls, "I had the invaluable experience of being directed in various productions by all four of them. They knew how to inspire confidence in actors and how to help them develop a character both for the good of the individual and for the good of the play."

"I remember Shaw telling of an actor in one of his plays who was supposed to impersonate a member of parliament. He said the actor read his lines with certain stress and inflection, and when Shaw remonstrated with him he answered, 'But you are asking me to violate all the rules I've learned as an actor.' 'That's just it, my boy,' countered Shaw. 'I want you to speak, not as an actor, but as a member of parliament.'"

Buddy Ebsen of "Good Night, Ladies," at the Blackstone theater, became an actor because of the Florida land boom. Or, more properly, he became one because the land stopped booming. In the midst of a premedical career in Orlando, Fla., during which he was jerking sodas on the side to earn expense money, the bottom dropped out of the land business, and Buddy set out to New York with his sister, Vilma. It was some time before the pair emerged as a dance team, however. Buddy found his first opportunity as a chorus boy in "Whoopee," and Vilma found a job in the same show. Their stardom began with their success in "Flying Colors." Last year they appeared in New York in "Yokel Boy." "Good Night, Ladies" is Buddy's first danceless stage assignment.

Maurice Evans' production of "Macbeth" will positively close at the Erlanger theater Saturday night, making way for the incoming musical, "High Kickers." After leaving Chicago the road schedule for "Macbeth" will be as follows: May 11, St. Paul; May 12, Minneapolis; May 13 and 14, Milwaukee; May 15 and 16, Columbus; May 18 to 23, Cleveland.

Maurice Evans will speak on "Shakespeare Speech Today" this afternoon at 3, in New Trier High school auditorium, Winnetka. The lecture, given for the benefit of British War Relief, will include autobiographical material and key speeches from "Hamlet," "Richard II.," and other Shakespeare plays.

The annual Haresfoot club musical show opened in Madison last Friday evening. Further performances will be given in Madison on Thursday and Saturday, at Camp Grant Friday afternoon, and in Rockford Friday evening. The title is "Keep 'Em Laughing." Duane Bogle of Whitewater, Wis., plays the leading "female" part in the all-male show.

The autumn calendar of Chicago theater bookings now includes two definitely promised entries instead of only one. In addition to "Junior Miss," already announced for the Harris on Sept. 15, the schedule now calls for "Spring Again," with Grace George and C. Aubrey Smith, in an unnamed theater on Oct. 1.

Tributary theater notes: Lillian Hellman's "The Children's Hour" continues each Friday, Saturday, and Sunday evening at the playhouse of the Actors Company of Chicago, 218 South Wabash avenue. . . . The Chicago Mummers theater plans to open its second summer season at Charlevoix, Mich., about July 4, under the direction of Sherman Marks. . . . Molière's "Tartuffe" will be presented tonight by the Douglas Smith players at their new home, Olivet institute, 1441 North Cleveland avenue. . . . Loyola Community theater, 1320 Loyola avenue, closes its season tomorrow and Tuesday evenings with "Lady Precious Stream," S. I. Hsiung's translation from the Chinese. . . . The Gary Players group presents "Anna Christie" tonight at their theater two miles east of Gary on highway 12 and 20.

U. of Kentucky Announces Its Annual Play Contest

The Guignol theater of the University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky., announces its annual play contest for an award of $100. Every play submitted must never have been produced professionally, nonprofessionally, or over the radio. Only full length plays will be considered. There are no specifications concerning size of cast or requirements of staging. In considering plays of equal merit, however, it is stated that the play posing the fewest problems of production will be given the most favorable attention. The contest closes Nov. 1, 1942. Further information may be obtained from Frank Fowler, director of the Guignol theater, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky.

POPULAR RECORDINGS

A couple of Victor albums, as far apart as the proverbial poles, are side by side in excellence and appeal. One is a dream gift for the Gilbert and Sullivan fan, 18 songs from H. M. S. Pinafore. All the tunes you remember, and a lot you've forgotten are sung by the Victor Light Opera company. The other album cuts a neat cross section thru Dixieland jazz, and Henry [Hot Lips] Levine, famous for his part in the Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin street, plays it divinely. It's called "Strictly from Dixie" after its leadoff song.

In a rather rich list of singles these Victor issues stand out. Tommy Dorsey's "I'll Take Tallulah"—"Not So Quiet, Please"; Joan Merrill's vocal, "You Can't Hold a Memory in Your Arms"; Art Jarrett's, "Three Little Sisters"; Enric Madriguera's "Full Moon," and Bob Chester's "I Do."

Templeton at his best is the word for the Decca album, "Alec Templeton." Included are such varied choices as "Blues in the Night" and the Tschaikovsky Sixth Symphony. And you might repeat, Crosby at his best—when speaking of Decca's best selling album of Bing's top songs. It's called "Star Dust." Bing, incidentally, collaborates with Mary Martin in a corking double, "Lily of Laguna," and "Wait Till the Sun Shines, Nellie." Ella Fitzgerald has two new ones you shouldn't miss, too. "I'm Gettin' Mighty Lonesome for You"—"When I Come Back Crying" and "My Man"—"Who Are You?" And then there's that new Ink Spots disc, "Don't Leave Now"—"Foo-Gee" to add to their recent triumphs, "It's a Sin to Tell a Lie," "Somebody's Rockin' My Dream Boat," and Shout, Brother, Shout."

Chez to Bring Harry Richman Back on May 22

By Will Davidson.

That "something old, something new" formula which has been rather popular in the designing of bridal gowns, has been taken over by some of our night club modistes.

For example: After having none too happy a time with its all new faces policy in the first phase of its current show, the Chez Paree will hire an old reliable as the center pillar of its next revue. The o. r. is Harry Richman, who has a knack of drawing more folding money into the Chez than can any other entertainer. The something new on that Chez show, which will have its opening night jitters on the 22d of this month, is to be Alan Carney, described as having "confined his talents to the clubs and stage in the east and south." If he is the Alan Carney I think he is, he did an excellent job of impersonation and ceremony mastering a year ago at the Colony club. His soap box oratorio is a classic. But Alan IS new to the Chez, and welcome.

The same house is now dickering with Milton Berle for a summer show, which would be nice. Whatever you may think of the source of Milton's material, you can hardly pin on him the label so appropriate for a goodly number of comedians hereabout, "trite and found wanting."

Hotel Sherman is trying something new in the Panther room, starting Wednesday. Bob Chester, a very upcoming young maestro brings his band there in the hopes that Chicagoans will carry on the very elegant patronage the gang has received in the east. Betty Bradley, Gene Howard, and Bill Darnell are his vocalists. Just for sentiment's sake, I suppose, the Panther room hangs on to its models, but does at last give them some new routines for this show.

• • •

If you can't see Maurice Evans in "Macbeth," see the Mayfair room's John Buckmaster in his priceless parody on every Shakespeare play you ever did see. This is superb travesty. In quite a different vein, Buckmaster etches in great humor those pests who invariably stop you on the street when you are airing the dog; he portrays with touching anguish some of the more disturbing results of radio listening; and he repeats that delightful parody of two commentators describing the lovely room over which charming Emil presides so wisely and so well. Mr. Buckmaster's satire is excellent, of course, because of his own very great talent, but also because his victims are so recognizable.

Yvette. [Bruno of Hollywood photo.]

Along with Buckmaster is a most charming young lady, Yvette, small of stature and voice, but quite a large figure in the field of entertainment. Yvette is American born, and her French accent is convent acquired, but her wistful little songs seem to glow and sparkle because of it. She's gracious in a genuine way, and very, very easy to listen to.

The Drake has been having Ortega trouble. Little Belen Ortega no sooner finished a singing engagement in the Camellia house than Eva Ortega started one. However, the second Miss Ortega went back to her own name, Eve Hamilton, and she it is whom you will hear singing so nicely in the plush room. Miss Hamilton is a showman with savvy, and nurses her not too spectacular material thru a very enjoyable show.

Give credit to Val Ernie for a nice accompaniment. This bandleader, new to Chicago, has been doing a most creditable job of following the Camellia cavalier, Ramon Ramos. Ernie will in turn give way soon to Jim Blade's erstwhile relief band there which now has acquired the stature we all knew it would.

The Bismarck hotel has added a favorite act to their sprightly little revue—Don and Sally Jennings, a very talented dance team. They have Jimmy Joy's music to dance to, which makes it even better.

• • •

Famous for its Monday night shows, the Blackhawk restaurant has Ted Weems doing a new variation of "beat the band" now. Patrons ask Ted to play a certain piece, offering to buy a specific number of war savings stamps if Ted plays it. If he can't he has to buy that many stamps. First night out the supply of stamps disappeared in a half hour.

Boswelling the Bistros:

Dolly Kay and the entire revue from Colosimo's will entertain the boys at the Chicago Service Men's center this afternoon. . . . Baron Elliott played for the dance there last night. . . . You aren't in style if you don't have one of José Manzanares' cellophane straw rings. He'll be delighted to make you one at your table in the Pan-American café of the Hotel La Salle, and tell you the entire legend behind it. . . . Those puppeteers at Helsing's Vodvil lounge, Fernando and Fair, are humdingers. And Tony Marks is a superb magician. They are backed by the songs of Joan Hubbard, once with Lawrence Welk, the music of the New Yorkers, and the songs of Preston Lambert.

I wonder why Eleanore Knight was dropped from the Little Show in the Empire room of the Palmer house. Charming, very entertaining, and a most versatile young lady, she was definitely the dancing hit of the mid-evening revue. Her tap routine is splendid, and that bit she does with finger puppets is delightful. I hope Miss Knight gets the break somewhere else that she so well deserves. . . . Wonder if most ambitious, young would-be authors have the write idea?

Illinois Orchestra to Play Borodin's Second Symphony

Composer Won Fame in Music and Chemistry

By Felix Borowski.

At the concert which the Illinois Symphony orchestra will give at the Eighth Street theater tomorrow evening the second symphony by Borodin will be the principal feature of the program's second half.

The Russian master's work is not an unfamiliar one, but much less is known about Borodin himself, who was one of the most remarkable figures in European music of the 19th century. It has sometimes been said—and with a deprecative implication—that Borodin was a musical amateur. If to compose symphonies and operas without having to depend upon such things for daily bread is to be an amateur, then the subject of this column was one. But amateurs also were Mendelssohn and Meyerbeer [both sons of wealthy bankers], and there have been excellent composers in later days—Chausson, Franchetti, Baron d'Erlanger, etc. — who have toiled and spun notes on to music paper without having had to do it for a living.

It is generally known that most of Borodin's Russian colleagues occupied governmental or military positions before they embraced music as a career. Of the so-called "Great Five," who sought to establish a national Russian style in music, Mili Balakireff alone was from the beginning a professional musician.

Rimsky-Korsakoff was attached to the Russian navy, and as a midshipman in the early portion of his career spent six months in the United States in the course of a world cruise in the clipper Almaz. Moussorgsky, destined to become the composer of Russia's greatest opera, "Boris Godounoff," was a lieutenant in the crack Preobrajensky regiment. César Cui was a lieutenant general and lectured upon fortification at the St. Petersburg Academy of Engineers, where the late Nicholas II. was one of his pupils, and not, it was said, a particularly brilliant one. Tschaikowsky, whose music was rather sniffed at by the Five, was at first a clerk in the ministry of justice.

Alexander Porphyrievitch Borodin was born in 1834 at St. Petersburg, his father having been Prince Luke Ghedeanoff, a descendant of one of the ancient rulers of Imeretia, in the Caucasus. The composer's mother, Eudoxia Antonova, was nearly 40 years younger than the prince, and as her relations with him had not been with benefit of clergy, the young Borodin was given the name and registered as the son of one of the serfs upon his father's estate.

The boy was brought up by his mother, a cultured woman, possessed also of means, who lived in St. Petersburg, where Alexander disclosed at an early age a passion for music, which he was able to satisfy by attendance at numerous concerts. But Borodin shared his love for music with an equal love for science, and his preoccupation with composition and the playing of wind instruments was divided with an engrossing interest in chemical experimentation.

Those were days in Russia in which aristocratic people regarded music as a fascinating amusement, but scarcely as a vocation. At the age of 15 Borodin matriculated at the Academy of Medicine and Surgery, where he soon attracted the attention of Zinin, the professor of chemistry. The young man's scientific brilliance became increasingly remarkable, but Zinin's pride in him was mitigated by Borodin's too evident enthusiasm for music, which involved much humming while performing experiments, and long discussions of German symphonies.

"You can't hunt two hares at the same time," the professor plaintively complained. But Borodin did hunt both, and triumphed in the case of each. As a scientist he became internationally famous. At the age of 29 he was appointed assistant professor of organic chemistry at the academy, and his treatises, "Researches Upon the Fluoride of Benzole" and "The Solidification of Aldehydes," attracted the attention of the whole scientific world.

With all this labor in the field of science, it also was Borodin's eager task to extend all possible help to his students, and his kindness of heart made his small apartment in St. Petersburg into a center of study, a dormitory, even a hospital for students or poor relations who had no other place to go. His warmheartedness was even extended to animals, and Rimsky-Korsakoff gave an amusing picture of Borodin at dinner, surrounded by his numerous guests. "Several tomcats," he wrote, "that found a home in Borodin's apartment paraded across the dinner table, sticking their noses into plates, and unceremoniously leaping to the diners' backs."

Nor was Borodin's benevolence confined to his home or to the laboratory in which he met his students. He was tireless in efforts to obtain the admission of women to institutions of higher education, and was the most active of the founders of the School of Medicine for Women in the Russian capital. No wonder that, when that friendly man was borne to the grave, a wreath, carried with him to it, was decorated with a silver crown with the inscription: "To the founder, protector, and defender of the School of Medicine for Women, and to the supporter and friend of students."

It would seem that such devotion to science and humanity would have left but little time or strength for art. Yet Borodin became one of the most famous of his country's musical creators. He had studied with Balakireff—an austere and exacting teacher—and the latter was continually goading the members of the Great Five and other Russian composers who were not members [like Tschaikowsky] to unremitting diligence in composition.

Spurred on by Balakireff, Borodin began his first symphony in 1862—he was then 29 years of age—but it was scarcely surprising that five years elapsed before it was completed. No sooner was it finished than the composer began the symphony that the Illinois Symphony orchestra will play tomorrow. Again five years were occupied in the creation of that masterpiece. After the first production in St. Petersburg under Napravnik in 1877, the Russian master revised the symphony, and in the course of a few months it was heard in Belgium and Germany, as also were other works—the first symphony, the string quartet, the orchestral sketch, "In the Steppes of Central Asia," and some of the songs. Borodin himself went to the Antwerp exhibition of 1885 to be present when his second symphony and other of his works were performed.

"The ovations," the composer wrote to his wife, "went crescendo from concert to concert. They were as unanimous on the part of the public as on that of the orchestral leaders and the committee."

No doubt was expressed as to the magnificence of the B minor symphony. Liszt, to whom Borodin paid a visit at Weimar, was captivated by it. "The first movement is perfect," declared the great pianist-composer. "Your andante is a chef-d'oeuvre. The scherzo is enchanting!" And Borodin described in a letter to his wife how Liszt's strong hand caught his own, and held him down to a sofa, "where," he said, "there was nothing left for me to do but nod approval and lose myself in thanks."

Only two years were left in which, after that visit, Borodin was allowed to enjoy his scientific and artistic triumphs. In February, 1887, he attended a dance given by the professors of the Academy of Medicine at St. Petersburg. "There will be a masked ball," he wrote to Mme. Borodin. "It will be very grand, and today we have engaged the pianist. But I will not unveil the mysteries, and will leave the description of the entertainment to the more skilful pen of your other correspondents." It was in the course of the dancing that the greatest mystery of all was unveiled to Borodin. In the middle of conversation with one of his friends, he staggered and fell forward—dead.

SOPRANO TO MAKE DEBUT

Paula Knight, young Chicago soprano, appears in a joint debut with Arthur Eisler, pianist, in Curtiss hall Tuesday evening.

Current Music News

The Illinois Symphony orchestra will play a program of considerable novelty at the Eighth Street theater tomorrow evening, when Robert Lawrence makes his first Chicago appearance as guest conductor. Mr. Lawrence is music critic of the New York Herald Tribune, and was heard on the air last winter as quiz master of the Opera Forum broadcast during the Saturday afternoon performances of the Metropolitan Opera. He is also official lecturer in New York for the Philadelphia orchestra, and is co-author of "The Metropolitan Guide."

Robert Lawrence.

In the course of Mr. Lawrence's program Lucie Bigelow Rosen, virtuoso of the remarkable electric instrument known as the theremin, will give the first American performance of Mortimer Browning's Concerto for Theremin and Orchestra, a work which is dedicated to Mrs. Rosen. The rest of the program will consist of Mozart's Overture to "The Magic Flute"; the seldom performed "Grand Fête at the House of the Capulets," from the dramatic symphony, "Romeo and Juliet," by Berlioz, and Borodin's second symphony. The background of the Borodin symphony is discussed by Felix Borowski in another column.

Muriel Rahn, a young dramatic soprano whose New York debut a year ago was warmly received, sings for the first time in Chicago this afternoon in the Studebaker theater. Miss Rahn was born in Boston but attended Tuskegee institute in Alabama, one of the most notable institutions of Negro education. Later she continued her work at the University of Nebraska. Last January she was selected for an appearance in Mozart's "The Abduction from the Seraglio" with the National Orchestral association in New York, because her voice was thought to possess the best "operatic timbre" of a large number of applicants. In addition to classical and romantic songs and arias this afternoon's program includes songs by six Negro composers—Margaret Bonds, Florence B. Price, William Grant Still, William Dawson, Camille Nickerson, and Samuel Coleridge-Taylor.

The De Paul University A Cappella choir, Arthur C. Becker, director, will give its spring concert in Thorne hall Friday evening. The program includes motets by Palestrina and Russian composers, a group of 16th and 17th century madrigals, and more modern works. Henri Rose will be the assisting pianist.

William Benes, a young Chicagoan not yet 20, will give a violin recital in Kimball hall Saturday evening. His program includes the Vitali chaconne, Wieniawski's D minor concerto, and a variety of shorter works.

The Rev. Hyman Mills and the St. Paul choir of Glencoe, who have been praised for their singing of Negro spirituals, will offer a Mother's day program at Berean Baptist church, 5149 South Dearborn street, next Sunday afternoon.

All-Russian piano programs will be given this afternoon and tomorrow evening by students of Leo Podolsky in room 300 of the Fine Arts building.

The West Virginia State college string ensemble will play tomorrow evening at Berean Baptist church, 5149 South Dearborn street.

Ann Arbor festival. The six concerts of the 49th annual May festival at Ann Arbor, Mich., occur this week, from Wednesday thru Saturday. The Philadelphia orchestra participates in all the concerts, with Eugene Ormandy and Saul Caston conducting. Marian Anderson, contralto, will be soloist Wednesday evening. Honegger's "King David" and Emanuel Feuermann's solo appearance in the Haydn D major cello concerto share the spotlight Thursday evening. A youth program, with Juva Higbee conducting Percy Fletcher's "The Walrus and the Carpenter," is scheduled for Friday afternoon. Helen Traubel appears as soloist in an all-Wagner concert Friday evening. Saturday afternoon will be devoted to an all-Rachmaninoff program, with the composer as soloist. In the closing concert Saturday evening Beethoven's ninth Symphony will be the chief item.

Students at Manchester college, Manchester, Ind., will present Haydn's "The Creation" this afternoon. Two Chicago girls, Ruth Mohler and Nellie Bendsen, will sing solo parts.

The Chicago Senior Choir Directors association announces a performance of Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Elijah," in Orchestra hall on Monday evening, May 11. James A. Mundy, director of the Jubilee singers, will conduct. A chorus of 125 and 31 members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra will take part. The soloists engaged are Novella McGhee, soprano; Mabel Roberts Walker, contralto; Napoleon Reed, tenor, and Lewis White, bass-baritone.

Two important Bach festivals will take place in eastern Pennsylvania in the near future. On Friday and Saturday of this week the Philadelphia Bach festival, conducted by James Allan Dash, will present in three concerts no less than nine church cantatas, the motet "Praise Ye the Lord," and the little known Mass in F Major. The more famous Bethlehem, Pa., Bach festival is scheduled for May 15 and 16, under the direction of Ifor Jones. At the concerts in Parker Memorial chapel of Lehigh university, will be presented the complete Mass in B Minor, the Magnificat, the fourth part of the Christmas Oratorio, and shorter works.

Paula Knight, soprano, who made her debut with the Chicago Opera company last fall, and Arthur Eisler, pianist, will share a joint debut recital in Curtiss hall Tuesday evening in the Young American Artists series directed by Charline Marmein.

A Few Quotes on Music From Mencken's Book

By Edward Barry.

The minute H. L. Mencken's A New Dictionary of Quotations started rolling off the presses I seized a copy and looked up the heading Music. As might have been expected, Mencken has given this section an unusual pungency by admitting to it several highly critical and even devastating comments on the art.

In fact, to persons who detest music and who have been irritated by their friends' assertions that concert and operagoing are highly cultural activities and as such have been approved by all the best minds, this new compendium will be worth many times the modest sum Knopf asks for it. It will supply ammunition for many a heated contest.

"Nothing is capable of being well set to music that is not nonsense." This statement, coming from a humble, run-of-the-mill music hater, would draw nothing but jeers and scornful laughter from his artistic friends. However, when the enormous prestige of Joseph Addison is found to be behind the statement, the laugh dies in the laughers' throats. And the great journalist said just this—in The Spectator of March 21, 1711.

• • •

Charles Lamb is another distinguished figure in English literature whose love of music can hardly be described as intense. "A carpenter's hammer, in a warm summer noon," he said, "will fret me into more than midsummer madness. But those unconnected, unset sounds are nothing to the measured malice of music."

An unforgettable phrase, those last five words! On another occasion Lamb resorted to doggerel in an effort to express his feelings toward the art.

"Some cry up Haydn, some Mozart,
Just as the whim bites. For my part,
I do not care a farthing candle
For either of them or for Handel."

Poor Handel! One feels that he was dragged into this simply because his name rhymes with "candle." Or was it the other way around, and the candle selected as the type and figure of all that is of low value because it happens to rhyme with Handel?

Going farther back, we find Thomas Fuller remarking that "music is nothing else but wild sounds civilized into time and tune," and George Herbert declaring irritatedly that "music helps not the toothache." In that he is at variance with well founded, modern scientific belief. This cynical piece of advice is also credited to Fuller: "Give the piper a penny to play, and twopence to leave off." Jeremy Collier said that music is "almost as dangerous as gunpowder," but without knowledge of the context one must admit the possibility that he was referring to the art's proved usefulness to revolutionaries.

But these entries, and a few more like them, are only the salt and pepper of the musical quotations. Mencken's partiality to music is well known [was it not he who claimed that he used to play Bach fugues before breakfast?] and he fills pages with the most flattering remarks about the art. Included, of course, are the beautiful musical references in "The Merchant of Venice," William Congreve's "Music hath charms," and William Collins' "sphere-descended maid."

More interesting, because of their strangeness or attractiveness or both, are such things as the Spanish proverb, "Where there is music there can be no harm" [a statement which no cool headed person would make nowadays]. There is also Samuel Pepys' rueful "Music and women I cannot but give way to, whatever my business is," and Sydney Smith's "If I were to begin life again I would devote it to music. It is the only cheap and unpunished rapture upon earth."

Trust Jean Paul Richter, arch-romanticist, to turn up with some such statement as the following: "Music is the moonlight in the gloomy night of life."

Singer Opens Nutrition Week.

Beal Hober, American soprano, recently officially opened Queens County Nutrition Week by singing "The Star Spangled Banner."

CLASSICAL RECORDINGS

That Debussy, a Frenchman who visited Spain only once and who even then penetrated no farther than a border town, should have been able to catch in his music the quality that the world has agreed to call Spanish is one of the great miracles of the artistic imagination. His "Iberia" [the second of the "Images"] contains in its three divisions several vivid and differing aspects of this Spanish quality.

The bright, dusty bustle of the towns, the almost electrical atmosphere of the fête day, the hush and fragrance of night—all of these are powerfully projected in the music.

"Iberia" is available in a new Columbia recording by Fritz Reiner and the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra. It occupies five record sides in a three record album. The remaining side is given over to the brilliant "Rakoczy" march from Berlioz' "The Damnation of Faust."

The sumptuous score of the Strauss tone poem, "Death and Transfiguration," is effectively set forth by Leopold Stokowski and the All-American orchestra in another new three record Columbia album.

Notes of Music and Musicians

"Judas Maccabaeus," a magnificent but neglected oratorio by George Frideric Handel, will be presented this afternoon in the Goodman theater by the Lutheran Oratorio Society of Chicago. The work is perhaps best known for the chorus, "See, the Conqu'ring Hero Comes"—a text which had contemporary meaning when the oratorio was composed in 1747, for the English had just been victorious over the Scotch rebels. Robert Reuter will conduct this afternoon's performance. The vocal soloists are Paula Zwane, soprano; Hazel Meisterling, contralto; Ralph Niehaus, tenor, and Burton Dole, bass. Earl Mitchell is the organist. Assisting the Lutheran chorus will be the children's choirs of Tabor Lutheran church and St. John Lutheran church, Forest Park.

Civic Music festival. Marx Oberndorfer conducts the children's chorus of several hundred voices in the 29th annual festival program of the Civic Music association, to be presented in Orchestra hall this afternoon. In recognition of the "good neighbor policy," many Latin-American folk songs are included in the program. The Civic orchestra, conducted by Hans Lange, will play two movements from Mozart's "A Little Serenade" and some of the ballet music from Schubert's "Rosamunde."

The 1942-'43 History and Enjoyment of Music series, consisting of eight stellar attractions in the Civic Opera house, will open on Nov. 8 with a concert by the Philadelphia orchestra, directed by Eugene Ormandy, with Robert Casadesus as piano soloist. New features in the subscription list are the first Chicago recital by Risë Stevens, mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera and the movies, on Jan. 17, and a performance by Ballet Theater on Feb. 25. The remaining concerts will be as follows: Fritz Kreisler, violinist, Nov. 15; Marian Anderson, contralto, Nov. 29; Vitya Vronsky and Victor Babin, duo-pianists, and Gregor Piatigorsky, cellist, in a program of Russian music, Dec. 13; the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, Dimitri Mitropoulos, conductor, with Yehudi Menuhin as violin soloist, Jan. 31; Artur Rubinstein, pianist, March 14. Subscriptions are being received by Allied Arts corporation, 7 South Dearborn street.

Theodore Charles Stone, Negro baritone, will stress the works of Finnish composers in his Curtiss hall recital this afternoon. In 1939 he studied in Helsinki, Finland, where he made the acquaintance of such well known musicians as Jean Sibelius, Selim Palmgren and Georg Schneevoigt, and sang before the president of Finland, the crown prince and princess of Norway, and the king of Sweden.

A series of festival programs at Williamsburg, Va., will be presented this week under the direction of Ralph Kirkpatrick, harpsichordist. Only music known to colonial America will be included in the programs. Two identical series will be given, each including a harpsichord program, a woodwind program, and a concert for harpsichord, strings, and singers.

The first annual Tinley Park Music festival will be presented at Tinley Park, Ill., on May 15. Five hundred boys and girls from four schools in the area will form a mass singing group. There will be dances and band and glee club music. Clarence Callahan, assistant county superintendent of schools, will be soloist.

The Metropolitan Church choir, under the direction of J. Wesley Jones, will move downtown for an Orchestra hall concert on May 18. Clara Bolton, soprano, and Maurice Cooper, tenor, will appear as soloists.

Colleagues to Fete Birthday of Meiklejohn

By the Rev. John Evans.

One of the stormiest careers in American higher education will be signalized when former students and colleagues of Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn meet for a three day celebration of the educator's 70th birthday in Chicago Friday.

Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn.

A leader in the progressive movement in college education, Dr. Meiklejohn forfeited the presidency of Amherst college, Amherst, Mass., for his contention that the curriculum should be shaped to give students an intellectual training that would stimulate independent thinking.

When he became president of Amherst in 1912, Dr. Meiklejohn made radical changes in the curriculum and conduct of the old New England institution, only to be forced to resign in 1923.

"Dr. Meiklejohn is one of the great pioneers in the development of modern higher education in America," Dr. Walker H. Hill, research associate in education at the University of Chicago, said in announcing plans for the celebration. "As president of Amherst, he introduced in 1914 the first of the survey courses which have become popular in recent years as a means of giving students a unified view of broad fields of knowledge."

• • •

Dr. Hill said that during Dr. Meiklejohn's presidency Amherst pioneered in the development of adult education programs for mill workers in nearby Massachusetts communities. Dr. Hill referred to the Experimental college, developed by Dr. Meiklejohn at the University of Wisconsin in 1927 as one of the most widely known experiments in higher education of that day.

Dr. Meiklejohn, who also was director of the Experimental college, adopted the belief that true education was acquired thru conversation and association. The college was a wide departure from other schools of the time, for instead of classes, there were conferences, lectures, and discussions. Students and faculty members lived together in a group designed to be, as nearly as possible, a self-sufficient intellectual community.

During a turbulent career, Dr. Meiklejohn has lived up to his parting challenge made at the time of his resignation from Amherst. "I differ from most of you on most of the issues of life," he said, "and I am going to keep it up!"

Celebrations will open with a public symposium on "The Rôle of the Liberal Arts College in American Life" Friday night at Mandel hall, University of Chicago. On Saturday and Sunday alumni and faculty of the University of Wisconsin's experimental college will hold a reunion at the Del Prado hotel concluding with a dinner Sunday at 1 p. m. at which Dr. Meiklejohn will speak on "Evaluations of the Experimental College." Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago, who has perhaps succeeded Dr. Meiklejohn as the stormiest figure in American higher education, is expected to attend and will preside at the Friday symposium.

Evans Asks to Present Shakespeare at Camps

Maurice Evans has been pleading with war department officials to be permitted to take shortened versions of "Hamlet" and "Macbeth" to army camps. Altho the war department is skeptical about the reaction of soldiers to Shakespearean performances, Mr. Evans will probably be allowed to give experimental showings of the two plays at Fort Belvoir and Fort Meade, after he has concluded his present "Macbeth" tour.

USO Show Entertains Newfoundland Soldiers

Soldiers in lonely outposts of Newfoundland were recently entertained by the first traveling unit of USO-Camp Shows to reach their region. Sixteen variety performers took the tour, which necessitated traveling for 55 hours by rail, part of the time on an antiquated narrow gauge line. The actors spent three weeks on the island, giving 19 performances.

Good Morning!

Another April gone with the wind. Another May. Well—the birds and the flowers don't know there's any war. And there are lots of laughs starring the sterner business of the movies. . . . So—let's divide our odd moments among the three. Just for surcease.

Most of April's "bests" have a war theme. . . .

"Heroes of the Sea"—a Russian film—shows the soviet navy in imaginary action . . . "full of dramatic incidents that etch deep into the memory. . . . Mass performance is excellent, and there are many brilliant individual characterizations."

"Dangerously They Live"—"humdinger spy drama, featuring John Garfield, Raymond Massey, and Nancy Coleman — a newcomer — and BRIGHT . . ."

• • •

"Captains of the Clouds"—" . . . fine and inspiring movie . . . dedicated to the royal Canadian air force . . . one of the most engrossing and comprehensive representations of a group that has ever been screened. James Cagney's depiction best thing he's done. . . . All playing brilliant . . . you'll not soon forget the flying field sequences . . ."

"Canal Zone"—" . . . Great excitement at Ginger Bar—army bomber training and relay station near the Canal Zone for pilots who fly United States bombers to Africa. . . . Clever players—Chester Morris, John Hubbard, Harriet Hilliard, et al., at their cleverest . . ."

• • •

"The Male Animal"—adapted from the play. " . . . thru hilarious and side-splitting sequences to a joyously wacky ending. . . . You'll enjoy Olivia de Havilland and Henry Fonda but will get your real kick from Jack Carson as 'Whirling Joe' Ferguson, who returns to his alma mater for homecoming . . ."

"Joan of Paris"—" . . . Intensely suspenseful and at the same time most humanly appealing war film . . . localed in Paris after Nazi occupation. . . . Michele Morgan gives a vivid and moving portrayal in this, her first American made film. . . . All other players—and director—on their toes . . ."

• • •

"Jungle Book"—Adapted from Rudyard Kipling's "Jungle Book" . . . "Big, gorgeous, fantastic fabric, woven of shimmering threads from the never, never mills. . . . Features Sabu, the clever young East Indian. . . . If you're a blasé old thing stay away from 'Jungle Book.' . . . Otherwise, take it to your heart and, for a brief time, become a child again. . ."

"Woman of the Year"—"Superb performances by Katharine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy. . . . Walt Disney never conceived anything more quaintly, tenderly, uproariously funny than one kitchen sequence in the picture. . . . Story, really very simple . . ."

"Joe Smith, American"—Dedicated to all those American regular guys who treasure their heritage of freedom enough to die for it—and with no heroics!—should occasion demand. . . . Robert Young has adequate support; a splendid script and directorial background. . . . In his fine performance he serves his country well. . . ."

See you tomorrow.

"Skylark" in London.

Saxophone Concert.

On the apparent theory that many saxophones are many times as gratifying as a few saxophones, a Boston teacher has gathered together a group of 65 saxophonists, who will make their concert debut in the near future.

Vicki Baum's

best novel—the story of a woman's loves that bridges the turbulence of two World Wars

MARION ALIVE

THIS brilliant and exciting new novel by Vicki Baum encompasses the whole history of our generation, from the beginning of the century up to the present, as seen through the eyes of one woman. Marion Sommer grew to womanhood during the first World War; and throughout these violent years, and the quarter-century of troubled "peace" that followed, she sought happiness in Vienna, in Germany, in America. She knew moments of love with hot-blooded Walter Brandt—and poignant grief when her first husband, proud Captain Tillman, returned from the front too shell-shocked to sleep in his own bed. She knew contentment with bluff, dependable John Sprague—and heart-warming affection for her son, Michael. Then in the midst of a second war, she had to make the most important decision of her life . . .

MARION ALIVE is not only the story of a woman's spiritual, intellectual and emotional development; it is a superb picture of pre-war Vienna, of Germany during and after the war, when the seeds of Naziism were already sprouting, and of the terrible world cataclysm which has climaxed Hitler's bid for world conquest. Critics have called this Vicki Baum's most important work. Thousands of readers are buying it at retail for $2.75—but you may have a copy absolutely FREE if you join THE DOLLAR BOOK CLUB now. Marion Alive
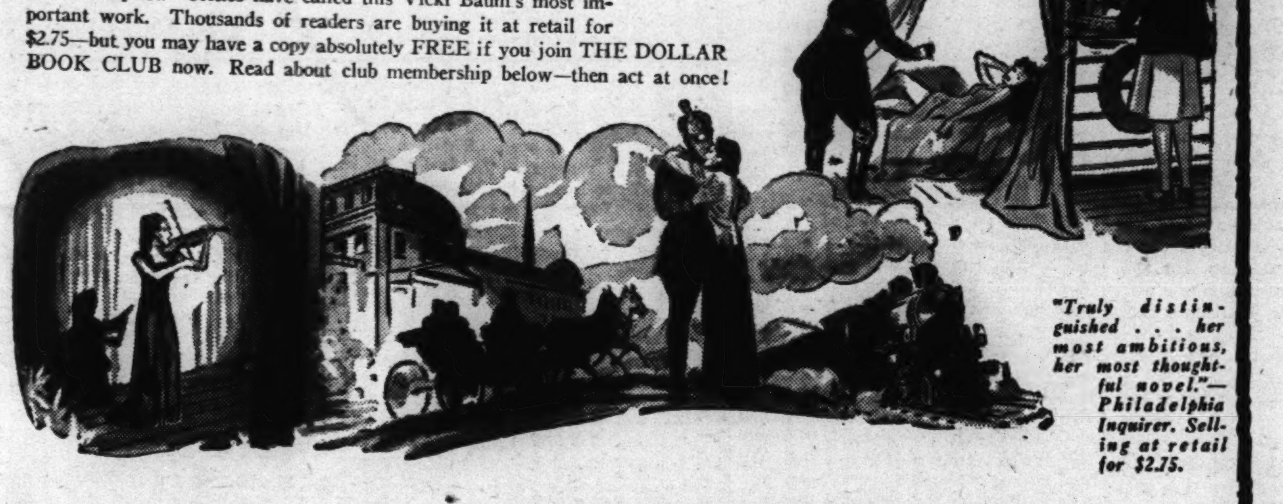
A NOVEL
VICKI BAUM

The new 586-page best-seller by the author of "Tale of Bali," "Shanghai '37," and "Grand Hotel."



"Truly distinguished . . . her most ambitious, her most thoughtful novel."—Philadelphia Inquirer. Selling at retail for $2.75.

"I saw three men off during the last war. Not one came back

. . . I don't like repetitions," said Marion Sommer.

Ever since this war had started Marion had been surrounded by ghosts. Everything had happened to her before. Chris was young—to him everything had happened for the first time. I've been through it before, Marion thought, I knew the beginning of it, the climax and the end.

Christopher smiled down at her. "Come on, darling. Better bring out your hob-nailed boots and get ready to go with me. It will be lovely up there tonight. So quiet, and the sky so close, and the stars so ripe and big you can pluck as many as you wish." That was a fateful Spring morning for Marion Sommer.

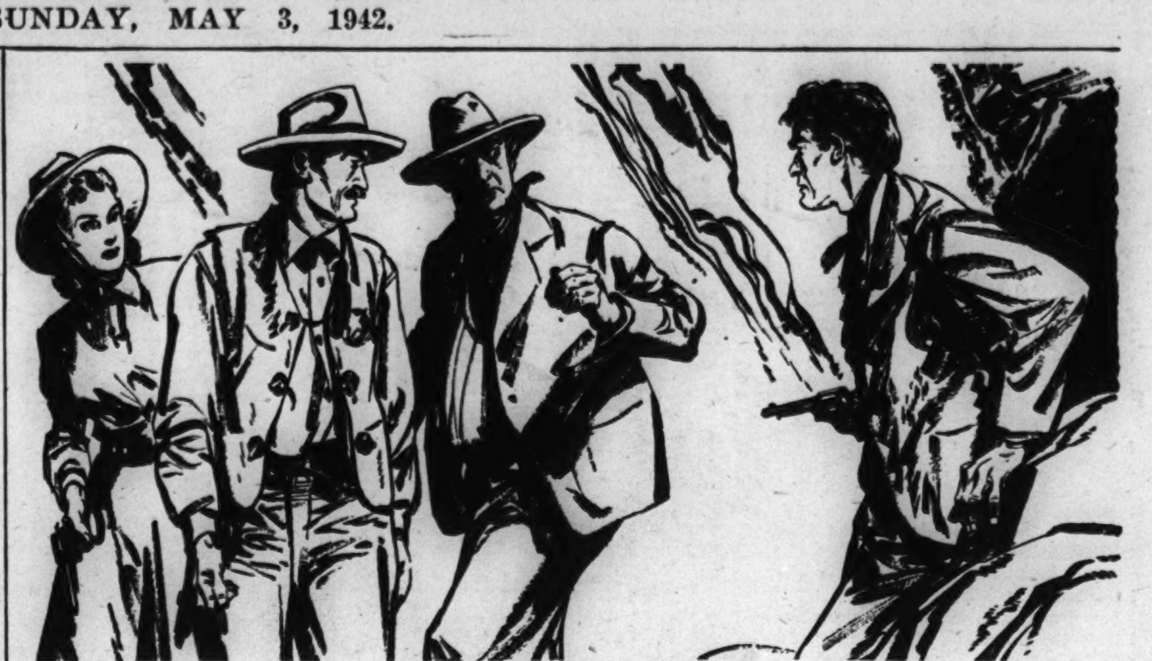
THERE'S A WAY

By T. T. FLYNN

(Copyright: 1942: By Thomas Theodore Flynn.)



"I sort of thought you'd come."

WHEN the last stage passenger stepped down in front of the Palace hotel I nudged Ed Carlin, the sheriff.

"Steve Mayfield's back! Bet he gets his money from Willa Foster this time . . . if he has to marry her."

Ed Carlin grunted.

"Rusty, you're a good deputy until you start pokin' into other folks' business. You know Hoke Mayfield busted those two youngsters up for good with that fool will he left. Hoke knew Steve and he knew Willa. And Steve ain't begging now any more than he was three years ago."

Ed's pale old eyes watched Steve Mayfield walk into the hotel bar with friends who had been in the crowd that always waited for the stage. And Ed was frowning.

I wasn't poking into anybody's business when I crossed the street to Willa Foster's little restaurant, next to the Elkhorn bar. I was hungry.

"Hello, Rusty," Willa greeted as I sat at the counter. "What's new in Palomas this afternoon?"

"How would I know, the way Ed Carlin keeps me busy? Apple pie and coffee, and if you get any prettier I won't be able to eat."

Willa laughed, and served me; and I drank some coffee, rolled a cigaret, and wondered why a girl like Willa should be working early and late when all she had to do was take over half ownership of Hoke Mayfield's Bar S ranch, and half the money Hoke Mayfield had left piled up in the Drovers bank, which was mostly owned by Hoke's estate and Jonathan Case.

But Willa was like that. Maybe Hoke had known it when he drew his will. At least Hoke had known his boy, even if he hadn't been able to corral Steve's wild ways.

The last year when Hoke Mayfield had been sick, with Willa tending him like a daughter, he must have thought a lot about the future.

There was Steve, with the devil in his eyes and in his likable grin, with his wild ways and wilder friends, and little thought for the sober side of taking over the Bar S.

And there was Willa, like a dependable daughter, even if she wasn't any kin, pretty as a yucca flower, and just the honey for a young hellion who was eying her like a buck bee circling a blossom.

From there on the arguments started about whether Hoke Mayfield had been a fool when he made his will, or had been as smart as he was in other things.

Some claimed Hoke had thought too much of Willa to wish Steve on her, and had taken the one certain way of busting up any ideas the two had. Some said Hoke had decided to put a jerk-rope on Steve and leave the rope end in Willa's hands, knowing she would handle it like Hoke wanted, if any one would.

At the funeral Steve Mayfield's comforting arm had been around Willa. Every one thought the two grieving young folks were as good as hitched from then on. But they didn't know what Rance Higgins, the lawyer, had tucked away in his office safe.

Not even Willa and Steve knew that Rance Higgins had carried Jonathan Case and me out to the Bar S, and had called in Long Tom Hall, the ranch foreman, and had us witness Hoke Mayfield's signature on the will.

We hadn't known what was in the will, but later all three of us remembered the mirthless grin on Hoke's work-lined, weathered face as he looked at us from his blanket-covered chair.

"Don't let any one ever tell you I don't know what I'm doin'," Hoke told us. "There she is, down tight an' proper, like I want. Higgins tells me it'll hold up in court. And I'm expecting even Rusty to keep his mouth shut until the dirt is kicked in over me an' folks has wiped their eyes and sobered up."

I always thought Hoke had known what he was doing and what would happen. It happened, too. I wasn't in Rance Higgin's office when the will was read, but I heard about it.

Half of everything to Willa Foster. The other half to Steve. Only Steve didn't get his half until Willa had decided he had settled down and become the man old Hoke wanted him to be. Or until Willa and Steve were married.

Meanwhile Willa got her share at once. Steve's share stayed in the Drovers bank, Jonathan Case acting as trustee until the matter was settled.

They said Steve's face got redder and redder as Rance Higgins went thru the will, and Steve swore softly under his breath. And Willa got pale and sat there, looking at Rance Higgins and then at Steve.

When Higgins was thru, Steve looked at Willa with a queer, hard grin. "So I haven't got anything now?"

Willa just looked at him.

Steve stood up, still grinning.

"All right, I didn't earn any of it. I'll get along."

So there it was. Hoke Mayfield's will had put dynamite between those two young folks and blew them hard apart. Steve couldn't talk marriage now without the money accusing every word. He wasn't the kind to make a play at settling down just to fool Willa. He was wild and he got wilder until he rode away from Palomas a few weeks later with a friend for whom the law came looking not long after.

Willa never talked much about it. But she didn't touch Hoke's money. That fall she opened the little restaurant, and more mines opened in the mountains and Palomas got full of strangers and booming, and you couldn't tell that Willa had ever had any one like Steve Mayfield on her mind.

Steve and Willa Meet Again After Three Years

Now Steve was back in Palomas. Something was due to happen. I felt it.

"Rusty, you're bursting with something. What is it?"

"Me?" I said innocently. "Must be your imagination." And I swallowed some more coffee as the door opened behind me.

And when I looked up and saw Willa's face, I knew who was coming in.

"Hello, Willa."

"Why, hello, Steve."

Like Steve had just been in that morning for breakfast, instead of gone three years. But a hurt and hunger that Palomas never saw had flashed on Willa's face when she looked at the opening door.

"Hello, Rusty," Steve said easily. "I saw you over at the Palace a few minutes ago. You get around fast."

"When I think of Willa, I get hungry," I said, and caught Willa's accusing look and realized I'd said too much.

Steve grinned. "Me, too. Willa, what's ready for the prodigal?"

Steve was three years older, lean, tanned, with the devils of recklessness still in his grin when he looked across the counter at Willa.

And Willa's trace of pallor backed her smile as she reached for the bill of fare she wrote out every day in her neat, slanting handwriting.

"Whatever you like, Steve. Take your choice."

"Do I still have to make a choice?" Steve laughed, pushing back the bill of fare.

"I'm afraid so, Steve."

"Then I'll go hungry. Give me some coffee."

Steve's suit was gray, hat black, and he looked as if he had money in his pocket. I spotted the bulge of a gun under his arm, and that wasn't so good.

He began to riffle a deck of cards, cut and shuffle, while Willa got the coffee, and I said:

"Nice card fingers, Steve. Better than you used to have."

"I'm better at a lot of things, Rusty. Had to be to get along." Steve reached for the sugar bowl and grinned at Willa. "I heard last year that you were running this place. Kind of foolish, isn't it?"

"I like it, Steve. It lets me get along."

"I thought that was how it was," said Steve, and he wasn't smiling. Neither was Willa. Between them hung something stormy, challenging, unyielding.

Steve's laugh had a grate. "Nothing like doing what you want."

"It seems so," said Willa steadily. "Was there anything else, Steve?"

"No," said Steve, turning away from the counter as two strange cowmen came in. "Coffee wasn't what I wanted after all. Rusty, how about a drink?"

"Sure."

Outside, Steve looked at the pale dust haze over the busy street. "Lots of strangers in town."

"She's booming," I said. "And plenty of trouble from the hard cases drifting in after easy money."

"Willa doing all right?"

"Pretty good."

"And Jonathan Case, at the bank?"

"He'll make a million or go broke, the way he's up to his ears in mining properties. How've you been, Steve?"

"All right."

Three horsemen rode past from a hitchrack down the street, raising dust as they passed between us and a lumbering freight wagon. And one of them looked over and yelled: "Como le va, Steve?"

Steve lifted an arm in greeting and I didn't bother to comment that the stranger was one of the wild ones who had been giving us a headache. Steve had known him well enough somewhere in the past three years. Wild years they must have been.

And I had a feeling then of the confession I made to Ed Carlin days later. "Looks like you were right about Steve Mayfield and Willa."

"You still pokin' your nose into that? I told you Hoke Mayfield busted those two for good."

"Steve'll never get his hands on that money the way he's doing."

"If you weren't so wall-eyed blind all the time, you'd be one fool deputy," said Ed, reaching for his high-crowned hat. "Steve gave up that money the day he heard Hoke's will read. He was too much bronc to take the bit that Hoke put in Willa's hands. He was stubborn proud and he still is."

"Then why'd he come back?" I asked peevishly. "Bucking the saloon games, running with some of the worst ones in town, so Willa can see he'll never change?"

Ed's pale old eyes, that could go hard and dangerous, rested on me for a moment.

"He's still Steve Mayfield, an' I guess he hasn't been sleeping too well nights," Ed said, and stalked out as tho that made sense and he didn't like it.

I couldn't see much sense to it. But faint shadows under Willa's eyes, the way she was quiet at times, and absent-minded about customer's orders, made sense.

Steve Mayfield was on her mind and Steve was on my mind, too, the afternoon I caught Willa alone in the restaurant.

"Jonathan Case was in to see Ed Carlin," I said over my coffee.

Willa smiled. "That was nice of Jonathan, or does Ed owe the bank?"

"Neither." I stirred the coffee and took a breath. "Steve's been in the bank asking questions. Wanting to know about his father's money. Asking how much of it's on hand in the bank. Asking Jonathan what the bank would do about all the money it had on hand if there happened to be a holdup."

Willa looked at me steadily. "Steve would be curious, after being away so long."

"Jonathan Case has other ideas," I said. "Some of the friends Steve's made since he came back would hold up a bank or a stagecoach any time. Maybe they have. The stage has been robbed twice lately an' we don't know who did it."

Color was in Willa's face before I finished. "Jonathan Case is a fool, Rusty, and—and . . ."

"And so am I?"

"If you believe that of Steve!"

I finished my coffee, sighed, and looked out the front window so I wouldn't have to meet Willa's look.

"I don't believe anything," I said. "But somebody ought to corral Steve and talk to him. The way he's doing ain't helping him any.

"Maybe it's Ed Carlin's business to," I said, staring out the window. "And mine. Like the Tonto Kid is our business. And that crooked gambler we ran out of town yesterday, and these hardshell gunnies who keep drifting in."

"Steve isn't like them!"

I shrugged. "Folks who always liked Steve are saying he must be wilder than ever, from the company he's keeping. Jonathan Case ain't helping it any. Case went to Ed Carlin first. He'll be talking to other folks next."

"I suppose so," agreed Willa; and when the bitter note in her voice drew my look back across the counter, bitterness was there, too, in her young face.

"Steve will always do what he wants. I'm not even interested any more."

"Sure," I said, watching a little spurt of activity outside. Men across the street were turning to look at something.

Voices were shouting somewhere up the street. Men were starting that way. Two riders went by with a rush as I came off the counter stool.

"Some trouble," I said. "Forget this other, Willa. Probably doesn't amount to anything."

Kindly Bank Teller Killed by Bandits

Five minutes later, inside the Drovers bank, the dry afternoon heat pressed heavily about us. About Ed Carlin, Jonathan Case, Con Walker, the town marshal, and a little excited man named Kirby, who kept records at the Glorieta Mine.

"The shot didn't make much noise," Kirby's thin, unsteady voice was saying. "It was time for the bank to be closed. I didn't think a gun'd be going off inside here. Wasn't until I saw them riding out from the alley behind the bank that I got an idea what had happened."

Behind the counter where we stood, two feet from Ed Carlin's scuffed riding boots, lay kindly Tom Kirkland, who had served the teller's window for years. The bullet must have killed Tom instantly.

The money drawer was still out, looted, empty. Inside the iron door of the little vault, papers and coins littered the floor. And Jonathan Case, who looked like a cattleman who had been out of the sun, away from hard work too many years, soft now, gathering flesh, spoke with anger shaking his heavy voice.

"Steve Mayfield had a hand in it. I warned you, Carlin. Steve couldn't get at the Mayfield money one way, so he took this way. I'll give five thousand for him, dead or alive!"

Ed Carlin looked up from the floor.

"That's a lot of reward, Jonathan, for anybody. 'Specially when all we know is that Steve had his horse near an' rode out of town a few minutes after these strangers got your money."

"One of them wasn't a stranger!" Kirby's excited voice insisted. "I told you he was that Tonto Kid! I'd know him anywhere!"

"What more do you want?" Jonathan Case burst out. "Steve Mayfield's been hanging around with this Tonto Kid. I've seen him myself. It's plain they've been planning this all along. That's why Steve came here at this time. And now look!" Jonathan Case's voice thickened with baffled fury as he gestured at the open vault.

"Cleaned out! All the extra cash we had in for the mine pay rolls. Better than a hundred thousand. The bank can't stand it. We can't open in the morning. Steve Mayfield should have been run out of town the day he returned. What are you waiting for? Why don't you get a posse after them?"

"Dozen or so men took out after them before I got here," said Ed calmly. "I've sent a man for our horses. Rusty, go out an' pick about 10 men who've got the freshest horses, and rifles an' hand guns handy. Get men who'll stay with us."

Ten men weren't hard to find in the crowd outside the bank. They were running for their horses and guns, and I was answering questions and tightening the cinch on my palomino, brought by a hostler from the livery barn, when Willa Foster put a hand on my arm.

"Rusty, they're saying Steve . . ."

All my savings had been in the bank. I was blunter than I should have been.

"I tried to tell you," I said. "That Tonto Kid was one of the three who killed Tom Kirkland and cleaned out the bank. Steve was seen following them out of town. Jonathan Case has offered five thousand for Steve, dead or alive."

Willa said: "Dead or alive!" Her hand went tight on my arm, as if she had to hold to something. "Rusty, they'll kill him!"

"Five thousand is a lot of money," I said. "The bank is busted now. Most of these men had money in it. They won't be feeling too kindly about Steve and his friends."

Willa's look had a stunned, sick accusation. She whispered: "Dead or alive! And I could have given Steve his money, all he could need or use!"

Willa let go of my arm and turned away. I lost my last bit of belief that old Hoke Mayfield had known what he was doing when he signed that will.

West toward the setting sun, rolling hills and wide grassy flats were studded with pinon and cedar trees, and the men who had gone before us had left a trail not hard to follow. In the first few miles Ed Carlin made his guess as to where the Tonto Kid's bunch was riding.

"They're lining for the Black Butte malpais. Must be aiming to cross

HIS FABULOUS FORTUNE

What Has Gone Before

Tho Gregory Zivotti, son of a notorious New York racketeer known as the Brute, has been reared under his mother's maiden name of Williams, he has followed in his father's footsteps and is known in gangster circles as Grongo. The Brute loved his saintly wife and swore to her on her deathbed that he would take the $200,000 she had saved for their son and hide it from him until he was 25. Anxious to carry out her wish, he hides the money in her statue for her grave in California, and without telling Grongo he makes his son promise to destroy the statue with his own hands and erect a joint monument for his mother and father in case his father should die before Grongo. Grongo is trying to regain control of the restaurant racket that has been dwindling since the law caught up with the Brute several years ago. At that time the Brute escaped prison by promising one of his henchmen, Wolf Jaegel, $100,000 to take the rap for him. To gain control of the wealthy Regal chain restaurants Grongo makes love to Tony Rever, daughter of the president, and also hires Puff McGarvin, sister of Sandy, one of his gang, to make love to Tony's brother Harry. He plans to kidnap Tony under the guise of romance, but he is thwarted in the kidnap attempt when Sandy and a Rever detective kill each other and Grongo is arrested for murder. The Brute has to spend $70,000 of the $100,000 he has saved for Jaegel, in bribes to get Grongo out of the scrape. Jaegel, having served his prison term, calls on the Brute and demands his money, plus interest. Learning there is only $30,000 left, Jaegel starts giving the Brute a terrific beating. Wheely, the Brute's crippled protege, intervenes, and Jaegel knocks him unconscious. In desperation, the Brute tells Jaegel of his son's inheritance and promises to get Grongo's consent to use some of it to pay Jaegel. On the way to Grongo the Brute is knocked down and killed by a car. Jaegel then demands the money from Grongo.

INSTALMENT VI.

GRONGO kicked out furiously beneath the table. He heard a pistol fall. He drove his foot hard again and caught Jaegel a paralyzing blow in the groin. He sprang to his feet, seized the edge of the table cloth, whipped it high, throwing hot coffee and soup over Jaegel's face.

He gripped the table edge and pushed the table itself over on Jaegel, pressed him back out of his chair, and down to the floor, under the mess.

Then Grongo rushed out, calling to the astounded Torella:

"Joe, hold that maniac for the police. I'll send 'em in."

He saw Torella take up a big whisky bottle for a weapon and he pushed thru the door. Going as fast as he could without running conspicuously, he hurried to the rooms he had taken temporarily in a cheap hotel, threw his things into a suitcase, dashed down the back stairs, out thru the kitchen, and along an alley to the garage where he kept his car.

He fled west. He had no idea where he was going except that it was away from there. He had what was left of that thousand dollars his father had given him, and since the weather was fine, the roads clear, and there was only danger on the eastern coast, he decided to drift toward California. Tony Rever would be in California.

Only one thing tormented him; Jaegel's reference to the $200,000 his mother had left him. That did not sound like the kind of lie even a crazy man would invent. But what under heaven could be the foundation for such a legend? Where on earth could the money be?

Abruptly he dismissed the whole thing as an insane fantasy. There was no such amount. There couldn't be any such amount. It was all a mere lie his father had told Jaegel in order to gain time. As soon as he dismissed the idea, it came back again. The money must be somewhere. His father could never have invented such a story. Besides, it sounded like his mother somehow, to have skimped and scraped all her life to build up a fortune for him. He adored her for it, but why hadn't she told him!

Grongo Stops to Put in Call for Wheely

As he drove he suddenly recalled the visit he had paid to his father in the hospital and how frantically Babbo had tried to tell him something beyond what Grongo had guessed. Perhaps the Brute was trying to tell him about the money and where it was. It must be in New York, of course, if anywhere. Perhaps in his father's apartment there was some clue. Yet, if he returned, the police would get him, even if he dodged Jaegel. He would have to delegate somebody to act for him. He thought of Wheely. Wheely, of course. Wheely knew everything, saw all, overheard all.

He stopped at a small drugstore in the outskirts of Trenton and called New York by long distance, deposited the coins demanded by some strange woman's voice, heard the coins rattle, and then by magic the voice of Wheely. The voice was doleful and cautious, until Grongo spoke, and then it changed to a cry of joy and infinite relief at learning that Grongo was alive and safe.

Both men spoke as if imaginary detectives were listening in, and Grongo learned only now from Wheely's vague and guarded language of Wolf's visit to the apartment and of what he had done to Wheely. Wheely learned only now of Jaegel's visit to Grongo and of what Grongo had done to Jaegel. Then, in phrases that Grongo felt sure no outsider could translate, he said:

"Wheely, before the big bad Wolf went under the table he huffed and he puffed that Babbo had told him that Bice—you know who I mean—Bice had left a big pile of kale for Gorio. He told Gorio to give down all that Babbo had promised him or else or else. But Gorio told him the truth for once. Gorio never heard of any such kale. Did you, Wheely?"

"Yes," said Wheely. "I didn't hear much, but I know that Bice was always holding out a piece of nearly everything Babbo got. After Bice went away I knew that Babbo had it and was worried about it, but it's one of the few things he kept to himself. It wasn't in the icebox he had in the wall, for when the Wolf was there Babbo scraped that clean and gave it all to the Wolf. He didn't have it on him when he left and it ain't here, for I been goin' over everything with a fine tooth comb. I was just closin' out when you rang me."

"Where you going, Wheely? What you going to do?"

"I don't know. I got a little saved up. Enough for me."

A strange new pang of unselfish anxiety was troubling Grongo's heart. That stout muscle had been pounded so hard of late that it must be going soft. Wheely could feel the gentleness in Grongo's tone as he said:

"But, Wheely, I've got to take care of you as Babbo did. I can't do it just now—but how will I get in touch with you?"

"I'll keep in touch with Burps and Bow-tie, and you know where they can be reached."

"Yes, I know. Well, I'm pushing on to carry out Babbo's last wishes. You know what they were."

"Yes, and God bless you for it. And don't forget what I told you about joining the army. Think it over."

"All right, Wheely. Take care of yourself. I'll try the army—or maybe the navy—or maybe the marines."

"Don't wait too long."

When he left the telephone booth and hurried back to his car, the air was cold and swift with a threat of snow. He buttoned up his overcoat, pulled on thick gloves, and sped away for Philadelphia thru a buffeting gale and thickening flakes that kept his windshield wiper pulsing madly.

Grongo's mind was so confused and purposeless that his course across the country took the same devious paths; but in the course of time he reached his destination at Brawley late one night. He slept in an auto court, what they called a "motel." The next morning he learned that the granite headstone he had asked the Berti Brothers to send was at the railroad freight office. His instructions left at the hospital in New York had also been carried out. His father's coffin had arrived and had already been placed in a grave alongside his mother's.

He drove into the cemetery to take a last look at the statue before he ordered it taken away. He stopped his car on the curving road, walked to the statue, and stared up into the downcast eyes of his sweetly smiling mother's marble image. He was suddenly a child again and she was bending over him.

There was almost tears in his eyes, and then he returned to being Grongo and whispered:

"Did you really leave me all that money, mama? Where is it? I need it, mama. I need it to save my life. Where is it?"

He laughed at himself for a blithering fool to be asking questions of a statue. But love came back and fought with cynicism, and he patted the alabaster back, laid his cheek against the marble bosom, warm with the sun. His cheek was just a few inches from the hoarded money, but nothing, nobody told him it was there. All he felt was a great and sudden affection for the statue and an aversion against robbing the world of it.

Even if he took it away, how could he ever bring himself to lifting a sledge hammer against it and smashing it to pieces? It would be like beating his mother's own body. Yet his father had pledged him again and again to that very deed. Why? Why?

Suddenly he felt as if he were turned to marble himself, for he saw a car stopping just outside the cemetery gate. He recognized the driver as the very hackman who had carried him and his father from Brawley to Los Angeles. The man was twisting his neck to say:

"That's the graveyard. Want to drive in?"

In the back seat was Wolf Jaegel and Puff McGarvin.

Grongo Flees at Top Speed from Cemetery

Grongo did not pause for their answer. He ran toward his car. He leapt over low mounds, headstones, markers. He slid into his car and sent it swirling thru a back entrance to the cemetery and over a rough road into the great highway north.

He was more afraid of Jaegel and Puff than of the law. One motorcycle officer did put out after him; but Grongo's swift engine outran him to the Imperial county border, where the officer's jurisdiction ended. He turned back.

Grongo streaked north. He did not even pause at Palm Springs, or notice that one of the horses he frightened into rearing and nearly throwing its rider was carrying Tony Rever. She did not know who had passed, but the curses she sent after him surpassed those of the spruce youth who was her escort, and whose plunging horse tossed him into the sand, where he somersaulted into a cactus with hooked needles.

The sun above the Mallison ranch was cold as a firefly's lantern. Frost hovered, and the smudge pots had been going all night in the orange groves. The air was flooded with a blanketing black smoke. The wind was rancid with the stink of it. Soot was everywhere—a fleck of it on the tip of the nose of the girl in the roadside fruit stand. The fleck did not fall off, tho Ann Mallison's head wagged from side to side as her great eyes followed the cars that flashed past.

Walter Locke, young superintendent of the Malison ranch, was more impatient than usual of the pendulation of Ann's pretty head, even tho he was in love with her. At midnight he had received a radio warning of a sudden and untimely frost in San Berdoo county, and had leapt from his bed to get the smudge pots going so that his children, the trees, should be wrapped in a warm mist that would keep the fatal chill away.

The Mallisons had not been able to afford the latest devices for warming orchards, and he had to use the old-fashioned smudge pots. All night Walter and Old Man Mallison, Ann's father, had toiled, and all the bleak morning. Walter was red-eyed from lack of sleep and bite of smoke. As he moved about the orange grove, like an interne making the rounds of a hospital ward, he kept glancing at Ann's slim, trim back, and the swish-swish of her curls as her head swung.

He scowled when he saw Swinney's big truck turning in for its usual stop. It was a furniture van loaded to the brim, and tables, chairs, and beds were lashed to the side of it. An atrocious thing on the highway, its progress was always accompanied by an unending noise of honking horns and profanity from passersby who could not pass by.

The young Irish driver, Mike Swinney, was no stranger to Ann and he liked her as well as she didn't like him. He was always sending her into panics of terror, since, whenever he turned off the road to Ann's shack, he forgot to put out the silly wooden hand that gave the signal. There was usually a crisis among the scooting, hooting motorists. When the drivers got their hearts back out of their mouths, they would call Swinney grand old Anglo-Saxon names, knowing that by the time he could leave his truck they would be far away.

As he turned in now, two cars had to put on their brakes with a violence that wrung from them the screams of massacred women. But Mike paid them no heed; he climbed down and approached Ann, working to the utmost his—what are perhaps a little too well known as "laughing Irish eyes." Their glow was wasted on her.

"You're a brave man, Mr. Swinney, the way you steer your truck thru the traffic," she sarcastically commented.

"Ah, they can't hurt me," he said in the brogue of one not long over, and in the high soprano of an Irish prize fighter. "They'd smash themselves like flies on me truck. The on'y thing frightens me is your beautiful beauty."

"Now, Mr. Swinney!"

"Shlip me a glass of orange juitce, and don'e be lookin' into it, for it's not maple syrup I'd be drinkin'."

"Now, Mr. Swinney! Save your blarney for the girl you're really courting."

"It's you I'm courtin'. Why else would I stop be the road and swill orange juitce when the very word orange is poison to an honest Irishman?"

Walter Locke was suddenly leaning across the counter at Ann's elbow.

"If you don't like our orange juice, Swinney, you don't have to drink it."

"If it was you was sellin' it, boyeen," said Swinney, "I'd hate it even if I liked it. Take your ugly face off with you."

He thrust the flat of his hand toward Walt with a mighty shove. But his wrist was seized in a fierce grip and his straight arm was thrown up and back with such violence that he went spinning to the rear and sat down. Being Irish and a lover of good fighting, he only laughed.

Ann Restrains Walter from Leaping Counter

Walt was going right over the counter when Ann seized him and held him so close he could not get away without bruising her. Swinney took a cruel advantage of his helplessness.

"That's right, Locke, hang onto a woman to save you."

Swinney's laugh was as raucous as the sound his gears made when he meshed them in reverse and backed his leviathan across the highway. Suddenly Ann shouted:

"Look out!"

But her cry was drowned in an ear-stabbing shriek of jammed brakes, of tires blistering on the pavement, of a coughing horn, and a man's voice yelling. His warning was unfinished for lack of time before the collision.

A very handsome sports car crashed into the heavy van with the uproar to be expected when the irresistible meets the immovable. There was a splintering and crumping of steel, a crackling of glass, a rain of heavy furniture from the toppling van.

Swinney was knocked to the ground from his broken pulpit and came up dazed but roaring: "Who done that? Lea' me at um!"

But his assailant was somewhere under the wreckage of the projectile, which was beginning to catch fire and to promise worse. Only a bit of the driver hung outside the twisted steel and that was his head, miraculously unbroken, not even bruised, tho nearly snapped off by the sudden stop. It was also at present untenanted by any activating thought at a time when quick thinking and acting were essential.

The perfect calm displayed by Ann Mallison was due partly to the stupor and anaesthesia of shock, and partly to the fact that she had been expecting this very accident every time Swinney's truck appeared.

Walter Locke, following Ann at full speed, found her already gripping the stranger's shoulder and trying to pull him out of the blazing wreck before it exploded. But he was too firmly inbedded for her strength till Walter and Swinney laid

THERE'S A WAY

Concho creek north of the Dry Sands and head up thru the breaks into one of the canyons that'll put 'em back of Coldwater Peaks. We'll have a job if they get back in there."

The sun dipped and touched the Coldwater Peaks with a final yellow blaze that pinched out and vanished. Purple twilight swooped in and deepened toward night as we caught up with some of the Palomas men who had ridden on ahead of the posse.

They were dismounted in a wide grassy draw beside two bodies. Riding hard on the fresh trail they had come on the bodies and two uneasy horses nearby. The dead men were strangers who had been hanging around Palomas. I'd seen Steve Mayfield with them. Each had been killed by a single revolver shot. No trace of the bank's money was about them. Ed Carlin's voice was flat and even, as he climbed back on his horse.

"Looks to me like they were shot so only two'd be left to split up the money. Maybe we'll find another one on ahead."

We had not followed far, with the trail fading out in the deepening night, when Ed Carlin called out suspiciously: "Somethin' funny about this! They're swinging back on the range!"

"Keep on this way," I said, "and you'll hit somewhere near the Little Peaks, back of the Mayfield Bar S ranch. Maybe that would suit Steve. He knows every foot of the ground."

"Can't see why he would stay on this range when it would be safer to keep going," objected Ed.

We found out why when the dark night was about us, hiding the trail. The other Palomas men appeared, back-trailing toward the bodies. They had lost the trail, too, in the dark; but by match light before turning back they had found blood spots on the dry rocks of a wash Steve and the Tonto Kid had crossed. Ed Carlin's voice was cold with satisfaction.

"One of them must be hurt too badly to risk tackling that Coldwater country. Steve Mayfield's circling toward home, hoping to get some help. We'll give him a race to the Bar S."

And we did. But the Bar S crew was asleep when we got there, and Long Tom Hall, the foreman, stood out by lantern light and disclaimed all knowledge of Steve Mayfield.

The cold gray dawn brought no sign of Steve and the Tonto Kid. The tired posse gathered at the Bar S ranch house in the early sunlight for coffee and breakfast, and Ed Carlin said: "We'll keep watch here. Rusty, you ride back to town and send more men out to scout around the Little Peaks. One of them, at least, is cornered somewhere in these parts. We'll get him."

The two bodies had been brought into Palomas and the town was waiting. I had no trouble in getting another bunch of armed men to ride out and help the posse. The bank had not opened this morning. Jonathan Case was more bitter, if possible, as he addressed the men I was sending out.

"Don't forget the reward I'm offering for either one of them. Five thousand, dead or alive. They've got the bank's money. Your money. If you get sight of them, make sure they don't kill some one else and get away with the money!" And you could tell from the men's faces that Jonathan Case had limbered their trigger fingers.

With the dust of their departure drifting gray and sun shot with gold along the street, I entered Willa Foster's little restaurant. Charley Cain, who helped out sometimes, was behind the counter. Willa had awakened him in the night, asked him to open up this morning, and Charley had not seen her since. And I thought of the bodies brought back in the night, the Palomas riders who had straggled home with news of the posse, and I went to the livery barn.

Willa had gotten a horse in the night and had ridden off alone. She had had time to reach the Bar S long before dawn and we had not seen her. I went to my room for a little sleep, wondering uneasily what was on Willa's mind. And when I found out, I wished that I could not have known.

Jonathan Case stood by my cot, shaking me awake. I heard his thick, satisfied voice as I swung up and cleared my eyes. "You're needed, Keynes. We know where Steve Mayfield is hiding."

"Eh?" I said. "Steve Mayfield? O!—Where is he?" I was pulling on a boot while I spoke and looked up at Case's meaty, satisfied smile.

"Willa Foster will show us."

Outside the sun marked midday, and the dry heat was reaching into the front room shadows when I stepped in on the worn carpet and faced Willa. In the shadows she looked slender, tired, with a weary defiance that waited for me to speak.

"Case says you know where Steve is."

"He's wounded and hiding, Rusty. I thought I knew where he might be. I found him there a little after daylight."

"Alone?"

"Another man is with him—but he can't do anything."

Jonathan Case broke in, "I don't see why you insist that I go with Keynes."

Willa looked at him without friendliness. "I want you to be there and admit that the reward belongs to me, all of it." And, when Willa caught my look, her eyes were dark and defiant of all I was thinking.

"Why not?" she said to me. "Some one will get the money. Steve will be caught. He's wanted for murder now. He'll have to face it. Why not, Rusty? Isn't this what you want? Isn't it my duty?"

"Let's go get your reward for you," I said. Willa caught the note in my voice. Red came into her face. She was silent as we went out, reserved and pale as we rode away from Palomas.

Twice near the Little Peaks we met scouting members of the posse. They talked briefly and went their way, and the bleak, gashed rocks and rises of the Little Peaks closed about us. Willa led the way into the higher reaches and dismounted where the low cliffs took the sun on brown, yellow and white strata of rock.

"We'll have to walk from here," she told us.

Jonathan Case licked his lips. "They'll start shooting when they see us."

"Steve's badly wounded. The other man is helpless," Willa said in a low voice. "You offered the reward. I'll go ahead."

"You're hungry to get them, dead or alive," I said. "Let's go."

He came unwillingly, puffing behind me as we angled along the cliffs. Willa turned sharply left, behind a high prow of rock. We followed her into a narrow, water scoured gash, winding back and up thru the rock.

Clean sand whispered underfoot. The entrance had been all but invisible from the narrow canyon below. Sheer, scoured walls of rock at our shoulders thrust dizzily up to a blue band of empty sky. We passed pockets in the rock, side clefts to right and left. Boot marks in the dry sand showed that others had preceded us since the last rain. I closed to Willa's heels, watching for her sign that the danger moments were on us, and behind us Jonathan Case lagged fearfully.

Willa stopped and turned. Under my breath I asked: "Where?" . . . and caught the flicker of Willa's dark eyes looking past me. I was turning when I heard the low bite of words where she was looking. I reached for my gun and barely touched the vanishing barrel as Willa snatched it from the holster.

"Stand still, Rusty!" My turn toward her stopped against my own gun muzzle, hard and a bit unsteady in my back.

Steve Comes Out from Shadowy Cave

Jonathan Case had followed us past a water scoured, shadowy little cave in the rock, no different from others we had passed. But from this one Steve Mayfield had come out behind him.

Steve leaned there against the rock, bareheaded, face drawn with pain and fevered weakness. Dried blood from a shoulder wound and a leg wound was dark and stiff on shirt and trousers. But Steve's gun was steady, his voice easy to Jonathan Case, who had half turned, with hands breast high.

"I sort of thought you'd come," Steve said as he leaned against the rock. "Five thousand for me, too, dead or alive, Willa says."

"Only $5,000," said Steve gently. "I'm surprised it isn't more. Only $5,000 for Tom Kirkland and all that money that was stolen."

"Keynes!" Jonathan Case called, and it came out in a strange gobble of terror. My reply was angrily helpless. "I'm cornered, too! Steve, don't be a fool!"

Steve's grin was a pallid ghost of all the reckless years. "Why not, Rusty? I've already been a fool." Steve shifted painfully against the rock and grinned again. "I was fool enough to come back to help a little, and now look."

"Back to help?" I said.

"Why, yes," said Steve. "I overheard a little talk that some gun-toters were interested in the Palomas bank, so I came back to cut their trail before it happened. Then I got curious and talked to Case about his business deals. He was using a lot of money for his size. But I warned him, too, about his bank. He asked me to watch the Tonto Kid, and I judged the Kid could use another partner if he was handled right. I thought I was handling him right and he fooled me and got out of town with the money."

Steve's mirthless grin was strangely like Hoke Mayfield's grin that day.

"I followed them out of town and we had a little gun work and the Tonto Kid was all I had to take back. And the Kid lost his head and told me what a fool I was. Case had told him to ring me in on the job if he could, and use his gun on me. Case wanted me out of the way so there'd be no more questions about the Mayfield money and our share of the bank. There wasn't much left. Case had lost most of it and used the rest in his own business. The Kid and his men were to get what they found in the bank, after killing Tom Kirkland, so he couldn't talk. Case would say then that all the rest had been taken, too. Everybody would win—but Willa and me and the bank's customers. Right, Jonathan?"

"Rusty, it's true!" Willa's strained voice said behind me. But I was watching Jonathan Case, mute and fearful there before Steve's mirthless grin.

"If I brought the Tonto Kid and the few thousands back, who'd believe I hadn't helped hide the rest of the money?" Steve asked. "Who'd believe me or the Tonto Kid against Case? And if I rode on, I was outlawed with the Kid. So I brought him here to think it over. And Willa found us this morning and told us about the reward, dead or alive. It was a bullet or a rope for us if Case could manage it."

Steve's smile was slow and satisfied. "I asked Willa to bring Case out here. I thought if I'd get him first, I'd feel better about what followed. He'll never tell the truth, Jonathan, are you ready?"

I stiffened as Steve's thumb cocked the gun.

I think I knew before it happened that Case's flabby terror was no shield for the guilt he cried out. "Don't, for God's sake! The books are at my house if you want your proof! Keynes, stop him!"

"I guess he's stopped," I said, and went to Case. He was shaking and sick from the terror.

Steve nodded at the low cave mouth. "The Kid's in there, tied up, Rusty. They got about $12,000 from the bank. It's in there, too. Sorry you had to be handled this way."

"I guess it's all right," I said, and it looked all right to me, the way Willa was inside Steve's arm by then, and the wildness in Steve's face changed now to steady tenderness. And I wondered if old Hoke Mayfield had known there was a way to bring this about when he signed the will; but as I ducked into the cave to get the Tonto Kid, it didn't seem to matter any more.

HIS FABULOUS FORTUNE

hold of the junk pile, and lifted, pried, heaved.

The young man came suddenly free and Ann went staggering backward with him in her arms. She dragged his torn body across the road and behind her shack just before the car shook the air with such concussion that Ann went to her knees, her eyes almost touching the cheek of the sleeping stranger.

She was awakened from her reverie by Walter Locke's voice.

"We'll put him in my car and I'll rush him to the hospital."

Ann shook her head.

"It might be fatal to move a man with broken bones till they're splinted. And taking him miles away in a jouncing car—No! He stays here till it's safe to move him. You run, telephone for a doctor—the best you can find. Quick! And Mr. Swinney, fetch me some water. Hurry, hurry!"

She took the stranger's head into her lap, and angrily warned the thronging bystanders to keep their distance. When Swinney came with a bucket of water slopping over, she bathed the young man's face with her own handkerchief and brooded over his shattered body possessively till he opened his eyes and gazed at her in bewilderment.

"You're going to be all right," Ann said, "but what's your name, please? Where do you come from?"

He tried to wring a smile from his multitudinous pains, and mumbled, "What's yours, darling?"

He fainted again just as Ann's father, mother and little sister pushed thru the crowd. Ann called up to them:

"Mamma, run get the downstairs spare room ready. Papa, find some splints, planks, beanpoles—anything. And some stout cord or rope—a piece of clothesline. Sister, bring a blanket!"

As they scattered, the young man opened his eyes again.

"Please tell me who you are, and where you come from," she begged anxiously.

Partly because he was still Grongo, partly to keep from screaming with pain, he sighed, "I know where you come from. Heaven."

"But I must know your name, in case——"

She shuddered with fear of his death, almost with certainty of his death; and leaned over him as if to ward off a hovering black angel.

He was shivering with death's very chill when her sister came staggering blindly back with an armload of blankets partly over her face. While Ann spread them above the quivering figure, her father arrived with an armload of wood of various lengths, and a length of clothesline, and a knife. She had taken a course once in first aid and she was trying fiercely to remember things right. Hunching about on her knees she laid the strips of wood along the stranger's impossibly contorted legs and arms and wrapped the rope around them as temporary splints.

Patient Moved to House on Improvised Litter

Now Walter Locke appeared with a broad plank to serve for a litter. Gently they moved Grongo to it and Walter and Ann's father carried the unconscious sleeper into the downstairs guest room of the old house.

By the time the doctor appeared—Dr. Plaskett, physician and surgeon—he found his patient fairly well scrubbed and clothed in a pair of Walter's pajamas.

Dr. Plaskett had to smile a little at the splinting of bean poles and strips of packing case wrapped with clothesline that made a crude palisade about the victim. But he had a good word for Ann's presence of mind and her skill.

In the meanwhile her father had been going thru the tattered remnants of the visitor's clothes. He showed the result to Walter Locke.

"Here's his wallet with no name in it, not a card or anything, not even a driver's license. A feller his age must 'a' registered for the draft. He'd ought to have a card, but there's none her. Look at the money, tho. Count it yourself. I made it $643."

Walter went over it carefully, and nodded:

"Six hundred and forty-four, I make it."

"But who in the land of Goshen is he?" Old Man Mallison frowned. "Maybe he's got some baggage or something in the car that'll tell."

"The car is a heap of twisted and blistered junk. Even the license plates are indecipherable."

Ann passed by on one of her countless errands. Her father showed her the money, and added:

"It will pay for his board and lodging and doctor bills."

"But, papa, the good Samaritan didn't charge room rent, did he?"

Cephas grinned: "Maybe he would 'a', but the Bible says the feller fell among thieves first. So the Samaritan had to trust him. I guess we can do the same. We'll manage somehow, if Beulah can stand the extra work."

"Me?" his wife cried, "I'll dearly love to do anything for the poor boy. I'll be as good a mother to him as I can till his own mother and father get here—if he's got parents living."

That brought on a new sorrow, and Ann was still writing imaginary messages to break the news as gently as she could to an imaginary father and mother. But she was sadly relieved of this grim task when Grongo came out of nowhere long enough to answer faintly her renewed appeal:

"Please, please! Tell me who you are, and who ought to be told about—about——"

"My name—Gregory Williams. New York. No relations. Father—mother—both gone on ahead."

But now the trained nurse arrived at last and helped Dr. Plaskett remove and replace Ann's temporary scaffolding. Before they had finished with him, Grongo was almost a motionless monolith of bandages and plaster splints. But the doctor said he was in little danger of leaving his new home for a long, long while.

During his searing and leaping anguishes, Gregory Williams swore with such frequency and such frankness before women that Ann was sure he must come of a very aristocratic eastern family. The nurse, Miss Bland, said there was nothing much to do except sit by and wait while Mr. Williams' bones knitted.

One of his first questions Grongo asked Ann concerned his car and his money. Ann told him that nothing was left of the car but junk. The money, however, was intact to the extent of $644. She laid the bills out before him.

"Thank God," he sighed, "now I can pay my board and keep. I want you to take out of that every week what my upkeep comes to for the room, the meals, the laundry, the nurses' wages, the medicines, the doctor's bills—good Lord, that money won't last a week. It's probably all used up already."

"Where do you think you are, at the Waldorf?" Ann laughed: "Or one of the big private hospitals? Board and lodging are so cheap out here you'd be surprised, and country doctors don't charge much. We really ought to pay you for stopping in to see us and providing our dull lives with all this excitement."

He did make Ann promise she would pay the nurses every week-end—he was going to ask her to take out enough for his board and lodging—but he sighed:

"Let me talk to your father about how much money is to be deducted for me. I wouldn't trust you to be honest with me."

At his insistence she called in her father and he reluctantly consented to accept a modest weekly sum for the space and the provender Grongo consumed. But he stole Ann's idea.

"The good Samaritan didn't charge, did he?" Cephas Mallison asked.

"I don't know," said Grongo. "I never had him for a landlord. The good Californian is good enough for me."

So Cephas kept the money and the books and, if there were any cheating, he cheated the house.

Day followed night until somehow two weeks were gone. And then one afternoon Ann found Grongo babbling in a pain-scrambled dream. The nurse was away and Ann stole in, bent down to listen.

"But I love you," Grongo mumbled. "Tony, darling, I tried to save you. Poor Babbo! Mamma! Where is it? Where did you hide it?"

His voice sank into a meaningless jargon and whimpers of torment. That name, "Tony," had struck Ann across the face. She felt like an eavesdropper and would have stolen out, but Grongo woke and his lips moved. She ran back to him and put her ear so close to his lips that he kissed it. It stung her sweetly, but his words were:

"Would you be—angel—write a letter—for me?"

"Of course," said Ann. She ran for pen and paper.

"To whom is the letter going?" she said with pen poised as she sat down by his bedside.

"The address," he said, "Miss Antoinette Rever—care Mrs. Arthur Clinton, Palm Springs."

"O, Palm Springs!" Ann said. "That's not far away. Walter is taking a load of grapefruit and oranges there this afternoon. He can deliver the letter in person."

Grongo Dictates a Letter to Tony

"He's too handsome," said Grongo. "I know Tony. Well, this is the letter: 'Dear Tony'—no—'Darling Tony.'"

"You call everybody darling, don't you?" She had to say it, but she added, "Sorry! Go on!"

He smiled and went on with his dictation:

"Dear Tony: My old car—remember it?—was hitting it up when I—I was stopped by a truck. Car's gone. Remains of me swept up and—brought into the house of—family angels—named Mallison. You want to see real work art—come see what's left. Come quick because—Miss Ann Mallison—my guardian angel—raving beauty—that is, she furnishes beauty. I do the raving. . . ."

Grongo looked across at Ann and said:

"You're not writing, Ann darling."

"I can't waste ink on such foolishness," said Ann.

"Please!"

"No."

"That's all then. Just sign it—Greg!"

She took the letter to Walter Locke and said: "This is a letter he's dictated to his sweetheart in Palm Springs. Will you drop it in the post-office there?"

It relieved Walter immensely to learn that the invader had a sweetheart of his own, but when he saw the look in Ann's eyes and understood how bitterly hurt she was, he loved her so well that even his jealousy was less than his devotion. He was actually angry at his rival for not loving her.

"I'll go in and really break him to pieces," he said.

"You'll deliver this letter, please," said Ann with a firmness that chilled him. But when he had driven away she went to her room and flung herself on her bed and wept.

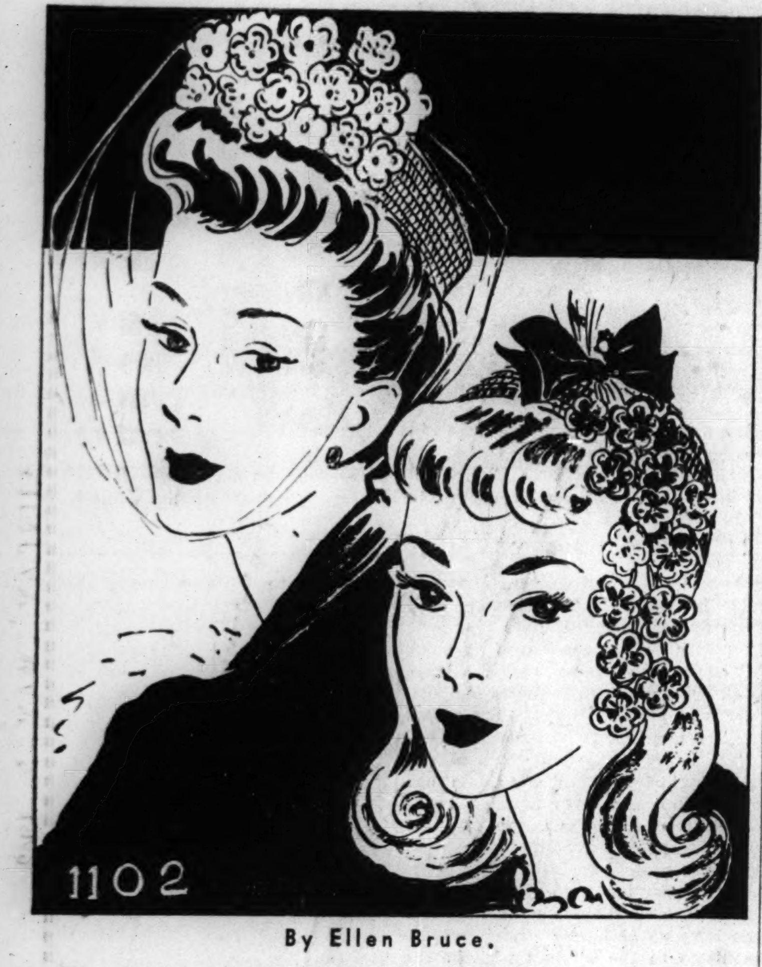
Two Crocheted Hats



By Ellen Bruce.

Here are two crocheted hats which are simple to make. One is a pillbox with crocheted flowers draped across the front and decorated with veiling. The other, calot type has an attractive side drape of flowers enhanced with a pert velvet or grosgrain bow. Both these models may be done in gimp, carpet warp, or crêpe yarn, as well as a synthetic straw which is pleasant to work with.

For instructions in crocheting the hats, No. 1102, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Many Charities to Benefit from Tag Day May 11

Thirty-eight charitable institutions will share the proceeds from the 26th annual tag day of the Chicago Federation of Aged and Adult Charities, set this year for Monday, May 11. Under the direction of its president, Mrs. N. A. Nelson, the executive committee of the federation is going ahead with plans for the huge project, which is sponsored by the city council and the Association of Commerce.

Thruout the day on May 11, volunteer taggers will be at work in Chicago and the suburbs accepting contributions in exchange for little pasteboard tags. Every cent collected on the street goes to the charities after the tagger has returned her sealed box to the First National bank for counting. Each charity will receive the amount collected by its own taggers. Tagging hours will be from 5 o'clock in the morning to 4 in the afternoon, and all boxes must be turned in at the bank by 6 o'clock.

Volunteers who will tag for the House of the Good Shepherd will be entertained on Friday at the annual spring meeting of the religious organization's auxiliary. The 2 o'clock meeting and tea will include a tour thru the convent and a talk by Miss Maureen Daly, young Chicago author, on her recently published book, "Seventeenth Summer." Mrs. Leo P. Cummings is president of the auxiliary.

Stopher of Kent, O., from region 3, and Dr. Alice Sowers of Norman, Okla., from region 4.

Sanchez of the University of Texas; L. A. De Wolfe, president of the Canadian Federation of Home and School, and Prof. Rafael Ramirez of the department of education of Mexico. Miss Ethel Kawin, lecturer at the University of Chicago and director of guidance for the Glencoe public schools, will be among the many other speakers. Mrs. William Kletzer of Portland, Ore., national president, will preside at the sessions.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

Only on rare occasions is it necessary for a player to remember the cards down to the four and five spots. It usually suffices to count the break of suits and to concentrate on how many of each have been played. But note the lowly card that brought home the contract in the following hand:

West, dealer.
Match point duplicate.
East-West vulnerable.

NORTH
♠K J
♥8 4
♦K Q J 7 4 2
♣A 8 4

WEST
♠9 6
♥10 7 3

♣J 10 6 5 3 2

EAST

♥A Q J 9 5
♦A 8 6
♣K

SOUTH
♠Q 8 7 4 2
♥K 6 2
♦10 5
♣Q 9 7

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 diamond	1 heart	1 spade
Pass	2 diamonds	2 hearts	2 spades
Pass	Pass	Pass

I hasten to say that I bear no brief for this bidding. North and West bid properly, but East and South put on a remarkable exhibition of [respectively] cowardice and optimism. East's one heart overcall was in itself a fantastic underbid. He had a beautiful takeout double of one diamond. South's one spade free bid was not bad under the vulnerability conditions, and considering the fact that this was match point duplicate, but his two spade rebid over East's timid two hearts was something at which to shudder. North cannot be blamed for leaving the contract at spades, since he could hardly know that South's suit was so very weak and since a major suit contract might produce a much better score than if North were to take the bidding back to diamonds.

Tho South's bidding was atrocious, his play was all right. West opened the heart 10. East won with the ace and returned the queen, declarer's king winning. Now declarer had many things to think about before trying to draw trumps, so he led a diamond toward dummy. East captured the king with the ace and, assured that declarer had another heart [because if West had had four, originally, he would have led his fourth best], returned the heart jack. Declarer did not think well of using one of dummy's valuable trump honors to ruff this trick and preferred to discard a club from dummy. Now East decided to build up his own spade holding by getting his partner to force one of dummy's trump honors, and to that end, led a fourth round of hearts. Declarer had no good discard to make on this play and was not anxious to lose the king or jack of spades without exacting a trump from the opponents, hence ruffed in with the spade seven. West overruffed with the nine, and dummy in turn with the jack. Now the spade king was led. East won and declarer carefully noted West's follow-suit play of the six. East led his last heart. Declarer ruffed with the eight and was relieved to find that West could not overruff. Declarer led his remaining diamond to dummy and cashed the queen and jack, discarding a club from his own hand, while East had to follow suit.

Now that the remaining spades were located in East's hand [otherwise West would have ruffed the third diamond] the rest of the play became marked. Dummy led another diamond and East trumped it with the five spot. Declarer overruffed with the queen, then led a club to the ace, dropping East's king, and with only two cards remaining in all hands, returned another diamond. At this point East had the 10-3 of spades, while declarer had the singleton four spot and the club queen, but East was helpless to shut out declarer's low trump. Actually, he ruffed with the three and declarer overruffed with the four. It would have done East no good to ruff with the 10, because then declarer would have discarded the club queen and retained the spade four, over the three, for the last trick.

The interesting part of this play was that so lowly a card as the four spot could be a vital factor in fulfilling the contract.

An article by Mr. Culbertson appears in the feature section of The Tribune each weekday.

Hearts are trump and South leads. North and South are to win all the tricks against any defense.

Solution: South leads a trump, which North wins over West's play. North returns the ace of diamonds, on which South discards the club. North leads a club and South trumps it, leading his remaining trump. North picks up East's trump.

West was to solve the problem by his discard on this last trump lead. Whatever he does he will regret.

Flag Etiquet Is Strict on All Occasions

By Helen Bartlett.

In these days of marching men, military bands, "God Bless America," and the waving of flags it is apropos to go more thoroly into the etiquet of displaying the flag. There is a very strict code of flag etiquet, as adopted by the national flag conference, and anything less than perfection in the observance of the code is not good enough.

First, we might mention that our flag represents the living country and also that the union of the flag—the blue field with the 48 stars—is the point of honor. This will help to explain the reason for some of the rules.

The flag of the United States of America should be hoisted quickly and lowered slowly and ceremoniously, and should be displayed only during the daylight hours [from sunrise to sunset]. It should be flown on all national and state holidays or other special occasions, but it may be displayed from every flagpole every day of the year if the weather permits.

There never was a more inspiring duty for the flag to perform than that of leading a parade or procession. If it is being displayed in a procession, with a number of other emblems, it may be carried in advance of the others and in the center of the column. Or, if the flag is carried in the same line with the other colors, it must be on the right, the flag's own right. The right is the position of honor, and the same is true if flags are displayed against the wall.

The Stars and Stripes must be on the right of the group, the flag's right and the observer's left. When hung on the wall, the union must be at the top and at the flag's right. On the occasion of displaying many emblems, state flags, or pennants of various societies on the same halyard with the flag of the United States of America, the latter must be at the peak.

Flags of different nations on display together must be flown from separate and individual staffs of about the same height. Two may not be hoisted on the same staff with one above the other without insult to one of the nations.

Flags sometimes are flown horizontally from a cable stretching from a building to a pole or tree so that they hang out over the sidewalk. In a case such as this the banner is hoisted out from the building toward the pole, union first. If the flag is displayed in any other manner, not flown from a staff or hung from a cable, it should be arranged perfectly flat and never draped. If there is any draping of the colors to be done, bunting must be the medium. And when bunting is used to drape a platform, cover a table, or decorate a float, it should be in this manner: The blue stripe above, the white in the center, and the red below.

Fashions as I See Them

By Judith Cass

The old contention that purple is a hard color to wear is definitely disproved by two smart Chicagoans. Mrs. Telfer MacArthur wears a gown of the regal shade, simply cut and unadorned save for a single strand of pearls. The little hat which matches it is tied with purple velvet ribbons and heaped with lilacs in a lighter shade. Another distinctive purple costume is that of Mrs. Eugene Howard, who wears a two piece sheer wool suit in a rich morning glory shade. At the neckline of her little bolero jacket ripples the finely plaited collar of her sheer, purple organdy blouse. Two spikes of giant white stock at the front of her purple postillion bonnet give it a jaunty air. . . . No garden ever saw blossoms as large and exotic as the twin yellow feather poppies atop a calot that's part of Mrs. Champ Carry's wardrobe. The little hat is especially dashing when worn with a simple dress of deep hyacinth blue wool. Particularly handsome is Mrs. Carry's jewelry of gold, diamonds, and rubies, including an unusual jeweled watch bracelet, whose face and the two links flanking it form an elongated triangle. . . . Presiding at a recent luncheon of the Infant Welfare society of Chicago Mrs. Gordon D. Shorney wore a trim suit of olive green silk gabardine. Handsome gold flowers studded with green and orange stones were clipped to one pocket. Green and orange ribbons were wound about the peaked crown of her sand colored hat, which matched her tailored silk blouse.

Mrs. Telfer MacArthur. [Tribune photo.]

Among the smartly dressed guests at the luncheon was Mrs. Lynn A. Williams, in a two piece jacket dress of sheer oxford gray wool jersey. The skirt, knife plaited all the way around, was of the monotone gray shade, while the top and jacket were striped horizontally in a lighter gray and gold. Two chubby gold cherubs played on one lapel of her fitted jacket. Mrs. Williams' miniature Mary Queen of Scots' bonnet with a tiny brim that fitted down snugly over her pompadour was of a cinnamon color just a shade deeper than her handsome Arizona tan, a souvenir of seven weeks spent in the southwest. . . . Perhaps the most glowing spot of color in the room was Mrs. Harry Ramshaw's swagger, fur collared cape of Kelly green wool. Red feather poppies topped her tiny black calot. . . . Suits with matching hats always have been popular, but never more so than now. Distinctly "different" is the suit and hat combination Mrs. John L. Haverkampf III. is wearing this spring. The suit is a vivid green tweed, and the hat is a double beret of matching green and bright red, the green on top, seemingly fastened to the under part by a matching wide red ribbon. The blouse Mrs. Haverkampf wears with the suit is of red and green print handkerchief linen, pretty and fresh looking. . . . Miss Eleanor McNally, who is the Chicago Junior League's new treasurer, has a handsome outfit with a hat that is quite different from most of the matching ones. The suit is of a plaid gray material, and the hat has been draped and tucked and worked into such a pretty turban with a gathering of the material over the forehead that it seems as if it must have been made of a more flexible material than it is.

• • •

Miss Jean Kellogg went off one morning to sell war savings stamps and bonds at her post in the Drake, wearing a sporty, two piece suit in beige and gray plaid. The cunning little matching hat was much like a jockey's cap, complete with visor. . . . Mrs. George F. Getz Jr., looking as tanned as if this were August, wears a navy blue suit and a large brimmed hat of matching felt. The severity of the costume is relieved by a white silk blouse which Mrs. Getz wears with the collar out. . . . Hopping aboard a bus the other day, Mrs. Aldis J. Browne looked as young and pretty as either of her young daughters-in-law. She was wearing a periwinkle blue, gabardine suit and a white blouse. Her hat was a chou of field flowers dipping over her brow, and anchored with a narrow blue bandeau. . . . Mrs. George A. Kelly looks particularly youthful and smart, too, in a navy blue suit with a white crêpe blouse, the front of which consists of two pieces that cross and tie, with a fine little tie of the same material at the neckline. The skirt of the suit is draped cleverly across one hip, making it feminine and dressmaker-y rather than tailored. The hat Mrs. Kelly wears with this distinctive outfit is a little navy blue sailor topped with two white quills. . . . Mrs. Frederic W. Upham has a distinguished dress and coat ensemble in two shades of blue. The coat is of navy with full length revers lined with sky blue to match the dress.

Mrs. George Getz Jr.

A pair of well dressed sisters at a recent Chicago symphony meeting were Mrs. William H. Mitchell and Mrs. James R. Addington. Mrs. Mitchell, who heads the Chicago enrollment drive for the Seeing Eye guide dog school in Morristown, N. J., was wearing a gray tweed suit, some marten skins about her neck, and a most attractive hat that looked as if it were made of pearl cellophane. It was a little pancake, held on by a bandeau of the same material, and trimmed with navy blue veiling that fell almost to her shoulders. . . . Mrs. Addington, who is as blonde as her sister is dark, was wearing a yellow-green wool dress, a brown fur jacket, and a little cap of brown straw with a forward jutting brim, trimmed with a long brown quill and two bright yellow balls of wool. . . . At a recent wedding reception Mrs. Samuel Insull made a stunning picture in all gray. Her hat was of gray suede with two gray feather wings. Her dress was of gray broadcloth with a full length matching coat, and her shoes were three eyelet ties of gray suede. Mrs. Insull has a dark complexion, and the effect was handsome. . . . Mrs. Frank H. Woods Jr. looks dashing in a gray felt buccaneer hat that is turned up on one side, and down all the rest of the way around. Mrs. William M. Collins Jr. likes to wear hats on the order of an overseas cap. One, in striped wool, matches the top part of a stunning topcoat she has, the bodice of which is in the striped wool, the flared skirt in dark. Her sister, Mrs. Solomon B. Smith, has a regular little garden of a hat, a small turban that is made entirely of flowers in soft, pastel shades. Mrs. Theodore S. Gray combines striped wool with plain in a two piece suit, the top in blue stripes, the plaited skirt plain.

Mrs. James R. Addington.

Phase Passes Rapidly; No Need to Worry

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Several days ago, we were talking about the fact that, as boys and girls grow into their teens, they can no longer be treated as little children, for if they are treated so, they will rebel or resist in some way, or become sulky, or uncoöperative, or irritable; or worse still, may in a few cases be kept too dependent. Therefore, what teen age children need is less direction, less correction, less criticism. Naturally, that means we parents must achieve our ends for our adolescents by a different method, by more tact and by always recognizing their real need for increasing independence.

Now it helps to face the fact that many changes take place in the teen years, some physical, some mental, some noticeable, some not so much so. But where parents make their great mistake is in being disturbed by what we might call the "personality changes" that occur during these years. There are a number of ways in which the personality of our Jill or John will seem to us to be changing. And some of these ways will affect their relation to us.

As an instance of what I mean, have you recently been quite unhappy because you felt yourself shut out? Have you been baffled by a sudden desire on the part of your adolescent son or daughter for personal privacy?

There is little to be found that makes interesting "reports" of actual experiences on this subject; but the principal of a school has a narrative worth repeating to you.

"One day a man whom I knew well came to my office," he said. "I could see that he was very much excited. He said he wanted to see me about his 14 year old son, Ben. I knew Ben and I couldn't imagine what this boy had done to cause his father any worry. I asked him to tell me his story.

"'We have always been a very devoted family,' the father said, 'and every night for dinner there was my boy, Ben, my two daughters, my wife and myself. It was at that time that the events of the day were reviewed and discussed. We had such a good time together that my wife and I always were sorry when any other engagement interrupted our family dinner.

"'Lately, however, we have noticed that Ben has not seemed to be happy; has not entered into the discussions, and immediately following dinner he has gone at once to his room. He has been, in fact, almost surly. Once a pleasant mannered, happy-go-lucky sort of a chap, he now is irritable and hard to live with. The climax came last night when, all of a sudden, he left the dining room table, rushed up to his room, and locked the door. When his mother went upstairs, she found a note pinned on his door which read: "This is my room! Do not Enter!'

"'Now,' the father continued, 'my wife is in tears, I am in distress, and the family circle is broken. What shall we do?' My reply to this distracted father was, 'Do nothing.' I said that because I remembered an almost identical experience which happened to me at that age, and I knew that my mother had cried, too, when she found a note telling her DO NOT ENTER! This is a common happening among teen age boys and girls; it occurs thousands of times.

• • •

"I do think I should add that this phase of Ben's life quickly died out, as it always does. He again became an active member of the family circle, and is today the head of his own home."

The wise principal went on with his comments:

"If you have had, or now have, a 14 of 15 year old boy in your home, you have noticed, in all probability, that he likes to have what he calls 'his own things.' He has been, up to this time, quite content to be a member of the family group and has had no particular idea of ownership. That is to say, he has readily shared his room and his books, and even his clothes with other members of his family. Suddenly this attitude changes. He is no longer satisfied with sharing everything with the family. He craves, and he is determined to get, independence.

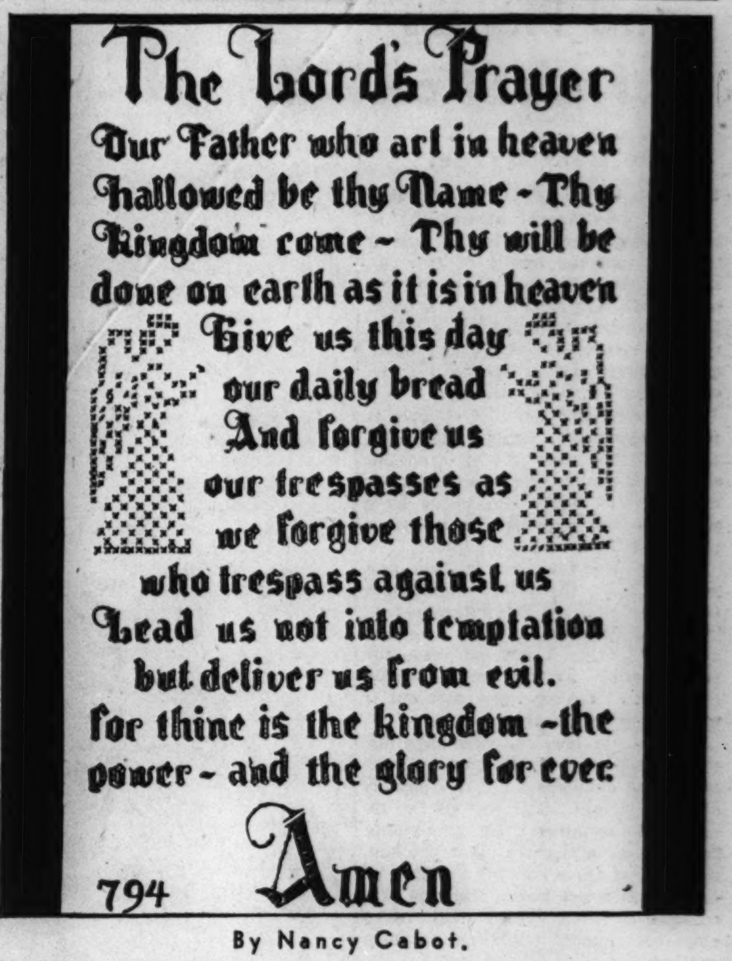
"Many parents are distressed over this trait, for a number of reasons. They feel that the boy is showing evidences of selfishness, not a desirable character trait; that he is introspective and morose; and that the family is no longer a closely knit, happy organization.

"Let parents worrying about their children, who are going thru this experience, be of good cheer. Your sons [and your daughters, too, for that matter], are only experiencing a perfectly normal phase of their adolescent development, and with skillful handling on your part, will come out all right.

"Certainly the training of children in self-reliance is one of the hardest duties of a parent. It is so difficult for them to realize that the baby of yesterday is the young man or young woman of today. To us they seem young and immature. We desire, above all things, to help them avoid some of the disillusionments and discouragements we have met, so we constantly advise and interfere. Yet strangely enough, it is only by meeting and overcoming that these children of ours gain their full stature as independent, self-reliant men and women. This training is a hard task, perhaps, and very hard for the mother or father looking on, but a necessary one for the character development of our children."

How may a child be taught obedience? Should children be permitted freedom of the house? You will find answers to these and other problems in Gladys Bevans' latest booklet, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 15 cents; postpaid, 18 cents.

Embroidered Lord's Prayer



The Lord's Prayer
Our Father who art in heaven hallowed be thy Name - Thy Kingdom come - Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven
Give us this day
our daily bread
And forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us
Lead us not into temptation
but deliver us from evil.
for thine is the kingdom - the power - and the glory for ever

We don't call it idiosyn-crazy when a girl mounting a bicycle wears a coronet of daisies or freesia in her hair. We call that ultrafeminine technique. Anything that lifts the masculine cut garb into the world of femininity is applying real defense technique, don't you think? Or anything, indeed, that raises the feminine type of clothes to further heights of decorative appeal, we claim, never has played a better or more appreciated rôle than right now, when beauty and sentiment are the dual rôle "appealers."

What other than flowers can deliver such fine dexterity, the double blow to eye and heart at one and the same time? Besides, the flower world is this year's world from which to extract clever, distinctive, original decoration for yourself.

Buying Chicken by Piece Is Wise for Small Family

Saves Waste and Pleases Preferences

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1942: By The Chicago Tribune.]

There are several advantages to buying chicken by the piece. One of them is that the family of two can have chicken now and then without eating leftovers for a week afterward. To go into a market and buy a breast for the one who loves white meat, and a thigh and drumstick for the dark meat fan, is a privilege.

There's no denying that chicken is rather expensive, bought this way, that is, the nicer pieces are, but sometimes the convenience offsets the added cost. Backs and necks have all the flavor required for broth or soup, and these aren't expensive.

Unless there's a party in view, and you want all the pieces of chicken to be the same, it isn't practical to buy cut-up poultry for more than just a small family. You'll get more for your money by buying a whole chicken and having the dealer cut it up for you to fry or fricassee.

Several previous columns have discussed methods of broiling and frying young chickens up to 3½ pounds or so in weight. The recipes I'm including today are all right for a young fryer or for a slightly older chicken, since all of them call for braising or cooking in moist heat. Braising is a cooking method which will make even tough meat tender if properly carried out.

Savory Chicken with Rice.

[Serves six.]

1 frying chicken, cut into pieces
½ cup fat
1½ teaspoons salt
1 clove garlic
⅓ cup minced onion
1 cup raw rice
½ bay leaf
¼ teaspoon ginger
1 No. 2½ can [3½ cups] tomatoes

Cook chicken in fat [half bacon fat and half butter would be fine, or use vegetable oil or solid shortening] until browned on all sides. If you wish, you can dip the pieces in flour first, for deeper brown color. Sprinkle with a teaspoon of the salt in the recipe. Remove pieces of chicken from pan and add garlic and onion. Cook gently for 5 minutes, then remove garlic. Wash and drain rice. Put chicken pieces in a large casserole and sprinkle onion and ginger over them. Add rice, and poke the bay leaf into it. Sprinkle with remaining salt and pour tomatoes over the casserole. Cover. Bake at 325 to 350 degrees for 1½ hours, or until chicken and rice are tender and rice has absorbed all of the excess tomato juice.

You may or may not want to put the chicken giblets into a casserole dish such as the one just described. My own preference is to omit them, and cook them separately for a later meal. Creamed sliced giblets on toast can be a very excellent luncheon dish. And you could save the neck, back and wing tips for still another time, using them to flavor soup. There's nothing like getting your money's worth from a chicken!

Chicken in Curry Sauce.

[Serves six.]

1 frying or roasting chicken, cut in pieces
Water, salt, pepper
¾ cup oil or bacon fat
1 onion, chopped
1½ tablespoons curry powder
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour

Cover pieces of chicken with water and simmer very gently until tender. Add salt and pepper to taste during cooking. Remove chicken from liquid. Brown onion lightly in fat, remove and add chicken to fat. Brown on all sides. Remove chicken pieces to hot platter and add butter. Blend in flour and curry powder. Add chicken broth gradually and stir until smooth and thickened. There should be about 2 cups of broth. If there's less, add water to make up the amount. Pour curry sauce over and around chicken, and serve with hot boiled rice.

Note of warning: Not all lovers of chicken like it with curry powder. If curry isn't a popular flavoring at your house, go light on the measurement this time. The taste often has to be acquired. Half the amount of curry called for would be better for those who haven't developed one of those avid appetites for curried chicken.

Barbecued Chicken.

[Serves eight.]

2 frying chickens, cut up
½ cup fat
2 large onions, sliced
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon salt
⅛ teaspoon red pepper
½ teaspoon black pepper
1 teaspoon chili powder
¾ cup catsup
¾ cup water

Start the sauce first. Combine onions and all ingredients which follow them in the list. Simmer gently for 40 minutes. Meanwhile brown pieces of chicken in hot fat, reduce heat, and cook slowly for 15 minutes. Pour barbecue sauce over chicken, cover, and cook slowly for half an hour longer, or until chicken is tender and sauce has been almost all absorbed.

Thru the Looking Glass

Toilet water imported from Brazil. A "good neighbor" note to appeal to the woman who loves beautiful things. at the same time unusual and practical.

[Tribune Studio Photo.]

Imported toilet waters, and from Brazil! Quite the most exciting things we have seen in many a day. Perhaps we could be judged a little prejudiced, since we're fascinated by things South American, but we're sure that the most disinterested person would fall in love with these new, wonderfully exotic looking and beautifully scented toilet waters.

They come in three fragrances, orchidea, violet, and lily of the valley. The lush lands along the Amazon nurture many amazing and unusual blooms, but these three known to North America are, perhaps, the best choice the manufacturers could have selected for translation. The orchidea is especially good, being light and sweet and just as alluring as the most exquisite orchid corsage that ever graced a shoulder. It is a perfect scent to wear for evening and gala occasions. It is excellent also to wear with one of the beveiled little hats so popular this year.

The violet fragrance is perfectly delightful. It is a true flower scent, not one bit disappointing. It has the damp, woodsy overtone so appealing in the real blooms, but which often turns up as just a plain musty odor when put into scenting agents. The violet toilet water may appropriately be worn at any time, but we think it is best with sport clothes.

The fragile and dainty lily of the valley has a fragrance that is difficult to capture, but it is caught with all its elusive beauty in this imported toilet water. It's a fresh, pretty scent, youthful and still not too coy.

We've a sneaking suspicion that, even if these new toilet waters didn't "smell" so good, we would want them anyway because of the way they're packaged. A clear crystal bottle, rather vase-shaped, holds the liquid, amber or green, depending on the fragrance chosen, and there is an attractive gold colored tassel, long and silky, suspended from one side. Floating in the liquid, and looking exquisite and eye-filling, are the actual flowers.

The orchid is crisp and beautiful looking, probably the most attractive of the group. A little nosegay of violets swims about lazily and the lilies of the valley are in separate stalks, giving a lacy appearance thru the glass. They will look marvelous on a dressing table, and we think they're especially pretty gifts for a bride-to-be or to present them to mother on her day. Too, we're sure that any woman who sees them will covet one for her own personal use, and they're priced not too extravagantly for self-indulgence.

Mothers' Aid Is to Have Final Party of Season

A prelude to Mothers' day, next Sunday, will be the final party of the year tomorrow of the Mothers' Aid of the Chicago Lying-in hospital and dispensary of the University of Chicago. The party will be given at 12:30 o'clock at the Palmer House. Dr. Abram Sachar, director of the Hillel Foundation of the University of Illinois, will tell about great mothers of history. Sharing the program will be Ruth Page and Bentley Stone, exponents of the American dance, who recently completed a New York engagement.

Last year the hospital gave obstetrical care to 3,360 patients and gynecological treatment to 730. In the hospital 2,801 babies were born, while 598 were born thru home care. Of the hospital patients only 11 per cent paid the full cost of their services.

Mrs. Frank G., Chicago—My husband has just made a nice parking spot for our garden hose for the summer. With rubber scarce we'll all look to ways of preserving hose. He drove a series of large spikes into rear house wall so that they form a semicircle. He then covered them with some old rubber tubing. In this way, when we put up hose for night, we will wind it around spikes and it won't knot or kink. If no old rubber tubing is available you could use dowels instead of spikes.

Eleanore Ellison, Abilene, Kas.—When cooking asparagus I find it a good idea to put it in the strainer of my deep French fryer. Then when it is tender there is less danger of breaking the delicate tips when lifting out of water. This is a help when it comes to cooking any tender vegetables such as whole cauliflower heads, broccoli, etc.

Mrs. John T., Elgin, Ill.—My husband made me a very convenient light wooden dolly, with a small clothes pin tray attached to one of its handles. I use this to transfer clothes from laundry tubs to basket and then out to line. It saves a lot of back bending. He put wheels on the dolly instead of castors as wheels work best on the lawn outside house.

Mrs. Andrew George F., Chicago—This year I've done what I've been told to do in seasons past: Cleaned my screens and then coated them with screen enamel to protect the mesh, before putting them up for the summer. Screens are going to be worth their weight in silver very shortly, I think, and I'm going to make mine last as long as possible.

The Lady of the House

Sister Months.

April and May seem like two sisters. You know—the pretty, petulant one who runs away and leaves the dishes, and the sweet, quiet one who stays and does them.

When unpredictable, moody April stops to lure us with her sunny smile, gives us—

"A gush of bird song, a patter of dew,
A cloud and a rainbow's warning,
Sudden sunshine and perfect blue—
An April day in the morning;"

then weeps and blusters and sulks, shilly-shallying at her work; it is sister May, "spring's last born darling, clear eyed, sweet," that steps up and finishes April's job and gives with greater prodigality.

New bird songs enchant us each morning; fresh flowers open every day; trees don their gayest attire, and all nature smiles in rapture.

May Witchery.

No restitution shall I ever make
And no compunction shall I feel today
In pirating all that my soul can take
Of beauty from the loveliness of May.
When fragrances from orchard lanes perfume,
The breeze, and on earth's tender green there lies
The star white trillium, while violets bloom
With hue as deep as larkspur colored skies.
When from some forest aisle a thrush's note
Like deep-toned silver bell rings out at dawn,
While in the azure clouds of coral float
And damascened new grasses light the lawn.
And who would barter, even for a day,
The siren winsome witchery of May?

—Katharine Isabelle Dignum.

In the Spring A Young Man's Fancy.

I never knew that bird songs were so sweet,
When spring's first kiss is planted on the earth;
I never saw the vi'lets at my feet,
Of jonquil gold I never knew the worth.

I never heard the music that the breeze
Of spring plays softly thru the orchard bough;
I never knew its songs and symphonies—
Its rhapsodies I never heard till now!

I never smelled the lilacs choice perfume;
I never felt the beauty of the sky!
The loveliness of God's good earth in bloom
I never knew, til' you came walking by!

An Old Man's Reality.

It's spring again, with bird songs just as sweet
As they have been these fifty years or more;
The violets, the whispering breezes greet,
Seem fairer than all others have before.

The daffodils are trying to excel
The golden beauty of the sun above,
For after fifty springs they know full well
They rival not the golden wealth of love.

Spring brought me faith in God and love of you;
Its music of my life has been a part—
A melody for half a century thru—
The song, one spring, you started in my heart!

—Dorene Tanner Oehler.

The blue violets in the border have romped boldly out into the grass since last summer. The white ones and the yellow ones are still hiding under the shrubbery.

When Robbins Quarrel.

A robin in the cherry tree,
Sang with vigor, lustily,
He was so distraught.

For from her nest right up above,
Watching him his spouse and love,
With whom he just had fought,

Was scolding him melodiously,
Warbling down continuously,
So he flew and brought

An offering the breach to heal,
A fat worm for the evening meal,
A plump one, freshly caught.

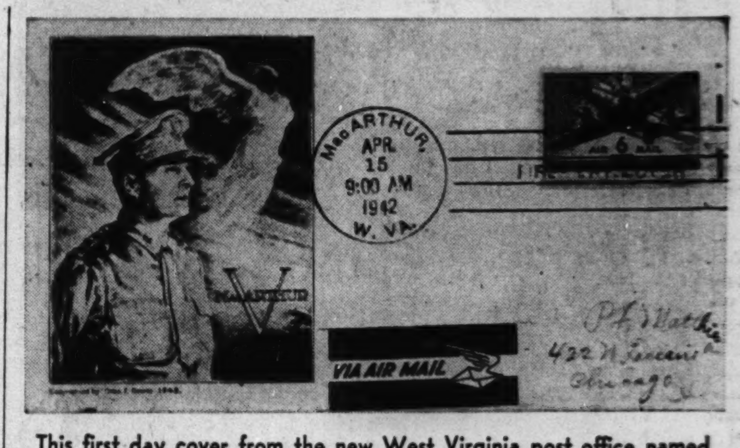
The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, but not about value. The Stamps and Coins advertising column in this page contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped self-addressed envelope for reply.



This first day cover from the new West Virginia post office named in honor of General Douglas MacArthur is shown thru the kindness of P. F. Matthies of Chicago.

Postmaster General Frank C. Walker has announced that he has authorized the issuance of a special commemorative stamp in connection with the 150th anniversary of the admission of Kentucky to statehood.

The new Kentucky stamp will be placed on first day sale on June 1, with general sale at postoffices thruout the country starting the following day or as soon thereafter as distribution will permit. Further details on the Kentucky stamp, as to size, place of first day sale, design, and color will be announced later by the postoffice department, Mr. Walker said.

In announcing the Kentucky stamp, the postmaster general took occasion to reveal that numerous requests have been received at the postoffice department relative to the issuance of a series of postage stamps in connection with the war effort and the issuance of such a stamp or series of stamps is now being given consideration, Mr. Walker said.

The establishment of the new postoffice at MacArthur, W. Va., proceeded according to schedule and the postoffice department has announced that a total of 135,056 first day covers were canceled on April 15. This is a large number of covers for the dedication of a postoffice, but is explained by the popularity of Gen. Douglas MacArthur for whom the office was named. Estimates of the number of covers which might be serviced ran as high as a million and without doubt the number would have approached that figure had a new stamp been issued in honor of Gen. MacArthur's defense of the Philippine Islands.

The following instructions of the third assistant postmaster general are of interest of collectors of postal markings connected with the war. The instructions read: "Discontinuance of philatelic cancelations at army postoffices. Since the establishment of the first army postoffices, it has been the policy of the clerks in charge to comply, so far as practicable, with requests for the cancelation of philatelic mail with the official postmark of the units, altho identifiable by number only.

"On account of the increase in volume, the war department advises that the handling of philatelic mail is overtaxing the facilities of overseas and other military installations, and is seriously interfering with prompt handling of mail for the armed forces. Postmasters at ports of embarkation also are receiving philatelic mail with requests for postmarks at military installations which may or may not be in existence.

"In order to provide expeditious handling of mail to and from our armed forces, and to insure secrecy to military operations, the forwarding of philatelic mail for cancelation to army postoffices is hereby discontinued, effective immediately. [April 10, 1942, Ed.] Requests for the postmarking of philatelic covers will be returned to the senders without the desired treatment in the future."

This instruction will make A. P. O. covers more difficult to obtain, but such as may be had from friends will be better property than those made to order.

New military postoffices have been established as follows and the postmarks should be watched for in current mail: A. P. O. 932, branch of San Francisco, effective March 31; Fort Myers, Fla., army air base branch, effective April 22; Alexandria, La., Esler field branch, effective May 1. On April 16, the name of the Fresno air base branch of the Fresno, Cal., postoffice was changed to Hammer field branch.

Hugh M. Clark of Scott Publications, Inc., publishers of the Scott Standard Catalog of Postage Stamps, has issued a statement explaining his stand in regard to the two volume catalog which is scheduled to supersede the one volume catalog in the next or 1943 edition.

The change from one to two volumes was brought about to avoid an increase in price rather than a desire to make it more expensive for the general collector. Mr. Scott has explained that an increase in size in the one volume work would involve hand work in some of the binding processes and that it would be cheaper to buy two machine-made volumes than one handmade volume. Where one volume filled the individual collector's need, the cost would be reduced to less than half.

All this discussion began and the decisions were reached prior to Dec. 7, 1941. Since that eventful date many new elements have been introduced into the problem, such as electrotype metal which is made of strategic metals, bookbinders cloth which is on the restricted list, etc. Since it may not be possible to obtain enough electrotype metal to handle the entire job, Mr. Clark states that it has been decided to abandon all plans for the 1943 editions of the Air Post catalog and the Specialized United States catalog. If necessary the publication will be limited to the first volume of the two volume general catalog. This will be bound in paper instead of cloth on the board bindings. The paper used for the text will not be the same as has been used in the past but will be as good as can be obtained on the market.

Part I. of the Standard Postage Stamp catalog will include: [a] United States and possessions, including all stamps of countries which are or have been United States possessions, and the administrative issues of the Canal Zone; [b] the British Commonwealth of Nations; [c] the American Nations, and [d] American Colonies of other nations.

Part II. of the Standard Postage Stamp catalog will contain the remainder of the world's stamps and will repeat section [d] of part I. for the benefit of cellectors whose interests might lie solely within part II. except for the colonial possessions in America.

It is hoped by Mr. Clark that both parts may be published at the regular time next September, and that the Air Post and United States catalogs may be undertaken by the following March, but there are many circumstances which are not within the control of the publishers.

Correspondent Begs for Aid and Counsel

By Doris Blake.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

We don't know what the moral is in connection with the following first-hand tale, unless it is to close tight the door against an intruding relative, no matter what her hard luck story may be, on the well known contaminating action of the one rotten apple in the basket.

We don't know if there is any hope of a happy ending to our correspondent's plight. We doubt it. His is an experience to which, we hope, not many men are subjected, altho we suspect sometimes the trials that beset men thru the utter selfishness and disloyalty of their women may exceed in cruelty that which is meted out to women whose heartbroken stories we hear far more frequently.

• • •

But here's correspondent's story:

"My dear Miss Blake:

"Thirteen years of married life, with the one and only woman in the world, were bliss. I had a good position and nothing was too good for her. We were in love. She was a good girl.

"She has a cousin, a bit too flighty. This cousin ran away from home, then got married, left her husband, ran wild all over the country, and finally came back home with a baby. My wife never approved her cousin's actions.

"I lost my position, then I bought a store. We all worked there. Later on business dropped considerably and I began to worry a lot.

"My wife's cousin became ill and, being unable to hire outside help, I worked from 18 to 20 hours daily to keep the store going. I even slept in the store in order to open it on time in the morning. I put everything I had in that store, in order to make it a success, but despite all my efforts, business went from bad to worse. I got behind with bills and had a hard time, trying to keep up with the expenses of the store and the house as well. It was a losing proposition. We had all our money invested in it, and I didn't want to lose it.

"All this, plus hard work and no rest, made me a nervous wreck and I became cross and cranky. I never took a day off and soon started quarreling with my wife.

"Finally, the end came. I had to close the store.

"I told my wife that, as soon as I was settled again, we'd move from where we lived and start life all over again. I noticed a great change in her.

"She told me she didn't like the idea of moving and, besides, she didn't care for me as much as she used to. Later she confessed to me that she was in love with another man. She blames me for neglecting her while we had the store. Subsequently I found out that this fellow worked himself into their hearts by doing odd jobs around the house, caring for the baby, taking her to the movies, visiting the house every day, while all my time was taken up with the store and I did not know what was going on in the house.

"Her cousin, meanwhile, got a job as a hostess in a cheap night club and she made all kinds of friends. These friends were not the kind with whom I'd like to have my wife associating. Her influence and advice turned my wife's head, and she started going on dates her cousin arranged for her, drinking and dancing, things that she never did before in all her life.

"When I remonstrated, she told me she wants to go out dancing, she wants to be free to go wherever she likes and with whom she likes, without giving an account to any one.

"When I lost the store I felt very badly about it, but when she told me she loved some one else, I went almost crazy. I even thought of killing them both. I thought of suicide. I was entirely out of my mind.

"I pleaded with her to forgive and forget the past. I asked her to give the man up and come back to me and start life all over again, but without success.

"I told her I would give her plenty of time to think things over and make up her mind whether she wants to come back to me. I also told her that her decision would be final, and I'll accept it without a word. I even told her I'll go as far as giving her a divorce, if she so desires, and assume the full blame myself, if that would make her happy.

"Two months have passed since then, and she hasn't decided anything. But altho she doesn't write or call me [she has my address and telephone number] she still is going with the other fellow and he is with her every day.

"Her mother and brother know about it. They sympathize with me, but they are powerless to change her mind. They know that it is not I who wants to break up the home, and they know how much I love her and how much I want her back. But they can do nothing about it.

"Please, Miss Blake, help me and give me some advice as to my future course. You understand women better than I do, and surely you will know of some way that I can win her back.

"I admit that I didn't treat her exactly right for 13 months while we had the store, but 13 years before that she had no complaint. I was very good to her and she was very devoted to me.

"Could these last 13 months erase all the love she had for me? I can't believe it." H. B.

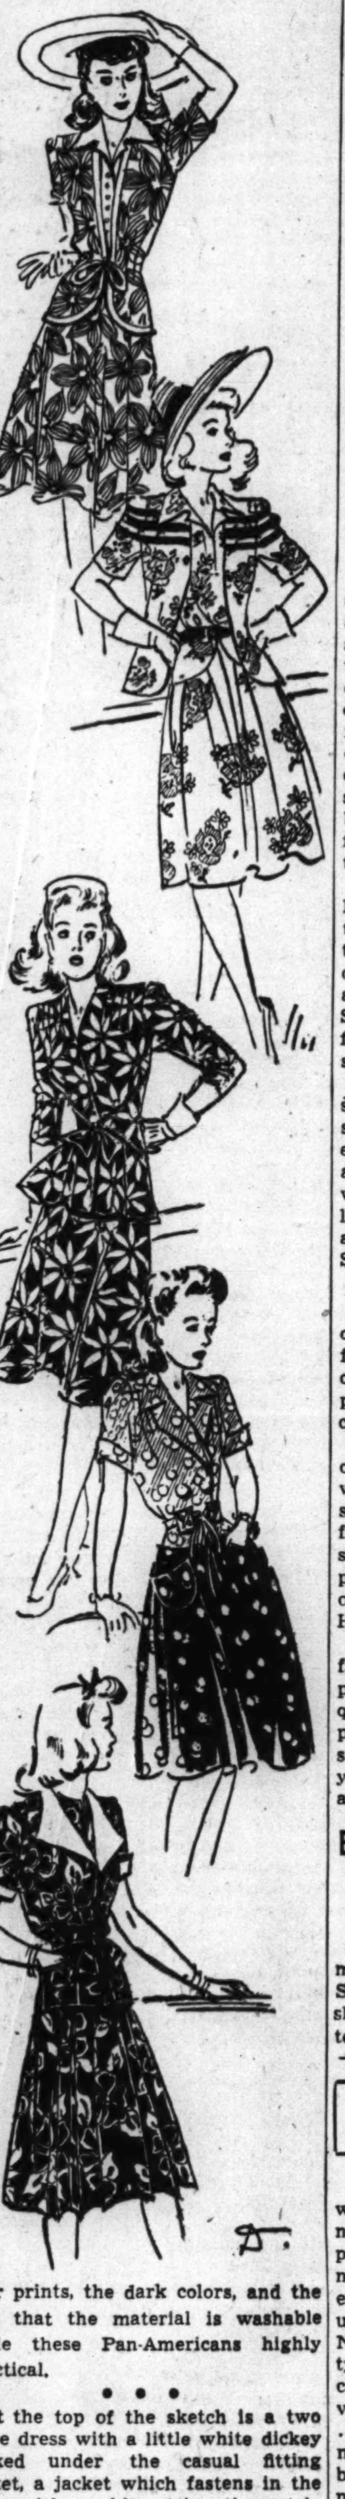
What's your feeling about the man's chances with the woman, readers?

Think it would help if he cared less about her?

Fashions

By Angela

Pan-American colors, in large, bold prints take these patriotic fashions quite out of the ordinary class. There are Christmas red and green combinations: red, white, and blue; green and pink; gold and black. The fabric, too, is interesting, a synthetic fiber, but one made so cleverly as to defy the casual observer to distinguish it from the crisp Irish linen it is designed to resemble. The all-over prints, the dark colors, and the fact that the material is washable made these Pan-Americans highly practical.



At the top of the sketch is a two piece dress with a little white dickey tucked under the casual fitting jacket, a jacket which fastens in the front with a white string tie matching the binding along the deep V of the front closing. The print is in dark red poinsettia shaped flowers on a chalky white background. Under $7.

The jacket dress sketched second is a mass of red and green poppies growing here and there. Three bands of plain material in dark green produce a yoke and drop shoulder effect on the short-sleeved jacket.

The third dress also is two piece, with a fairly long peplum flaring out in front from the snugly tied waistline. It is a very youthful style, particularly becoming to the slim junior figure. White daisies on a red background.

• • •

Frankly patriotic is the red, white, and blue. That and the polka dot pattern make it surefire. Above the low waisted line the dress is flag red with white polka dots. The full skirt is blue with white.

The dress under the short-sleeved jacket of No. 5 is a classic shirtwaist style, with a generously plaited skirt. The jacket has flattering fullness above the narrow fitted belt which ties in front. Color combination, in this case, is pink and green. Under $8.

One Line Has the Flavor of the Old South

By Edith Weigle.

One of the most interesting new lines of furniture and accessories to be introduced at the recent midseason market just concluded here was a group of pieces displayed at the American Furniture Mart and called Southern Highlands.

The inspiration for these home furnishings is as American as the walnut from which most of the items are made. Half a dozen manufacturers have united to reproduce some of the many artistic, hand-crafted chairs, tables, beds, desks, and other pieces still being used in the homes of the folk of Kentucky, Virginia, West Virginia, and Tennessee.

These people are of Scotch and Irish descent, true Anglo-Saxons, and the originals of many of the pieces of furniture were made for their ancestors who came to America nearly 170 years ago. Moderately well-to-do, they went first to Virginia and later pushed into the new country to the west. With them went native craftsmen who supplied their household wants and continued to make furniture in the tradition of the original forms.

They decorated the pieces with the simple motifs then popular and which are just as lovely today: The five, six and eight pointed star, the bellflower, the rope, tassel and star, the loop and diamond and the shell. In the 1942 copies and adaptations of the charming old tester beds, tables, "high-daddies," sugar chests, slant top desks and chairs you'll find these designs inlaid in the walnut which has been given a very special, mellow finish resembling that of the antiques themselves.

The designers, Ernest Swarts and Henry Koster, spent many weeks in the southern highlands studying interesting originals before they started on their own renderings. The exhibits at the recent show are the result. Soon the public will see them on the floor of a Chicago store and in many shops thruout the country.

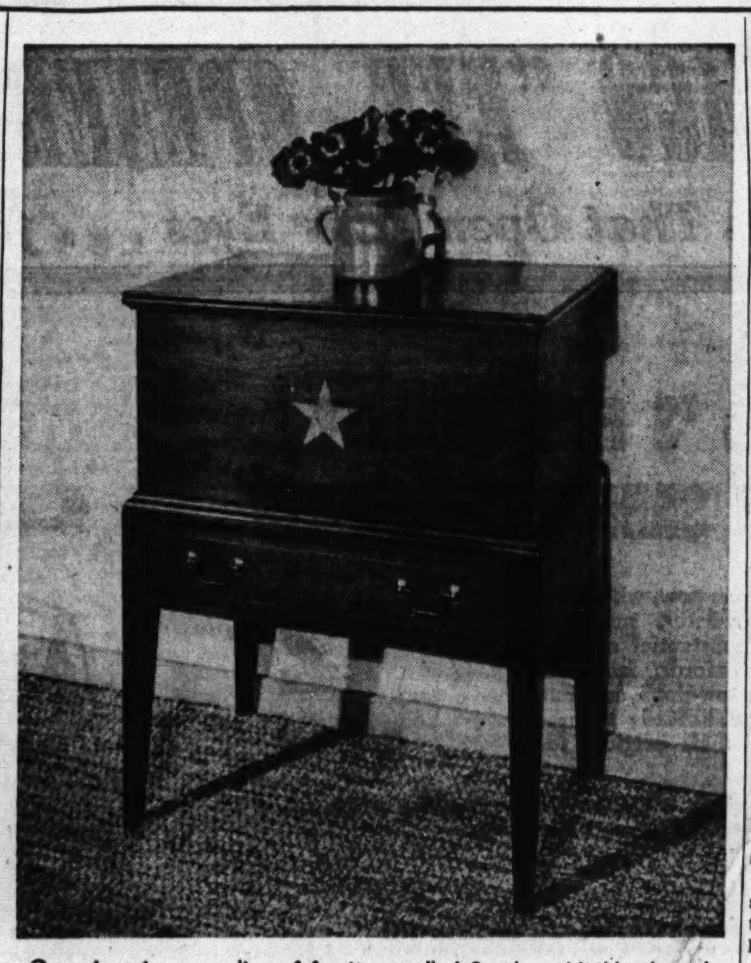
Also available will be especially designed wall papers, fabrics and accessories, so that one can build up an entire room or series of rooms in an accurate and pleasing way. There will be table linens, bedspreads, lamps, china, wooden objects, pottery and glass—everything to complete a Southern Highlands home.

• • •

The furniture is more formal than our Early American maple, less formal than our colonial and 18th century English styles, so it fills a place all its own and is sure to become immensely popular.

The photograph today shows one of the dining room pieces, a server which reproduces one of the old sugar chests. The chest section affords space for table linens or can serve as a liquor chest. Note the five pointed star inlaid in the front, one of the several motifs of Southern Highland furniture.

The colors in which the drapery fabrics, floor coverings and wall papers are worked out have the quaint names of madder red, rose and pink; butternut brown; linsey-woolsey gray; Great Smokies blue; lettuce yellow, and dye flower yellow. There are also tans and beiges.



One piece in a new line of furniture called Southern Highlands and introduced at the midseason furniture shows, which closed yesterday, is this charming copy of an old sugar chest. The wood is American walnut and the piece is now to be used as a server in a dining room.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer need, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

The following appeal comes from one of the most famous community houses in Chicago. Established long ago in one of the poorest sections of the city, it is a weather-beaten landmark, its doors and facilities always open wide to the hundreds who live in the shabby, seedy district. It helps the immigrant parents to understand the American ways of their modern off-spring, to know and understand our language and our laws. It teaches the children of the congested neighborhood proper hygiene, offers classes in music, singing, sewing, gymnasium, handicraft, in fact almost everything.

It is a haven of refuge for entire families who are crowded into inadequate living quarters. There are nursery facilities for the babies, classes for the young folks, discussion groups and rocking chairs and peace and quiet for the older ones. The bewildered, the neglected, and the needy find help and understanding there.

The budget is slim, the calls for help are numerous, so we hope that our readers can, and will, provide some assistance for its latest project, as described by the resident:

"Dear Miss Brown: We haven't sent in a request for a long time, but we are hoping very much that you can help us at this time.

"A group of our juniors has become very much interested in trying to make little gardens in some of the vacant lots in our neighborhood. The soil is poor, but they were enterprising enough to take samples of it to their teacher at the local high school to see if it was worth working with.

"But the next problem is serious. They have no tools, and we were wondering if there would be any chance of interesting the readers of your column in this need. We feel that this intense interest on the part of the children should be cultivated, but we have no money to obtain the necessary garden tools. We want to encourage this constructive interest of the children if we possibly can, so if you feel, as we do, that this is a really worthy cause, we will greatly appreciate anything you can do for us.—L. L."

In many of the run down districts of the city there is much wanton destruction, and I feel strongly that projects of this sort are truly constructive, in that they not only provide healthful outdoor exercise, but that work with the soil can teach these a great deal including a respect for property, and a love for green, growing things. These youngsters should be aided in their efforts to transform dusty vacant lots into gardens, and we hope that readers who are able to help with tools will let us know as soon as possible.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey

Of course, you'll have to have some printed costumes to wear this summer. In fact, one good print is a wardrobe gold mine. It can get you out of many a tight place when it comes to selecting something from the hangers in the closet to suit that average occasion when you don't want to don a suit and a frilly frock wouldn't be appropriate.

It's fun, too, to wear the giant prints so popular this year, flowers as big as your hat and foliage that only a fabric stylist could grow! Not that this very wearable dress doesn't make up handsomely in the smaller prints, too. It's a winner in polka dots, clean little white discs on good old navy. And I'm thinking, too, of making this model in some soft pastel.

Summer Quiet Soon to Settle on Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

Palm Beach soon will be a sleeping beauty. For the next few months silence will reign thruout the length and breadth of this flower-gemmed island resort. The only sounds will be that of airplanes zooming overhead, and the snip-snip of giant shears as trees and shrubbery are kept in trim.

No glitter distinguishes Palm Beach by night, either literally or figuratively; in fact, there's darkness here, and nothing more. The proportions of the huge hotels are lost in the enveloping Cimmerian shadows. The blackout is complete, and no lume or light is left to silhouette a ship that may pass silently in the night. Romance even is rationed, as no parking is allowed on the Ocean boulevard. No driving is permitted along this famous thorofare at night unless one must drive on it for a short distance to reach home. Street lights are either out altogether or are blacked out from the top.

At present Worth avenue is still surprisingly alive and alert. But this will not keep up for long. The large New York stores have closed and smaller ones will follow suit shortly.

Thrift, Inc. will keep open as long as business justifies. This unique little establishment — really a glorified second hand store — has transacted a remarkable amount of business since it opened early in the season. Among other articles, it has handled the sale of a billiard table, a grand piano, an ornate bird cage or so, Dachshund puppies and numerous used evening frocks, which, if they could talk, could tell many a glamorous secret. Articles noted at the shop recently included a Duncan MacGregor dog painting ticketed at $300; two large oval French or Florentine flower paintings in rococo frames at $225 each, a beautiful Chinese chest, and several lanterns and other articles in wrought iron. Then there was a marble countenance that looked suspiciously like a death mask that was marked $5. Other articles sold for as little as a nickel or a dime.

Thru Thrift, Inc., recreational facilities have been made possible for coast guardsmen stationed on Peanut Island at the port of Palm Beach. A new beach project has been constructed, and basketball and tennis courts added thru funds given by this enterprise in which so many prominent Chicago women are interested.

Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock, a leader in the affairs of Thrift, Inc., as well as Volunteers for Victory, will remain in Palm Beach until late in the spring.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hughitt are leaving the middle of May for their farm at Bourbonnais, Ill., and later will go to Sylvania, Mich. They expect to return to their Lakeside estate in Palm Beach early next fall.

Mrs. Frank J. Lewis, who continues her interesting experiments in silk culture, will remain in Palm Beach thru May. Later she and Mr. Lewis, who is now in Chicago, will go to their summer home at Michilinda, Mich.

Miss Joanna Fortune turned the key on her attractive Worth avenue penthouse apartment some time ago. The Harold Mastens will remain at their villa, Beinstar, until June, when they will return to Chicago.

Mrs. Alfred Rooney is here from New York to spend the late season with her mother, Mrs. Grant Warren Spear, at La Boliche.

Lieut. William F. C. Garthwaite, R. N., who played a spectacular rôle in the sinking of the Bismarck, was here for a brief visit with his father, Sir William Garthwaite, and Lady Garthwaite. Lieut. Garthwaite was honor guest at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. John Shepard Jr., at Casa del Pastor. Guests included the LeRay Berdeaus, Mrs. John T. H. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Worswick and Hugh Dillman. A. Atwater Kent also entertained in honor of Lieut. Garthwaite.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Byron Smith left Saturday for their home in Barrington after a visit with Mrs. Smith's mother, Mrs. H. Stillson Hart. Mrs. Hart will leave on Monday for a stay in Asheville before returning to Hartwood, her home in Barrington.

Mrs. James E. Baum and her sister, Mrs. Gustavus E. Swift, are in Washington, D. C., for a visit with the latter's son, Gustavus E. Swift Jr. They also will visit Mrs. Baum's daughter, Mrs. Alfred Gawthrop, in Plainfield, N. J., before returning home.

Mrs. Frank O. Butler will leave soon for Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Butler will spend the summer at their South Dakota ranch and also pay visits to the Montana ranch homes of their sons, Paul Butler and Julius Butler.

It is thought that resorters will be coming back and forth to look after their Florida interests all during the summer. As time goes on, interest in the "back country" increases, and many wealthy Palm Beach residents also own farms in the Everglades and are experimenting with vegetables, cattle, and cane. Development of the inland waterway now being undertaken by the government is also of paramount interest to large property owners in the Glades.

Just now attention is focused on the removal of water hyacinths, forming floating islands of green all over Lake Worth, having come down from the drainage canals. These plants are called Florida's "million dollar weed." Many stories are told of their first Florida appearance, but no one seems to know when they made their unwelcome debut in this state. Oldsters who can remember back 40 years declare that there were no water hyacinths here then, but there weren't any canals either. On many of the canals they are thick enough to form a solid carpet from bank to bank, and are strong enough so that a person may run over them — if he runs fast enough.

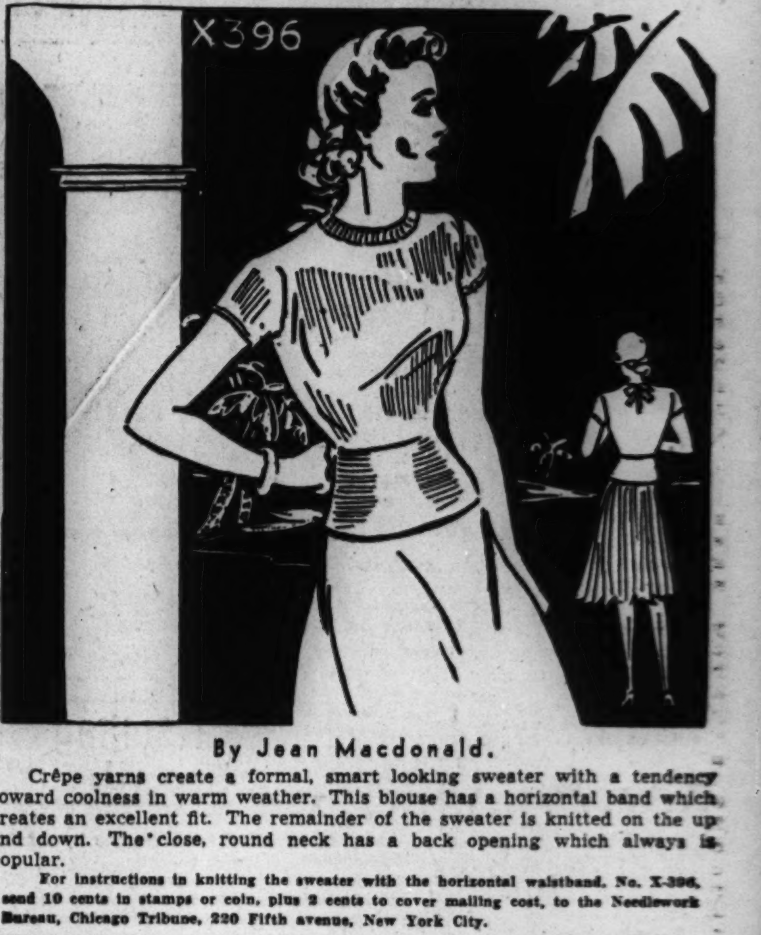
The bloom is a delicate lavender shade, and when the sun is shining on these flowers the effect is one of incredible beauty. The fragile loveliness of these blossoms may feed the soul of a poet, but they are certainly a headache to the state of Florida. Special machinery is employed to cut them into mincemeat, but they are worse than a cat with nine lives. Keeping the canals free of hyacinths seems to be a life's work. In Africa it is said to be the favorite food of the hippopotamus, so if the United States engineering corps can't get rid of them any other way, it has been suggested that the state import a herd or so of hippopotami.

Bettina Bedwell Says:

The coming summer is going to be all tied up in cotton, as far as many of our most beautiful fashions are concerned. I have always thought of American cottons as among the most attractive fabrics made anywhere in the world, and now they are coming into their own in a very big way. There won't be a moment around the clock when you can't wear something made of cotton and feel that you are queening it. From cotton nightgowns, sheer, handmade, and utterly charming, to cotton evening gowns with the same qualities, plus a homespun aristocracy, there are cotton clothes for everything.

Biggest single item is the suit or dress in cotton, with a jacket that may be worn as a waist or as a jacket. There are mostly what you know as "classics" in style. They come in many different types of cottons from chambray to sheer, to mannish mixtures that resemble wool.

Lovely Knitted Sweater



By Jean Macdonald.

Crêpe yarns create a formal, smart looking sweater with a tendency toward coolness in warm weather. This blouse has a horizontal band which creates an excellent fit. The remainder of the sweater is knitted on the up and down. The close, round neck has a back opening which always is popular.

For instructions in knitting the sweater with the horizontal waistband, No. X-396, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

This Cake Decoration Idea Is Ration-Wise

Birthday and other anniversary cakes will have to look to new top decorations now that there is a shortage of sugar. Here is a suggestion, easy to follow: Dip gum drops or nut meats into slightly beaten egg white and "stick" them on top the baked cake in any preferred design. Sprinkle with toasted or slightly tinted coconut.

Strain Fat After It Has Fried Doughnuts

After frying doughnuts, strain the fat. It may be used over again. Cool it slightly and pour thru a coarse meshed white cloth, fitted over a strainer placed on top of a jar or small pail. This removes any burned particles. Cool the fat, cover, and store in the refrigerator. It will keep a month.

Refrigerator Warning.

Do not use sharp objects to pry ice loose from the evaporator in the refrigerator, as the coils may be damaged.

ENGAGEMENTS

Wedding and engagement announcements must be signed by a member of the family, must bear the address and telephone number of the signer, and all names must be printed in full. Announcements must reach the society editor by Tuesday noon preceding the Sunday of publication.

Vaudeville Is Revived with Waning Season

By Robert Sylvester.

[Pinch-hitting for Burns Mantle.]

NEW YORK.—The most amazing thing about the waning theater season, if anything about so dismal a semester could be called amazing, has been the sudden, spontaneous public response to the revival of "big time" vaudeville, which is well under way in New York and is about to be duplicated in most of the large cities.

Victor Moore.

Currently "Priorities of 1942," a slapdash variety show with four popular stars, is turning 'em away. A few nights ago its sponsors went into competition with themselves with "Keep 'Em Laughing," built on the same pattern and starring Victor Moore and William Gaxton. Capacity houses have been the rule there, too.

Now more eight and ten act vaudevilles are being readied for Chicago, for Washington, for Philadelphia, for Boston, and many more centers where the weekly variety bill once was a "must" on everybody's social calendar. All this properly may be called amazing because for years even the hardiest of vaudeville's former sponsors have tacitly admitted that the variety formula was worn out and obsolete as entertainment.

A short 10 years ago vaudeville still filled thousands of theaters from coast to coast. The skeleton of the once fabulous Keith-Orpheum circuit was still rattling. The cheaper "small time" theaters still combined four or five variety acts with their movies. This failing but once great amusement industry still employed hundreds of thousands of entertainers, stagehands, musicians, writers, composers, et al. And then, over night, it vanished.

For a long while many vaudeville operators refused to believe their own professional death warrants. Every possible pulmotor and quack cure was tried on the cold corpse, but eventually its few friends were called in and vaudeville, once so proud and mighty, was laid away forever. Now and then somebody would round up a few acts, find an empty theater, and make a dismal try at reviving the glories of the old Palace in New York, or Palace, Chicago; or Memorial, Boston; or Orpheum, San Francisco. None of these half-hearted attempts ever lasted more than two or three weeks.

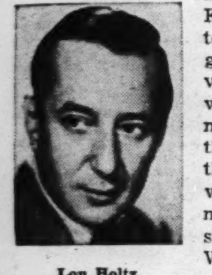
Many things combined to kill vaudeville as a form of entertainment and even more things have been blamed. The films, once they became articulate, could do so much more with reproduced music, dancing, and novelty than could the pathetic variety actors. The radio was offering gratis the best in music and comedy. Both of these mediums were stealing vaudeville's best talent away from the home grounds. And, furthermore, the country still was in the throes of a depression. There were many more contributing factors.

So it was with half-hearted interest a few weeks ago that the Shubert and Clifford C. Fischer decided to take a mild gamble on a vaudeville show which might [or might not] fill the 46th street theater for a few weeks until a new musical show came along. Willie Howard, one of the great funny men of the theater, was doing nothing, so they hired him. Lou Holtz, a topflight story teller, was available and they shoved a contract at him. Phil Baker, well and fondly remembered from the musicals, was working only one night a week on the radio, so he was corralled. And Paul Draper, the best tap dancer we have, had a few weeks off, too.



Lou Holtz. [Seymour Photo.]

Originally offered against a cheap and shabby production background, this vaudeville show, called "Priorities of 1942," was a smash hit from the start. Here were four of the town's most popular entertainers offered all at once, and for a $2 top. This show, an instantaneous success, probably surprised its sponsors even more than another, and not dissimilar, revue had done four years earlier. The earlier revue was an item called "Hellzapoppin."

Encouraged, the sponsors grabbed quickly and came up with Victor Moore and William Gaxton, possibly the most popular team of comedians ever to join hands in a long list of successful musicals. Hildegarde, an expert café singer, was added, and so were the Hartmans, hokum dancing clowns who would have been natural vaudeville headliners in another era. This time the supporting acts were picked with more care and quite a few more dollars were spent in an effort to give the whole thing a decent setting. Result: Another hit.

Naturally enough, this set many showmen to thinking. Here is a form of entertainment which may be produced cheaply and sold even more cheaply. God knows there is enough available talent. The trained dogs, perch acts, and jugglers of 10 years ago can't all be dead. Combine them with a stage, screen, or radio "name" or two, buy a cyclorama backdrop and a painted street scene, tell the actors to bring their own music and gags, and hurray, you have a vaudeville show.

So the country can expect, in the immediate future, the sight of vaudeville's corpse doing a brisk clog dance in theaters here and there. Many projects already are in the making. Talent is being hired right and left and everybody is very excited.

But will there be, or can there be, any lasting revival of vaudeville? This reporter, who worked in and with it during its last years, doesn't believe so. Like any branch of the theater, vaudeville must have vast and widespread feeding and training grounds, since it depends almost entirely on personal talent and individual effort.

In its great years vaudeville was divided into as many classes as is professional baseball. A new talent started at the bottom and worked toward the top, learning with experience. Burlesque gave vaudeville its Bert Lahrs, W. C. Fieldses, Fannie Brices, Ed Wynns, and other stars. And vaudeville, in turn, gave them up to the higher priced legitimate theater. There are no training grounds today and no place for talent to spawn and develop, unless one considers the night clubs and saloons, and these develop only a specialized, intimate type of personality.

No, there will be no country-wide or lasting vaudeville revival. But there seems to be no reason why "combinations," as the variety men used to say, still won't draw customers and be profitable in many theaters. The combination of Victor Moore, William Gaxton, Hildegarde, the Hartmans, and eight supporting acts is a bargain at $2 a ticket. Ditto Lou Holtz, Willie Howard, Phil Baker, and Paul Draper. Ditto several other combinations which come handily to mind.

One old variety showman sighed the other day and pontificated: "The public still wants a bargain. That doesn't mean that it wants vaudeville back again."

End of City's Social Season Close at Hand

By Cousin Eve.

With Eliot Wadsworth of Boston presiding, the International Chamber of Commerce dinner Monday night at the Stevens went forward at a spanking gallop. That is until the speeches were served up, and then the tempo was non troppo vivace, as the musicians say. In fact the gala evening slowed down somewhat when the three speechmakers let themselves go on the subject: "The World of the Future." It takes a latter day Jules Verne, apparently, to imagine what this charming, round, amusing world of ours will grow to be like when the scrapping is over.

The Chamber of Commerce usually meets in Washington. But our weather behaved beautifully, and the Boulevard room at the Stevens, on two levels, framed in red velvet, is royally handsome. A big flag, red, white and blue candles and spring flowers were the patriotic setup. The high speaker's table full of dignitaries from near and far was faced by another with the wives of the visiting delegates. Mrs. Silas Strawn in crisp black lace and orchids, Mrs. Albert Hawkes in a vivid Persian print, and blonde, pretty Mrs. Eric Johnston of Oregon in pale blue were in evidence. While at the James Kemper table adjoining, Mrs. Kemper's strikingly plain black frock was chic, and Mrs. Sterling Morton's black sheath was topped by a cape of sable.

Sterling Morton had given a luncheon at the Chicago club that day for all the delegates, and Mr. Wadsworth mentioned what a nice party it was.

The three speakers were Prof. John Condliffe, economist of the University of California; Barclay Acheson, "the roving editor," and President D. Q. McKenzie of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. A distinguished visitor from France who was present at the dinner said apropos of one of the speeches that it was amazing to hear the facts and figures on production given so openly—as it certainly would be of interest to the enemy to know about the number of men in training, air power, and the food being sent overseas.

Some of the members of the International Committee of the American Chamber are Winthrop Aldrich, Thomas Watson, Charles Dewey, Joseph Evans, Amory Houghton, Nelson Jay, Thomas Lamont, Fowler McCormick, Clark H. Minor, Lewis E. Pierson, Harper Sibley, E. R. Stettinius Jr., Charles D. Wiman, Owen D. Young, Silas Strawn, Eric A. Johnston, and Carl M. Wynne. These men and many others of equal standing have gone abroad in the past for international spring business meetings in Vienna, Berlin, Paris, London, and Copenhagen, the last before the war. And a close camaraderie exists between many of the 700,000 members.

The windup of our town season is at hand, and presidents are being made these spring days in our fashionable clubs. The Contemporary club had its annual election last week and Mrs. Grant Laing was continued in office by an unusually large vote. Nearly all the 200 members seemed to be present and voting. The directors elected were Mrs. James Offield, Mrs. Irene Sidley, Mrs. Dick Juergens, Mrs. William Dixon, and Mrs. Alden Swift.

The annual May day frolic of the Contemporaries takes place next Friday in the ballroom of the Fortnightly club. It is an elaborate skit written, rehearsed and presented by Miss Frances Whedon of Lake Forest who has drawn 50 into the cast from the club roster. Miss Whedon has a fascinating sense of the ridiculous and has put over s me notable comedy successes in the past. The Contemporary club has a brilliant membership, including many of Chicago's very gifted women.

Frances Whedon has been nominated to succeed Mrs. Harley F. MacNair as president of the American Friends of China. This in itself is a great compliment, as Mrs. MacNair, who died last week, was one of the bright, beautiful stars in our firmament.

When first I met Mrs. MacNair some years ago lunching with Mrs. John Carpenter in her charming Gothic house, it was as Mrs. Florence Ayscough, an enchanting person, a resident of Shanghai with a summer house in the Channel Islands. Her flutelike voice, remarkable gifts, and infinite culture of mind and heart were dazzling. She was gentleness itself, and after half a lifetime in China had acquired the calm philosophy of the Chinese. She also wrote Chinese poetry and was famous in China for this accomplishment.

Her marriage to Dr. Harley MacNair brought her to live at the Midway, where her husband was a professor of orientology at the University of Chicago. Their house in Woodlawn avenue was rebuilt to display their Chinese collections, even to a Chinese garden, and two Chinese stone dogs at the front door. The last time I went there was in the autumn, when the hostess showed in her little theater color films taken by her on a journey up the Yangtse river. There is always a last time, alas!

The Arts club, like all the others, is in the throes of coming summer closing. Last Sunday was the 26th annual show of paintings by professional members, which for many reasons is the most crowded moment of the year. First of all there is a free buffet supper, very plentiful and very good, given by the Arts club to its membership. All contributing artists may bring their families and friends, and O, boy! do they bring them!

Most of the pictures shown are by Chicago's first painters and are very interesting in themselves. How many people know that Congressman Charles S. Dewey of the 9th Illinois district is an artist con amore, as his charming painting of the old French town of Lisieux will demonstrate. Near by is his erstwhile ancient manoir in Normandy, now in the hands of the Germans.

Then there is Clay Bartlett's "Memory of Lake Geneva, Wis.," a dashing piece. I wouldn't mind owning it. And Frances Badger's "Composition," a fantasy of a mother elephant and young daughter, both in pink, coquettish millinery. And Marie Blanke's "Michigan Shore Line" and Cecil Clark Davis' huge red chow. Maude Hutchins has a sculptured head—that of Mrs. Milton Mayer—and Rudolph Ingerle showed a third painting of his Siamese cat, Kiki, in most gorgeous surroundings. Personally, one thinks Kiki has lost her figure—no longer the slim contours of yesteryear has Kiki.

Clark J. Lawrence, noted M. F. H. of Winnetka, paints well; witness his St. Regis Mountain in the Adirondacks. And among the portraits to see are Buell Mullen's Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff. And another by Jean Dumas of the late Sen. J. Hamilton Lewis.

The dramatic element of the Arts club comes to life on May 14 in the evening when Alice Gerstenberg stages "Cock Robin." Not only has Miss Gerstenberg's handsome apartment in Lake Shore drive been turned into a theater for nightly rehearsals, but one room has been set aside for the wardrobe, and she has supervised the designs and making of the colonial costumes for the production of the play. That they are clever, everybody will agree on the great night.

Apropos of portraits, I saw a couple in the last week that absolutely glowed with intensity of life. They were two by the Brazilian, Portinari, and were both of the same interesting subject—Mrs. Jan de Noest, tall and picturesque, the wife of the Dutch consul. The De Noests had a few friends in for tea in their new Astor street house, just south of Mrs. W. O. Goodman's French "hotel privé." A day or two before we had voted in Mrs. Goodman's French courtyard or rather in the noble garage back of it—and it had all the feel of Paris. Mrs. Jacob Baur also received precinct voters in her upper Astor street house and gave three meals apiece to election workers that day.

Mr. and Mrs. de Noest lived in Rio de Janeiro for several years. They knew Portinari well and admired his work and his first painting of Mrs. de Noest has a Mona Lisa quality, not exactly hers. She is a modern young matron, long swanlike neck, broad shoulders, slim, and the Brazilian painted her in subdued color, cryptic.

The second portrait is her head, against a burning Brazilian background of intense blues and greens. It is really a treasure of beauty. Portinari, however, prefers to paint Negroes, and does extraordinary studies of them.

Among the diplomatic people calling that day on our new Dutch friends were Mr. and Mrs. Reimund Baumann, Mrs. Gösta Oldenburg, Mrs. "Peter" Gallienne, Miss Remor Baumann, Mrs. Elisha Chandler, Miss Louise Chandler, and Mrs. Otho Ball.

His excellency, Hu Shih, the Chinese ambassador, was the wherefore of a charming tea Wednesday afternoon on Lake Shore drive. The hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Taylor, whose apartment is one of the highest in this mountainous building. There were rows and rows of little gold chairs in the living room, and the entire membership seemed to be present, except one or two who are out of town. Mrs. Taylor received with her daughter, Helen, and with Miss Frances Whedon, president pro tem of the American Friends of China.

Miss Whedon has a whimsical turn of mind, and while addressing the audience in its longish wait for Dr. Hu etched what to her mind is the charm of this society—its casualness. One never knows when it will meet, what it will do, what will turn up, said she. Or who will give a charming party. It's always perfectly vague and delightful. I feel the same way myself about the Friends of China, because I love surprises.

Dr. Hu Shih is not a tall man, but has a lovely voice and boundless erudition and culture—one of China's great scholars. Before the ambassador spoke Miss Whedon said that Mrs. Walter Brewster would read a memorial to our late President Florence Ayscough MacNair. This was a beautiful appreciation, and the audience stood during the reading.

Dr. Hu took Mrs. MacNair as a theme for his opening remarks. She was a friend of very long standing from old times in China, he said, and had collaborated with the late famous Amy Lowell of Boston in translating Chinese verse.

It seems that Florence MacNair had translated from China's greatest poet, who lived A. D. 750 and whose writings show a remarkable picture of a life not so very different from our own. The poet was opposed to the terrible drinking of his period; against war, against conscription, against political corruption, and upheld the philosophy of the simple life, moderation and peace.

The ambassador is homing into Washington after traveling 20,000 miles. In the group that greeted the distinguished envoy were Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. E. C. Waller, Mrs. George Langhorne, Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Valentine, Miss Florence Bartlett, Mrs. George Thorne, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, Mrs. Silas Strawn, Mrs. William J. Calhoun of Peking, and Mme. Cardelli, whose hat was the chief sensation in hats at the party. A group of luscious cherries was posed on her chic coiffure, and from this sprung the foliage of a pineapple, like a very nice dessert.

Among the changes taking place in the life of our suburbs is the sale of the Donald McPherson house in Winnetka. This is a delightful mansion on Lake Michigan, with a swimming pool and all the other trimmings. Mrs. McPherson, who was Fanny Ogden West, inherited Tower hill, one of the large estates in the Berkshires outside Pittsfield, and the family proposes to spend more time there and more in Chicago. Both Donald and Fanny are fond of horses and ride a great deal while in the country, and Tower hill is an equestrian's paradise.

Years ago, when the McPhersons were newly married, they took a house in the forest of Fontainebleau and for two years took part in the hunts and the horsey life that has gone on in that region—playground of French kings—for 10 centuries.

Speaking of France, there was a very nice bridge party Tuesday afternoon in the Fine Arts building arranged by French World war veterans, "Combatants de la Guerre." It was a benefit to aid French prisoners of war in Germany, and letters were read during the course of the games, indicating poor, hungry prisoners in search of a godmother.

After the games the players were treated to a tea in the long studio room where the Cercle Français meets. At the tea table Mme. Raymond Imbault-Huart, the handsome young wife of the French consul general, poured tea—also Mme. René Weiller, the wife of the former consul, now a resident in Chicago. Among the subscribers to the benefit were Miss Elizabeth McCormick, Mrs. Frank Fuller, Mrs. Allan Howes, Mrs. Edward Leight, and Mrs. Grover Winston.

TO BE MARRIED IN JUNE

Miss Delphia Pauline Biggs, whose engagement to Paul Morrison Blizzard of Greenville, Ill., is announced by her parents, Judge and Mrs. John D. Biggs of Greenville. Miss Biggs attended Lindenwood college and is a graduate of the University of Illinois. Mr. Blizzard is employed as an accountant in Chicago, where they will reside after the wedding in mid-June. Judge Biggs is the chairman of the Illinois Commerce commission.

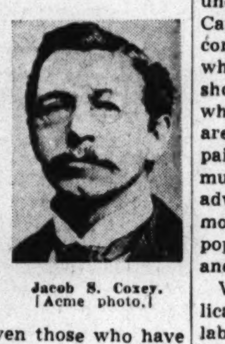
When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, May 4, 1894.

Dear Julia: Have you eastern people felt alarmed by the reports of Coxey's army of the Commonweal marching on Washington? Will seems to think there was never any danger of their attracting responsible elements of the population and really creating a revolution. The general public didn't seem to be sympathetic, even those who have been suffering from the depression.



Jacob S. Coxey.

At first I felt that their petition should be considered, but now that the march has degenerated into such a sort of aimless thing it would be hard to do this. Of course, Coxey couldn't be allowed to defy the law which forbids a company bearing banners and so forth to trespass on the Capitol grounds. Apparently the band which started from Chicago, under the leadership of Dr. Randall, fell from grace and disgusted those along the line of march. Now there seem to be in the movement only loafers, lawless and fanatical followers, those who see in the movement just a chance for publicity or some loaves and fishes.

But it must have been a real sight—almost like viewing the start of the crusades in medieval Europe—to have witnessed the descent upon Washington of Coxey and his followers. I was quite taken with the description of Coxey's daughter, the golden haired Mary, seated on a white circus trained horse which was prancing to the music of the band. In a white riding habit which streamed behind her as she rode, and with a small brimless blue cap she must have been a striking figure in that motley array. The tiny sun shade she carried must have added to the picture.

Coxey himself paled beside her as he sat with his second wife in an open carriage with their infant son, named [of all things] "Legal Tender." The police of the capital seem to have behaved with kindliness and firmness. They protected Coxey from the mob which was hooting at him and which might have treated him roughly, and they didn't descend to harsh measures but led him gently from the Capitol steps, where he had attempted to speak. His assistant, Carl Browne, fared worse, for he is now languishing in jail on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Coxey seems to have accepted his defeat philosophically. According to the papers, he says the police were considerate of him and did only what they had to do. He avers that he will continue his crusade and feels that he will win out in the end. Is he a fanatic or a publicity seeker? The hard times have certainly provided him with material for his attempt to socialize America.

One of our neighbors has just dropped in and Will and he have been talking of Coxey. They agree that his intentions may be good but that he is misguided as to his methods. A farmer and horse dealer of Massillon, O., is not the sort of person one would think likely to start such a movement. Yet he has sent out letters to all parts of the country inviting representatives of industrial discontent to join him in his strange march. His plan seems to have been rather vague, the main point being to gather thousands of unemployed working men at the Capitol on May 1st to press upon congress his demand for legislation whereby laboring men not at work should be engaged in making roads, which in some parts of the country are much needed. They are to be paid, according to his plan, by the municipal governments with money advanced by national funds. The movement seems to have been most popular in the northwestern states and on the Pacific coast.

Will and his caller, both Republicans, feel that the remedy for the laborers' troubles lies in electing the right President next election. Cleveland has been a disappointment, of course. Will thinks a Republican victory is almost certain in 1896.

With love,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES

Jacob S. Coxey, born 1854, is, according to the latest "Who's Who in America," still living in Massillon, O. Legal Tender [yes, there really was a Coxey child of that name] is dead. Coxey has lived to see his idea of giving work to unemployed working people put into practice. He has been a mayor of Massillon, and in 1932 and 1936 was a candidate for President on the Farmer-Labor ticket.

Can You Help Readers?

John Wunnicke of Chicago asks for the entire verse which appeared on McVicker's theater curtain in the '90s. It begins: "The corn, the corn, the golden corn." . . . M. L., Chicago, wants the words of an old childhood song called "Fawn-footed Nannie." . . . Mrs. L. B. S. would like a children's verse beginning:

"The old goose lay on her deathbed,
And to her goslings three she said:
'Brick houses build, with roofs of tile,
If you would thwart the fox's guile.'"

[The last named seems a version of the story of the big bad wolf.]

When the Tribune Was Young.

John B. Drake peered over the desk at the Tremont, wondering what the letter was that those two young fellers were putting their heads together about:

It was nothing but Horace Greeley's scribbled introduction of Dr. Ray to Joseph Medill, and they were figuring as how they might buy THE TRIBUNE, and, by hek, they did!

LEWIS E. MYERS.

NOTE: The editor of this column will be at Marshall Field and company's book store in a costume of the '80s on Saturday afternoon, May 9, to autograph her book, "The Elegant Eighties," and also "The Victorian Keepsake." She hopes to meet friends of this column there. These are good Mother's day gifts.

DAR to Open 51st Annual Convention

By Harriett Pribble.

Stirring martial music by the Navy Pier band, under the leadership of Fred Norton, chief bandmaster, will touch off the 51st continental congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution, scheduled to get under way at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night in the Medinah Temple. Following an assembly call by the band, Mrs. William H. Pouch, president general of the national society, and national officers will march to the broad stage of the temple, escorted by pages bearing state flags.

Of the significant program supervised by Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig of Washington, D. C., general chairman on arrangements, and her local adviser, Mrs. J. De Forest Richards of Chicago, assisted by Mrs. Vinton Earl Sisson of Chicago, only the opening session will be held in the Medinah Temple. The congress will be moved to the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel for the remaining morning, afternoon, and evening sessions on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday.

After the president general's message to the congress, Mayor Edward J. Kelly will welcome the 3,500 delegates from all parts of the country. To his welcome will be added the greetings of Mrs. Henry Bourne Joy, national chaplain of the Children of the American Revolution; G. Ridgeley Sappington, president general of the Sons of the American Revolution; and William Bell Clark, president general of the Sons of the American Revolution of Illinois.

The Rt. Rev. Wallace E. Conkling, Episcopal bishop of Chicago, will give the invocation and benediction. Also highlighting the program will be the presentation of seven honorary presidents general and of the Good Citizenship Pilgrims, 49 young women chosen from senior high school classes thruout the country to represent their states at the congress.

"Pioneer Women of 1942" will be the subject of Boyd Fisher, associate field director of the United States treasury department's defense savings staff, when he speaks at the 9:30 o'clock session Tuesday morning. The officers' reports to be turned in during the morning will include the statement of the treasurer general, Mrs. Samuel James Campbell. Mrs. Franklin H. A victory dinner at 7:30 o'clock on Thursday at the Stevens will mark the close of the four day congress. Mrs. Elmer E. Woollen is in charge.

An additional feature at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow will be the dedication by proxy of the new DAR Indian museum recently completed in Continental hall, Washington. Show at Arts Club Pleases Every Taste

By Eleanor Jewett.

Last week seems in retrospect an unusually busy one. The opening of the Professional Members exhibit at the Arts club [the 26th annual, by the way] practically coincided with the meeting on Monday of the jury for the All-Illinois Society of Fine Arts annual spring salon. Going from the Arts club to serve on the jury was not a difficult passage as the standards of art in both exhibits are somewhat the same, the chief demand being for good creative painting.

The Arts club exhibition has something to suit every taste. It has a number of fine portraits, a variety of decorative still lifes, and a number of landscapes. The atmosphere in the galleries is pleasant and one has the feeling that this is all among friends. There may not be a masterpiece in the show but there are many pictures which are worth seeing and remembering.

A stunning Chow head, "Proud Potentate of Marabee," by Cecil Clark Davis, and "Kiki, Opus 3," by Rudolph Ingerle, are two outstanding canvases. Mary C. Peterson has a charming painting in "Brown Madonna," tho the title is a little misleading. Alice Mason plunges us into a blaze of yellow in "Saugatuck Summer," and the cool pinks of Alice Bidwell's "Azaleas" come in comfortingly to soothe the sting. Edithe Jane Cassady in "Tuesday" has a spirited and vivacious scene, a laundry running under high pressure. Averil Conwell has achieved the simplicity of the Rousseau primitive in "Daguerreotype." "Midsummer" by Helen Taylor is richly handled. Paul Trebilcock shows a delightful portrait of a lady in a red blouse, and Jean Dumas has a successful likeness of the late J. Hamilton Lewis. "On the Shelf" by Yvonne Pryor is of interest and Laura van Pappelendam's "Inside the Porch" is very like her picture at the recently closed Chicago Artists and Vicinity show; it is similar in mood, technique, and coloring.

Frances Badger, Charles Killgore, Anna Lynch, Gerald Frank, Nina K. Griffin, Florence Furst, Violet Beatrice Wenner, Clinton King, and Clark J. Lawrence are among the artists who contribute to the excellence of the show.

The exhibition will run to May 16 and will be followed by one more show before the Arts club closes its galleries for the summer.

• • •

The annual spring salon of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts will open May 16 at the Stevens hotel with an artists' breakfast. The exhibit promises to have a number of worth-while pictures to its credit. On the same day the society is opening a "small picture" show and sale in which prices will run from $15 to $50. A great many attractive little paintings have been sent in for this.

• • •

The National League of American Pen Women, Chicago branch, has opened an exhibit of work by artist members at the Drake hotel. The exhibition will continue thru May.

• • •

The April exhibit at the Drake, sponsored by the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts, was a delightful group of paintings by Cora Debes.

• • •

The Indian welfare committee of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs is sponsoring the exhibit of water colors by native American Indian artists, which opened yesterday in the Club Woman's bureau galleries, Mandel Brothers. Much of the work shown is by young Indians who are students of art in the government reservation schools; some of the paintings are by art teachers. The show is fascinating. It will continue thru May 14.

• • •

The Chicago Society of Miniature Painters is having its first loop exhibit of miniatures in one of the galleries at Mandel Brothers thru May 14. Miniature painters thruout the country were invited to submit their work for this show.

• • •

Shirley Friend, Chicago portrait painter of children, has been invited to show her paintings at the Art Institute of Milwaukee this month. Of particular interest are her "Melting Pot Types" and her portrait studies of the Quiz Kids. Both groups of portraits were first seen in Chicago at the O'Brien galleries. Mrs. Friend will include several portraits of children, not in either of these classifications, in her show. Next November a one man show of her portraits is promised for the Chicago Galleries, 215 North Michigan avenue.

• • •

Charles Minghi, marine painter, has recently returned from California where he painted with Leon Lundmark. Mr. Minghi has brought 24 sketches back with him.

• • •

Charles Longabaugh, noted Chicago water color painter, gave up his usual sketching trip to Mexico this winter. Reason—tires. Instead, Mr. Longabaugh went to New Orleans and painted courtyards and wisteria and balconies. In an exhibit at New Orleans he was awarded first prize for his group of water colors, chiefly Mexican scenes.

• • •

E. G. Dannhausen is engaged at present on a group of eight murals to be placed in the new building which the Laramie Federal Savings and Loan association will occupy on Chicago avenue. Mr. Dannhausen is a member of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts and is known for the warmth and beauty of his painting.

• • •

The work of children of the James Nelson Raymond classes, under Dudley Crafts Watson, was placed on view yesterday in Blackstone hall, Art institute. The exhibit will hang to May 19. The young artists are public, elementary, and high school students in the James Nelson Raymond classes. They are handling their own show and doing it well. Their instructors at the Art institute have been Mr. Watson and George Buehr.

• • •

Rembrandt's famous etching, "Saint Jerome Reading in an Italian Landscape," has been chosen by the print department of the Art institute for its Masterpiece of the Month for May. The print is a combination etching and dryprint which has recently been added to the Clarence Buckingham collection.

• • •

The 21st international water color exhibition will open May 14 to continue thru Aug. 24 in the east wing galleries, Art institute.

• • •

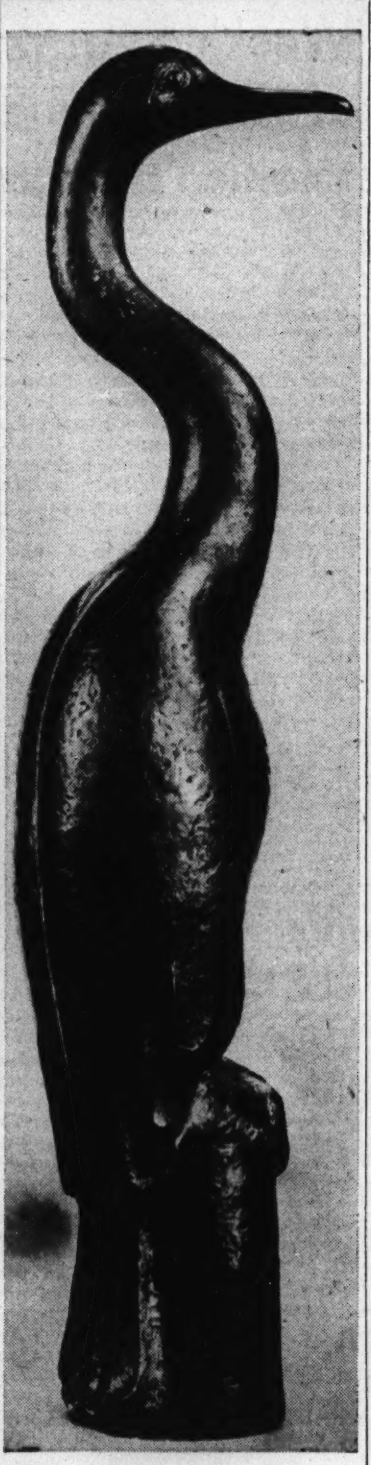
Ivan Le Lorraine Albright, noted Chicago painter, has been elected to membership in the National Academy of Design, a signal honor.

• • •

The American Academy of Arts and Letters and the National Institute of Arts and Letters are arranging a comprehensive exhibition of the works of all their living members, literary, musical, and artistic, which will open May 8 at the Academy buildings, New York City.

• • •

The annual fellowship competition of the Art institute school has entered upon its final phase. A faculty jury passed the following competitors on their preliminary work: Richard Bowman, Fred Heidel, Albert Kwitz [he may have to leave for service before he finishes], Rudolph Pen, Judith Pesman, Nancy Poore, Rufino Silva, Winfield Stampfer, Marge Steinhardt, Robert Swan, Elizabeth Swanson, and Roger Wallschlaeger. So far three fellowships are offered this year: the Edward L. Ryerson of $1,200; the Anna Louise Raymond of $1,500, and the John Quincy Adams of $1,000.



"CORMORANT"

This bronze bird by Sylvia Shaw Judson was an outstanding feature of the Chicago Artists and Vicinity show at the Art institute. At the current Arts club professional members' exhibition Mrs. Judson is showing a charming "Figure for Small Fountain."

Auxiliary to the Medical Society to Meet Officers

New officers of the Woman's auxiliary to the Chicago Medical society will be presented Wednesday at the group's annual meeting and luncheon at 12:30 o'clock in the Wedgwood room of Marshall Field's. Mrs. Charles Papek will give a book review.

Mrs. Samuel S. Hollender.

Mrs. Samuel S. Hollender, general chairman of the frolic, is being assisted by three vice chairmen, Mrs. J. B. Anixter, Miss Frances Hoffman, and Mrs. Harold Shlensky. Among the innovations this year will be a mothers' tribute to mothers attending the frolic, headed by Mrs. Henry Bogoff and Mrs. Frank Popper; and a victory tribute page in the program devoted to men in service, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Philip Brail and Mrs. Charles Bell. The AD program, largest single source of revenue for the frolic, is in charge of Mrs. Raymond Pohn, Mrs. Harry Gordy, Mrs. Harry K. Newberger, and Mrs. Norman Schreiber.

Mrs. Philip Shepard is chairman of the Senior Goodfellows, and Mrs. Howard G. Mesirow, of the Junior Goodfellows. Reservations for the frolic are being taken by Mrs. Philip H. Kahn, with Mrs. A. M. Krensky as co-chairman.

Women in War Work . . . .

Ten thousand registered graduate nurses are expected to be in Chicago from May 18 to 23 to attend the biennial convention of the three national nursing organizations — American Nurses' association, National League of Nursing Education, and National Organization for Public Health Nursing. With the armed forces calling for 10,000 more graduate nurses by June 1, industry requiring more nurses constantly to help keep workers well and on the job, and civilian nursing needs likely to be increased, no convention of nurses ever has been called upon to consider ways and means of meeting more serious demands.

Miss Lenore Tobins. [Chase photo.]

The American Red Cross will conduct one of the convention sessions in the Coliseum when Walter Lippman will speak. This session, to be held on Tuesday night, May 19, will have Mrs. August Belmont as the presiding officer. Miss Lenore Tobins, director of the school of nursing at Roseland Community hospital, is chairman of the local arrangements committee for the convention.

It is probable that on National Hospital day, May 12, there will be more visitors to the Chicago hospitals than ever before, for every young girl and woman must be conscious of the great need for trained nurses today and should be interested in seeing the institutions in which such training is given. The women's executive committee of the Illinois Office of Public Instruction is now compiling a survey showing the desperate need not only for nurses but for additional women employés in all phases of hospital work, from administrator to ward aid, and from the highly paid assistant executive housekeeper to the volunteer worker. The results of this survey will be given at a job clinic to be held at the Merchants' and Manufacturers' club on June 4. There will be a dinner at 6 o'clock and a free clinic at 7.

Mrs. Anne V. Zinser is general chairman of the committee and Miss Mabel W. Binner, administrator of the Children's Memorial hospital, and Mrs. Edna H. Nelson, administrator of the Women and Children's hospital, are co-chairmen of the special medical and nursing committee. Miss Binner said last week: "Any person in the unskilled group can get a hospital job today—the age range is from 18 years of age [such persons must have 'working' papers] to 70 or more. The under 18 group would be employed in positions such as messengers, etc., while job possibilities for the 65-70 age range would be watchmen, porter, cleaning, laundry delivery, etc. The minimum salary is $38 per month which includes maintenance and laundry. No educational requirements are demanded for maid, porter, laundry, linen room employés, while a messenger's only educational qualification is the ability to read. There is a definite future for the industrious, hard working person, no matter how low a rung he or she uses as the first step," Miss Binner concluded.

Mrs. Alta M. LaBelle, president of the Chicago chapter of the National Executive Housekeepers association, Michael Reese hospital, recommends housekeeping in hospitals to girls. "There is a dearth of applicants," she says, "because the majority of girls seem to feel that there is a stigma attached to housekeeping—that it involves sweeping and mopping, dusting and washing. Contrary to this general belief—probably the only executive position in the entire industrial field open to women only—is a definite science and generally receives the lion's share of a hospital budget."

Mrs. LaBelle continued: "There are no set educational requirements and the age limit is a matter of arteries, not birthdays. Salaries for auxiliary positions range from $75 to $110 per month, including full maintenance. For the executive housekeeper, who has proven ability, there is no salary ceiling."

There is a crying need for student as well as trained nurses; for occupational therapists; for physical therapists; for trained medical librarians; for dietitians; for social workers, and for scientific workers. All these fields will be discussed at the clinic on June 4.

• • •

The 20th annual Midwest Safety conference to be held at the Hotel Sherman Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday will highlight women's part in safety, stressing particularly the conservation of man power for the all-out war effort now that women are employed in all types of industry.

Miss Margaret T. Mettert of the women's bureau, United States department of labor, Washington, D. C., will be the principal speaker at the session on wartime industrial hygiene problems. Her subject is "Industrial Health of Women in Wartime Production."

Mrs. James E. Sime, chairman of the American home department, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, will discuss "Off the Job Accidents."

More than 100 civic, social, and governmental agencies are coöperating with the Greater Chicago Safety council, sponsors of the three day conference, among them being the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, the Chicago Industrial Nurses association, Girl Scouts of America, and the Council of Social Agencies of Chicago.

From a reader comes this nice note: "I have been pleased to note that your column covers things being done for defense and morale all over the city. Chicago has certainly gone 'all-out' for the little things which make service men's lives easier as well as for the larger undertakings. You have done a good job of reporting on all of these activities to date, and we hope that you continue to receive more news than you have room to print, for then Chicago will be doing her share of the monstrous job that confronts the nation."

Sigma Alpha Iota Will Have MacDowell Benefit

Mr. and Mrs. Neville Pilling, 2123 Central Park avenue, Evanston, will open their home at 4 o'clock today for a MacDowell benefit tea sponsored by Alpha Xi chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota, national music fraternity. The program will be presented by Ida Krehm, pianist and honorary member of the organization. Mme. Nelli Gardini and Mme. Cecile De Horvath, who also are honorary members, will pour.

Queen Wilhelmina Fund Drive Will Aid Dutch Refuges

The Queen Wilhelmina Fund, Inc., will make its first public appeal in Chicago Thursday night at a meeting at the Christian High school, 71st and May streets. The fund cares for Dutch sufferers in this country and in other havens to which they have made their way from the Netherlands and the Dutch East Indies. Mrs. Dee Bredin, American radio correspondent and newspaper reporter, will address the meeting on the subject, "You Can't Beat the Dutch." Mrs. Bredin knows the government and the people of the Dutch East Indies well because of a long stay there as newspaper correspondent.

Tickets are on sale at 318 North Michigan avenue and at the school. Fifty thousand dollars is the sum set by the executive committee as the greater Chicago area quota. Victor DeBont heads the local committee, which begins a 90 day drive this week, and Hendrik Willem van Loon is the national chairman. Serving with Mr. DeBont are B. Vanderwarf, Richard Teppema, George McHenry, Dr. P. A. Edmand, the Rev. Harry J. Hager, William Jansen, P. E. Lakin, B. W. Lanckor, Willard F. Lochridge, Edward Seece, Prof. G. J. Ten Hoor, Dr. F. Van Minden, and T. S. Youngsma.

Catholic Poetry Society to Hear Talk Tomorrow

The Chicago chapter of the Catholic Poetry Society of America will meet at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the Catholic Woman's league lounge on the 10th floor of the Fine Arts building to hear Father John Wellmuth, S. J., of Loyola university. The speaker will talk on "Gilbert K. Chesterton" and "The Ballad of the White Horse." Miss Mary Agnes Ryan is program chairman of the chapter.

Miss Ruth Judson Bride of R. B. Clapp April 11

The marriage of Miss Ruth Judson, daughter of Mrs. Rollin B. Judson of West Deming place, to Ralph B. Clapp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert P. Clapp of South Home avenue, took place on April 11 in the Fourth Presbyterian church. After a short trip to Wisconsin, Mr. and Mrs. Clapp will be at home after May 15 in Oak Park.

Club for Cripples Will Hear New Books Reviewed

Florence Bourke Ellis will review "The Moon Is Down" and "New Hope" at a membership Mother's day meeting tomorrow of the Chicago Club for Crippled Children. The metting at 2 o'clock in the Palmer House will be followed by a tea. The program has been arranged by Miss Rita Lewin, and Mrs. H. H. Kant will preside.

Yellowstone's Bears Provide a Great Show

By Everett Irwin.

Thousands of tourists who visit Yellowstone National park finds bears—the "highwaymen" of Yellowstone—the most fascinating attraction in America's great mountain playground.

The majestic beauty of Old Faithful and the vivid coloring of Yellowstone canyon may bring forth only a lukewarm response from tired "dudes" already a day behind schedule, but when a shaggy, clumsy bear lumbers out of the pine forest and parks in front of an oncoming car, the indifference of a moment before quickly disappears. Dad slams on the brakes, Mother gets out the family's store of picture taking paraphernalia, and the kids search for candy or cookies to feed the begging animals.

It makes no difference whether the travelers meet one or a dozen bears—the reaction is the same. The 12th is greeted with as many "oh's" and "ah's" as the first. And if, by chance, Mother Bruin brings her twin cubs out to the road, the Yellowstone vacation is a perfect one for the whole family.

Feeding is strictly contrary to regulations. Signs thruout the park read: "Danger! Do Not Feed the Bears!" Ranger naturalists, in their daily lectures, warn tourists that it is "extremely dangerous to feed, molest, touch, or tease" them. But the warning makes little impression. Visitors continue to toss morsels of food, and the animals continue to loiter along the roadside, knowing they will get a handout from every car and big yellow tour bus that passes.

The rangers are serious in their warnings against too close association with the Yellowstone "highwaymen." Particularly they urge tourists to keep their distance from a mother and her cubs. Mother Bruin loves her young, and sometimes she mistakes a tourist's friendly advances toward the cubs as an attempt to harm them. Nearly every season one or more visitors are killed or maimed by bears which have been antagonized. These incidents are isolated, but they do present the park's caretakers with a problem.

With proper caution, bear hunting—with a camera—can be a great sport in Yellowstone. Camera enthusiasts will find many opportunities for shots along the main highways, at times in the cabin camps, and occasionally within a stone's throw of the largest hotels. If one pays a leisurely visit, he can hike along the back trails—far from the roads frequented by most "dudes"—and photograph the bears in a habitat as wild as any the west can offer.

Popular belief to the contrary, there are only two species in Yellowstone—the grizzly and the black. The black bear, much smaller and less wild than the grizzly, is found in several colors—black, brown, and buff or yellow. Hence the buff or "cinnamon" really are simply "blond blacks."

The black bear—in any of his color varieties—is the one commonly seen along park roads. Harmless unless molested, he roams at will thru cabin camps in search of food. He has low shoulders and, especially in late summer, a tendency to roly-poly fatness. He is a tree climber, whereas grizzlies cannot climb. Ranger naturalists jokingly tell tourists:

"If you can't tell whether the bear is a black or a grizzly, make him chase you and then climb a tree. If he comes up after you, he's no grizzly!"

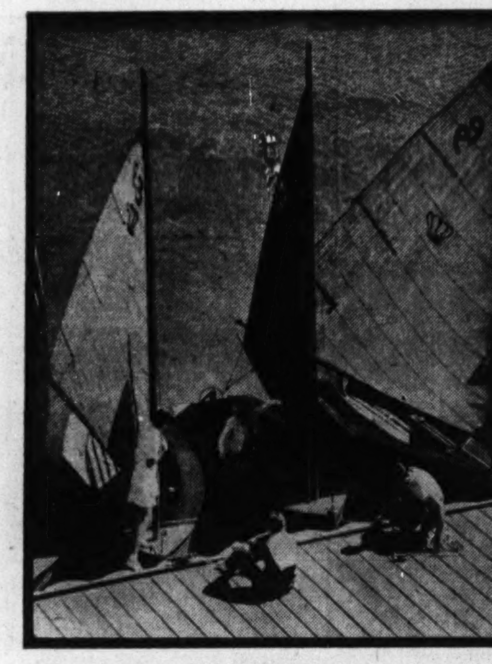
• • •

Fewer in number than their smaller cousins, the grizzlies rarely are seen except at the Otter creek feeding grounds near Canyon Junction. There they gather at sundown to sup on garbage thrown out by rangers. They seem less afraid of the scent of man at the feeding grounds, and often 50 or 60 of them can be counted. The feeding platform is in a beautiful little valley fringed by forests. Log seats for spectators have been set up on a hillside overlooking the scene. A high steel fence insures safety for onlookers. Otter creek is the only place in the world, rangers say, where the humans are in the cage and the bears are on the outside.

The national park service maintains a large parking lot near the feeding grounds for persons touring in their own cars. Travelers sightseeing from park buses may make special excursions to the grounds in the course of their stops at Canyon lodge or Canyon hotel.

• • •

Youngsters—and Dad and Mother too—will find the antics of the cubs and the noisy quarrels of the old grizzlies more entertaining than a circus. The bear feeding show is a "must" on any tour of the park.



AT THE END OF A CRUISE
Despite the war, boating in the Pacific ocean is still one of the favorite sports of visitors in southern California.

Visitors Find Few Changes in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Summer vacationists will find little change in wartime southern California.

A few stretches of roads, usually secondary ones, are blocked off in the vicinity of airplane factories and important military installations. But routes to all vacation attractions are open and tourists may go where they please without restrictions other than time, their pocketbooks, and speed laws.

There have been only three general blackouts. Boulevards and neon signs blaze as ever. Night life, particularly in Hollywood, is gay. Theaters are filled.

One change will be noticed by visitors—there are no Japanese on the streets, and the "Little Tokio" section of Los Angeles is a deserted, modern day ghost town of empty homes and stores.

Another change is the prohibition of offshore fishing at night. But vacationists can sail out and fish all they want in the daytime.

All resort areas are open and planning their summer programs. Regular excursion steamer and airplane service to Santa Catalina Island is scheduled for all summer.

New Feature for Holland Festival

Holland, Mich., May 2 [Special].—A new feature will be added to the Volks parade following the street scrubbing, marking the opening of the annual Tulip Time festival Saturday, May 16. It is to be a dog car contest and will be under the direction of Arthur Lanning of the Holland Christian school and Joseph Moran, physical director of grade schools.

The prizes of a $25 war savings bond and five war savings stamps of $3 each will be donated by the Dutch Tulip Growers' association and will be awarded on the basis of authenticity and attractiveness. The prizes will be presented at Riverview park that evening.

Glacier Takes the Prize for Beauty, Says One Expert

BELTON, Mont.—James A. FitzPatrick, producer of travel movies, has proclaimed his belief that there is more concentrated natural beauty in Glacier National park than anywhere else.

"In the course of my globe-trotting career I've had a dozen men's shares of thrills over the showmanship of nature," he says. "But, right in my own back yard—in the United States—I found last summer a five star extravaganza.

"In this country there is a wealth of scenic places, but, in my opinion, there is more concentrated natural beauty in Glacier than anywhere else in the world. My own reactions to this mountain wonderland are difficult to describe, for it is a region of many moods.

"Glacier impressed me as both magnificent and mysterious, and it provided me a practical short course in geology. Wherever one goes in the park, the centuries-old story of how and why the Montana Rockies were formed is engraved on the mountainsides."

Orchards in Bloom for Blossom Fete

ST. JOSEPH, Mich.—There will be plenty of blooms for Blossom week, which begins in the twin cities of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph on May 3 and continues thru May 8.

By the last week in April the early peaches began unfolding their pink blooms on the hillsides. These are being followed by the apples, pears, cherries, apricots and plums.

Blossom Time this year has eliminated the floral parade and shortened the usual 10 day program into 6 days.

West Provides the Answer to Travel Problem

By Frederic Babcock.

Some people say that Horace Greeley never said it. But, whether he did or didn't, a good many people this summer will be following the advice to go west. A good many others will be trekking northward.

While vacation travel must make way for war traffic this year, there promises to be a substantial flow of recreational travel from the Chicago territory to the American and Canadian Rockies, the Black Hills, the Pacific coast country, the southwest, and Mexico. And, because of wartime conditions, the nearer places, such as the resort areas of Wisconsin and Michigan, will be getting an unusually large share of the summertime business.

By this time it has become a familiar story that, even tho nearly everybody is concentrating on the effort to lick the axis powers, everybody must take time off occasionally for rest and recreation, in order that he may be better fit for his part in the big push. The American west, along with Canada, Mexico, and the north woods, has the answer. Outdoor activities, all the way from strolling to mountain climbing, are there in abundance.

The government's official attitude toward 1942 vacations was summed up the other day by Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production board. His statement deserves to be called to the attention of all those who are still hesitating about the need of taking time off this spring, summer, and fall.

"Experience here and abroad is indicating that the worker, even when stimulated by the urgency of the allied war situation, cannot work long hours and maintain peak output indefinitely," Mr. Nelson said. "We know that he benefits in peacetime from an annual vacation. After the extensive overtime and the added emotional strain of the war effort, we can be sure some rest period this year is going to prove doubly effective in the restoration of his energy and determination.

"In planning the vacation program in 1942, it is particularly necessary in each plant that American industry show its ingenuity in obtaining the vacation benefits without paying a counterbalancing cost in productive hours lost. This can be accomplished by doing work ahead in the departments affected, by further overtime of the workers not on vacation, by a special program of training substitutes for those workers scheduled to go on vacation, by the spreading of the vacations over the whole year in those sections where this is possible, and spreading them evenly over the full May thru September period in those sections where the greatest vacation benefits are obtained in summer.

"I am depending upon American industry to embrace the vacation opportunity, and solve its accompanying problem, in a way that will not let our current output suffer and yet will fortify our working force for the still greater accomplishments the President's program demands."

Could you give me a description of the Everglades? —R. A. K.

The Everglades, comprising some 4 million acres, is in general referred to as the whole of the uninhabited central section of the Florida peninsula below a line drawn between Palm Beach and Fort Myers. Of this area, approximately 1,454,000 acres have been earmarked for the projected Everglades National park. The outer fringes are accessible to travelers from Miami.

On the east and south are the bays, sounds, and keys. In the center are miles of prairie in which abound lakes, streams, forests, and hammocks covered with palms. The land in the west is the real storied jungleland—a labyrinth of tidal estuaries, rivers, lakes, swamps, and impenetrable sawgrass. Here are virgin forests of mahogany, live-oak, cypress, and mangrove, as well as giant ferns, water lilies, and rare flowers. This part is the haunt of countless thousands of tropical and semi-tropical birds, alligators, crocodiles, snakes, deer, bear, and panthers. The back waters are alive with fish.

The only human life is an occasional band of Seminole Indians, remnants of the aboriginals who have never acknowledged the sovereignty of the United States and who have made the Everglades their refuge. They are a good-natured, peaceful people, as industrious as they need to be to supply their simple needs. They are skilled fishermen and hunters. They make their own laws and live under them in virtual disregard of white man's rules and customs. Knowing their way about the mysterious waterways, they are the guides to take the visitor thru the park.

One gets about the wilderness by boat. No white man to date has yet completely explored the miles of winding channels.

Daredevil's Stunt Brings Patronage to Devils Tower

CHEYENNE, Wyo.—Devils tower is "on the map" at last.

The northeastern Wyoming national monument, the first area ever so reserved, came into a publicity bonanza last fall, when a diminutive daredevil parachuted to its not too spacious summit and was marooned for a week.

As a result, the tower, "tanned by the spotlight of publicity," will be on many itineraries this summer.

The man whose exploit made the great "stump" world news is George Hopkins, formerly of San Antonio, Tex., and now—by the grace of eight mountain climbers—parachute instructor in the army air corps.

To win a $50 bet, Hopkins made a bull's-eye parachute descent to the tower top Oct. 1. He was stranded there thru wind, rain, and snow, until Oct. 7, when skilled mountaineers from New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Wyoming, and Colorado rescued him.

Before the 110 pound Hopkins was relieved of his prison on the "desert island in the sky," he had attracted 7,000 persons to the formation.

Even without a rash human tenanting its windy summit, Devils tower is phenomenal. The great finger pokes skyward 1,200 feet from the level of the Belle Fourche river. From base to summit it is 865 feet high.

Formed by an up-welling of molten rock more than 20 million years ago, it contains enough material to provide surfacing for a 16 foot roadway nine times around the earth. Diameter at the base is about 1,000 feet; the area on top approximates an acre and a half. A conspicuous feature is the columnar structure, due to the formation of large polygonal prisms when the lava which formed it cooled.

Set aside as the first national monument in 1906 by President Theodore Roosevelt, the tower is closely associated with Indian legends. One legend has it that the striated appearance resulted from the claws of bears pursuing Indian maidens who took refuge on the top.

Rates Reduced to Illinois Parks

Springfield, Ill., May 2 (AP).—Some rail and bus companies are establishing reduced excursion rates for visitors to Illinois state parks and recreational areas for the summer season. Walter A. Rosenfield, director of public works and buildings, says the reductions were granted in furtherance of plans of state officials to encourage the public use of the parks as a contribution to wartime civilian morale.

Colorado: Land of Spectacular Scenic Effects

By Warren Roberts.

"Switzerland" and "Egypt" are neighbors in Colorado. For this is a state of contrasts where anything topographical is possible.

DENVER, COLO.

In this case "Switzerland" is the Sangre de Cristo range in south central Colorado. The range's 14,000 foot snow capped peaks have dug their toes in the great sand dunes on the western slope of the mountains. "Egypt" is the dunes, vaster than anything else of their kind in America. Their sands mount to heights of 1,500 feet and are spectacular enough to have been created a national monument.

Legends connect both the dunes and the overhanging mountains. The Sangre de Cristo range was named by Valverde, Spanish explorer, who, the story goes, first saw their snowy heights crimsoned by the morning sun. "Sangre de Cristo!" ["Blood of Christ!"] he said in awe.

• • •

The dunes are the source of many tales not without some basis of fact. The listener may not believe the yarn of the web-footed horses, described as descendants of camels that once roamed the desert stretch and raced with the wind by moonlight, but it is true, say those who know, that bands of wild horses do rove there, that their hooves are of extraordinary broadness, and that they run with the swiftness of deer.

It may not be true that a Mexican herder and a thousand sheep vanished within the dunes overnight, never to be heard from again, and that other legends of disappearances equally weird are only tales to thrill and chill, but the shifting sands today unearth the bones of man and beast.

All of these unreal realities are within reach of the vacationist who may vary his summer sport by skiing down the dunes.

• • •

Adding to the contrast of this region are the fertile lands near by, in the San Luis valley, watered by the Rio Grande and among the most productive of western areas. Here, tucked away, the visitor finds a people living much as did their ancestors in old Spain.

To the west of this region are the San Juan mountains, yet to be completely explored, where 70 years ago the Packer party on a gold seeking expedition met a cannibalistic end. And still further west are the Mesa Verde cliff dwellings, preserved from the time, 2,000 years ago, when they were tenanted by a cultured Indian race.

Back across the Sangre de Cristo mountains and north a few miles is industrial Pueblo, bustling with wartime activity, its steel foundry, largest west of Chicago, belching flame into the sky night and day. And several miles further north is Colorado Springs, art center of the west. "The Springs" is gateway to the Pikes Peak region and South park.

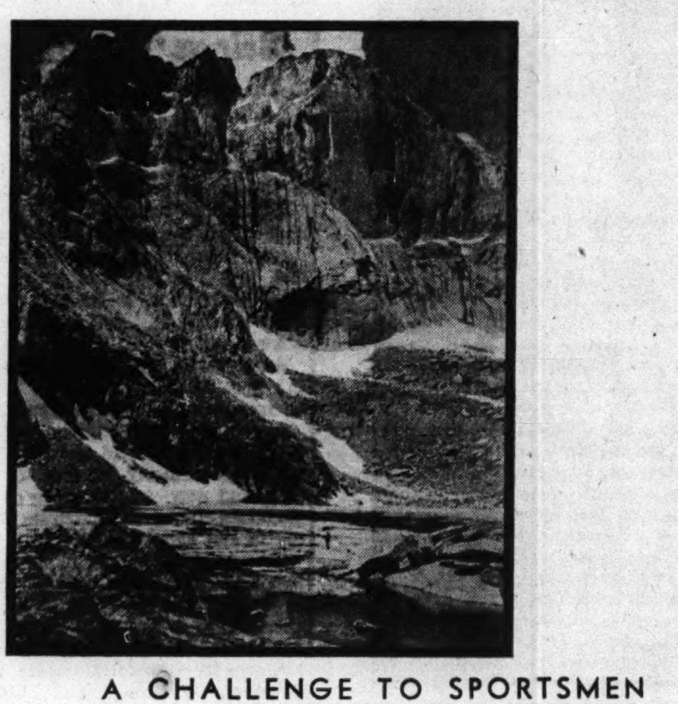
Thruout Colorado the visitor finds towering mountains, valleys brilliant with wild flowers, pleasant villages, towns and cities that lie in hailing distance of country that can be tame or wild to suit the mood, and amusements that range from tennis, golf, and polo to pack trips, mountain climbing, hiking, and fishing.

New Highway Provides Loop Tour to Smokies

Waynesville, N. C.—Opening of the new Soco Gap highway in June will provide a more direct route to the Great Smoky Mountains National park from the north and east.

The road runs thru spectacular scenery. It connects the Cherokee Indian reservation with state highway 293 west of Waynesville. It passes thru Soco gap at an elevation of 4,337 feet.

The new route will provide a loop tour from Waynesville for travelers wishing to go one way and return another.



A CHALLENGE TO SPORTSMEN
For mountain climbers the east slope of Long's peak, shown here, offers a real challenge. It is 2,200 feet from the glacier lake to the summit. The mountain itself is 14,255 feet high.

Phoenix Pupils to Give Their Annual Pageant

The annual pageant of the Phoenix high schools and junior college commemorating May, the loveliest month of the year, is called the "Masque of the Yellow Moon." According to Indian tradition, May is the month of the yellow moon and for the last 17 years it has been celebrated with an out-of-door pageant.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

So often amateur pageants or theatricals are dreadfully boring to every one except the fond parents. However, the "Masque of the Yellow Moon" is a charming and finished production, gaining national attention. It is undertaken as a school project with everything from costumes to scenery made during the school year in the various departments. The real credit for its success goes to Cordelia McLain Perkins, head of the allied arts department. In keeping with the times, the theme this year is "reveille," with particular emphasis on Pan-Americanism. The ROTC army, navy, and air corps will lend color and a sense of reality to the pageant.

Suzanne Davies of Evanston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Davies, has made quite a name for herself this year in the high school. As editor in chief of "The Round-Up" she has done an excellent job of publicity for the performance.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Corson Ellis [Roberta Thorne] of Lake Forest are visiting the George Gillespies [Catherine Thorne]. Monday night Mr. and Mrs. Wirt Morton entertained for them at a small dinner party at their home in Arcadia, and Tuesday night the Gillespies had about 40 of their friends for buffet dinner in the garden of their ranch home out Central avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Ellis expect to be in Phoenix for about a week.

The Ralph Cogswells of Glencoe are having a real vacation, without their children, in the George Spalding desert cabin. They plan to be here for a month. The Harry Knights are spending the month at the Westward-Ho hotel.

Mrs. Ray Hoover of Evanston has arrived at Jokake inn. She came for the graduation yesterday of her daughter, Lorayne, from the Jokake School for Girls.

Pingpong may be rather strenuous after dinner exercise, but the dinners at Camelback inn are sumptuous enough to need some kind of exercise if one hopes to return east in the same clothes one arrived in. So, every night for the last week a pingpong tournament has been the after dinner entertainment. Judge Peter H. Schwaba was proclaimed the champion at the end of the week. The weekly putting tournaments still continue, with Andrew McNally the current winner. Mr. and Mrs. McNally and Robert Gordon Steuert will be at the inn until it closes, May 10.

Sports Continue on Pacific Coast

San Francisco, Cal.—Horse racing is not to be lost to California for the duration.

Plans for 50 days of summer racing, starting May 30, have been completed at the Pleasanton track, 38 miles from San Francisco. Laid out in the '70s, the track became famous for its harness races and trotting exhibitions.

Pari-mutuel betting will be allowed, with 50 per cent of the net profits going to Army and Navy relief and to the Red Cross.

A spring polo season starts in May in San Francisco's Golden Gate park. The yachting season opens in mid-May, with a number of water tournaments set for San Francisco bay and in the inland waterways.

On June 27 and 28 the only midsummer ski tournament in the country will be held on the slopes of Mt. Lassen, in northern California. There will be downhill, slalom and jumping events.

Some Anglers Plan to Stick Close to Home

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Their vacation wanderings restricted by tire and automobile shortages, Illinoisans are expected to give more attention this summer to the black bass, crappies, and catfish that inhabit the streams, lakes, and ponds in their own communities.

CENTRALIA, ILL.

Officials of the state department of conservation see fewer trips to northern fishing grounds during the coming season and an awakening for those sportsmen who have neglected the possibilities of their own state.

Illinois' cleared and drained prairies, more suited to agriculture than to use as a vacation land, are dotted with an increasing number of artificial lakes and reservoirs. Into these lakes the state has dumped millions of fish and has restocked them annually.

• • •

To meet the demand for new stock the state department of conservation maintains fish hatcheries at Spring Grove, Rockford, Yorkville, Wyanet, Geneseo, Mattoon, and Carlyle. An additional supply is received annually from various federal hatcheries.

There are approximately 180 kinds of fish in the state, but only about 40 of them are accepted as large enough to be edible. The principal game varieties include bass, walleyed pike, brook trout, blue gill, crappie, and perch. Trout fishing is confined to the northern countries, where streams were stocked with 500,000 brook trout fingerlings in 1941. Approximately the same number will be delivered there this year.

• • •

"Fishing in Illinois," prepared as a guide to some of the state's best waters, lists these as best bets this summer:

Horse Shoe Lake, in Alexander county. The bass season opens there May 15, and the lake, part of a state game preserve, affords good crappie and blue gill catches.

The Ohio river. Furnishes good Kentucky and large mouth bass fishing, walleyed pike, sauger, white bass, white perch, and catfish. Best catches are taken below the navigation dams when the beartraps are open, but wartime regulations prohibit fishing within a specified distance of the dams.

The Mississippi river. The wide waters bordering the state above the various dams have become a fisherman's paradise in the last two years. The number and rate of growth of fish in these waters is said to be equivalent to any place in the United States. Great northern pike have multiplied rapidly and there are large numbers of black bass, crappies, blue gills, warmouth bass, green sunfish, and bullheads. The swift channels below the dams offer excellent opportunities for walleyed pike, and channel catfish are abundant.

In 1939 the state began a serious attempt to stock with fingerling trout the streams in Carroll, Jo Daviess, McHenry, Ogle, Stephenson, Whiteside, Winnebago, Lee, Boone, and De Kalb counties. A survey this spring showed some of the streams contained brook trout up to 8½ inches long and brown trout 10 inches long.

Rock river, Crab Orchard lake, the backwaters of the Illinois river, the Fox chain of lakes, the Fox river, and lakes and reservoirs thruout the length of the state also are mentioned in the guide.

Mexico Mecca of Vacationists in Summertime

Mexico has come into its own as a summer travel Mecca of the Americas, F. C. Lona, superintendent of passenger traffic of the National Railways of Mexico, told a group of Chicagoans at a luncheon at the Union League club Friday.

"More than 600 American tourists a day entered my country last summer," he said. "They had heard of Mexico's sunny but invigorating climate, of its spectacular scenery and old world culture. They came to verify, and remained to enjoy.

"This year the war for world freedom draws Mexico and the United States closer than ever before. Travel plays a vital rôle in this united stand. A vacation is more than time off from work. Every man now owes to himself and his country a period of complete relaxation, so that he may return refreshed to his vital wartime work. Nowhere is such relaxation so easily attainable as in Mexico.

"Even our climate is an anti-axis ally. You will be visiting towns, cities, and resorts from 4,000 to 7,500 feet in altitude. That means your days will be dry and warm, your nights cool and refreshing. Summer is our rainy season, but even the rains are obliging. They come usually at night, and by day generally restrain themselves to a few minutes. Then the clouds clear as if by magic, and the sun shines again on a green and flowering world.

"No new wartime restrictions have been set up affecting American citizens traveling in Mexico. It is in the 'no passport area,' and the usual tourist card, quickly obtained and costing only a dollar, is all that is necessary.

• • •

"Trains, planes, and motor buses carry you directly and securely to the capital. No restrictions exist on travel within the country. Tourist facilities have been improved and streamlined so that even in off-the-beaten track pleasure centers you will find modern accomodations."

Well Rounded Program Found in New Mexico

By Alden Powell.

SANTA FE, N. M.

Many vacationists with an eye toward wartime restrictions consider New Mexico an ideal place for a well rounded recreational program, serving to build both physique and morale.

In the high country, on the plains, and amid the mesas of this state the entire family can follow various pursuits, and at the same time absorb the historical background.

In addition to its scenic grandeur, New Mexico boasts a fine summer climate, with 75 to 80 per cent possible sunshine. Temperatures drop with the sun at each day's end, bringing coolness to even the warmest sections. Transportation presents no acute problems.

A dude ranch vacation provides a diversity ranging from hiking and riding to lying in the shade of a singing pine. Fishing is to be had in the dude ranch country and in other sections with 2,000 miles of trout streams.

The more hardy vacationist will enjoy a pack-in trip, with overnight camping in the upper reaches of the southern Rocky mountains, where freezing temperatures are not uncommon even in midsummer. Guides and equipment are available.

Altho general big game seasons are not open in the summer, the nimrod need not want for activity. The mountain lion may be stalked in any season.

Since the middle decades of the 16th century, when the Spaniards established their northernmost province in the new world, New Mexico has been a goal for the white man. Missionaries followed the soldier.

Many of these oldtime missions still stand as monuments to the bravery and enterprise of these early clerics. The ruins of others, whose adobe walls have crumbled either from Indian attack or age, also are to be seen.

• • •

Long before the white man set foot here the Pueblo Indians had reached and declined from a "golden age" of culture. Among the ruins of architectural gems surviving from this period are the pueblo structures embraced in Aztec Ruins and Chaco Canyon National monuments.

Other ruins are those embraced in Bandelier National mounment in Frijoles canyon—the last stronghold of the cliff dwellers—and in the Gila Cliff Dwellings National monument. Other monuments are El Morro, where the Spaniards inscribed their names and deeds in the 17th century; Capulin mountain, which embraces an almost perfect volcanic cone; White Sands, the world's largest gypsum bed, and Gran Quivira, site of two early mission ruins.

Ranked among the world's great natural wonders is Carlsbad Caverns National park. This gargantuan underground marvel is open to the public thruout the year.

• • •

For a glimpse of something different, the vacationist can visit the colorful Indian country—the Pueblos in their communal villages, which rank as America's first apartment houses; the Navajos, on the world's largest reservation, and the Jicarilla and Mescalero Apaches.

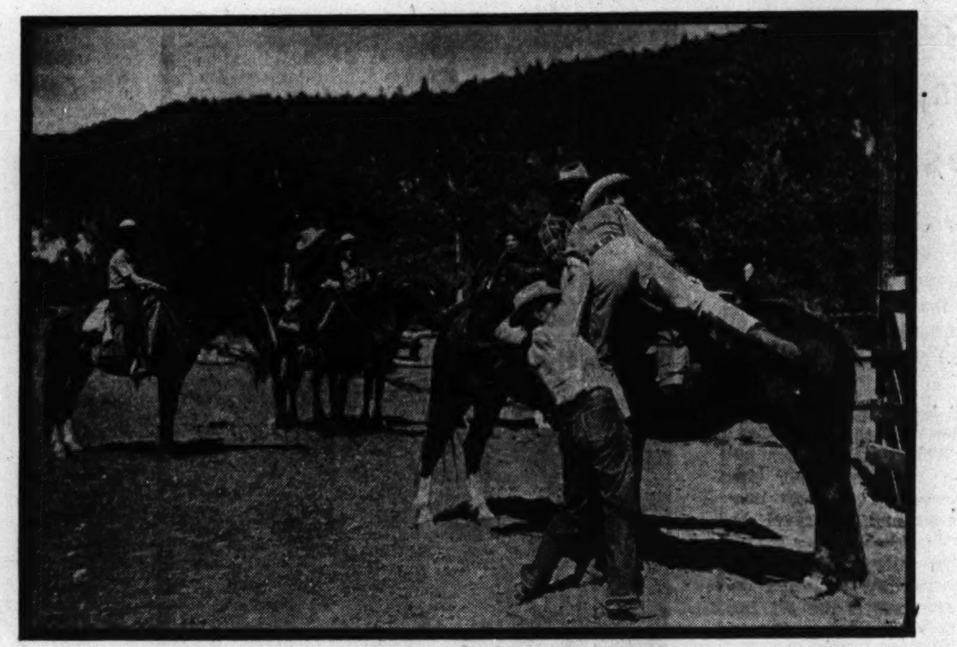
The Navajos and Pueblos are known for their handicrafts—silverwork, weaving, basketry, and ceramics. A buying expedition among these aborigines amounts to a collector's dream.

Synonymous with the Indian in both fact and fiction is the cowboy—and New Mexico today ranks as one of the big stock producing states of the west. Cowboys follow the roundup six months out of the year, but theirs is no longer the business of settling range disputes with the business end of a six gun.

Many of the dude ranches are going outfits, where the guest may join in wrangling of cattle and riding the open range.

In Make-Believe Land.

The Devil's Punch Bowl is not a Hollywood night club, but it isn't far from Hollywood. It's an area of weird, craterlike formations just off the highway from Big Pines recreation park to Palmdale, in the mountains northeast of Los Angeles.



WHERE IT'S ALL PLAY AND NO WORK

A cowboy guide helps a dudette to the top of a broncho waiting to start on a day's ride into the foothills. This scene, typical of those enacted all summer in the western dude ranches, was taken in New Mexico.

The Voice of the Traveler

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

THE SPELL OF THE NORTHLAND.

Marquette, Mich., April 26.—To the Travel Editor: Now that summer is near, many persons are wondering if they can take a vacation this year.

The northern country—especially Marquette and vicinity—offers unusual opportunities for a short trip and rest at a moderate expense. We are within a few hours of Chicago, both by rail and bus. Doubtless many who ordinarily would motor will have to give that up. But the railroads provide fast and convenient transportation.

What have we to offer? Well, for one thing, we have a cooler climate. Some days are quite warm, but one can always go out to our park—Presque Isle—where the breezes, whichever way they blow, cross some part of Lake Superior.

And the scenery is beautiful. One can look off to the north or northwest and see islands that look like jewels in the vast stretches of blue water.

For sport there's trolling off Black Rocks, and sometimes our guests catch 30 or 40 pounds of trout while fishing a few hundred feet off shore. It's not unusual for motorists to see deer.

Of course Marquette is not the only attraction of the northern Michigan country. Ishpeming, Negaunee, Hancock, Houghton, Ontonagon, and other cities have their special appeal.

Nature has done a good deal for this region. The scenery is native—not made over by man. It's wild—not the tame and artificial thing one sees in the city.

A person grows tired of everlastingly looking at skyscrapers. Even the magnificient museums and educational features of a city like Chicago pall on one.

Shed the artificialities for a time and get back to nature! You'll find it in Marquette and nearby places.

It's All Right to Go Dunking When You're in Mexico

MEXICO CITY.—Doughnuts and coffee—a natural affinity—are wedded in Mexico by acceptance of the rite of "dunking." Frowned upon tho it is in the best circles in many lands, the practice is quite the thing here.

Nearly every one in this country favors cafe con leche—coffee with milk—and so a little pitcher of coffee is accompanied by another of hot milk. Perfect consorts of coffee—particularly in the eyes of the dunker—are the delicious breads and rolls for which Mexico is known. Sugar coated buns, doughnuts, butter rolls, snails and crescents, and crisp crusted Spanish breads are offered and give the dunker endless opportunities.

Six Glaciers in Forest.

There are six glaciers in the Roosevelt National forest in north-central Colorado. The largest, the Arapahoe, is approximately a mile and a half long, nearly a mile wide, and from 100 to 500 feet in depth.

The Oldest Slogan.

"Pike's Peak or bust" is the oldest "working" slogan. It originated in 1859 with the gold strike at Pike's peak, near Colorado Springs, Colo. It is used now as a tourist slogan.

Ice Field Highway Permits Visits to Two Resort Areas

BANFF, Alta.—Tourists this summer, as was the case last summer, will be given the opportunity of seeing two leading vacation areas of the Canadian Rockies within a short vacation period.

Last year's completion of the highway between Banff and Jasper National park provided not only a spectacular trip along the Columbia ice field but allowed visitors to take in both the Jasper and Banff-Lake Louise regions on one journey.

As a result this part of the dominion drew a large number of travelers from the United States last season, and a similar situation is anticipated this season.

Michigan's Trout Streams Thronged

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—Opening day for trout fishing arrived in Michigan with an unusually large number of anglers present.

Baldwin and Honor reported fair catches.

Southern Michigan trout streams produced some fine catches. Grand Rapids youngsters bicycled out to their favorite streams within a radius of 20 miles before daylight and took trout for their breakfast.

Dry weather made many of the streams low. The water was clear. The warm weather brought out some hatches and this gave the fly fisherman a better break on opening day than he has had in recent years.

Trout fishing continues in Michigan until Labor day.

Old Time Missions.

New Mexico's Franciscan mission system was established among the Indians on Sept. 9, 1598, by Don Juan de Onate.

A Good Way to See Country Is from a Canoe

By Juanita Daly.

One of the most enjoyable ways to see the north lake country is on a canoe trip. Experienced canoeists can cover several hundred miles in a two weeks' jaunt.

However, if you're an amateur, as we were last summer, you can loaf along, allow several days for bad weather, perhaps even break a 14 day vacation into two trips, and still explore 75 to 100 miles of a beautiful silent wilderness known only to Indian trappers and seasoned northwoodsmen.

My husband and I originally planned to pack up for a 10 day trip at a lodge on the Gunflint trail, 45 miles north of Grand Marais, Minn. But, since we had vetoed the suggestion of a guide, the owners of the lodge persuaded us to limit our first trip to a week and explore a section of the Minnesota-Canadian border route, which follows the river for 20 miles thru a series of lakes from Gunflint to Saganaga. By the end of the first day, after making three portages, we were convinced of the wisdom of the shorter trip. Neither of us could have carried another ounce of weight.

After paddling across Magnetic bay, where your compass is supposed to be affected by the iron deposits, we came to a beautiful little fall, which we portaged. This 30 yard walk over a boulder was our first taste of portaging the three packsacks and canoe, and we might have weakened if we'd known the length of the portages ahead—but ignorance was bliss.

Despite tired muscles, the evening hours were enjoyably spent fishing for walleyed pike at sunset, toasting before a cheery campfire, and marveling at the complete silence of the wilderness at night, interrupted only by the infrequent cry of a loon.

During the next five days we paddled thru five or six lovely lakes, cautiously shooting several small rapids, fished for the plentiful great northern pike, and camped on the most interesting island at hand around sunset.

Tho it rained every night except two, our silkaline tent protected us and it took a cloudburst on the sixth day to bring us back to camp. We spent a bad half day pushing a waterlogged canoe into the fishing camp where the lodge owners had driven our car, but not bad enough to keep us from starting out on another trip as soon as the weather cleared two days later. Besides, after we were safe and warm in camp, it made a wonderful "experience" to tell about.

On our second trip a couple from Lake Forest joined us and we set out in two canoes to explore the Northern Light lake region. Our entire expedition, which included a full day of rain and running short of food, was more than justified the first night when the northern lights put on a superperformance. Waves of green and blue color merged with the rays of white light that streaked the sky. Tho the night was cold, we left the campfire to take front row seats on the rocks and marvel at another of nature's wonders.

That afternoon we had paddled almost until dark, looking for a camp site which was supposed to be near by on a point of the mainland. Finally realizing that the site must have melted into the wilderness thru disuse, we picked out the most likely spot and made our own camp. The men first made a rock fireplace, then turned to setting up the tents, while the women cooked dinner.

We took a special delight in our camp because it was so completely our own, and when the sky the next morning promised an all day drizzle, we all agreed it would be fun to spend the day making a real camp site for posterity. Well, anyway, it should be there next summer.

We improved the fireplace, chopped a huge pile of wood, and the boys cleared several paths into the woods. Another special task, which had grand results, was to collect moss and a springy plant called caribou moss, with which we made mattresses for our beds. It's even superior to air mattresses, we can assure you.

We packed up and left early the following morning, as we had a day's paddling to make up. The sun didn't come out until 4 p. m., but everything was calm and cool. So we made good time without straining, or missing any of the beautiful scenery. Our one mistake was due to our uncertainty of the time. No one had a watch and, with no sun either, we had to depend on our stomachs. Our last portage ended at some falls and, since we were tired, we decided to camp there.

We prepared supper, but the meal was an unhappy one. The spot was low and the food attracted gnats, the only pest we came across on either trip. In addition, we were forced to a third meal of fish. While we were eating, two boys made the portage and told us it was only 4 o'clock. With this reprieve from darkness we quickly finished our meal and pushed off for a pleasanter site in Saganaga lake, one which we had used on our first trip.

Since the site was familiar, darkness did not hinder us in setting up our tents efficiently. We went to bed early, for we had paddled and portaged 16 miles that day. The next day we easily paddled into camp by noon and our first request was promptly filled—a sizzling steak for each of us.

a vital artery for Victory

● Never before has railroad transportation played so vital a part in war. It begins at the mines, oil fields, forests and farms—extends to thousands of production plants—carries on to ports on two oceans.

Fortunately, Great Northern Railway is the short route between Great Lakes and the Pacific Northwest—the route of low altitude and easy grades through the Rocky and Cascade Mountains. Fortunately, too, this railroad's facilities are in prime condition to handle its unprecedented loads of raw materials and finished products for war-winning use.

● Spend your vacation resting in these peaceful, unbelievably beautiful mountains and you'll feel like yourself again. Relax at comfortable hotels, chalets and trail camps. There are motor coach and lake launch trips, horses to ride; also golf, fishing, hiking and camping trips. Easy to reach by train. ● If you can't arrange a full vacation, stop off at Glacier Park for an all-expense tour of one to five days. ● Remember, no western trip is complete without Glorious Glacier Park going or returning, and Great Northern is the short, low altitude route between Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma, Portland, via Glacier Park. If possible start in mid-week when trains are less crowded. Don't forget Dude Ranches and Low-Cost All-Expense Tours. For help in planning any western trip please write, phone or call

Rare Shrines Goals of Tour of Wisconsin

By Chester Holway.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

In the intervals of peace thousands of Americans have made "church tours" of Europe, but, with a few exceptions, and with no American Baedeker to catalog them, the shrines and cathedral churches of the United States remain largely undiscovered.

In Wisconsin there are at least 27 worth journeying to see—aging, pioneer houses of worship, beautiful woodland shrines and chapels, monasteries, and newer churches of striking architectures. All welcome the tourist and the visiting worshiper, and a visit to one or more of them is a satisfying goal for a week-end tour.

Marinette has the oldest and largest Polish Baptist church in America, while neighboring Oconto is the home of the world's first edifice erected for Christian Science worship. This structure was built in 1886, nine years before the dedication of the mother church in Boston.

Perhaps the best known Catholic shrine is that of Mary, Help of Christians, at Holy hill, near Hartford. Erected on the site of a log chapel built in 1861, this hilltop church of the Discalced Carmelite fathers is a Romanesque edifice decorated with handwrought bronze and stained glass windows made in Munich. Its twin towers, high against the sky provide the nearest approach to a European sight that Wisconsin affords, and the views from the east steeple are among Wisconsin's finest.

Only novitiate of the Order of St. Camillus on the American continent is 10 miles east of Baraboo, at Durward's Glen, a wooded retreat in the Baraboo hills. There are two chapels there: St. Mary's of the Pines, built of stone in 1866, and St. Joseph's, built of logs in 1935. [Off the main highways, Durward's Glen is reached by going east on highway 33 out of Baraboo for 5.4 miles, then 1 mile right on county trunk W, and turning right again and going 4 miles further. A third right turn leads to the entrance.]

St. Nazianz, near Manitowoc, was founded in 1854 by the Emigrant Association of St. Nazianzen from the Baden Schwarzwald, with today's crooked streets following old ox trails. There are a Salvatorian church and seminary there and the original church, St. Gregory's, built in 1854.

The Cistercian monastery, Our Lady of Spring Bank, at Okauchee, housed in a 19 year old Romanesque edifice, welcomes travelers on the Milwaukee to Oconomowoc highway [U. S. 16]. Not in Wisconsin, but just across the Mississippi near Dubuque, Ia., is the Trappist monastery of New Melleray, one of only two institutions of its kind in the United States. This old world style building was begun in 1849.

The national shrine of the Archconfraternity of St. Joseph, on the campus of St. Norbert college at West De Pere [Premonstratensian fathers], has the only crowned statue of St. Joseph in this country, and many old paintings of scenes in the life of the saint. De Pere, originally named Rapides des Pères [the Fathers' Rapids], was the site of an early French mission of St. Francis Xavier, established in 1669 by Father Claude Allouez.

IN WISCONSIN'S "VALLEY OF THE ELVES"
The structure built by wood carvers as Norway's pavilion for the Columbia exposition in Chicago in 1893 includes many features of church architecture typical of that country in the eleventh century. The building now stands at Little Norway, near Mount Horeb, Wis.

In southwestern Wisconsin, at Dickeyville, the baroque Grotto of Christ the King and Mary the Mother draws many visitors to that small town parish near Platteville. The Shrine of St. Joseph at Rudolph, near Wisconsin Rapids, is a beautiful north country retreat for the devout.

Called the "Wisconsin Lourdes," the Chapel of Our Lady of Good Help is one of the least known and most interesting in the state. At Robinsonville, originally known as Aux Premiers Belges, four miles south of Dyckesville in Kewaunee county, this chapel is the objective of large pilgrimages annually on the Feast of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin [Aug. 15]. It was here, church history records, that the Virgin Mary appeared to a young Belgian girl, Adèle Brice, on Aug. 15, Aug. 22, and Oct. 9, 1858. Later, as Sister Adèle, this devout girl founded the chapel and school. The school is now reserved for crippled children cared for by Franciscan sisters.

Across Green bay, in Marinette county, there is a new woodland shrine to the Virgin Mary. It stands in Goodman forest, near Strong falls, on the Peshtigo river.

There are many beautiful Catholic churches in Wisconsin, and it is impossible to name them all. Foremost among them are the Romanesque Cathedral Church of Christ the King at Superior, the Spanish style Cathedral of St. John in Milwaukee, the Basilica of St. Josephat in Milwaukee. The latter was proclaimed a basilica by Pope Pius XI., and is one of four in the United States. This church was built of stone from the old Chicago postoffice. It has a 240 foot dome decorated with gold and lapis lazuli.

The first Catholic church in Milwaukee [1839] and the first cathedral church [1844-'53] is St. Peter's chapel, on the grounds of St. Francis seminary, just south of Milwaukee. Visitors must obtain permission from the rector.

The college town of Beloit is the site of an old Congregational church, built in American colonial style, and open only on Sundays. Beloit also has an old stone Episcopal church, St. Paul's.

• • •

Chief Anglican church in Wisconsin is the Fond du Lac cathedral church, St. Paul's, an American Gothic structure built in the Civil war and containing unusual carved woodwork, much of which came from Oberammergau. It is open daily. All Saints' cathedral, St. Paul's, and St. James' in Milwaukee are all fine old edifices.

This year the Holy Apostles Oneida Indian mission at Oneida, near Green Bay, will celebrate the 240th anniversary of its founding in New York by the Society for the Propagation of the Faith of the Gospel from the British Isles and the 120th of the bringing of the Episcopal church to Wisconsin. The church is built of stone taken by the Indians from their own quarry over a period of nine years. Leader of those who founded this mission was the Rev. Eleazar Williams, believed by many to be the reputed Lost Dauphin [Louis XVII.] of France.

• • •

A former Episcopal church at Evansville is now St. John's Swedish Lutheran, more than a century old. The Norway-Muskego church, four mile south of Waterford at highway 36, is the oldest Norwegian Lutheran congregation in the United States and will celebrate its centennial in 1943. Crown Prince Olav and Princess Martha of Norway visited there in 1939 and it was the only rural community in the nation to entertain the royal couple.

There are many quaint old Scandinavian churches in the Blue Mounds region. The most unusual is the Hauge log church, built in 1852, southwest of Mount Horeb on county trunk Z. The logs have been covered with clapboards to preserve them, but the interior is unchanged.

Change Travel Habits, Siddall Urges Public

If American vacationists will cooperate by modifying two travel habits, the western railroads will be able to carry many additional thousands to recreational regions without interference with the all important war effort.

These travel habits, says Hugh W. Siddall, chairman of the Trans-Continental and Western Passenger associations, are the American tendency to concentrate vacations into July and August and to travel on week-ends.

"The western railroads," Mr. Siddall related yesterday, "have a capacity, over and above the all important military requirements, to transport many thousands of vacationists to the mountains, the seashore, and other recreational regions, provided vacationists will utilize train accommodations when they are available. On the other hand, the railroads may not have the surplus equipment to accommodate every one if the majority of people try to travel at the same time.

"Happily, the idea of spreading vacations over a broader period of the year fits in with the necessity for staggering vacations in war industries so as not to interfere with production. May, June, September, and October are delightful months out of doors, and winter vacations in warm climes or for snow sports are especially healthful.

"Operation of offices and industries on six and seven day weeks also is going to be helpful in getting away from the week-end departure habit. Frequently as much as 80 per cent of all vacation travel takes place on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, leaving trains comparatively empty the balance of the week. Obviously, such travel habits are not in harmony with the wartime necessity of operating trains at maximum efficiency.

"The splendid spirit of coöperation which the American people have manifested in altering their personal habits in various ways to help win the war is an assurance they will voluntarily adapt their plans, so far as possible, to avoid July-August vacations and week-end travel peaks."

PLAYTIME UP NORTH
Miss Marion Crawford shows how the early season vacationists can enjoy themselves in almost any part of Michigan.

FOREIGN TRAVEL

'Business as Usual' on Oregon Beaches

SALEM, Ore.—Little restriction on travel in Oregon has been caused by wartime activities. Beaches and mountains continue open to the public.

The only restrictions on the 400 miles of Pacific shore are the ban on beach bonfires after nightfall and the closure of areas contiguous to military establishments. These places, however, are remote from most of the popular vacation spots. Pictures of identifiable military emplacements are banned, but these, too, are not at spots which would attract the lenses of camera fans.

It has been announced that permits may be required to enter state and national forests during the fire season, but this is usual in any normal dry summer.

Wild flowers are blooming along the coast and are starting to bloom in the mountains. For miles the Oregon coast highway [U. S. 101] is lined with yellow Irish furze and Scotch broom. Wild azaleas and rhododendrons will reach their peak along the coast in late May and in the Cascades in June. The high lakes of the Cascades will be accessible before June.

Tourist Office to Stay Open Sunday Afternoons

Added service will be given this spring by the Michigan tourist information office at 323 South Dearborn street. Arrangements have been made to keep the office open on Sunday from 12 o'clock noon until 5 p. m. thruout May and June.

How to see twice as much of your America ON A TRAIN TRIP TO CALIFORNIA

If you are planning a business or vacation trip to the West this year, you ought to see as much of America as you can. You'll return home with a better appreciation of this land, a greater determination to help defend it at all costs.

Southern Pacific, the West's biggest railroad, offers you a simple, inexpensive way to see twice as much of America on your train trip to California. We offer you this plan subject to the needs of war traffic, which has priority over everything else on our lines.

Go West on one of Southern Pacific's Four Scenic Routes and return on another S. P. route. Thus you will see an entirely different part of your United States each way. You'll see twice as much for not 1¢ extra rail fare.

Here are our Four Scenic Routes to California:

1. Sunset Route from New Orleans to Los Angeles shows you the romantic Old South, Houston, San Antonio and El Paso in mighty Texas, Tucson and Phoenix in Southern Arizona. Your train will be the fine Sunset Limited or Argonaut, famous for their good food and southern hospitality.

2. Golden State Route from Chicago to Los Angeles traces the Mexican Border country along the Rio Grande, offers you the thrilling side trip to Carlsbad Caverns National Park (above). You'll ride the luxurious Golden State Limited or friendly Californian (economy train).

3. Overland Route is the shortest route from Chicago to San Francisco — over the Rockies, across Great Salt Lake, through Reno and over the High Sierra near Lake Tahoe. Ride the swift Streamliner City of San Francisco, Overland Limited, Pacific Limited or money-saving San Francisco Challenger.

4. Shasta Route between San Francisco and Portland connects with northern lines, shows you the evergreen Pacific Northwest. Thrilling side trips through the Redwood Empire, to Mt. Lassen, Shasta Dam, Crater Lake, Mt. Rainier. Ride the de luxe Cascade or our popular economy train, the Beaver.

They Eat in a Hurry on the Amazon

[This is the 39th article of a series on South America. The next will appear in an early issue.]

By Mason Warner.

ON THE AMAZON RIVER. From Manaos to Santarem the Amazon river is split into from three to seven channels by chains of islands many miles long. It is difficult to realize the immensity of the river when steaming thru one of these channels.

From Santarem on, for more than 300 miles, the Amazon waters flow in one great stream, deep, swift, and from five to seven miles wide.

We were provided with the latest detailed maps of South America, and young Mason and I scanned them every hour of the day—and several nights. We noted Monte Alegra as the name of a town in letters large enough to indicate its importance. It was shown as situated in the midst of the jungle five or six miles from the Amazon, and we wondered how a town could exist there. No stream or tributary leading to Monte Alegre could be found on the map.

The Victoria was nonchalantly steaming down the five miles wide river in midstream when we sighted what looked like an oil derrick on the north bank. Our boat then changed its course and steered for what turned out to be a beacon light stand. It marked the mouth of a 50 yard wide meandering stream. We entered the narrow waterway and followed a twisting and turning course upstream in a pinched channel for half an hour. Then we moored at a tiny pier, took on one passenger, disembarked another, turned around, and retraced our course to the big river.

Amazon River
B R A Z I L

We made more miles toward Belem that day than on any other since leaving Porto Velho, going more than 250 miles, not counting the detour.

That Friday of the second week was our 12th day on board the Victoria. We steamed steadily all day and all night thru partially inundated jungle banks. The water was away up over the underbrush and on the tree trunks. High water had wrecked many thatched huts on the river sides and was a menace to those remaining standing on their piles.

Twelve days on the boat had not dulled the edge of our appetite for the food served. Even if not offering a variety in the menu, the food was clean, wholesome, and well cooked. Early breakfast of bread and butter and coffee or maté was served from 6 to 8 a. m. Coffee was served again at 9 a. m., a well patronized serving. Luncheon was on at 11, and it was a hearty meal of soup, fish, and two or three meats, dessert, and coffee, or maté. At tea at 4 only crackers and coffee or maté could be enjoyed. Dinner at 5:30 supplied soup, three meat items, or two meats and fish, dessert, and coffee. Beans and rice appeared at every luncheon and dinner. The 8 p. m. coffee was another occasion that caused the waiters a busy half hour.

There was no dining salon. Tables were placed on the second deck, and many times a driving rain made those seated on the outer edge seek chairs at the inside tables, for which our limited first class passenger list did not furnish regular occupants.

Only two tables were in regular service for adult passengers. The children on board were fed half an hour before the scheduled hour for meals, and that was an idea that deserved and gained the enthusiastic approval of all passengers, including wearied parents of the active and noisy offspring.

No time was lost at meals. Nowhere else in the world have I experienced such quick, hurrying, and thoro service on the part of stewards or waiters. Twenty to 25 minutes was the limited time required for dinner. You sat down facing a pile of three or four plates. After soup a meat or fish was served, and you helped yourself. If you laid down knife and fork that plate was grabbed forthwith, and another entrée was passed to you. Speed was the order of the hour, and no hesitancy over food was permitted. The tables seated eight diners, four on a side, with a ship's officer at the head. The officer set the tempo of the meal, always fast.

The dearth of vegetables on the menu was balanced by the abundance of fruits and after baked bananas—or the rice or tapioca pudding dessert—were served, and the table stewards had retired from the scene, one could enjoy the delicious fresh fruits undisturbed—sweet and juicy pineapples, mellow bananas, tart but sweet mangoes, and rich and sugary cherimoyas. We never missed the vegetables.

I seek no argument with geologists as to whether the Amazon has been carrying silt down to the Atlantic ocean for millions of years or for only several hundreds of thousands. All I know is that the silt carried down thru the ages is sufficient to form an island as large as the state of New Jersey at the mouth of the world's largest river, and that more than half of the waters it drains from its colossal domain are now diverted from its main stream to the Rio Para, a short, broad stream owing its maintenance and importance to the overflow waters of the Amazon, which cuts across country in eight or ten huge rivers to find an outlet to the sea.

On Saturday, the 13th day from Porto Velho, the head of navigation, we entered the network of streams that are the beginning of the delta of the Amazon, more than 200 miles from Belem. At the island of Serraria we turned south to enter one of the cross-country streams that lead from the Amazon to the Para river.

As we veered south we passed the fourth steamboat it had been our fortune to meet in the long 3,000 mile voyage down the Amazon. But now we could see sailboats, a half dozen visible at one time, and perhaps 20 canoes. We knew we were approaching a populous city, and hoped to dock at Belem in the morning.

Black Hills and Badlands Lure the Travelers

By Axel Hanson.

RAPID CITY, S. D. Many a vacationist will be turning this summer to the ever changing beauty of the Badlands and Black hills of South Dakota.

The Big Badlands is one of the weirdest places in the United States. It is a region of castles and minarets, sparkling with an iridescent coloring. Here, millions of years ago, the ocean flowed and receding, left an area unique among all the formations of the earth.

As the sea receded, fresh water streams and green marshes appeared. Gigantic animals came to life off the lush vegetation—titanothere, hippopotamus, and tapir. On the surrounding uplands sped the nimble three-toed horse, camels, and wild dogs. In the salt and saline deposits which form the Badlands are now found the fossil remains of these strange animals that lived in an even stranger, tropical country some 60 million years ago.

The beauty lies in the unusual shapes and soft colorings. Painters and architects come year after year to study the colors and formations. Poets describe the country as enchanted, but the average visitor tries only to realize that what he sees is actually a part of this earth.

In contrast are the Black hills. The Badlands is the bottom of an ancient ocean, while the Black hills are an upheaval of the earth's crust, the oldest mountains on the continent. They are a photographer's paradise, where each hour of the day shifts the scenery, revealing new beauty of mountain and canyon, of lake and stream. The lakes are calm, unruffled mirrors of the mountains and pines which form their setting.

In the Black hills you will find all the recreational activities that make a vacation a worth while holiday. Fish for trout, climb mountains, swim, ride horseback, play golf or tennis, or be lazy in perfect surroundings. The hills have 5 million acres of scenery, ranging from peaks etched 7,000 feet high against the sky to crystal deep caverns far under the surface of the earth.

South Dakota has planned a spectacular program of events for this year's tourist season. The opener is the Black Hills Round-up at Belle Fourche, July 3, 4, 5. Others are Gold Discovery days at Custer, July 27 and 28, and the Days of '76 celebration at Deadwood. Thruout the season the Luenen Passion play will be presented three times weekly at Spearfish.

Rocks in Garden of the Gods More Than 300 Ft. High

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—This resort center boasts one of the world's wonders in its Garden of the Gods, modestly listed on the city's books as a part of the municipal park system.

Known to millions of visitors since it was opened to the public early in the present century, the Garden of the Gods is a fantastic collection of red limestone rocks at the base of Pike's peak.

Three of the rocks are more than 300 feet high. The grotesque shapes suggest all sorts of names, such as Kissing Camels, Ship Rock, Cathedral Spires, and Balanced Rock. Geologists say the upthrust of limestone, of which the "garden" is the most spectacular unit, extends along the eastern base of the Rockies from Canada to Mexico. An imaginative writer once christened the place "the world's most weird emotion caught and stilled on the verge of a terrible outbreak."

The Ute Indians had somewhat the same conception. Legend has it that many moons ago, when the Utes were living in peace at the foot of the Holy mount [Pike's peak], a barbaric host of giants advanced from the plains. They were so big that, by comparison, "the Utes were as grasshoppers." Accompanying the giants were monstrous beasts.

The Utes, terrorized, prayed to their great god Manitou, whose gaze caused the giants and their beasts to turn instantly to stone. Thus was formed the Garden of the Gods.

Nary a 'Keep Off the Grass' Sign in Golden Gate Park

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—Almost invariably visitors to public parks find conspicuous signs reading: "Keep Off the Grass!"

Not so in San Francisco's Golden Gate park, nine city blocks wide and four and one-half miles long. There are acres with nary a sign warning to keep off.

Washington Is Heart of Great Vacation Land

By Mary Coyle.

SEATTLE, WASH. With government agencies encouraging travel for rest and recreation as a necessary and desirable part of the nation's war program, summer is expected to bring a considerable flow of tourists from the middle west to the Pacific northwest.

The heart of this great vacation land is the state of Washington, with its amazing diversity of mountain, lake, and forest areas, and with its rugged sea coast, deeply indented by the salt waters of Puget sound.

• • •

Seattle is regarded by many travelers as one of the most beautiful cities in America, if not in the world. Facing Elliott bay and Puget sound, it has two enchanting lakes within the city limits, along with a number of unusual parks, and it is bisected by an eight mile canal.

Tacoma, lumbering capital of the northwest, is scarcely less interesting. Among its attractions are the magnificent views from the hills overlooking Commencement bay, two widely known parks, and Fort Nisqually, a replica of the original settlement.

But perhaps the state's greatest tourist attraction is Mount Rainier, reached by motor bus from either Seattle or Tacoma. Standing serenely above Puget sound, it is even more impressive than its 14,408 height might indicate. It was known to the Indians as "the mountain that was God." Its upper slopes are eternally crowned with snow, and it supports the greatest single-peak glacier system in the United States.

A fine mountain road swings up thru Longmire Springs to Paradise inn, starting point for walking trips thru the Alpine meadows carpeted with hundreds of varieties of flowers, over the glacier, or even to the high snow fields where winter sports may be enjoyed all summer long. Trails for hikers and horseback riders skirt the mountain and lead to the neighboring peaks of the Tatoosh range.

Northward from Seattle, over the Chuckanut drive to Bellingham, a delightful trip takes the visitor to Mount Baker National forest. Inns and chalets provide accommodations for those who wish to explore Table mountain, Mount Shuksan and the green Heather meadows, as well as Mount Baker. There, too, are snow fields, endless trails to ride and mountain lakes that invite fishing and swimming.

Across the sound from Seattle and Tacoma is the wilderness of the Olympic peninsula, where a tract of 643,000 acres has been set aside as a national park. Much of the park proper is still an untouched mountain fastness cloaked with forests of hemlock, spruce, and fir. There is good trout fishing in the rivers or in Crescent and Quinault lakes, and commercial fishermen will take you out on the Pacific for deep sea salmon.

Another unforgettable part of a trip over the peninsula is the drive on the road skirting Hurricane ridge below snowcapped Mount Olympus and the Bailey range and to the Straits of Juan de Fuca. Perhaps nowhere on this continent is there a highway offering such a combination of mountain, forest, and ocean scenery.

California Starts Festival Season

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—The current events calendar of San Francisco and northern and central California is filled with celebrations.

The little mission towns are holding pageants; the gold country relives the days of the '49ers; the vintners of the region hold open house and demonstrate the crushing of cool grapes for wine. There are rodeos, garden shows, musical events, golf tournaments, speed boat races, and yachting contests.

Mexico....
Travel in Comfort—by rail

Your Mexican holiday begins the moment you board the train, where you relax in surroundings designed for your complete comfort and enjoyment.

In Mexico you will find yourself above the "hot weather" line . . . visit towns, cities and resorts from 4,000 to 8,000 feet in altitude. And how rich your reward! "Ideal," you'll say, "for rest or play."

No new war-time restrictions will affect your sojourn. This Good Neighbor country is in the "no passport area" and the usual tourist card suffices. Best of all, costs remain unbelievably low—your dollar in Mexico is worth almost five pesos!
